Mount Vernon.—Two suave men in silk hats and fur-lined overcoats drove through the Chester Hill district in Mount Vernon recently selling, at "special rates," pearls which they said had been discovered in the tomb of King-Tut-Ankh-Amen. Their business was interrupted by motorcycle policemen and they sped away toward the Bronx in a limousine.

Ten or more complaints reached police headquarters in connection with the sale of the alleged pearls at from $10 to $25 a string.

Stanley Robinson became suspicious after he had invested $10 in the Egyptian trophies and took them to a jeweler, who said they could be duplicated in any ten cent store in the city. Robinson then complained to the police.

Red Tape Beats Guillotine; French Verdict Lacks Initial

Paris.—The red tape of French law has saved Albert Le Clery from the guillotine. Le Clery was tried at Chartres for attempted murder of a policeman, and the jury had no hesitation in finding him guilty unanimously.

When it was pointed out to the jurors that there was no need to specify the "unanimously" in their written verdict, they crossed out the word. They failed, however, to initial the correction in the margin, an omission which the Supreme court now holds invalidated the verdict.

WHERE THE RAINBOW TOUCHES THE GROUND

THE family cat died. The farmer who owned the cat, in digging the grave discovered a substance which proved to be marl. This farmer had been hauling limestone a long distance for his alfalfa fields. In conference with his county agent, he discovered that marl would take the place of lime in correcting the acidity of his soil. This experience led him to the use of marl that existed on his own farm and saved him much time and considerable expense in hauling.

Similar opportunities have existed and still exist. Many farmers in the middle west will recall what a pest sweet clover used to be. Now this pest is being used profitably as hay and pasture for livestock and as a crop to be plowed under for increasing the fertility of the soil.

Kansas is called the "Sunflower State" and those who have lived there will well remember how they have fought this weed. Today sunflowers are being grown as a crop, as feed for chickens and it is also being utilized with or without corn as a suitable crop for the silo.

It is surprising to discover how many things which were frowned upon in days gone by are now serving a useful purpose. These changes have been brought about by observation and study. Brains count on the farm as elsewhere. The man who thinks while he is performing physical work is not only opening up the way for larger profits but he is removing the word drudgery from his vocabulary and is transforming what used to be a drudgery into a profitable pleasure.—The Banker-Farmer.

BANKERS HELP THE KIDS

Northern Michigan Bankers are out to give the youngsters in their part of the country a lift on the road to better dairying. A group of bankers met with some of the agricultural men in their section and pledged their support in backing up calf club work.

Her Very Own Pig—A Boys and Girls Club Member

Virginia, Minnesota, Bankers have faith in "kids." Meeting with a committee from the Virginia Chamber of Commerce they formulated plans for the establishment of Calf Clubs and "Pure Bred Bull Associations." Banks all over St. Louis county have pledged their support to this work.

An Arkansas bank loaned a youngster $70, in 1920. The boy bought a purebred Poland China gilt from a breeder in a neighboring state. Being the first purebred gilt brought into the county for boys and girls club work, she has furnished more stock than any other sow in the section. With the start that the bank gave the youngster he has been able to refute the claim that hog raising in his county was not profitable, for at the present time he has more than $1000 to his credit as a result of the original bank loan and investment.

REMARKABLE SAVINGS FIGURES

Remarkable progress in the savings habit in the United States is shown in figures presented to the recent convention of the American Bankers Association by Samuel H. Beach, president of its Savings Bank Division.

In 1921, Mr. Beach showed, twenty-six million people had savings accounts aggregating $16,618,595,000. In 1922, there was an increase of over four per cent, bringing the aggregate up to $17,300,000,000. Similar statistics for 1912 showed that the aggregate was only about half as much as in 1922 or only $8,433,000,000.

Mr. Beach's report on school savings banking showed that practically two million pupils are now participating in school banking systems, an increase of 34 per cent as compared with last year and 58 per cent as compared with 1921, while the total of the actual amount deposited last year was $9,618,000, as compared with $5,775,000 in 1921 and $2,800,000 in 1920, an increase of nearly 340 per cent in three years.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Is your DeLaval separator in good running order?

IF it isn't, then you may be losing butter-fat and shortening the life of the machine; and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it isn't the fault of the machine but due to the fact that it needs attention, adjustment, cleaning, or the replacement of some part.

Bring in your De Laval Separator to us and we will put it in first-class running order. Bring in the complete machine, and in order to save expense clean out the oil chamber and gears with kerosene or boiling water. You can do this just as well as we can.

Death of Mrs. Andrew Bjerk

Anna Severson was born in Solar, Norway, July 18th. 186 and was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran church at that place.

She came to America with a sister in 1884 and to Marshall county the next year where her parents had a homestead. On Dec. 27th, 1887 she was united in marriage with Andrew Bjerk and settled on his homestead in Holt township, where they lived until 1919 when they retired from the farm and settled in Holt. Mrs. Bjerk was the mother of nine children, all of whom are living, except the eldest daughter who died at the age of fifteen years and a few months. The sons and daughters were all present at the funeral except Archie who lives with his brother at Bloomer, Wis.

Saturday afternoon, while reading, Mrs. Bjerk was taken suddenly and violently ill with what seemed to be a rupture in the stomach. Dr. Mellby was called and did all possible to relieve the terrible pains. She was quiet during the night and medicine was given her at regular intervals, but as her heart had been weak for several years, she was unable to stand the strain upon it and passed quietly away at 8:45 Sunday morning April 13th.

Funeral services were held at the Lutheran church Wednesday noon, Rev. Ordahl preaching English and Rev. Raaum in Norwegian. The interment was made in the Holt cemetery. Relatives present were; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bjerk and baby, Mrs. Lydia Mathison and children all of McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kauta of Sarles, N. D., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bjerk of Bloomer, Wis. the other sons Melvin of Nielsville, Minn. Hardy and Omer of Holt, a brother, Ole Severson and a sister, Mrs. Martin Erickson and husband all of Reynolds, N. D. Henry Bjerk of Strathcona, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bjerk of St. Hilaire.

The News extends sincere sympathy to the grief stricken husband, sons, daughters, brothers, and sisters of a truly noble christian woman who was a friend to everybody.

Cards of Thanks

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our neighbors and friends for their kindly help and sympathy at the time of the death of our beloved wife and mother and for the many beautiful flowers for the funeral.

AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minnesota.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days' time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure for me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can."—Mrs. JAMES WILKE, 933 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minn.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Wilke.

History of Lent

□ □ □

By H. L. Millis

MILLIONS of followers of the Christian faith over the world are at this season making preparations for the Easter festival, the most important occasion in the Christian calendar.

"If Christ be not risen from the dead, then is our preaching vain," said Paul, and the whole Christian structure rests upon the resurrection as its foundation. Without the resurrection the hope of humanity is gone, for only in a living Christ is there salvation.

The death and resurrection of Christ are primarily involved in the keeping of the Lenten season, which is observed formally by the older branches of the Christian church. The different churches vary in their practices in the observance of the forty days preceding Easter, but the spirit prompting the observance is the same in all. Some of the Protestant churches do not observe Lent, but many ministers find it a propitious time for evangelistic effort, and in recent years some very successful evangelistic campaigns have been waged by Protestants in the large cities during the season of Lent.

The history of Lent has many interesting passages. The severe rules of the fast prescribed in the early days have been greatly relaxed during the centuries, as far as they apply to physical observance.

Since the earliest times in religious history fasting at times has been a custom. The patriarchs had great mournings and the ancient Israelites had devotional fasts for the expiation of sins. Moses passed forty days on Mount Horeb in fasting and after Israel was defeated at Ai, Joshua and the elders remained prostrate before the ark from morning until evening without eating. Christ spent forty days in the wilderness in fasting, but however prevalent the custom it does not appear that either Jewish legislation or Christ Himself, either by command or example, ever designated any certain period for fasting.

* * *

It is certain, however, that the examples of Moses, Elias and Christ exercised a great influence upon the establishment of the Lenten season in the Christian church, and that observance of the period of forty days was evolved from their examples. Modern scholarship rejects the claim that Lent was of apostolic institution, although some of the early fathers contended that it was. While the apostles fasted at seasons and enjoined the practice upon others, the specific Lenten observance was evolved after apostolic times.

In the Catholic Encyclopedia, which is the principal authority upon Catholic history and teachings, some interesting facts are recited about this season, which, whatever its exact origin, has been religiously observed every year for at least 1,700 years.

The word Lent itself is a Teutonic word, which has been in use since the Anglo-Saxon period, and is generally used in preference to the Latin term "Quadragesima," meaning the "Forty days." The forty-day observance of "Lent" is not mentioned by the pre-Nicene fathers, but St. Athanasius of Alexandria, after traveling over Europe wrote in 339 that a fast was generally practiced in Europe and he enjoined upon the Alexandrians to do likewise, "to the end that while all the world is fasting, we who are in Egypt should not become a laughing stock as the only people who do not fast, but take our pleasures in these days."

As the centuries passed, there was great diversity in the practices of keeping Lent, but from the earliest times there was a prohibition against the eating of meat, and it was deemed especially pious to refrain from eating eggs or fruit with a hard covering. In the beginning there was no prohibition against the "Lacticinia," but St. Gregory in writing to St. Augustine from England laid down the rule: "We abstain from flesh meat and from all things from flesh, eggs, milk and cheese." There were special dispensations for eating these products, however, and many churches were built with the gifts for these dispensations. Thus a steeple in the cathedral at Rouen was known as "The Butter Tower." The custom of giving Easter eggs, so much enjoyed by the children of today, arose from the prohibition of eggs. The eggs were blessed and given to the children.

Although in the early Middle Ages the rules of the fast were very strict, with only one light meal on week days and that in the evenings, and no flesh on Sundays, the rules began to be less rigid a little later. It became the custom to break the fast at three o'clock in the afternoon or the period called "nome." Charlemagne is said to have taken his Lenten repast at two o'clock in the afternoon. Gradually the time was moved up to midday, as nome was a period rather than an hour, and the repast was eventually taken at twelve o'clock, and the word "nome" is perpetuated in our word "noon."

The collation was introduced in the Ninth century when the council at Aix-la-Chapelle sanctioned that concession. It began with allowing in monasteries a draught of water to the inmates at evening after a day of labor. From this the much larger indulgence was developed. The principle that a small quantity of food, but not taken as a regular meal, did not break the fast, was adopted by Thomas Aquinas, the celebrated Dominican theologian, and in the course of centuries taking of food not to exceed eight ounces became recognized as a lawful custom of the church. It took the name of "collation" because it was first taken in the monasteries at the hour at which the "Collationes" of Abbot Cassion were read aloud to the brethren.

In modern times the Catholic church prescribes rules more lenient, especially for the working people who are not prohibited from eating flesh meat except on Fridays, Ash Wednesdays and Saturday of Holy week, and soldiers and sailors in active service are dispensed from the law of abstinence except on Ash Wednesday, and several other holy days.

Aside from the fasting as an observance of the Lenten season the Catholic church conducts special services at stated times and the fundamental doctrines of the church are preached and other ceremonies carried out. It is the desire that all should refrain from all pleasures during this forty-day period and keep their minds and hearts upon spiritual things.

The other churches that observe Lent dispense with the fast but stress the period as a time for self-examination and prayer, and reconsecration to Christ. Their members also dispense with ordinary worldly pleasures during the Lenten season and observe it as a period of extra religious effort.

Early Chicks Are Most Profitable

Practical Suggestions Regarding Successful Feeding and Raising.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Early hatched chicks are by far the most profitable, whether grown to maturity for laying or sold as poultry flesh, says the United States Department of Agriculture, and the following suggestions in regard to the successful raising and feeding of young chicks have been found to be practical.

The brooder house and stove heater which are used for caring for the chicks during the first few weeks of their lives must be in working order before the chicks arrive. The most common style of brooding is the use of a stove brooder in a colony house, keeping from 350 to 500 chicks in a flock in each house and placing the houses about 150 feet apart on a good grass range. A house 10 by 14 feet makes a suitable colony house which can be readily moved if built on runners. Chicks brooded early in the season will do better in a large house, about 10 by 20, partitioned so that one side is used for a brooder stove and the other for a cool exercising room. Wire netting should be placed in the corners of the brooder house to prevent the chicks from huddling and crowding in the corners.

Feed Chicks Sparingly.

Chicks should not be fed for the first 36 to 48 hours, after which they should be supplied regularly four or five times daily with easily digested feed which contains little waste material. They should be fed sparingly until about the fifth day, when they can be put on full ration. An excellent feed can be made of infertile eggs taken from the incubator, boiled for 15 minutes, chopped, and mixed with a dry mash of equal parts of cracker meal, bran and cornmeal, using a sufficient amount of the grain to make a dry, crumbly mixture. Dry rolled oats are excellent for chicks and can be used as one feed; the other two or three feeds being the commercial grains.

At two weeks of age the chicks can be given a dry mash in a hopper, consisting of four parts, by weight, of rolled oats, two parts bran, two parts cornmeal, one part high-grade meat scrap, one part middlings and one-half part dried buttermilk. Commercial chick feed should be fed three times daily in addition to the dry mash. Milk is an excellent feed for chicks and should be provided either as a liquid or in the dry form to secure the best growth.

Feed Coarse Grain.

When the chicks are one month old, they should be fed a coarser or intermediate chick grain, and at about two months of age the scratch feed can be changed to equal parts of wheat and cracked corn, fed two or three times a day.

Work With Pest-Poisons Seen in Motion Picture

"Poison," a one-reel education motion picture visualizing the activities of the insecticide and fungicide board, has been recently released by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The film shows the numerous ways in which the American farmer, the greatest user of chemicals in the world, employs poisons of various sorts to destroy insect pests and diseases which attack his crops and live stock, and how the insecticide and fungicide board protects the public against fraudulent materials by examining all insecticide and fungicide offered for sale in interstate shipments. Various laboratory scenes illustrate the chemical analyses given the materials, and field scenes show how the worth of the "pizen" is determined by actual test.

The seizure of "fake" materials, which not only fail to "cure" but often cause enormous losses by actually injuring plant or animal, and the punishment of their purveyors, are also included in the film, which sounds a warning to users of insecticides and fungicides to beware of untested poisons and to use only tried and proved articles.

"Poison" will be circulated through the educational film service of the department and the co-operating state institutions. Copies may be borrowed for short periods or may be purchased at the laboratory charge.

Farmers Are Beginning to Find Value of Sudan

Farmers are just beginning to realize the value of sudan grass for feed. Sow broadcast or put in with a drill, about twenty pounds to the acre, and don't put it in too deep—about one inch is right. This will make a fine temporary pasture for hogs. It keeps coming up just like alfalfa does, and the more it is eaten down the more it starts up. You can turn in on it about the middle of June and from then on until frost in the fall, it gives a wonderful amount of feed. Put in with a lister and cultivated as corn, it stools more readily and makes good hay for horses and cattle. Use about two or three pounds to the acre. It makes more hay and better hay and is a surer yielder than any other quick crop you can use. It will cut from two to four crops a season.

Sudan grass being an annual and having fibrous roots similar to wheat or oats, is as easily controlled and eradicated as millet. Sudan is a good seed crop to

Iowa State College Girls Organize Club

Work Deals With Practical Phases of Farm and Home.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A college girls' club has been formed by former members of the farm boys and girls' 4-H clubs, now attending Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts. These young women, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, assisted in many ways at the recent short course held by the Iowa college for club girls from the counties. A committee of the college club met the young visitors at the railroad station on their arrival for the short course. Another committee showed the girls the interesting places on the campus during their stay. And forty members of the college club served the junior banquet given for short-course students by the college. Members of the organization meet once each quarter for dinner together and to make plans for welcoming all new club girls who may come to the college.

4-H clubs are organized and conducted for farm boys and girls, ranging in age from about ten to twenty years, by extension workers. The work of the clubs, dealing with practical phases of farming and home making, is planned to train the mind or head of the boy or girl to think, plan, and reason; to train the hands to be skillful; to attain the best possible health for efficiency and enjoyment; and to train the heart to be kindly and sympathetic toward the work and toward associates; hence the term 4-H, or head, hands, health, and heart clubs.

Discover More Cars and Trucks Owned by Farmer

The United States Department of Agriculture recently discovered that 923 farmers in every 1,371 owned 1,000 automobiles and motor trucks.

It was shown furthermore that nine-tenths of these cars were farm business cars. Two-thirds were of the low-priced type and most of them were several years old. About one-fourth of the number were motor trucks, while the fancy roadsters, coupes and sedans composed less than 10 per cent of the total.

A few narrow-minded individuals still are howling that the farmer is doing too much joyriding. That he should lock his car up in the barn and walk and enjoy some real prosperity after a few years, but only a few are howling in that key. Time is just as important to the man on the farm as it is to the man in the shop. He buys a mower because it saves time in cutting hay. His binder is faster than the cradle, and likewise his motorcar is faster than his team and his truck can haul more in less time than he formerly hauled with his horses. It's too bad, of course, that the motorcar can be used for pleasure occasionally. It gives the howlers an opportunity to howl, but let 'em howl. If using a motorcar for pleasure occasionally is a misfortune, we're glad to have it to contend with.

Good Demand for Higher Grades of Beef Cattle

Cattle feeders who finish on grain for market fared very well during the past year, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Prior to the war cattle ranging in weight from 1,200 to 1,350 pounds were about 17 per cent above the price of range cattle. In 1922 cattle of this weight sold about 36 per cent above the price of range cattle. In 1922 good to prime cattle were about 50 per cent above the price of feeder steers, whereas in September, 1923, they ranged to about 70 per cent above. The high industrial activity has given a good market for good beef and has stimulated a demand for the higher grades of cattle which come finished from the feed lots of the corn belt.

Curious Bowlder

A tremendous bowlder, weighing some 17 tons and perched upon a flat rock, apparently so nicely balanced that a glance at it almost convinces a person that but little force is needed to throw it over, is to be seen in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, not far from Pittsfield. It is called the "Balance Rock," but, despite its name and appearance, is firmly fixed and makes no movement whatever.

Back Given Out?

It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, throbbing backache and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find out the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

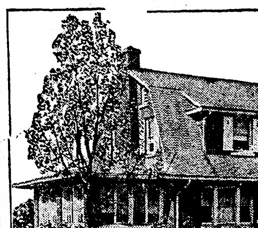
Modified Dutch Colonial Plan Offers Home of Real Comfort



By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Utility is the real test of the desirability in a house plan, just as it is the real basis for good taste and pleasant appearance in building.

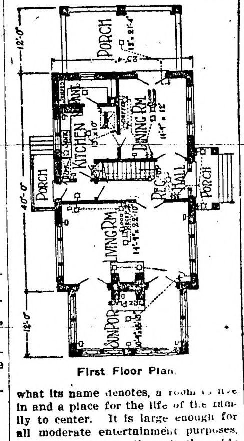
It is the pleasing appearance, founded on a basis of convenience which has gained and kept for the Dutch Colonial type of residence construction its increasing popularity among American families.

The modified Dutch Colonial plan shown in the accompanying illustration is notable for the fact that it will make a real home, a place to be lived in and preferred to other spots, not merely a refuge when there is "no place to go."

The solid, brick construction, with the projecting roof lines, gives an impression of sturdy comfort which cannot fail to bring a glow of pride and appreciation to the owner. Note the decorative effect of the white trimmings and of the solid shutters shown on the windows of the second story.

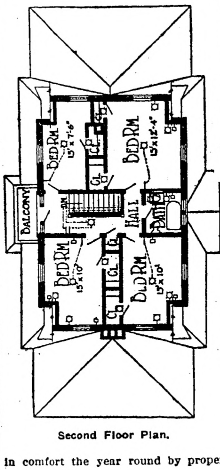
The interior arrangement of the first floor provides for the central hall, which is always a desirable feature. The reception hall offers the decorative possibilities of the open stairway while it separates the living room effectively from the kitchen and the dining room.

The living room, from its dimensions and arrangements, is essentially what its name denotes, a room to live in and a place for the life of the family to center. It is large enough for all moderate entertainment purposes, particularly when, through the wide French doors, it is combined into what is practically one room with the commodious sun porch.



First Floor Plan.

One of the unique features of this home is the two fireplaces, one opening into the living room and the other, directly opposite the first and using the same chimney, opening on the sun porch. This porch, which may be made so attractive, can be utilized in comfort the year round by proper auxiliary glazing.



Second Floor Plan.

The dining room, with its pleasing views through ample windows, is of sufficient size to accommodate the family and guests nicely. Comfortable protection against heat in summer is insured by the open porch opening off this room.

The arrangement of the kitchen is particularly convenient. The sink is directly under a window, allowing the one working in the room to see something of the outside world while at work. The commodious pantry, with its built-in features will appeal to housewives, as will the entry hall to the rear, with provision for delivery of ice without the ice man entering the immaculate kitchen.

The design of the bedrooms is sound, with cross ventilation provided in each one and with proper wall space and arrangement for the convenient placing of beds. Each of the rooms is provided liberally with closet room, with an additional closet in the hall which will be appreciated for the storage of household linens. The bath is located to give a maximum of service to the four rooms.

Freight rates on materials and differences in prices of labor in various localities make it impossible to approximate the cost of building this home for the entire country. This information can be gained best from your local architect, contractor or building material dealer, who is constantly in touch with building costs in your community.

Errors in Illumination Compel Use of Glasses

Most people really know very little about good light. Illumination is a science, and as yet we have not been educated to understand this fact and act upon it.

This important matter of illumination has been left to manufacturers of chandeliers—successors to gas fixture makers—who depend upon design of fixtures instead of quality of light. They have largely failed to keep pace with the development of the lighting unit from gas and the first carbon filament electric lamps to the modern incandescent lighting unit of a thousand times the brilliancy.

The two standards by which the average person judges lighting are brilliancy of illumination or beauty of fixtures. These two false standards are the basis of the condition which now confronts us—the alarming increase in the wearing of glasses and the prevalence of headaches, 60 per cent of which specialists say are due to poor light. There is the big cause—wrong illumination. When people know that the only real standard for judging light is its effect upon the eyes, then we will have right illumination. When they understand that the eye is an exceedingly delicate organ, that its nerves are so sensitive that even a small amount of excessive light will injure them or a few hours of work under inadequate light do great damage, all illumination will be based primarily upon the eye and its needs.

Latest Type of Window Fasteners Is Described

A variety of styles of fastenings for casement windows are available. One should be chosen which draws the sash firmly into the casing, minimizing drafts. A good adjuster to hold the sash open at any point is also desirable. Brass or bronze fastenings are essential because of their ability to withstand exposure.

For double-hung windows a type of fastener that draws the two sashes together, and good pulleys, are essential. A type of pulley in which the wheel runs freely upon a fixed axle will give longer wear than one in which the axle turns in a hole bored in the casing. A brass or bronze chain will outlast many pieces of sash cord.

Garage Should Be in Harmony With House

The design and material for the garage should be in keeping with the house proper and not merely a place built to store one's automobile. A garage out of harmony with the home becomes an unsightly obstruction to the general plan of beautifying the property. While a two-car garage is unnecessary to the average home owner, one should never restrict the size to merely sufficient room for the housing of the car, but should keep in mind that it costs but little additional to furnish sufficient room in which to move around and take care of the general work entailed by the ownership of an automobile.

Mighty Waves Seen

Waves of extraordinary height, miscalled "tidal waves," are sometimes encountered at sea or along the coasts. They are due either to earthquakes under the sea or to a combination of several ordinary waves, which if a heavy sea be running, is sufficient to account for a wave of unusual height. Such a one was recently encountered by the British steamship Maine, near the southern edge of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. The wind was rising after a hard blow and an ugly swell about 25 feet high was running. Then a huge wave was seen towering above the other seas, a mile away, and rushing toward the ship. It swept the vessel from end to end, and was estimated by the officers to have been Globe.

Church Designs Studied

Modern religious thought and new economic conditions are bringing about a demand for a change in church conditions and as a result several of the leading denominations have named a special committee to study designs best suited for small or medium-sized congregations. The object is to find the economic value, if possible, in a more liberalized church architecture.

No More "Longhorns"

The day of the Texas "longhorn," the steer famed for its breadth of horn and lightness of body, is past. Today there probably is not a real longhorn in the whole of Texas, not even in Pecos valley, where it made its last stand against the blood of high breeding as practiced by the Northerners who have converted Texas from a raising ground of horns and speed to a home of real beef.

The genuine longhorn weighed but from 600 to 700 pounds, and could race with a coyote. It had descended from the early cattle of the Spaniards, who were the first white settlers of the Rio Grande country and the semi-desert lands of the Southwest. It has been years since a real longhorn has been seen on the plains of Texas.

But the greatest of all longhorns was not killed by man. This steer, a maverick, a lone outcast from his herd, who lived and roamed alone, fell prey to wolves in the Devil's River mountains years ago. His horns are now in San Angelo. These, measuring eight feet from tip to tip, were found by cowboys.

Odd Superstition

An odd superstition in Iceland is that every bride must invite all her friends to a dinner in her own home, and every article of food must be prepared by the bride herself. If she is successful in pleasing her guests she not only receives praise for her own skill, but helps along her younger sisters, who are then assumed to be equally good at cooking, and consequently have a much better chance of getting married.

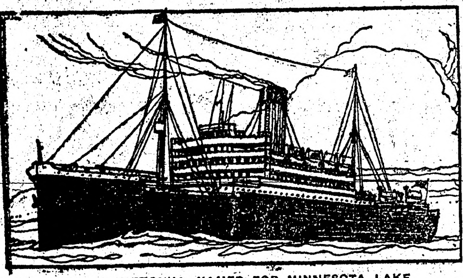
Luxury Liners Are Given Indian Names in Compliment to Minnesota



S. S. MINNETONKA, NAMED FOR MINNESOTA LAKE

New York.—An event in transatlantic shipping of current interest to the people of Minnesota is the recent maiden voyage of the largest transatlantic passenger liner to be built in a British shipyard this year, which bears the name of Minnetonka, for one of Minnesota's most beautiful lakes.

Last year the owners of this vessel, the Atlantic Transport Line of New York and London, brought out a similar ship, which was named Minnewaska. This name also, as most Americans know, is that of a lake in Minnesota. The ships cost more than $5,000,000 each.

The reasons prompting the steamship company to give its new vessels—which are of the luxury liner type—the names of lakes in an American state far from the sea, reveal the effect of sentiment in business. Before the world war the line built up a large following with ships distinguished by Indian names. It was found that such names appealed to Americans when traveling to or from foreign countries and that most Americans had no difficulty in remembering Indian names.

The original ships having been lost by enemy action in the war, the company has decided to give their names to new vessels as they are built to replace them. All the names begin with the prefix "Minne," from the Dakota tongue, meaning water. Names reserved for future ships of the line are Minnehaha and Minneapolis, both having been borne by liners that were lost in the war.

Before naming its two new liners, which are large vessels of 21,700 tons each, the Atlantic Transport Line made careful inquiry as to the meaning of the names and the history of the lakes to which they pertained in order to place the information before travelers of European countries who are not familiar with American Indian names.

Research at the Minnesota State Library brought out some interesting facts about the lakes and their names. It was shown that Lake Minnewaska at one time bore an Indian name meaning Dish Lake, because of its being in a low basin. Later, when Chief White Bear was buried on a high hill on its north shore, it was renamed White Bear Lake. Afterward the name was changed to Lake Whipple, for Bishop Whipple of Faribault, Minn., who was for many years a missionary among the Sioux. Finally, by act of legislature, in 1883, the name was changed back to the purely Indian word Minnewaska, meaning "water which becomes white," "white water," or, in a broader interpretation, "good water."

The Indian name of Lake Minnetonka was made its official name by Governor Ramsey in 1862. It means "big water." The derivation is from "minne" water, and "tanka" or "tonka," the Dakota word for large, or great.

The region about both lakes was formerly inhabited by Sioux and Chippewa Indians, both of whom spoke the Dakota language.

At the request of the steamship company Dr. Melvin R. Gilmore of the Museum of the American Indian, New York, went carefully into the derivation of the names. He said: "Without doubt the names Minnewaska and Minnetonka are from the Dakota language. In both names the element 'minne' is a variation of spelling of the Dakota word for water, which is mini. The name Minnewaska I take to be formed by composition of the following elements: Mini, water; wa, a prefix which, when used with verbs, puts them into the intransitive state, the verb being thereby changed to an adjectival sense; ska, white; ya, a causative auxiliary verb carrying the meaning of the cause to do, or to cause to become, as in this instance, skaya, to become white. In this composition, the elements, Mini-wa-ska-ya, would then have the meaning 'water which becomes white.' It appears that as the name of the lake now results it has suffered mutilation on the white man's tongue by the omission of the suffix ya. Such mutilations are very common.

"The meaning of the second name, Minnetonka, is obvious, being clearly from mini, the Dakota word for water, and tanka, the Dakota word for large or great."

MAKING IT HARD FOR BANK CROOKS

How the Nation's Bankers Are Banded Together in War on Crime—The Great Crook Trap and the Way It Works.

By JOHN OAKWOOD

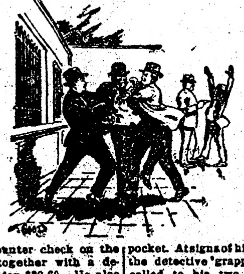
The slick gentry who have been wont to walk into banks and mesmerize paying tellers into giving them good cash for worthless checks have recently become aware of the fact that their operations are daily growing more difficult. Crooks who have operated with apparent immunity for years have suddenly found themselves caught in the meshes of what amounts to a nation wide crook trap.

To show how effectively this is now working, one of the biggest figures among the worthless check operators, a man who claims to have defrauded dozens of banks and realized more than $300,000 from his operations, recently fell into the toils of the trap. Realizing that he was hopelessly caught, he made a complete confession.

This trap is conducted by the Protective Department of the American Bankers Association, which includes in its membership more than 22,000 banks that are thus leagued in a perpetual warfare against the army of bank crooks scattered throughout the nation.

A Dramatic Arrest

A dramatic illustration of the workings of the association's detective department was recently staged in Buffalo, N. Y., resulting in the sudden downfall of a pair of check swindlers and terminating a year's successful operations in some fifteen cities in various sections of the country.



The pair began their operations in Buffalo in the middle of January, one of them appearing at the special savings account window of a bank there. He presented a counter check on the bank for $75.60, together with a deposit slip filled in for $20.60. He also presented a second deposit slip for $3, proffering with it $3 in currency. He told the teller that he wanted to deposit the two items, that is, $3 in cash and $20.60 out of the check, to the credit of his wife, explaining that he had forgotten to bring her book but would return with it later. His cash and the check were accepted, totaling $78.60. From this sum his wife's supposed account was credited with $23.60, the total of the two deposit slips, and he was given $55 cash in change.

After the man left the bank the teller became suspicious due to his prolonged failure to return as he had promised with his wife's deposit book. On investigation the check he had left was found to be worthless. The bank communicated with the local detective office of the association, giving a complete description of the man.

The Alarm Is Given

Later that same day the detective office received another report from a second bank that it had been similarly defrauded by a man answering the description given by the first bank. Steps were at once taken to set a trap for him should he attempt further operations. All surrounding banks were warned that he was in the vicinity and a complete description was given them of his appearance and of his mode of operating. They were advised to have their tellers and guards on the lookout and to communicate at once by telephone with the detective office in case anyone appeared in their lobbies who seemed to answer to the description of the man wanted. They were also instructed to take steps to detain him in the bank.

Early the next afternoon the telephone rang in the detective office and a message came from a third bank that they thought the man was in its lobby. Three detectives rushed to the bank in an automobile which had been held continuously in waiting. Two of the detectives covered the entrances of the bank and the third went into the lobby. He at once noticed a short, well dressed man standing at one side and watching the line of people at the tellers' windows. In the line he noticed a large man, answering the description of the bad check operator he was seeking.

The detective approached the man who at once scented trouble and tore up the papers he had in his hand, hiding the pieces in his pocket. At signs of his putting up a fight, the detective grappled with him and called to his two associates at the doors to arrest the other man whom he had noticed as he entered. After a short struggle the two men were overpowered. When the larger of the two was searched a torn check was found in his pocket, made out in the same writing as the two that had been successfully passed the day before. A number of similar checks all prepared for use, were also found on his confederate. When confronted by the tellers of the banks who had been victimized the day before, the leader was readily identified. The two prisoners were hopelessly ensnared, admitted their guilt and in their hotel rooms were found a large number of checks, deposit slips and pass books of banks in various cities.

The Trap Sprung Again

Similar quick action of the bank crook trap in Boston terminated the career of another check forger who had been operating successfully in the New England states. The banks which he had victimized notified the American Bankers Association with the result that all other banks in the territory were warned against him and were put on guard. Therefore, when he walked into a Boston bank to continue his operations he walked into a trap as he was immediately recognized and nabbed by the officers there.

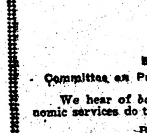
These are only two instances of many that have recently taken place in various parts of the country. Some of these arrests have brought into the toils of the authorities some of the slickest operators in this line in the country, and from them have been learned the details of the way bank crooks operate, placing in the hands of the detective department the means to put banks on guard against further depredations.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON VI

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

We hear of bank capital, surplus and stockholders. What economic services do they render the community?



J. H. Puelicher

BANK CAPITAL=The money necessary to engage in the business of rendering banking services to the community.

SURPLUS=A part of a bank's earnings not paid out as dividends to stockholders but reserved for possible losses or to expand activities as needed by growing business.

CAPITAL AND SURPLUS=Protection to depositors, because if trouble arises, depositors must be paid in full out of these funds if necessary before stockholders are paid anything.

BANK STOCKHOLDER=Anyone able and willing to buy stock in a bank and to assume the risk of the business. A share of stock represents a fraction of ownership in the whole, and with ownership go responsibilities and liabilities. In smaller communities those who usually organize banks interest successful farmers, successful merchants and successful manufacturers because of the influence they bring.

DOUBLE LIABILITY=The obligation under the law that rests on a bank stockholder, in case his bank fails and the assets are not enough to pay depositors, to pay an amount equal to his bank stock, in addition to losing his original investment. This is not the case in corporations other than banks. Example: If a man owned $1,000 in bank stock and the bank failed, and after the assets had been used, the bank still owed money to depositors, the stockholder would be required to pay up to another $1,000 if necessary to meet the obligations to depositors.

Thus it is seen that bank capital and bank stockholders perform real economic services.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being dene in the vicinity of Holt.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignees of the Mortgagee hereinafter named are authorized to declare the whole sum due, and they hereby do declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Albin Dahl and Alice Dahl, his wife, and Selmer Dahl, single, Mortgagors to Deposit Trust & Savings Bank, Winona, Minnesota, a corporation under the laws of the State of Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated August 9th, 1920 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota on the 4th day of September, A. D. 1920 at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 292,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Trust & Savings Bank, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Edwin A. Brown and Martha G. Brown, as joint tenants, by written assignment dated September 9th, A. D. 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota on the 20th day of February, A. D. 1924 at 8 oclock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 249,

And whereas, the said Edwin A. Brown and Martha G. Brown, the assignees and holders of said mortgage, on February 20th, 1924 paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Two Hundred Seventy-four and 34-100 ($274.34) Dollars; and whereas, the said Edwin A. Brown and Martha G. Brown, the assignees and holders of said mortgage, have duly elected and do hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the sum of Three Thousand ($3000.00) Dollars, with accumulated interest from the 9th day of August 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The North Half of the Southeast Quarter, the East Half of the Northeast Quarter, of Section number Twenty-three (23), in Township number One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range number Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, containing according to the United States government survey thereof 160 acres, be the same more or less, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 29th, day of April 1924 at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $274.34 for taxes paid on said described premises, with interest from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated March 7, 1924.

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Plainview—In a special election a $100,000 school bond issue was carried by an overwhelming majority of the light vote cast.

Luverne—Jay La Due, former state senator, and the oldest man in Rock county, celebrated his 97th birthday anniversary.

Braham—Postmasters for Minnesota nominated by President Coolidge included Carroll O. Halstrom at Braham and Oscar C. Hays at Glyndon.

Canby—The two Lutheran churches of Canby will not be consolidated, it was determined by a vote cast among the congregation of the churches.

Morris—Citizens here are carrying on an aggressive campaign in the effort to have the Great Northern Railway company erect a new station here in a more convenient location.

Warren—Mr. and Mrs. John L. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Tullar have just celebrated their golden weddings. The two families established their homes here in 1883 and lived here ever since.

Rochester—Miss Charlotte M. Hanson has been named by Mayor J. J. Reiter to succeed Mrs. James Spillane, resigned, as public health nurse for Rochester.

Marshall—A. C. Crace of this city, for many years commander of D. F. Markham post, has been honored by the appointment of colonel on the staff of the national commander of the G. A. R.

Willmar—That the railroads are going to make a bid for the passenger business which has been taken from them by the motorbus line seems a certainty. The Great Northern railway has put low round trip rates into effect from this city to the twin cities.

Ortonville—In the district court here, Jack Miller of Milbank, S. D., was given a verdict for $10,000 against the Milwaukee Railroad company. Miller sued for $30,000 for personal injuries he received a year ago in Milbank.

Duluth—Duluth will have a palatial new building which will be the home of an athletic club to be formed among business men and also the new home of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce, if a contemplated movement materializes.

Nashwauk—Plans to bring about the completion of the road from Nashwauk to Bear River were made at a conference held here under the auspices of the Nashwauk Commercial club and representatives of the town of Carpenter present.

Luverne—In an effort to lessen the school tax levy the board of education has announced a reduction in the salaries of all the instructors in the Luverne public schools. New contracts have been offered to all of the instructors, at the reduced salaries.

Ortonville—Hog cholera took a heavy toll in the herd of C. C. Ulrich & Sons, a mile west of Big Stone City, when 36 purebred Chester White hogs died of the disease. Every precaution has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

Mankato—Organization of a woman's auxiliary to the Mankato Shrine club, for the purpose of aiding the Shrine hospital for crippled children at the twin cities, was perfected at a banquet meeting of members of the Mankato Shrine club and their wives, when 40 women were enrolled.

Chisholm—In the typewritten contest at the high school for students from the range schools, Tena Gustafson, Chisholm, took first place; Dalbort Hellin, Proctor, second, and Laura Aurell, Proctor, third, for the advanced class division, while Ruth Fulton, Coleraine, Catherine Fick and Helmi Joki, both of Chisholm, won second and third for the lower grades.

Red Wing—Resignation of Emil Olund as assistant superintendent of the State Training school here was announced by Superintendent J. P. Fulton of the institution. The resignation was accepted by the state parole board, it was announced.

Rochester—At a massmeeting of citizens here indorsement was given to a proposal of the utility board to purchase the water rights, mill pond and mill property in North Rochester from the Rochester Milling company and to construct a new concrete dam on the site of the present dam across the Zumbro river. The cost is estimated at $55,000.

Minneapolis—C. D. Johnson, Brainerd, was elected president of the Minnesota State Pharmaceutical association. The election was conducted by mail. Miss Elizabeth Malerich, Minneapolis, is first vicepresident for 1924; John B. Christgau, Owatonna, second vicepresident; S. J. Horn, Minneapolis, third vicepresident; Gustav Bachman, Minneapolis, secretary, and H. Martin Johnson, St. Paul, treasurer.

Chisholm—Anton Glowsky, who has charge of the school experimental farm here, has been notified that he won first prize for potatoes exhibited at the State Crop association in Minneapolis. He received the silver cup awarded by the association.

Hibbing—The proposition of organizing a national guard unit in Hibbing and the erection of an armory through state aid will remain open for a month, after a preliminary hearing. Members of clubs favored the battery company, but with a change in the village government, the question could not be decided.

Tyler—Sigurd Pederson, editor and publisher of the Tyler Journal, has disposed of the newspaper to M. Aagesen, who has already taken possession of the publication.

New Ulm—The board of education announces that the entire teaching corps of the city schools for the next school year has been named, with the single exception of an instructor in science at the high school.

Virginia—The Virginia naval reserve unit, composed of more than 35 young men, was installed in its permanent quarters, occupying the entire second floor of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank building.

Lakefield—One of the important land deals made here within the last few days came when a quarter section, a farm in Rosehill township, Jackson county, was sold to Meyers brothers for $23,000 cash.

Eveleth—Burt Kingsley, state fire marshal, talking at a meeting of the Commercial club, complimented Eveleth on the good record made here in preventing losses by fire. Last year, he said, Rochester was the only city in Minnesota with a lower fire loss than Eveleth.

Grand Rapids—Farmers in this vicinity joined in purchasing a carload of farm seeds, which arrived and have been unloaded. The car contains 80,000 pounds of grain and grass seeds. That growing of alfalfa is becoming more of a success in this county is shown by the inclusion of about 3,000 pounds of alfalfa seed in this car.

Breckenridge—The Wilkin county courthouse here was destroyed by fire with an estimated loss of $55,000. Insurance of $40,000 was carried. The main part of the building was erected in 1884. The structure had been condemned but residents of the county rejected a proposal to replace it with a modern building at a special election last December.

Detroit—Indian relics, including a stone hammer, stone axe and fragments of pottery were found by Walter Bird of Detroit while excavating for a new house here. The find was made near the shores of Detroit lake, where it is said the Indians formerly camped in great numbers. The relics have been sent to the State Historical society.

Fairmont—The local members of the Spanish-American War veterans are now planning for the annual state convention of the organization, which will be held here July 6, 7 and 8. A "recruiting" campaign to raise funds for the event will be conducted by the veterans the week of April 25. A number of residents will be asked to recruit by donating the amount of pay an American soldier got for fighting the Spaniards—$15.60

Pipestone—Work has been resumed on the construction of the new city and county hospital here and the building will be rushed to completion. The hospital will be known as the Ashton Memorial hospital, at the request of O. E. Ashton, who donated $50,000 toward its construction as a memorial to his father. The city and county will jointly own and control the hospital when it is completed.

Bemidji—About 40 farmers, representing many communities throughout the north central part of Minnesota, attended a meeting to discuss plans for the North Central Minnesota Cooperative Poultry Producers' association. Cass, Hubbard, Beltrami, Clearwater, and Polk county farmers attended. It was decided to rush organization work and when 325 more memberships have been procured, the association will start co-operative marketing of poultry products through its head office here.

Fairmont—Organization of the proposed co-operative egg association is assured, according to A. R. Karr, county agent. With but 750 members needed in Martin county, indications are that more than this number will join, as a number of townships already have reported 75 or more members each. Faribault county, which is to join with Martin in the association, is making rapid progress, it is said.

Chisholm—In district court here, judgment was entered for Balkan township, against the village of Buhl for $53,725 for lands annexed to the village in 1922. Balkan property owners started suit against the village contending that annexation was illegal. The district court ruled in favor of the township and appeal was taken to the state supreme court where the lower court was confirmed. The judgment covers the $50,000 damages asked for in the complaint together with $3,725 interest.

Crookston—As a result of the advanced bread-making contest conducted in connection with the junior short course at the Northwest school, the team composed of two students of the Northwest school was awarded first place. The team consists of Helen Gibbons, Crookston and Cora Walters, Beltrami. Miss Genevieve Maybohm, assistant club leader, University farm, St. Paul, judged the contest. The other teams competing were from Fergus Falls, Wadena, and Hawley. The Fergus Falls team, composed of Marian Thompson and Bertha Strands, was awarded second place.

Thief River Falls—The city council has purchased at a cost of $3,000 a one acre tract just inside the city limits with a two story house thereon to be used as a city poor farm.

St. James—The Women's Civic club has started a campaign to sell snapdragon seeds, the official flower of St. James, in an endeavor to have every lawn in town growing the flowers. The money will go toward the beautifying of the Watonwan Memorial park to be located on a 10-acre site, on Highway No. 16. This park will be a memorial to the 43 boys from this county who gave their lives in the World war

BODY TO AID N.D. DIVERSIFICATION

Committee of $10,000,000 Corporation To Help Farmers In Purchase of Livestock

Minneapolis.—Directors of the new $10,000,000 agriculture credit corporation met here Monday to perfect plans for assisting farmers in the wheat growing section of the northwest toward diversification in line with the recent letter of President Coolidge to C. T. Jaffray, head of the corporation.

Mr. Jaffray placed before the directors his approval to make a test of the feasibility of the corporation extending its activities to perform some of the functions contemplated in the Norbeck-Burtness bill, defeated by the senate.

To Appoint Livestock Committee.

The directors were expected to authorize the appointment of a livestock committee and authorize the executive staff to proceed with the plan of aiding farmers to purchase as requested in the president's letter.

Bankers from Minnesota and North and South Dakota attended the meeting.

Among those attending the meeting were E. J. Weiser, president of the First National bank of Fargo, N. D., and Dr. John Lee Coulter, president of the North Dakota Agricultural college.

North Dakota's wheat acreage will be reduced 16 per cent this year, compared with 1923, and this 1,250,000 acreage will be given half to flax and half to corn, alfalfa, and sweet clover, according to Mr. Weiser.

"In North Dakota, where this plan to have the corporation extend its activities to aid farmers to buy livestock was suggested, we made a cursory survey to determine whether farmers could use the livestock if they got it," Mr. Weiser said. "Dr. Coulter said his best information was that there would be a 16 per cent reduction in wheat acreage this year. Farmers are raising alfalfa and clover. There is no question now that dairying is growing and should be stimulated. The Fairmont Creamery company, which has just opened its plant in Fargo and Moorhead, which is one in a chain of creameries, advised us that the best cream obtainable anywhere came from North Dakota.

"The soil is in fine condition. We had a beneficial snowstorm Saturday. Seeding is virtually done in the south half of the state and well advanced in the north section. We are 30 days ahead of last year. There is no question but what we have a dandy start."

RESUME FIGHT ON COUNSEL

Both Camps Remain Hostile Over Rupture Caused by Coolidge Message.

Washington.—With both sides fortified by entrenchments thrown up over the week-end, the senate Monday resumed its war over Secretary Mellon and the future of the congressional investigation program.

Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, chairman of the special committee investigating the internal revenue bureau, told his colleagues and Democratic leaders privately after a conference with President Coolidge and Mr. Mellon that the president had not intended by his message last week to strike at any of the senate inquiries except that directed against the treasury secretary.

Administration opposition to the employment of Francis J. Heney, as special counsel for the revenue bureau committee, would be continued, the Indiana senator said, regardless of the fate of the Democratic move to make that employment legal by a formal senate resolution.

While these interchanges were in progress at private conferences and in the senate cloakrooms, debate on the presidential admonition to the senate to stay "within the law" broke out afresh on the floor. Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, declared Democratic criticism of Mr. Coolidge's message was based on disappointment that the revenue bureau inquiry had not disclosed improper tax refunds to the "Mellon companies."

Senator Watson said after the White House conference that he would not press immediately his resolution to end the revenue bureau inquiry, and that he saw no occasion now for a reply to the statement made public last night by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

Police Capture Crazed Farmer.

Chicago.—Alone in his home with his seven weeks' old son, Anton Ulmonek, reputed to be a bootlegger, exchanged scores of shots with besieging police last Sunday on his farm at Hodgkins, Ill., before he was finally subdued. Crazed by moonshine liquor, said to have been of his own distillation, Ulmonek threw his wife through a closed window, and hurled after her two of the children, Mary, 11, and Tony, 18 months. An appeal for assistance was sent to the neighboring town of LaGrange.

GERMAN HEAD APPROVES PLAN

Dr. Schacht Commends Dawes' Direct Methods In Reparation Plan

Berlin.—Dr. Hjalmar Schact, president of the reichsbank and federal commissioner of currency, declared Saturday that he viewed the experts' report as forming a satisfactory basis for reparation settlement negotiations.

"The experts' report to the reparation commission is essentially an American document," said Dr. Schacht, who was frequently called into consultation by General Dawes and his fellow experts in the investigations leading up to their report. "It is direct and businesslike," he continued, "and in my opinion is a satisfactory basis for negotiations looking to a settlement of the reparation problem growing out of five years of war and five years of post-war wrangling, which have resulted in wasting five billion gold marks in occupation costs.

Paves Way for Parley.

"The most essential section of the report is article three, page four, which definitely provides that the military occupation of the Ruhr shall cease. That section provides for clearing the atmosphere of politics, sanctions, and military penalties, and overshadows all other details in importance.

"It paves the way for a discussion of economic problems in a frank, open, American man-to-man style, and I hope that General Dawes' direct methods will be followed in all the discussions."

Asked how long it would require to place the experts' recommendations into actual effect, Dr. Schacht replied that it could be done "in 90 days or even less."

HOUSE DISREGARDS THREAT

Asiatic Exclusion Section of Measure Is Not Changed.

Washington.—Carrying a Japanese exclusion provision against which the Japanese government has protested vigorously, the Johnson immigration bill was passed Saturday by the house, 322 to 71.

No effort was made to eliminate the Japanese section, which provoked only brief and perfunctory discussion. There was nothing to indicate that any of the opposition votes were directed at the Asiatic policy contained in the bill but rather against the provision fixing the 1890 census as the basis of the 2 per cent quota, which was adopted.

While the senate was getting back to its consideration of the immigration bill at a night session, Republican leaders issued a call for a party conference at which an effort will be made to agree upon a policy both as to Japanese exclusion and the census quota basis.

The existing law, which expires on next June 30, fixed the quota at 3 per cent on the 1910 census, and had no provisions relating to Japanese immigration which for years has been regulated by the "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan. Secretary Hughes has urged that the American government continue to recognize this agreement and the Japanese placed on the same quota basis as the nationals of other countries.

BILLS FAVORABLY REPORTED

Agricultural Committee Acts on McNary-Haugen, Norris-Sinclair Bills.

Washington. — The McNary-Haugen and the Norris-Sinclair bills, designed for the relief of agricultural districts, were reported favorably Saturday by the senate agricultural committee. Several minor amendments were attached to the McNary-Haugen bill, but the Norris-Sinclair bill was reported without change.

Action on the McNary-Haugen bill is expected to be taken by the house before its consideration in the senate on account of its tariff provisions, which are required to originate in the house. The house agricultural committee is engaged in redrafting passages of the bill.

The tariff features of the McNary-Haugen bill brought a communication from the tariff committee to the house ways and means committee in which the commission contended if domestic prices of agricultural staples are raised substantially above world prices as a result of such legislation, the application by foreign nations of anti-dumping laws would prevent the sale in those countries of surplus farm products. The commission further said that the foreign countries also may claim that the policy is inconsistent with the tariff act of 1922.

Attacks Man With Hatchet.

Fargo, N. D.—John Konisky is in jail and Tom Skope is at liberty with two bad gashes in his head as a result of an alleged attack by the former on the latter. Konisky is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, police declaring he attacked Skope with a hatchet on First street south, near Front street, about 9:30 Saturday. The affair, the result of a fight which Konisky had with somebody, is probably a case of mistaken identity, as Skope declares he never saw Konisky before

THE RED LOCK

A Tale of the Flatwoods

He crammed the letter into the envelope, thrust it into the pocket of his blouse and turned back across the yard; stopped, and glanced around at the woman.

"She had t' go and look after some—business," he said. "I 'low I'll ride in and he'p 'er"—he pondered a moment; went on—"and I reckon you better stay at Aunt Liza's, as she said. I'll be back t'night—sometime—but it may be late."

The woodsman probably never covered the distance to the barn as quickly as he covered it that day. The words: "If she's there," that had so puzzled the pair in the old cabin—as well as the man at the chink—flared clear as the mid-day sun. Hopkins—it was his last desperate move—a move totally unforeseen. His intentions toward the girl had been foul from the first. That he would make some attempt to rob the safe was to be expected—had been expected. But this—

He buckled on his spurs; bridled and saddled Graylock with a feverish haste that waked the mettle of the good horse. When he led him out, Mrs. Curry was waddling across the barn-lot.

In the tense moment he had forgotten that his haste must be causing her no small wonder.

"Yes, I 'low I'll ride in and find 'er," he ventured, "and bring 'er back t'-night—sometime—but you better go on t' Aunt Liza's anyhow, f'r fear it'll be late, and we'll come and git y'u."

He saw that the attempt at reassurance—an attempt that cost him no little—had failed. The good housekeeper's face twisted quite beyond her control; her apron went up to her eyes.

"Oh, Jack," she sobbed, "I'm plum' fluster'd. Las' night Brother Hopkins left without leavin' no word, and now Texie's gone—"

The man turned and feigned to adjust the saddle girth. A woman's tears—the big woodsman was utterly helpless. He glanced back at the heaving apron.

"Now, Mis' Curry, don't be fluster'd. She's all right." He hesitated. "Them two facts ain't no ways—connected," he finally muttered, knowing only too well that they were. "The parson more'n likely went in after some more books, 'pears like he must 'a' gone through all them 'e had, and Texie—I'll hunt 'er up this afternoon and ride home with 'er." He gazed hard toward the village. "I don't b'lieve, if I was you, I'd leave the house till after dark, and I wouldn't mention she's gone—only t' Aunt Liza and Uncle Nick."

The apron came down from the troubled face and the housekeeper began to dry her eyes. The woodsman turned away; stopped; turned back.

"One question—did she take 'er revolver with 'er?"

"W'y, no," was the wondering answer—"why?"

"I didn't 'low she would 'a'."

The words came over his shoulder as he threw the bridle rein into the hollow of his arm and strode away down the barn-lot. He flung the gate open, sprang to the saddle and Graylock was off like a bird on the wing—twenty miles of dust and flying sand—toward the dim spired gateway that led out into another world.

It seemed to him that Graylock had never stepped so slowly. Hitching him in front of a small grocery on the street, he looked at all the other hitch-racks in sight for Brownie—but Brownie was not to be seen. Buttoning his hunting blouse about him so as to hide the six-gun, he walked into the alley.

The fourth door down on the right proved to be a large, two-story, closely-shuttered wooden structure standing almost flush with the narrow side-street known as Brickbat alley. There was another building on the same lot, a business edifice of brick, fronting on the street proper and apparently occupied by a saloon, and the two were connected by a sort of covered porch. All these facts the woodsman noted in the second or two of his approach.

He knocked at the weather-stained, unpainted door. Such a long time went by that he was just on the point of knocking again, when there was a shuffling inside and approaching steps. A key rattled in the lock, the bolt clicked back, the knob turned, a woman appeared at the very narrow slit the door was allowed to open and looked out at him. She was a large woman, in good flesh, and not bad-looking.

"Is this where Doll Baker lives?"

"Yes; won't ye come in?"

He entered. She closed the door, turned the key in the lock—a fact that he took due note of—and led the way into another room slightly better lighted. He noticed that both rooms were rather showily and expensively furnished.

He took the chair pointed out to him. The woman, seating herself by a small table a few feet away, eyed him covertly.

"And you are—?" he questioned, as if continuing the inquiry begun at the door.

"Miss Baker—Doll Baker."

"Well, Miss Baker," he had to watch his voice to keep it orderly and even, "I've got a friend—that is, a lady friend—that come t' the city t'day from the country. I come in t'day m'self, and I'd kinda like t' hunt 'er up and ride home with 'er. I was tol she's here."

Regarding the obvious blind of the sick brother, he said nothing, knowing it was but a trick of the very resourceful Hopkins. The terrible letter that had prostrated the old banker seven days before was in Ken Colin's own hand and absolutely genuine. There was no sick brother.

The woman sat for near a minute, studying him out of the baffling slits of her eyes—clothing; hands; face; feet—in a way she did not think he saw.

"What kind of a looking girl was your friend?" she questioned at last.

"Medium size, fair, brown hair, brown eyes—with smiles in 'em—and remarkably small and purty hands and feet."

"Well, she isn't here."

The gray-green eyes of the woman watched him covertly through their narrowed lids. He caught the look, felt the caution.

"Where is she?"

"Don't ask me."

"I'm awful sorry," he replied, in tones he tried hard to make meek and doleful. "She ain't nothin' but jist a raw country girl, and I ain't nothin' but jist a raw country boy, but we're both from the same little town out here a ways and I wanted t' see 'er awful bad b'fore she left—town."

The woman still eyed him closely, though her look seemed gradually to become more curious than distrustful, until at last she appeared to throw off all suspicion.

"Well, Mr.—Country Boy," she said, with an air of frankness and a twist of her face between a grin and a smile. "I don't know one thing about your—friend, and that's straight."

"Do y'u know Prof. Caleb Hopkins?"

The question caught the woman off guard. She started.

"Never heard of him."—she hesitated; finally added—"but you might go on through and ask Bill."

"Who's Bill?"

"Oh, friend of mine—bounces bar out front."

The man studied her. In his eyes there waked a hardness that the Flat woods had learned to know.

"Miss—Doll Baker"—it cost him an effort to hold his voice even and calm—"I'm right sorry t' say I'm doubtin' y'u."

"Doubting me!" A tang of hardness slid into her well-modulated tones; she flared up straight in her chair. "What do you mean?"

"I mean t' search this house."

The woman sprang up.

"Search th' house!"

"That's what I'm aimin' t' do," the woodsman went on evenly, rising and glancing about him.

The woman caught a small cord that dangled behind the door in reach of her hand and gave it a vicious jerk. It must have been a bell cord that led to somewhere outside, for immediately heavy steps sounded along the porch that connected the house with the saloon and a man dashed in at the door.

"Bill, you'll haf t' 'ten' to 'im"—she jerked a half clenched hand toward the woodsman—"threatens t' raid th' j'int f'r a gal he thinks is here."

So this was Bill—the "bouncer." He looked the part—broad-backed, thick set, heavy jowled, little pig eyes and short cropped, reddish hair. He raised his arm, pointed a stubby forefinger to the door and uttered the one word: "Git."

But had Bill only known what manner of man it was standing there and coolly measuring him through narrowed eyes, he probably would have studied a long time before making his next move.

"The devil y'u won't," he snarled, crouching and beginning to creep and circle.

"Don't hurt 'em," the woman cautioned, "he ain't nothin' but jist a raw country jake."

Almost with the word Bill sprang, aiming a blow that would have caved in the side of a house—only it didn't land.

The fact was instantly apparent that he was not a resourceful fighter, but placed his main reliance in his ponderous strength—even so, he was a dangerous man.

In a flash he wheeled and struck again. This time Jack parried the blow, instead of side-stepping, and shot across one in return—a light uppercut to the chin that jarred Bill's head back and drew from him a snarl and a curse. He came back with a whirlwind of jabs and swings.

Jack stepped right into the whirlwind, well knowing that others of Bill's ilk might come any moment, and sparred for an opening with such bewildering speed and cleverness that Bill raised his guard to cover his face. Jack shot across a vicious body blow. Bill dropped his left. Instantly Jack's tremendous right swung on the exposed jaw. Bill grunted, tottered, looked dazed. The right swung again on the same spot—clean from the hip—and Bill pitched against the wall like a bundle of dirty rags.

With a curse, horrible upon a woman's lips, Doll Baker ran to where he lay and bent over him.

She had hardly reached him before the woodsman was darting about the house and peeping into pantry and closets. There was no basement. He made sure of that, and sprang to the stairs. The woman tried to drag him back, he flung her off and dashed up the steps.

Every place where a girl could have been concealed was explored, but Doll Baker had told the truth—that much of it, at least. Texie was not there.

When he hurried down, Bill and the woman were both gone. He was just stepping from the stair door, wary and alert for a surprise of some sort, when there came a clatter of feet running across the porch.

He dashed through the house to the door by which he had entered. Just as he wrenched it open they rushed into the room behind him—four of them, Bill in the lead.

But, his purpose accomplished, Jack sprang outside and, with tantalizing deliberation, took his way toward the street. Bill thrust his battered face out at the door, scowled and swore, but none of the four ventured to follow, like the alley rats they were, not daring to chase their prey into the open.

Through a number of streets and side-streets in the neighborhood of Brickbat alley, Jack Warhope searched for Brownie. He even made inquiries at all the livery and feed stables in the vicinity, but failed to find any trace of her.

A thought suddenly came to him—he frowned hard; muttered some very uncomplimentary things about himself that it hadn't occurred to him before—the old tollgate keeper ten miles out on the River road, he had been there more years than Jack had lived and knew everybody from the Flatwoods. He would know if Texie had passed.

Next moment the fleet Graylock was racing toward the bridge.

Ten miles out on the River road he drew rein and dismounted by the well in front of the diminutive house of the tollgate keeper.

"Jist a mouthful f'r the hoss, Uncle Asbury."

"He'p y'rse'f." The old man shuffled up out of his rickety chair and limped toward the well. "Be'n lettin' 'im out, hain't y'u?"

"Some—yes."

He loosened the saddle girth; with the squeaky windlass cranked up a bucketful of water; allowed the horse to have it sparingly, a sup at a time.

CHAPTER XVII

Brickbat Alley.

There are men so big, physically and otherwise, that the world naturally expects big things of them—who seem to find big things always cut out for them. Jack Warhope was such a man—a singular mixture of romantic impulsiveness and calm, cogent reason; a dreamer; a thinker; a man of hard deeds, whose heart sometimes ran away with his head; a Sir Galahad strayed out into the Nineteenth century a thousand years behind his day.

The afternoon was half spent, and Graylock was foul with dust and sweat, when he rode across the long covered bridge over the Wabash and into the city.

Brickbat alley had a reputation all its own. He had heard that it was in the south part of town near the river, though its exact location he did not know. Riding down into that end of the city, he stopped to inquire of an old woman who happened to be standing in the narrow yard in front of a shabby ramshackle house with a "furnished rooms" sign in the window.

At the name—Doll Baker—the old woman bent upon him a look out of her bleared eyes that was both deep and searching.

"Ther' ain't many men runnin' around loose, like you 'pear t' be, but what knows whar Doll Baker lives. But, come t' look at y'u clos't, you're someway differ'nt. F'om the country, hain't y'u?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"I 'lowed y'u was—y'u look a differ'nt stripe f'om the likes o' them that hunts Doll Baker."

She paused and seemed to be weighing some thought before letting it fall.

"And this Doll Baker lives—?" he questioned, hardly able to hold the spur from Graylock.

"Brickbat alley—that's next alley down—fourth door on y'ur right.

"Be keerful, lad," she called, hopping like some crippled old bird out to the fence and halting him, for he was already riding away, "be keerful. I dislike t' see any harm fall on y'u—them's bad people."

Prima Facie.

Stranger (at gate)—"Is your mother at home?" Youngster—"Say! Do you suppose I'm mowing this yard because the grass is long?"—Life.

According to Hoyle

Willie—"Mary, let's play mamma and papa." Mary—"All right. Got a cigarette?"—Life.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

SPRINGTIME

THE richness and profusion of the verdure of the great outdoors, the waving fields of colorful wild flowers, the streams that have shaken off their frosty fetters, the lacy white clouds and the soft blue sky call to you to indulge in springtime saunterings.

The most ancient wisdom sings of life-giving air and golden sunshine, the healing balms for a thousand ills of harried minds, ragged nerves and poisoned bodies.

Who shall say that those men and women who take frequent saunterings in the open, are not better citizens and better equipped to solve life's perplexing problems than those who do not?

Who shall dispute that they are not happier, clearer thinkers, greater originators than those languid souls who find little journeys afoot too dull and wearisome for their pleasure?

What are more beguiling to lovers of nature than the winding wayside paths and the silent aisles in the solitary woods?

The better artists, better editors, better merchants, better men and women in all classes of existence are those who go often to the glorious temple whose dome is the superbly illuminated and ever-changing sky.

Comfort, knowledge, opportunity, resources and health are multiplied a thousand fold in this broad, free air—free alike to the barefooted boy wading the brooks and the golfer in quest of a little white sphere.

Do we find more civic virtue, more lofty thought, more joyous inspiration; more truth and mercy in the sunlight or in the dark?

The outdoor people you will find are more truthful, more upright, more humane and more charitable than the folk who habitually dwell in morose twilight.

They get nearer to heaven, a firmer hold on faith. They have a keener sense of duty and loyalty to one another, and are more benevolent and sympathetic. The elixir of youth is theirs without price.

They laugh often. They whistle and sing to the music of birds, the merry waters and the dancing leaves.

Trees and shrubs and flowers! Who would not saunter among them?

Who would not roam the woods, climb the hills, tread the moss-bordered pools and streams for one draught of the priceless nectar that assures vigorous health and dreamless sleep?.

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: An unmistakable gentleman; you know it the moment you set eyes on him. He took you to dinner and actually ordered from the word side of the column. He did it with pride like an artist—he enjoyed it more than you wished; for you'd rather have him talk of you than of "strawberries out of season." He loves restaurants—all the head waiters love and flock to him as he enters the room. You are proud of him. Every place he goes he invents new ways to tip.

IN FACT

He is generosity and public spiritedness personified.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN values anything, from a kiss to a heart, according to the trouble he had in getting it; a woman according to the trouble she has in keeping some other woman from getting it away from her.

Judging from the prompt way in which they begin "checking up" on one another right after the honeymoon, marriage is the miracle that turns a soul-mate into a checkmate.

Eve was the first woman to be blamed for whatever went wrong in the garden; but, as the wife of every suburban amateur Burbank can testify, Heaven knows she wasn't the last!

Man's life is a series of shocks
Yet, let not young lovers despair,
Till the mermaids start rolling their socks.
And the Lorelei bobs her hair!

Alas, what can a poor wife do? If she lets a man cling to all his little bad habits, he is apt to lose his chances in the future life, and if she makes him give them up, he is sure to lose all his interest in THIS one!

A woman's heart is a "one man" affair; but no man was ever so completely absorbed in one woman as to deaden his subconscious interest in the possible "next woman."

Marriage is the only condition that affords a woman the pleasure of company and the delightful sensation of solitude, at the same time.

A BIT OF BOTH

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

"YOU'LL rise and fall," my mother said,
"Have happiness and woes;
No man has known just luck alone,
Whatever folks suppose.
You'll smile and sigh, and laugh and cry,
Whatever height you reach,
Have loss and gain, have joy and pain,
A little bit of each.

"You'll fall and rise," my mother said;
"That makes it worth the while.
For ev'ry loss and ev'ry cross
I know you'll know a smile.
Don't think to find the world so kind
When you have got your growth;
You'll find the earth is sadness, mirth,
A little bit of both.

"But, rise or fall," my mother said,
"You'll never fall so far
If you are wise and realize
Like all the rest you are.
You'll take the joy and pain, my boy,
And both will serve to teach
That life all through will bring the two,
A little bit of each.

"Then, fall or rise," my mother said,
"You'll never grow so proud
But you'll recall that, after all,
You're part of all the crowd.
If work and play make up the day
You'll labor, never loth,
A little glad you always had
A little bit of both."

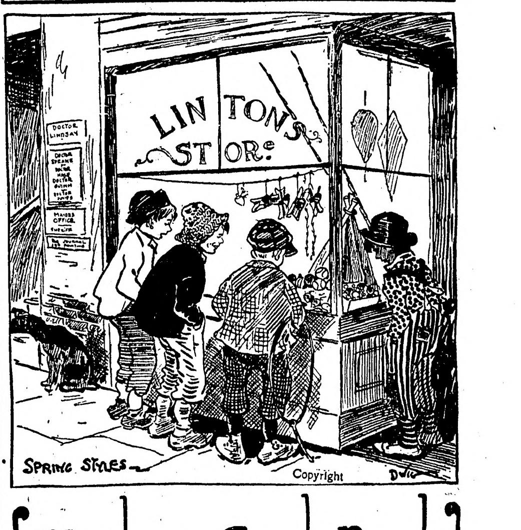
SCHOOL DAYS



Mother's Cook Book

"Oh, what would the world be to us if the children were no more
We would dread the desert behind us worse than the dark before."

FOOD FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

A NICE, well-baked apple is good for the wee ones as well as for grandmother. They make a nice breakfast fruit as well as dessert. Wash and core without peeling and vary the manner of flavoring. A bit of butter, a dash of lemon juice, or grated rind, a few raisins put into the cavity, a marshmallow or two, or when serving a cube of jelly with whipped cream adds a bit of color and richness. Almonds blanched and stuck into the apple before baking is another suggestion. One will find many new and original ways of serving the common things if thought is put into it.

Prune Pudding.

Take one cupful of uncooked prunes stoned and ground, one-half cupful of sugar, and when well mixed add two well-beaten eggs, three cupfuls of milk, one-half teaspoonful of orange extract and one thick slice of bread well buttered. Cut the bread into small dice and stir into the custard. Bake slowly until the custard is set and the bread is brown. About an hour and a quarter in a slow oven is required.

Tapioca With Pineapple.

Soak one cupful of pearl tapioca over night in plenty of water, drain, add one-half cupful of cold water, the juice from a can of pineapple and the juice of a lemon. Cook in a double boiler until clear, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, then the pineapple chopped fine; lastly fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Chill and serve with cream or a custard, using the yolks of the eggs.

Ginger Cream.

Soak three-fourths of a tablespoonful of gelatin in one tablespoonful of cold water. Make a custard, using one egg, one tablespoonful of sugar, six tablespoonfuls of milk, a pinch of salt, beating all with an egg beater. Cook over water until the spoon is coated, add one tablespoonful of minced Canton ginger and two tablespoonfuls of the sirup; add the gelatin to the hot custard and when thick and cool add one-half cupful of whipped cream. Pour into molds and chill.

A PERFECT FOOD FOR WORKERS

Arabs Go for Months Without Anything to Eat but Dates

The Arabs are considered by scientists to be one of the healthiest and most vigorous peoples on earth. They have been famous for centuries on account of their ability to make long journeys across the deserts, and more recently they have shown themselves to be the very best of workmen. American capitalists who have purchased date orchards in Mesopotamia, and are developing them in order to insure an adequate supply of dates for the market in this country, find that the Arabs can endure a day's work under the hot sun that would prostrate men of almost any other race. Remarkable, too, is the racial vitality of these desert people, who have kept their numbers and their health unimpaired for centuries. The modern Arab is the same brave, hardy and virile fellow who is described in the Arabian nights.

This seems the more unusual by reason of the fact that the Arabs inhabit one of the most arid tracts of land on earth and have only one food crop on which they can always rely. For months at a time they have nothing to eat but the dates which grow in the palm groves about the oases. When possible the dates are supplemented by milk and cheese and also by fresh vegetables, but these are luxuries. The dates are the staple, and have been for centuries. The explorer Nachtigal found that his Arab guides in Tripolitania ate as much as six pounds of dates a day when doing hard work, and many Arabs eat two or three pounds of the fruit every day of their lives, and remain in perfect health.

The explanation of this is that dates form an almost perfect food, according to the scientists. They contain all the food elements—sugar, fat, protein, minerals necessary to health, such as lime and iron, and the cellulose which tends to keep the system clean. The protein content is relatively small, and that is why the Arab supplements his dates with milk or cheese if possible. Sugar, which is the working fuel of the human engine, forms the larger part of the date, and it is in the form of "invert" or predigested sugar, so that the body assimilates it without chemical change. It is much more wholesome than cane sugar, which requires to be digested.

The Arab thus gets the fuel necessary for hard work without taxing his digestive organs as does the American who feeds on heavy pastries and other indigestible sweets. He also gets from the date the minerals which are often lacking in the refined foods of western civilization.

His diet is not varied, but it serves its purpose perfectly.

The Arab has more ways of eating dates than they have of cooking rice in South Carolina, but he is most fond of them raw. Dates are often served with the seeds removed and chunks of unsalted butter put in place of them. The Arab also likes them chopped up with fresh cheese—what we call cottage cheese. Both of these dishes are extremely palatable. So are chopped dates stewed with rice and milk, which is another favorite Arab dish. They also like dates served with clotted cream, as we eat strawberries.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HOW NOT TO GET RICH

"Oh, Aunt Emmy," cried Helen rushing in and kissing Aunt Emmy "I've got a wonderful chance to get rich. The nicest man told me about a patent bee-hive that will double my money in a year! With it bees will make two or three times as much honey. If I buy it right away I can make ever so much money, for the stock is selling at fifty cents and it's going to par soon, whatever that is, so I'll have oodles of money. Oh, Aunty, won't it be lovely? You and I can go to Europe and—"

"Hold on a minute, Helen," begged Aunt Emmy, "would you really let this man have your money for a fool thing like that?"

"Why, Aunty, I'm sure it is all right! He gave me the loveliest booklet—I brought it along. You are so suspicious, Aunty," she reproached.

"Suspicious, am I! That $5,000 is the only money you ever had or ever expect to have except what you earn as a teacher. You can't afford to throw it away. Sit right down and write to your bank for information about that bee-hive. Tell them you are thinking of investing your $5,000 and send them the booklet."

"But, Aunty, that would take several days, and the man said not to wait," Helen protested.

"If people would wait a while before investing, there would be far less failures in the world. You will hear from the bank soon enough. Promise."

"I suppose I'll have to," agreed Helen, crestfallen, "but I'm sure the old bank doesn't want to be bothered with poor little me."

When Helen came to see Aunt Emmy again she looked serious. Aunt Emmy guessed that her get-rich-quick bubble had burst.

"Look, Aunty," she said, handing over a letter from the bank that gave a report on the patent bee-hive. The letter said that the men engaged in the enterprise were not trustworthy. It invited Helen to consult with the bank about her investment.

"You were right, Aunty," said Helen. "I saw Mr. Hitchcock there. He told me a lot about investments and suggested some safe ones. I never understood the bank's value before. If it had not been for you and the bank I should not have a cent today. I'll never do a thing with money unless I ask the bank first. I felt I was with friends, Aunty."

"You were, my dear," said Aunt Emmy, smiling.—ANNE B. AYMES.

A Chance to Shine

THE young man of today need not leave the farm for a career. True, present conditions are not conducive to large financial returns, but these conditions will undoubtedly change. Those who are in position to know think that we have reached the low ebb and now farm products are on the upgrade.

We have only begun to solve our agricultural problems. There is a large unexplored field ahead of us. The young man with brains and a sympathetic heart can find ample opportunities for making a name for himself on the farm.

In addressing a national group of young people recently, President Head, of the American Bankers Association, said he believes the opportunities for making a name as a leader in agriculture are greater than making a name in the position of a Congressman. He thinks the day is coming when a man shall take pride in saying, "I am an American farmer."

Any young man who has a liking for things rural can well afford to consider preparing himself to become a good farmer, for after he has made a success of his farm, he will find abundant opportunity for leadership in his community.—Banker-Farmer.

AMERICA NOT INDIFFERENT

By FRANCIS H. SISSON,
Chairman, Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association.

Francis H. Sisson

While the facts justify the belief that the financial and general economic strength of the United States is so great that it creates a stability here which cannot be seriously shaken by the adverse conditions in Europe, it still remains true that an attitude of indifference to these distressing conditions is unworthy of the American people. In fact, I believe that such indifference does not exist. The nation is observing with deep interest the progress of events abroad and has given many evidences of a readiness to aid in restoring normal conditions there whenever it is seen that a suitable opportunity is afforded.

Our people have naturally been reluctant to act while the European nations still fail to display the will to accept the only terms on which rehabilitation is possible, and to abandon their mutual hatreds and distrusts, their persistence in preparation for further warfare, and their destructive political and financial policies. Such policies have so weakened the credit of some of the continental nations that the task of aiding them seems futile until it is clear that these policies are discredited and disowned by them.

Although it seems clear from the record of recent years that America, more perhaps than any other country, has been and will continue to be able to adjust itself without serious disaster to the conditions created by European depression, and has in its own vast domestic market and in other non-European markets an outlet for its products adequate to maintain a fair degree of national prosperity, the fact remains that it is very definitely to the selfish interests of the United States to have Great Britain and the European continental countries regain their normal prosperity at the earliest possible date. They normally absorbed between 60 and 70 per cent of American exports, but recently have been taking less than 50 per cent.

Moreover, the rich contribution which Europe has made in the past to the upbuilding of other parts of the world, including the United States, would seem to create a genuine obligation upon other countries to come to its aid in the present period of difficulty. General well-being throughout the entire world will be diminished to a degree as long as Europe is unable to play its part in production and consumption of valuable products. It possesses vast resources of skill and equipment for the production of useful commodities in demand by all nations, and loss continues while these resources are limited in their use by poverty and by adverse political and social conditions.

That the share of the United States in this loss is relatively small should not preclude an active interest in every promising effort that may be made to restore the European nations to economic and financial health.

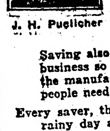
For Community Betterment

The Committee on Agriculture of the Missouri State Bankers Association has sent out a questionnaire to all members to secure a frank opinion as to what are the most important community problems to be solved in the state. The questionnaire covers bank deposits, crops, schools, manufacturing, roads, junior club work, agricultural agencies, co-operative agencies, farm abandonment, land values, finances, dairying, and social life, with a view to determining what work should be undertaken for the year.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON IV

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.



J. H. Puelicher

Formerly the saver paid to have his money kept in a safe place. Today he is paid interest by banks which keep his savings safe. Is this interest on money, saved and deposited in the bank, the only gain to the depositor from saving?

MONEY SAVED AND DEPOSITED IN BANK = funds for the banker to loan out on farm mortgages, land bank or other farm bonds; railroad, municipal or government bonds; or notes of farmers, merchants and manufacturers. Therefore SAVING = assisting the farmer to raise crops; the railroads to run trains; the town, city, state or nation to build schools for the children of the depositor and his fellow citizens; or construct water works or other public enterprises.

Saving also equals helping the butcher, baker and grocer to do business so that food is brought within reach of the home; and the manufacturer to make shoes, clothing and the many things people need to live.

Every saver, therefore, is not only putting away money against a rainy day and earning interest on it meanwhile, but he is also making it possible for himself and others to have the luxuries, comforts and necessaries of life,—to enjoy all the advantages of a greater and better civilization. Thus through banks every saver gains a great deal more than merely interest on his money.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholders, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate, what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

"Has Texie Colin passed the gate t'day, Uncle Asbury?—you know 'er, don't y'u?"

"Ol' Sime Colin's da'ter—the purty leetle gal wi' the brown hair an' laughin' eyes—well, I reckon I do know 'er. No, she hain't passed the gate t'day, nary way—why?"

"Oh—she rid up this way—"

"Did she?—no, she didn't pass." He hobbled a step closer. "Ol Sime had t' let loose at last, didn't 'e? Dern shame, though, 'e had t' be bumped off. Reckon they ain't found the feller yit that done it?"

The woodsman made no reply. It is even doubtful if he heard. His mind was flying fast from point to point of every possibility that lay between Black rock and the tollgate. He washed the froth off Graylock's nose; tightened the saddle girth; paid his toll and mounted.

"Thanks f'r the drink, Uncle Asbury."

"I don't make no business o' waterin' hosses," the old man called after him as he rode away, "but a hoss like that—he's welcome t' drink the well dry."

The concealed house-boat — the woodsman pondered the significance of it; the possibilities of it; the horrible threat of it as he galloped down the road.

He glanced at the sun—within half an hour of the tree-tops. He had blundered—Hopkins had just undercut him—but maybe the light would hold to redeem the blunder. His jaw tightened and he gave Graylock the rein, closely scanning every inch of the road—and every foot of river—that came into view as he passed.

Two miles above Black rock, just where a by-road, a mere wagon track, led off across the wooded bottoms, he found what he was looking for—a mass of horse tracks, with a print or two of a boot heel that he knew.

His lips twisted into a hard grin; tightened till they squeezed every mite of mirth out of it. He had lost the trail; like a hound at fault, had actually run by it—and here it lay, right where he had crossed it hours before.

He had been bending low in the saddle. He straightened and rode cautiously down the by-road through the dank and dismal bottoms. Where the narrow by-road approached Mud haul he again found what he was looking for—Brownie hitched to a tree, restless and prancing from side to side.

Hiding Graylock in a thicket, he unbuttoned his blouse, loosened his revolver in its holster and crept down the mucky bank toward the hiding-place of the houseboat; crawled close to its lurking place—it was gone.

He came out of the bushes and found where the gangplank had freshly scarred the mud; searched the shore for footprints; found them—the marks of a shapely small shoe, and the print of a stylish boot heel.

A speck of color caught his eye near the scar of the gangplank—a spot of gold on the dank mud. He stepped forward and bent over it. The next moment he had snatched up something and stood gazing at it—a yellow orchid, flattened and faded, in all likelihood the very one he had found for her the Friday before—lady slipper day. Over the man's fine face spread a light that transfigured it.

But there was a task calling—tense; insistent; mayhap horrible. Taking out his pocketbook, he put the flower carefully away; frowned hard down the river shore.

Knowing that the narrow by-road led through the wooded flats almost to Alpine island, angled sharply and crossed to the bluffs something more than a mile above Black rock, he went back to Graylock, left Brownie prancing and pawing the weeds, and rode cautiously on down the river.

Just short of the point where the narrow road angled toward the bluffs, he again hid Graylock, went on afoot some distance farther and stole through the trees to the river bank.

Creeping down to the edge of the water, with a caution so great that a crane wading a rod or two below failed to take the alarm, Jack crawled out among the limbs of a cottonwood that had uprooted and lopped over the stream and peered down the sides of the island, lying less than two hundred yards below.

A short distance down the south side, almost completely hidden among the willows and riding at the end of a rope hitched to a tree on the bank, lay a small houseboat with a skiff tied at its side—unmistakably the same tiny craft that had found concealment at the head of Mud haul.

The woodsman was just stealing back through the limbs of the cottonwood, with the bold intention of creeping farther down the bank and swimming out to the island, when a man came out of the snug little cabin, carefully closed the door, fumbled a while as if locking it and stood on the diminutive forward deck looking guardedly about.

There was no mistaking the somber frock coat, neck stock and high hat—it was Caleb Hopkins. A moment he stood listening at the door; glanced around again in every direction, and slipped over the side of the houseboat into the skiff.

As he rowed up around the head of the island and across the north channel to shore, he passed within less than fifty yards of where the woodsman lay concealed, his eyes hard and dangerous, his fingers betraying an almost irresistible inclination to stray toward the butt of the revolver at his hip.

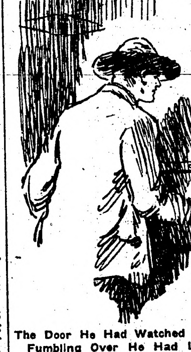
Drawing the skiff well in among the fringe of scrub willows, Hopkins glanced back in the direction of the houseboat, snarled out an impatient exclamation and set off across the bottoms. The woodsman rose and softly followed; shadowed him through the tangle of bushes and vines and fallen logs out to the River road; watched him cross, pick his way up the bluff and slip away among the trees of the upland.

The unguarded safe, the bundles of money under the floor of the cabin at the homestead, crossed the woodsman's mind. But there was a far higher stake in his tense thought just then than safes and bundles of money. The frock coat and high hat were no sooner well out of sight than he sprang up from where he lay in the thicket at the edge of the bottoms and hurried back to the skiff; slid it out from the willows and crossed the channel to the island. There he hid it again and slipped through the tangle of underbrush and driftwood to where he could get a view of the houseboat.

There reached him the dull sound of footfalls on the cabin floor, and the tiny craft rocked slightly as some one evidently crossed from side to side, but there was no sound of voices; from which he concluded that the unknown tenant was alone.

In the fast gathering shadows he crept to the edge of the island; crawled with extraordinary care under the hand rail to the diminutive forward deck.

The door he had watched Hopkins fumbling over he had locked—padlocked on the outside. He stood still and listened—some one was moving about inside the cabin, and a speck of light showed behind a narrow crack between the door and the jamb.



The Door He Had Watched Hopkins Fumbling Over He Had Locked—Padlocked on the Outside.

Very guardedly he crossed the deck and brought his eye close to the crack—it commanded a view of a narrow section of the room. A candle was alight somewhere at the side, and a shadow—one shadow—flitted about the floor. The shadow slid across the section that he could see; deepened; disappeared; and in its place—Texie.

She came to the door on the outside of which he was crouched and tugged at the latch, as she had probably done many times since being left a prisoner, but the stout padlocked hasp held firm. With an exclamation that held just a shade of petulance, she turned away.

He watched her till she passed out of range of the crevice—doubtless to sound the walls for some other means of escape.

But the narrow opening had told him what it heartened him much to know. He took a bullet from his pouch; flattened it between his teeth; with his powerful fingers forced it noiselessly into the keyhole of the padlock in such a way as to make it impossible to insert the key; jammed it so tight with the blade of his pocket knife that nothing short of a locksmith's tools could have dislodged it. Crawling along the gangway to the after deck, he rendered the padlock on the rear door equally useless; listened a moment to the quick restless steps inside; crawled under the hand rail to the bank and, with every precaution known to woodcraft to hide his trail, recrossed the island to the skiff.

He shoved the skiff into the water, rowed up around the head of the island, down the south channel and back to the house-boat. Fastening the skiff to the rail, he unhitched the rope from the willow on the bank; sprang lightly to the forward deck, being careful to keep out of range of the crevice between the door and jamb; picked up one of the two light poles with which such craft are propelled; pushed off; suffered the snug little vessel to catch the drift of the current and, being careful to keep well within the shadow of the willows, let it drift down the channel.

Far down toward the lower point of the island a narrow pocket gashed into the rather steep bank—a place well known to the woodsman. Carefully withdrawing the boat from the current as he approached, he deftly turned the prow; poled the little vessel into the slack water of the pocket and far up under the overhanging vines and branches, where it would likely escape anything short of the very closest scrutiny, either from land or water; hitched it securely to a tree on the bank; went back to the deck and stood listening.

The girl inside the cabin had repeatedly wrenched at the doors as the vessel drifted down the channel. Several times she had called the name of Hopkins, begging him to release her, doubtless believing it was he that set the boat adrift. To all this the woodsman had returned no answer.

She must have known when the boat stopped, must have heard the scrape of the limbs and vines as it was poled up into the pocket, for there followed an interval of silence. He could not resist the longing to steal once more to the narrow crevice where the bar of candle-light escaped. He brought his eye close; peeped within.

She was standing near the middle of the floor, listening intently and apparently in deep thought. As he watched, he saw a sudden light leap to her face and wake the wonder of her eyes. She crossed the floor; came close to the door and, with the caution of a woodcraft almost as fine as his own, softly called:

"Jack—!"

It took the utter sum of the man's resolution to keep still. He watched the wonder of her eyes transform to disappointment and despair; watched her stand clasping and unclasping the slim fingers of her shapely small hands.

One consideration alone restrained him from beating to fragments the disabled padlock and setting her free—right in that stout cabin, with its doors secured by jammed locks that could not be opened without breaking, securely hidden at the end of a covered trail, was the safest place in the Flatwoods for her just then. There would be hard faces and quick fingers in the red-roofed cottage that night.

But even so, it was the most difficult thing the big woodsman had ever tried to do in his life to turn away from that door and go back to the skiff.

With set and serious face he rowed up the channel, around the head of the island, across to the mainland and carefully stepped ashore; dropped both oars into the river; set the boat adrift; stood a moment watching it float away and, with extraordinary pains to hide his trail, hurried back to Graylock.

CHAPTER XVIII

In the Dead Night.

Twilight had long faded into dark, the hazy stars seeming only to intensify the deep gloom of the woods, when Jack Warhope returned to Black rock, coming in by way of the feed-pens, and slipping the horses into the barn through the cattle sheds.

He crouched a long time on the kitchen step listening. No unusual sound disturbed the silence. Very carefully he fitted his key—the same that had come so near causing him trouble at the inquest—into the lock; guardedly turned it; worked the door slowly open; entered; softly closed and locked it.

Stealing across the floor, he made his way to the small office room where the papers and safe were kept.

He tiptoed behind the curtains that hung over the entrance to a closet under the stair in the sitting room and stood still, his ears strung for every sound that rode the night.

It couldn't have been short of midnight, and his mind had gone back to the house-boat, riding safe and secure in the pocket at Alpine island, when there came the sound for which his ears were straining—hands outside prying at the window of the west room.

He drew his revolver, cocked it and took a position so that he could see through the curtains without causing them to move.

There came a low sound of crumbling wood; the muffled slither of cracking glass; the soft grate of the sash as it was slowly raised; finally the creak of the window-sill and the faint swish of clothing as somebody crawled through. The sounds were repeated—one—no more.

Animal Comfort Being Increased

Everything Is Being Done in Most Practical Ways to Prevent Suffering.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Because in certain of its experimental work it is necessary to use live animals, the United States Department of Agriculture has on various occasions been accused of practicing unnecessary cruelty. Also it has been blamed for permitting cruelty in the handling of animals, for example in transportation to market. Such accusations are without reasonable foundation, says Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, who maintains that the department's efforts have resulted in the prevention of suffering by millions of animals and human beings.

In carrying on experimental work, particularly that which has for its object the control of diseases, it is necessary to use a few animals, but in most cases the suffering of the subjects is negligible if there is any at all. If the objectors had had their way the suffering among animals and human beings from many causes would now be infinitely greater than it is. A few examples should make this clear to those who wish to see.

Clean Up Texas Fever.

Previous to 1906 the cattle of our southern states, an area comprising about 750,000 square miles, were affected with Texas fever, a disease which annually killed large numbers and which so sickened the others that they became poor and were relatively unprofitable as producers of meat or milk. Scientists of the department, by the use of a few cattle, discovered that the disease was carried from animal to animal by the blood-sucking cattle tick, and the natural conclusion was that the eradication of the tick would mean the disappearance of Texas fever. This proved to be the case. The department almost immediately undertook the stupendous task of cleaning out the tick from the herds of the South, and already nearly three-fourths of the vast territory has been cleared of it by dipping the cattle at certain intervals in an arsenical solution and keeping them off infested pastures until the ticks there have died. As a result, millions of cattle have been permitted to live in health and comfort and to provide wholesome food.

However, the greatest benefit from this discovery of the part played by the tick was reflected in the advance made in human medicine. The knowledge that diseases could be carried by insects was new to medicine and immediately led medical men to consider the possibility that the spread of some of the baffling diseases of mankind might be explained in this way. As a result of investigations in which two physicians deliberately sacrificed their own lives the dreaded yellow fever was found to be carried by a certain kind of mosquito and control measures were developed which have practically wiped this plague off the face of the earth. In the same manner it was found possible to control malaria, also carried by a mosquito, and a number of other devastating diseases have been found to be insect-borne. Was the sacrifice of a few animals, and even human beings, worth while? It seems a needless question.

Worked on Dogs and Sheep.

Within the past few years a scientist of the department, working on the control of internal parasites of domestic animals, in which work he used dogs and sheep principally, found that a certain chemical was effective in removing hookworms. His discovery is proving a great comfort to many thousands of animals, perhaps millions. But more medical investigators took it up and reports received from almost every corner of the world show that this cheap chemical is the most effective treatment now known for fighting the hookworm disease of human beings which weakens and depresses millions of people. Paying no attention to the human family, was it right to inconvenience a few dogs and sheep to save millions of their kind from an insidious pest against which they were helpless? One can imagine a mighty chorus of barks and bleats of approval.

Each year, particularly on the western ranges, thousands of cattle, sheep and horses are killed or made very sick as a result of eating poisonous plants. In order to determine the kinds and quantities of the plants which produce these terrible effects the Department of Agriculture has found it necessary to feed suspected plants to a few animals. Some of these unlucky animals suffer and a few of them die, but each year the millions of live stock on the ranches of the west are safer from poisoning, for bulletins issued by the government inform the ranchers of the dangerous plants so that they may eradicate them or keep their flocks and herds away from places where they grow.

The list of benefits from animal experimentation could be lengthened almost indefinitely, and in many instances more than the indirect economic benefit has accrued to the human race. The battle against animal tuberculosis has cost the lives of many of our domestic creatures, but there are now large areas free of this age-old plague and new counties are being added to the free list at frequent intervals. Need we ask if the development of anti-hog-cholera serum has increased or decreased animal suffering? It is practically a sure preventive of the worst disease attacking swine, but some hogs had to give their lives during the experimental stages—and without their consent.

Work to Prevent Suffering.

The Department of Agriculture is doing all it can in the most practical ways to prevent animal suffering, sometimes indirectly by using animals to discover new facts and sometimes directly by enforcing laws providing for the human handling of domestic animals. The federal enactment known as the twenty-eight-hour law, enforced by the department, provides that animals being shipped to market must not be kept on cars more than 28 hours without unloading for watering and feeding and rest. Although the department receives an appropriation of only $25,000 a year for this work, it has done much to increase the comfort of animals on the way to the markets. Within the past three years, according to Dr. Mohler, violations of this law have been cut in half. Deaths of stock in transit have been reduced to considerably less than 1 per cent and traveling inspectors report much better conditions of handling, feeding and watering. The railroads have paid heavy fines and are making determined efforts to have their employees comply strictly with the law. It is now rare to see cars of live stock shunted between two rows of box cars in warm weather; care is taken to put them on the outside tracks. Bruised animals are much fewer now.

The United States has become the greatest live stock country in the world, and one of the reasons for the attainment of this position is that in this country much time and money has been spent in developing methods of preventing and eradicating diseases and adding to animal comfort. The scientist has been looking at the great herds and flocks that provide so much of our wealth and not at the individual that followed "Mary" to school.

Hens and Eggs Buy Home Improvements

Poultry Products Sold by South Carolina Women.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farm women of Charleston county, S. C., sold 5,441 pounds of poultry and 10,388 dozen eggs during 1923, as compared with 600 pounds of market poultry and 1,009 dozen eggs in 1920. This large increase in three years was accomplished, on the part of extension workers co-operatively directed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, by constantly emphasizing the value of pure bred poultry and of the need of grading all products. The home demonstration agent rendered all possible assistance in the marketing of these products, but the good results are attributed largely to the fact that at every meeting held, no matter what subject was discussed, poultry was advised as a means of increasing the home income. Out of 138 women enrolled in home demonstration work, 70 improved their flocks by the purchase of standard-bred cockerels or baby chicks.

In addition to selling poultry, 3,337 pounds of butter and fresh vegetables, amounting to $2,368.50, were sold in the county. The money earned by the women in these ways was divided into three portions. One part was laid away for a rainy day, one part was spent in supplying special needs of the children, or for food or clothing, and the third part was spent for home improvements. Among these improvements, 23 houses were remodeled by having additions, new floors, or new lighting systems. Eleven women bought gasoline irons, two made wheel trays and four bought kitchen cabinets; fifteen planted fruit trees and 138 planted local trees and shrubs to beautify the home grounds.

FARM NOTES

Make the hens scratch. It is good for them and they enjoy it.

* * *

Very sandy, acid or poorly drained soils will not support sweet clover.

* * *

The manifold luxuries of your own garden will make you scorn the corner grocery stuff.

* * *

Early-seeded oats will ordinarily outyield later seeding by six or eight bushels per acre.

* * *

If your incubator is being operated in a room with uniform temperature and well ventilated, it will give better hatches.

* * *

Rye makes a very good nurse crop for clovers, and especially so when it has been pastured closely in the fall and winter.

* * *

Sometimes leg weakness becomes a serious trouble and a great menace in raising baby chicks. This trouble occurs more often during the brooding season.

* * *

The best perches are not more than two feet from the floor, all on the same level to prevent crowding, and are movable so that they may be easily kept clean.

* * *

The green bug becomes active during the first warm days. Careful watch should be kept for the appearance of dead plants in small circular areas in the wheat fields. These should be plowed under or straw scattered over them and burned.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

WEEKLY MENU SUGGESTIONS

Apples are plentiful in most parts of the country and are a fruit which may be used baked, as sauce or in pie and dessert as well as fresh.

SUNDAY—Breakfast: Coffee cake. Dinner: Cream of celery soup, roast chicken. Supper: Bread and milk.

MONDAY—Breakfast: Grapenuts, cream, buttered toast. Dinner: Beefsteak, baked potatoes. Supper: Creamed chicken on toast.

TUESDAY—Breakfast: Baked apples with cream. Dinner: Pork roast, baked onions. Supper: Carrot and nut sandwiches.

WEDNESDAY—Breakfast: Cornmeal mush, cream. Dinner: Parker House rolls. Supper: Sponge cake, apple sauce.

THURSDAY — Breakfast: Breadcrumb omelet. Dinner: Sliced pineapple and cake. Supper: Hot cocoa, baking powder biscuit.

FRIDAY—Breakfast—Codfish balls. Dinner: Lucanian eggs. Supper: Fried oysters.

SATURDAY — Breakfast: Griddle cakes, ham. Dinner: Fried side pork. Supper: Tomato soup.

Cream of Celery Soup.

Have ready one cupful of celery cooked and put through a sieve. Reduce the water in which the celery was cooked to half a cupful. Put into a saucepan one tablespoonful of butter, season with salt and pepper and stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour. When well blended add three cupfuls of milk and stir until it boils. When the mixture is cooked and like thin cream add the celery and the celery liquor. Add a beaten egg and serve hot. Do not boil after adding the egg.

Carrot and Nut Sandwiches.

Put enough carrots through a meat grinder to make a cupful, adding a little onion for flavor, chop rather coarsely one-half cupful of any kind of nutmeats, add a spoonful of mayonnaise or boiled dressing and use for sandwich filling. Season to taste.

Lucanian Eggs.

Take two cupfuls of cooked macaroni, five hard-cooked eggs, a cupful of white sauce and one-half cupful of grated cheese. Place a layer of the macaroni in a well-buttered baking dish, then a layer of eggs cut in eighths, then white sauce and cheese. Repeat and on top cover with buttered crumbs. Bake long enough to become hot and brown the crumbs. Serve at once.

Little heralds of the spring, crocuses run
Fleet footed through the grass
Spilling hope from goblets gold, pale mauve or cream
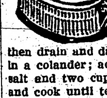
And singing as they pass
—O. Pindar.

CHOICE DISHES

Those who are fond of peanut butter will like to try the following:



Rice and Peanut Casserole.—Add one-half cupful of rice uncooked to three cupfuls of cold water and bring quickly to a boil. Boil one minute then drain and dash cold water over it in a colander; add one teaspoonful of salt and two cupfuls of boiling water and cook until tender. To one cupful of peanut butter add one beaten egg and one-half cupful of milk. Put all together in a baking dish well-buttered. Sprinkle with one-half cupful of cracker crumbs which have been well buttered. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Apple Pudding.—Peel three large, good-flavored apples and cut into small pieces. Lay on a greased plate. Sprinkle with a little from a cupful of sugar. Cream one tablespoonful of butter with the rest of the sugar, one well-beaten egg, one-half cupful of milk and one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat thoroughly and pour over the apples and bake until brown. Serve with sugar and cream.

Tongue Slices—Beat the yolk of an egg, add one-half teaspoonful of curry powder and two tablespoonfuls of French mustard. Add a few drops of tabasco sauce gradually, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and the juice of half a lemon. Into this dip the slices of boiled tongue, and when well covered, roll the slices in sifted bread crumbs taken from the center of the loaf. Arrange in a well-oiled broiler until the crumbs are brown. Serve around a mound of hot string beans well buttered and seasoned.

Carrot, Celery and Onion Salad.—Put three tender young carrots if of good size—more if small—through a meat grinder, add a half cupful or more of chopped celery and one small onion put through the grinder or scraped. Mix well and serve on the heart leaves of lettuce with the above mayonnaise dressing.

Lemon and Apple Pie.—Add a cupful of chopped apples, one beaten egg, one-fourth of a cupful of rolled crackers, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, the grated rind of a lemon and a tablespoonful of butter. Bake in two crusts.

30 Days' Free Trial Offer
12 Months to Pay

An Amazing Free Trial Offer

A plan has just been formulated whereby American farmers can try out on their farms the very latest model of the great SHARPLES Separator plant. This free trial plan, in the fewest words, is this:

You simply ask us to loan you a SHARPLES Allsteel Cream Separator for a free trial. You send no money and make no deposits. This SHARPLES Allsteel Separator will be sent to your express office, all charges prepaid. You try it for thirty days and we await your decision. The SHARPLES Allsteel Cream Separator that will be sent you is the last work of our Separator engineers and experts. It is of all-steel construction—sturdy and strong. It has a capacity of over six hundred (600) pounds of milk per hour; has the famous Tubular Suspended Bowl, Automatic Variable Feed at Any Speed; is distinguished for its advanced and modern construction features; for its compact, handsome appearance and for its phenomenal separating capacity, and the ease of turning it is almost unbelievable

Following are some of the opinions expressed by various professors and teachers in noted agricultural schools regarding the SHARPLES Allsteel Cream Separator that we are lending to farmers on Free Trial.

At Kansas University—"Well, I like that; it is so easy to turn and clean," and Prof. ——— said "that is the biggest little separator I ever saw."

At Nebraska University — "That is some separator; I can recommend that to any one," while the Profs. ——— said, "It was the greatest separator they had ever seen."

At Missouri University—"That separator will crown the separator business in Missouri when people learn how easy it turns and what it does."

At Ohio University—"If we had not run it ourselves and tested it they would not believe it; sure have a wonderful machine."

At Ames — "You have made a big improvement in separators and are using the right methods, and want one as soon as possible."

Again at Illinois, Wisconsin, Purdue and other State Universities the Professors and authorities call the Allsteel Separator Wonderful.

Finds "Tides" in Lava in Crater of Volcano

The discovery of daily and monthly "tides" in lava in the crater of Kilauea volcano in the Hawaiian islands was made recently by Dr. T. A. Jaggar, director of the Hawaiian volcano observatory of the United States weather bureau. The observatory is on Kilauea.

Dr. Jaggar says the observations might be valuable in predicting future eruptions. The liquid lava shows a twice-a-day fluctuation in level of from two to seven feet, a daily variation of three to five feet, and a monthly shifting of the time of maximum and minimum level. This would not be the case if the tides were due to weather conditions which change irregularly, but it might be due, Dr. Jaggar says, to control by the sun and moon.

The hard lava floor of the crater shows a daily change in level of about one foot, but the times of maximum and minimum are nearly opposite those for the liquid lava, the high level occurring in the morning in the case of the liquid and after midnight in the case of the solid lava during a period of two months when observations were taken.—Kansas City Star.

Gave Her Ideas

A successful English novelist, Miss Sheila Kaye-Smith, generously acknowledges that in the case of two of her stories a fellow-author supplied the basic idea. "The germ of my novels," she says, as quoted by the writer, "is generally a more or less abstract idea which has somehow got entangled with a place. For instance, 'man who subdues a rough piece of land—country back of Rye,' was the germ of 'Sussex Gorse,' and 'woman farmer—Romney Marsh,' was the germ of 'Joanna Godden.' Both these ideas were given be by W. L. George." Miss Kaye-Smith works quickly and corrects little, but it takes her eight months to complete a story.

LIGNITE RATE FIGHT RESUMED

Testimony Introduced Showing Eastern Coals Are Too High Priced

Bismarck, N. D.—Hearing in the North Dakota lignite coal rate case, in which railroads seek to increase freight rates on this coal about 50 per cent, according to railroad commission experts, were resumed here Monday before Examiner W. H. Wagner of the interstate commerce commission and the North Dakota railroad commission. Evidence of the railroads was introduced at a hearing several weeks ago.

D. L. Kelley, rate expert for the South Dakota railroad commission, opened the case of the protestants with testimony, being questioned by R. L. Dillman, assistant attorney general of South Dakota, Ross Miller, engineer for the South Dakota commission, also may testify.

Consumers' Viewpoint Presented.

The consumers' viewpoint was presented by Mr. Kelley in the opening stages of his testimony, during which he compared lignite and other coals and emphasized the exclusiveness of the Dakota lignite in its field. Seeking to show from United States geological surveys that the Dakota lignite coal is comparable in heating value only to Texas lignite, Mr. Kelley prepared to combat the railroads' case for increased rates which was based on a showing that the freight rates now prevailing on lignite coal are much lower than on other coals used in the Northwest.

Stating that lignite coal fills a need but has not greatly cut into the coal shipments from the Duluth and Superior docks, Mr. Kelley asserted that the price of eastern coal shipped to the docks and distributed over the Northwest is becoming almost prohibitive in cost for the average consumer. The same, he asserted was true with reference to southern Illinois, Colorado, and Kentucky coals shipped into South Dakota.

LESS WHEAT IS PLANTED

Flax, Corn, Barley, and Oats Acreage to Increase.

Fargo, N. D.—A 14 per cent decrease in spring wheat will be accompanied by an increase of 3 per cent in corn, 7 per cent in oats, 9 per cent in barley, 4 per cent in hay, 54 per cent in flax, and a decrease of 2 per cent in potatoes, according to an "intention to plant" survey made recently by the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with 43,000 farmers of the country, and reviewed this week by Rex Willard, farm economist, North Dakota Agricultural college.

The survey is a new departure in government statistics aimed to aid the farmers of the country in their plans for the planting season, according to Rex Willard, who commented this week upon farm conditions and the trend of farm prices. The decrease in spring wheat is to be accompanied in North Dakota by an increase in the crops indicated in the results of the survey.

"Eggs are somewhat lower in price now due to the usual seasonal decline, but the prices are higher than a year ago," Mr. Willard said, in discussing figures compiled for the past month. "Hogs and cattle are low in price, cotton and wool are still high, corn is higher than the prewar figure but is somewhat lower than a year ago. The farm prices of crops stood at 141 per cent of the figure for 1913, which is higher than at any time since 1921. Exports of wheat have been lower than a year ago, and pork exports have been higher.

FRANCE ACCEPTS REPORT

Poincare Letter Declares Government Approves Reparations Plan.

Paris.—Acceptance by the French government of the Dawes report as a basis for a new reparation settlement has been formally registered with the reparation commission in the form of a letter from Premier Poincare to Louis Barthou, president of the commission.

The premier makes no reservations in his acceptance but points out that the French government supposes that it is understood that all the details insuring realization of the guarantees the experts propose will be effected before the Allies are called on to give up the pledges they now hold.

The premier in his letter tells M. Barthou he hopes the commission will, with all diligence, proceed with the necessary preliminary negotiations for putting the experts' plan into operation, intimating that this is necessary before the Allied governments can get together and settle such questions affecting the plan as depend upon them.

Troops Asked to Enforce Order.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Federal troops have been requested to re-establish the quarantine against California on the Yuma Indian reservation, near Knob, Calif., it was announced here by Superintendent Odel of the reservation. The superintendent said he had advised certain authorities of Imperial county, California, to consider themselves under arrest for their parts in leading motorists through the federal quarantine area and attempting to break the Arizona blockade against eastbound vehicular traffic.

"IF ANYONE WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT TANLAC LET THEM SEE ME"

Says Joseph Baker of Memphis in Praising World's Greatest Tonic—Tells of Recovery.

"If anybody wants to find out about Tanlac, just let them see me," is the hearty suggestion of Joseph H. Baker, 550 North Third St., Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Baker went overseas with the famous Thirtieth Division during the World War and participated in the St. Mihiel, Valley of Wovres and Argonne drives, having been cited for bravery in action in the Argonne. He is now a popular member of the Memphis Fire Department.

"When I came back from over there," said he, "I was in a mighty bad fix. I had been gassed and after getting home I got down with pneumonia. This left me 'all in,' without appetite, down in weight, liver out of fix, and suffering from constipation, biliousness and headaches without end.

"Tanlac put me to eating as never before, shot my weight up fifteen pounds and made a strong, well man of me—and I feel fine even to this day. I can't say enough for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

STAYING HOME FROM WORK MEANS MONEY LOST

Many Women Know This by Experience

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You As It Helped These Women

Mrs. McDole's Experience

Ludington, Michigan.—"I suffered every month and was very irregular, had headaches all the time, was thin and pale, with no appetite. I had taken all kinds of medicines, and every doctor told me I would have to face an operation before I would be well again. I was doing factory work, and I had to stay at home so much that I was getting discouraged. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did so with good results. I am now feeling fine. I have advised all my girl friends, who have such troubles as I had, to take your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. THRESSA McDOLE, 426 S. Rath Ave., Ludington, Mich.

Los Angeles, California.—"I was in such a condition that I was scarcely able to walk, even to do my housework. I had no energy, was depressed and often wished to die. I am a chef, but was totally unable to do any cooking. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it with success. After the fourth bottle I felt much better, and after the tenth I never felt better in my life, as it resulted in a complete recovery. I certainly recommend it to all I hear complaining and you can use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. MARY SULLIVAN, 923 E. 46th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Greatly Relieved

Jersey City, N. J.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for cramps and fainting spells. I do office work, and have been in this condition four or five years, having to stay at home from work a day or two at a time, quite frequently. I have taken about ten bottles of it, and have been greatly relieved. I recommend it myself and you may print these facts with my full address."—LOUISE SCHOENFELDER, 112 Woodlawn Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

No matter what your work is, a great deal depends upon your health. It is discouraging to be obliged to stay at home frequently on account of sickness.

Your trouble may be caused by some female weakness, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought relief to many women just as these letters state. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Origin of Safety Pin

The first safety pins were long, slender pins of bronze, characteristic of Italy. Evidently some one one day conceived the idea of bending the body of these pins after putting the pin through the garment, so as to hold it more securely. Later an improvement was made by having a disk formation in the bend of the pin, containing several twists of fine wire, which acted as a spring and held the pin in place. The original bow pin is said to have been found in graves dating back to the Tenth century B. C. There have been many evolutions of the material used and the shape and style of the safety pin, but it is interesting to note that the primitive and simplest form is the one which has survived and is used at the present time.

Reading the Palm

"What," demanded the skeptic, "can you tell by looking at a person's hand?" "You can tell a good deal," said the palmist. "If a woman wears a platinum circlet on the third finger of her left hand she is just married. If she wears a plain gold band the marriage dates further back. If she wears a diamond ring on this finger she's engaged. If she's engaged she's probably in love. That's all women want to know about—love and marriage. Yes, by looking at a person's hand you can tell a good deal and surmise a whole lot more."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON V

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman, Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Why does not the banker pay savers as high interest on their money as he charges borrowers when he loans them that same money? Text books say he must charge more than he pays so as to meet overhead expenses, his unavoidable losses, and dividends.

J. H. Puelicher

OVERHEAD EXPENSES = cost and maintenance of the bank building, with costly equipment, such as steel vaults, so the depositors' money will be safe; light, heat, supplies, fire and theft insurance; taxes; and salaries to men and women employees of honesty and ability.

UNAVOIDABLE LOSSES = occasional unrepaid loans made to those who have the misfortune to fail in business. Although bankers exercise great caution and are experts in judging business conditions and character, they sometimes have such losses. These must be met out of the gross profits from interest charged borrowers above that paid depositors—as fire insurance companies meet losses out of reserve funds created by careful investment of premiums.

DIVIDENDS = money divided among stockholders out of clear profits left over after overhead, losses and all other interests of the depositors have been fully taken care of.

Thus bankers pay depositors less interest on their savings than they charge the borrowers of those savings so that they can earn funds to meet the expenses of rendering efficient, careful and valuable services to the depositors.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ABOUT THE HOUSE MONEY

Aunt Emmy found Molly crying as if her heart would break.

"What's the matter, Molly dear?" she asked, patting the bride's shoulder.

"Oh, Aunt Emmy, it's that horrid money. The household money is gone again, and I don't know where it went. I can't tell Ted, and yet I can't finish out the week. And I was going to save some every week, too!" she wailed.

"So that's it! It certainly does beat all how silly people are about money. Now stop crying, Molly, and tell me how much you are short this week."

"Ten dollars," sobbed Molly.

"Dry your eyes and come out with me," comforted Aunt Emmy. "Everything will be all right. The bank is soliciting small accounts. I noticed they have thrift accounts, too——"

"I don't care," sobbed Molly. "I can't have a bank account. No money."

"You are going to open both a household checking account and a thrift account. A thrift account can be opened with one dollar, and you must put aside a certain sum every week. You should save two dollars each week. Money that you once get your hands on is mighty hard to save, so when we go to the bank we will ask them to take two dollars out of your weekly household money deposit and put it in your thrift account. The thrift account will pay interest."

"But how can I keep my bankbook straight?" sighed Molly.

"You can add and subtract, can't you?" snapped Aunt Emmy. "You went to school, you know, and the bank will be glad to show you at first. Come on, Molly, let's be going."

At the bank Aunt Emmy gave Molly a check to start her account. "You can give this back to me at the end of the year, Molly. You can save it easily. Never buy by telephone. See everything for yourself. Keep accurate accounts, pay your bills promptly and don't carry money around with you."

When they came out of the bank Molly was the proud possessor of two pass books and a check book.

"I've always been afraid of banks," said Molly, "but I didn't know people in them could be so friendly. And besides getting things down in black and white this way will make it a lot easier to keep them straight. I just know it will!"

Aunt Emmy smiled knowingly.—ANNE B. AYMES.

EVERY BUSINESS MAN'S GREATEST OBLIGATION

By WALTER W. HEAD
President American Bankers Association

We speak reverentially of "Our Country." What do we mean? Are we thinking of the service which we owe to our country, of the love which we bear for it, or are we thinking only of the protection which our country can afford us, only of the benefit which we may derive from it? Are we thinking of what we may do for our country, or of what our country may do for us?

Walter W. Head

Our duty to ourselves and our country requires positive as well as negative action. We must be constructive. As citizens of our country, do we fulfill the obligations incumbent upon us? Do we exercise our right to vote—and when we do, do we always place intelligence, efficiency and patriotism in government ahead of every other consideration?

The message which I wish to emphasize is a simple truth, one easily understood, but one of great importance, perhaps more important today than ever before: We—I, as an individual—must be responsible for our government—my government.

We cannot delegate our responsibility in government to someone else. There is no substitute for individual interest in government and individual responsibility for government.

I have said to bankers that the greatest duty of the banker today is not to loan money, but to loan himself—to the service of his community.

MANY A WAY TO OBTAIN CREDIT

The farmer, who is the initial producer of goods, has more agencies designed to assist in his financing than has any other group, partly as a result of the natural growth of our present financial structure and partly because of the special agencies created by the government during recent years. The list of his credit sources is a surprisingly large one, for he may borrow directly from the savings banks, trust companies, and insurance companies; may use the Federal Farm Loan Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks; may sell his mortgages through local farm loan mortgage brokers, the larger mortgage companies, and certain investment banking houses; if a cattle raiser, he can discount his paper with cattle loan companies; his marketing is often done through a state or national co-operative marketing association; he has access to the regular commercial banks for short time funds; and of course, participates as any other consumer in the usual retail store credit. Moreover, the Federal Reserve Act has provided broad accommodation for agriculture in its text as originally adopted and in the several amendments since made, and the Agricultural Credits Act authorizes the establishment of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank as a further aid. When one hears the statement made that in our economic system the farmer alone is not provided for, the answer is merely, "It isn't so." Many people are coming to believe, and this includes some of the agricultural bloc in Congress, that the farmer's trouble is not due to his lack of credit but to having had credits granted too easily and in too large amounts.—Journal of the American Bankers Association

WHY FINANCE FAVORS INCREASED FARM EXPERIMENT FACILITIES

American Bankers Association Indorses Purnell Bill Because It Believes What Is Good for Farming Is Good for the Country—Obsolete Farm Methods Doomed.

By D. H. OTIS, Agricultural Director, American Bankers Association

If the agricultural colleges and experiment stations are to function effectively and give up-to-date, reliable information and aid in respect to farm problems, they must have sufficient funds to carry on adequate research and experimental work so as to discover practical ways to improve agriculture. The present Federal appropriation of only $30,000 a year to each of the experiment stations is deplorably inadequate to meet the pressing needs that are constantly coming before them.

D. H. Otis

The Purnell bill, which has been before Congress and will again be urged during the present session, provides for an increase of $15,000 in the national appropriation for each agricultural experiment station. It also provides for gradually increased appropriations until the total amount equals $85,000 annually for each institution. The American Bankers Association, through its Administrative Committee, has placed itself squarely on record as being in favor of this measure because it believes that what is thus fundamentally good for farming is good for the country.

What Farming Requires

Farming requires skill of no mean sort. A farmer is ever facing new conditions and must adjust his activities to cope with them. The problems of the soil, of crop production, livestock breeding and feeding, and business management of the farm call for as high an order of brain power as any industry. The young man of today need not leave the farm for a career. There is abundant opportunity for the exercise of his best faculties in helping to develop a basic industry that affects the welfare of every human being.

In order to farm properly and economically, the farmer must be equipped with a high degree of technical skill. Farming by guesswork belongs to the past. No longer can he gauge his activities by the position and shape of the moon. Success demands the application of the best knowledge and experience available. New problems arise daily. New solutions must be found. Discoveries are being made that affect practical farm methods tremendously. Insect pests and plant diseases are constantly putting in their appearance and must be combated by the most effective methods. Competition makes that imperative.

Old Ways Do Not Pay

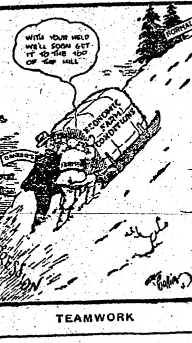
Land prices have been soaring. Following the Civil War, immense areas of fertile land were available almost for the asking. But today the most efficient land is all taken up, and the expansion of our agricultural production must come from either increased yields per acre or from farming the less efficient land. The higher the price of land the greater the overhead. What was profitable on cheap lands may be very unprofitable on high-priced land. To meet these changing conditions requires new stores of knowledge and new methods of applying knowledge.

Today many old methods of farming are inadequate and unprofitable. Time was when it may have been cheaper to let a horse or cow die rather than to go to the expense of calling a veterinarian. Today we must discover new methods of treating disease and saving our cows. We must also discover ways and means to prevent disease, to improve our feeding methods, and to avoid waste. We are living in an age of specialization, which means that we must produce more per unit.

ALL OF THIS REQUIRES KNOWLEDGE AND EXPERIENCE. THE TAX OF IGNORANCE IS THE LARGEST TAX THAT WE PAY AND UNFORTUNATELY WE GET NOTHING IN RETURN FOR WHAT WE PAY IN THIS WAY.

The Experiment Stations

The agricultural experiment stations have done a great work not only for the farmer but for the community and the country as a whole. They have developed improved methods of breeding and feeding and of selection. They have saved farmers of the country millions of dollars by discovering the best methods of applying fertilizers by determining conditions under which new and valuable crops can be successfully grown, by studying crop rotation and the utilization of by-products, and by developing mechanical devices that save labor and increase efficiency.



TEAMWORK

Much as the experiment stations have done, research work is still in its infancy. There are still greater problems awaiting solution. We must delve deeper, we must push further into the unknown, we must devise systems of farming that are more profitable than the ones we are now using. The experiment stations must have increasing financial support to achieve these ends.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignees of the Mortgagee hereinafter named are authorized to declare the whole sum due, and they hereby do declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Albin Dahl and Alice Dahl, his wife, and Selmer Dahl, single, Mortgagors to Deposit Trust & Savings Bank, Winona, Minnesota, a corporation under the laws of the State of Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated August 9th, 1920 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota on the 4th day of September, A. D. 1920 at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 202,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Trust & Savings Bank, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Edwin A. Brown and Martha G. Brown, as joint tenants, by written assignment dated September 9th, A. D. 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota on the 20th day of February, A. D. 1924 at 8 oclock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 249,

And whereas the said Edwin A. Brown and Martha G. Brown, the assignees and holders of said mortgage, on February 20th, 1924 paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Two Hundred Seventy-four and 34-100 ($274.34) Dollars; and whereas, the said Edwin A. Brown and Martha G. Brown, the assignees and holders of said mortgage, have duly elected and do hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the sum of Three Thousand ($3000.00) Dollars, with accumulated interest from the 9th day of August 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virture of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The North Half of the Southeast Quarter, the East Half of the Northeast Quarter, of Section number Twenty-three (23), in Township number One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range number Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, containing according to the United States government survey thereof 160 acres, be the same more or less, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 29th day of April 1924 at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $274.34 for taxes paid on said described premises, with interest from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated March 7, 1924.

NOTE DENIES THREAT INTENT

Jap Ambassador, In Letter To Sec. Hughes, Says Break Not Wanted

Washington.—A specific disclaimer of any intent to convey "a veiled threat" in the use of the phrase "grave consequences" in his recent communication to Secretary Hughes protesting against the Japanese exclusion feature of the immigration bill, is made by Ambassador Hanihara in a second letter to the secretary, made public Saturday and characterized by Mr. Hughes as a "frank and friendly explanation."

The ambassador's letter and a reply by the secretary were made public by the state department, Mr. Hughes' letter saying that in the light of the context of the original letter and prevailing friendship and understanding between the two countries he "had no doubt" that these words, "grave consequences" were to be taken in the same sense you have stated, and I was quite sure that it was far from your thought to express or imply any threat."

Made Public by Hughes.

The correspondence was made public after Secretary Hughes had given much of his time for the past few days to a consideration of the international issue involved. He conferred again Saturday with President Coolidge and before receipt of the ambassador's second letter had been advised of the desire of officials of the embassy to have an explanation of the language of the protest placed before the public.

What effect the explanation may have on the pending exclusion legislation in congress is not apparent yet. Senator Lodge, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, who in senate debate characterized the phrase "grave consequences" as a "veiled threat" in recent days has conferred with President Coolidge on the question, but leaders in congress desired opportunity to study the language of the latest letter better before appraising the situation.

Steps to send the immigration bill to conference were taken at the capitol, and the conferences are expected to begin work without delay.

BUY STOCK FOR FARMERS

Credit Corporation Plans to Send 10,000 Cattle Into Northwest.

Minneapolis.—Actual buying of 10,000 head of cattle for placement by August 1 on North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota farms, in sections where one crop farming has prevailed, may be undertaken by the new $10,000,000 Agricultural Credit corporation.

One plan suggested is to have the corporation, through the newly created division, make the actual purchase on behalf of the farmers selected for the $1,000,000 experiment. This plan, its proponents aver, would eliminate competition which might follow if individuals went into the market. The corporation, however, is interested principally in assisting the farmers to obtain livestock, and to have dairying and beef cattle raising one phase of farm work. Any recommendation which might be made at the Fargo meeting would be submitted to the headquarters of the corpora, where all ultimate approvals in the plan must be obtained.

If the corporation itself decides to purchase the cattle for the farmers, who are to be its clients, it probably would employ a high grade and experienced man to represent it in the territories where the cattle can be purchased for shipment.

OPPOSE GOVERNMENT SUITS

Declare Oil Leases Were Legal and Taken in Good Faith.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—The issue between the United States of America and the Mammoth Oil company concerning the validity of the Mammoth's lease on the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve, Wyoming, became joined when the Mammoth filed its answer to the government's bill of equity praying annulment of the lease on the ground that it was obtained through collusion and fraud. The Mammoth Oil company filed in the United States court here a direct answer, denying all allegations of fraud and asserting the validity of its lease, thereby bringing the suit squarely to issue at a date to be set by Judge T. Blake Kennedy. Similar answers previously had been filed by the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Sinclair Pipe Line company, joint defendants.

Fargo Boy Found Dead From Bullet.

Fargo, N. D.—Robert Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Porter, 1147 Seventh street north, pupil in the eighth grade at the Roosevelt junior high school, was found dead on the bed of his room at his home about 6 p. m. Saturday with a bullet from a .22 caliber rifle in his heart. Although there was no one in the house at the time of the shooting except two small children, the affair is believed to be entirely accidental, and no inquest will be held, Coroner E. F Moore stated.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

RUINOUS WEALTH

PARADOXICAL as it may seem at first blush, the declaration made so frequently by psychologists and economists that but few people can bear prosperity, is nevertheless true.

"When I come into the fortune which is to be mine on the day of my majority," says the youth who is looking forward to what he considers is to be the crowning event of his life, "I shall show my set how a gentleman of wealth and fine tastes should live and enjoy himself."

So when the riches come in showers and floods, the prodigal youngster starts off at a rapid pace on a care-free career which in an incredibly short time ends in broken manhood and humiliating disaster.

It is the story which is so often told of the sowing of wild oats and the reaping of tares and dishonor—of the selling of a soul for a rag and a bone.

The handling of large properties and great sums of money by the inexperienced, is usually fraught with just such peril.

And in quite the same manner the newly rich, forgetful of their limited means of the past, start off in their new adventure with a brazen blare of trumpets.

It is their first taste of the golden feast, and they have resolved to gorge themselves to repletion.

In a dozen years or so, with nothing to show for their folly except a lot of worthless geegaws and a burdensome load of experience, they are glad to get back in the homely little corner of the staid old world which they so grandiloquently abandoned.

The scene of their defeat they would gladly close to their mind's eye, but they cannot do so. The happiness which was theirs in the simple life is gone.

Their substantial friends in the bare days are no more.

Instead of triumph, the wealth they quickly got and wantonly spent, brought them nothing but derision and sorrow.

The same poor sort of humans are everywhere about us, gazing with envious, greedy eyes upon the rich, often cowed by fear and burdened with cancerous care. And all the while these hapless creatures seem unaware that hard work and high thinking give peace and pleasure that wealth cannot buy!

THE MOOD

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SOMETIME, when we're in the mood,
In some day to come,
We shall break our solitude,
We who are not dumb;
When the mood the moment brings
On some quiet day
You and I shall say the things
That we have to say.

Now we part and now we meet,
Yet we seem to wait,
Leaving something incomplete,
Inarticulate
There are dreams we long to share,
Dreamers I and you,
There are wounds we long to bare,
But we never do.

But some hour will set us free,
When, we never know;
But some moment suddenly
Hearts will overflow.
For the thirsty 'twill be drink,
For the hungry food
Maybe sooner than we think
We shall feel The Mood.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

MARRIAGE is the point at which a man stops begging a woman to kiss him and begins permitting her to kiss him.

After marriage, a woman always wants to talk about her heart, when a man wants to talk about his indigestion or his golf—and thus, the wires get "crossed."

Some men could go to see Rudolph Valentino every evening of their lives and never learn the first rudiments of the true art of kissing.

The flapper, who looks forward to marriage as a long series of Saturday afternoons, with jazz, flowers and nothing to do, is awfully shocked when she discovers that it is one blue Monday morning after another.

A man never goes into marriage with his eyes open. He waits until he has been blinded by some blow of fate or dazzled by some good turn of fortune, and then just jazzes into it with the first woman he happens to snatch.

The most antique things in the world today are not the pyramids of Egypt, but the average man's opinions of how a woman ought to behave.

A woman goes to the theater in order to enjoy seeing some other woman suffer worse than she thinks she does; a man, in order to relish seeing some other man fooled worse than he thinks he was.

Alas, a Circe at twenty—a kitten at forty; a Don Juan at twenty—a cynic at forty!

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: He is mild, you almost fear for him in the sardined subways. Everyone imposes on him. Every girl's mamma relies on him to take Miss Original Museum Freak home—and she always lives marathons away—and he does it like the historic lamb that bleated to the slaughter. He'd much rather be home reading or taking you home—but he just hasn't enough push to tell Mrs. Boring he wants to be your escort. When he isn't on his routine job he hasn't enough push to shove a penny in the slot.

IN FACT

He'll only get somewhere in some fine woman's heart.

Prescription to bride:

℞ Don't shove—Gently push—Don't lie down on your job—you have a life work.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because—

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You have no sense of direction?

Oh! this is truly a laughable deficiency—yet it is sometimes only due to never thinking much about where you are going, but thinking more intense thoughts. It is sometimes due to the fact that you rely on other people's guidance too much. This fact can be overcome if you work at it and devise means, landmarks, etc., to point the way. This lack in you only involves others when you insist upon the crowd taking your advice as to which is "east" or "west" or "up" or "down." At these times rely on the other fellow!

SO

Your get-away here is:

"Let George do it."

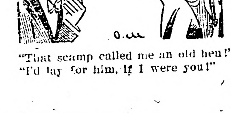
Egging Her On



"That scamp called me an old hen!"
"I'd lay for him, if I were you!"

Mother's Cook Book

In daytime, gaytime playtime how my little garden laughs,
And runs and suns and dances while at night dew wine it quaffs.
Plants grown on tiptoe by the moon,
all clap their hands for morn,
For flower time
And dower time
So glad that they were born.
—Hazel H. Harris.

WHAT TO FEED CHILDREN

THE problem for all mothers who try to feed the children with proper food is how to give them variety and keep within the allowance set aside for food. Meat for the child old enough to eat small portions should be well cooked and not served oftener than once a day. Vegetables of all kinds are important foods for the growing child. Green foods, such as spinach, watercress, dandelion greens, lettuce, carrots, green onions, cabbage—in fact, all good fresh vegetables—should be found often in the diet, and daily one or two for the main meal.

Children will often eat and enjoy carrots raw when they refuse them cooked. Try putting one or two through the meat grinder, mix with a little chopped celery, a green onion, and serve with a good mayonnaise on lettuce.

Our dietitians tell us that sugar should not be given on cereals. If the child refuses the cereal unless sweetened, add a spoonful of dates to the hot mush, or two or three prunes, or figs. These dried fruits are much better for the child than sugar.

Candy, when given at all, should follow a good meal, then the child will not overeat and it will satisfy the craving for sweets, which is a normal one with the average child.

Cocoa made entirely of milk, when milk is not liked, will give the child the needed calories.

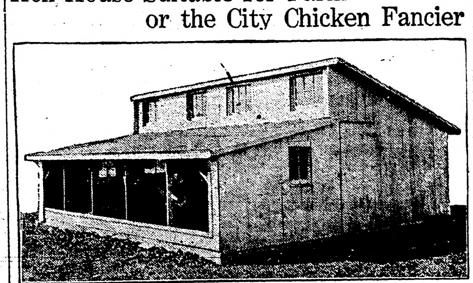
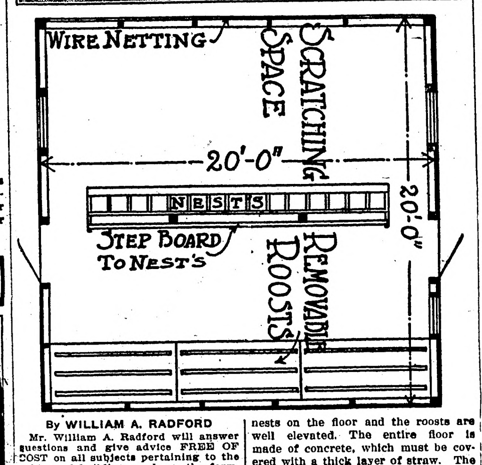
Hen House Suitable for Farm or the City Chicken Fancier





By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Chickens, like other domesticated animals, require a warm, well-ventilated house with plenty of light and air in order to produce to the utmost. But in spite of this the hen has been neglected in many ways. This is because the hen is, in one sense of the word, self supporting. If no one helps her she helps herself. She never complains about what she gets to eat or where she has to sleep. She will roost in the trees, in the machine shed or sleep with the cows and the hogs.

But why let her get along in this manner when, if given a proper chance, she will become a big money maker?

The hen house in the accompanying illustration is suitable for the farm or for the city fancier. It is 20 feet wide by 20 feet long and will house from 90 to 100 hens, allowing four square feet of floor space for each hen.

The available floor space reaches from wall to wall, since there are no nests on the floor and the roosts are well elevated. The entire floor is made of concrete, which must be covered with a thick layer of straw. The building should face to the south to make all the sunlight available. The netting-covered opening in the front is covered with canvas curtains which may be lowered in severe weather.

The half monitor windows keep the rear of the building well illuminated during the daylight hours. This will serve to keep the litter in the scratching space where the hens are fed to keep them exercising and prevent their becoming loggy and dull. It is known that a hen will not scratch with her eyes toward a dark place. It is for this reason that all of the straw and litter is found scratched to the rear of a hen house not properly lighted.

The nests are 30 inches from the floor and are placed on a center table out of the way of roosts. The roosts are 24 inches above this table and are spaced 14 inches apart. They are made of 2 by 2-inch square, with the tops rounded off and set in slots cut in 2 by 6 stringers, allowing them to be removed. All roosts are on the same level which permits the fowls to spread out over all the roosts instead of climbing to the top roost as is customary when one roost is higher than the other.

Single Contractor Most Satisfactory in End

Placing a contract for the finished house in the hands of a single responsible contractor usually is the most satisfactory method. When a contract is let to a single contractor on a lump sum basis, the owner knows exactly what the total cost of the house will be if his plans are complete and no extras have to be added as the work progresses. This practice is sometimes varied by placing most of the work under one contract, making separate contracts only for lighting, heating and plumbing equipment.

Another form of contract, which is not likely to prove as satisfactory as the lump sum contract, is to have the contracting builder pay for all labor and materials, and receive in addition an agreed percentage of their cost. This is known as the "cost plus" system. Its weakness lies in that it gives the contractor an incentive to let labor and material costs mount up and that the total ultimate cost is not determined in advance. A third common form of building contract provides that the contractor shall be paid for materials and labor, and a fee for supervision fixed in advance.

Grained Effects Put on Painted Surfaces

For grained effects on painted surfaces:

Materials—Semigloss waxed finish stain. Ground color, pink for mahogany shades, buff for walnut. A fine comb.

Method of Treatment—A grained effect may be obtained by applying a coat of ground color over the painted wood. In twelve hours, apply the semigloss stain. Pass a fine comb over the surface before it becomes dry. If the wood is unvarnished, apply a coat of the stain first. Rub briskly before it becomes dry. Allow this coat to remain six or eight hours, then apply a second coat and rub in the same as before. The darker colors of the stain may be applied directly over the light shades of paint.

When dry, the surface will now have a semidull finish. If you prefer a brighter finish, varnish or wax may be applied with pleasing results. For a quick glossy finish in one application, use a good varnish stain. The only preparation necessary is a thorough cleansing of the wood. Use a cloth dampened in a solution of water and washing soda for this purpose. The surface must be dry, of course, before applying the varnish.

Tiled Kitchen Labor Saver for the Home

In planning the kitchen the greatest care should be exercised in the choice of wall and floor finish. Tiling of this room where most of the house work must be done considerably lightens the daily routine of house work and leaves more time for enjoyment of the home.

Tiling is a labor-saving finish for which no satisfactory substitute exists and any woman who once has enjoyed its advantages will never again care to do without it. From every point of view, tiling is an ideal finish, durable and clean; it is one of the most sanitary finishes, requiring little or no care.

No other material or finish so readily supplies the elements of variety and color, is so artistic and sympathetic as tiles. Tiles are always in good taste, and appropriate for all periods as well as modern decorative styles and treatments.

The decorative resources of tiles are virtually inexhaustible, and as far as merit goes no difference exists. All give cleanliness, permanency and charm in full measure. Every requirement of taste, style and utility can readily be satisfied.

In Planning Home

In planning a home do not neglect to make provision for the built-in cabinet features which have become indispensable to the housewife. Many homes have absolutely no provisions for kitchen cabinets, disappearing ironing boards and other modern installations.

A highly convenient arrangement for every home, and one which is appreciated by every housewife, is a refrigerator recess which permits of its filling from the outside. This can be easily provided for in the plan with little or no additional expense.

SCHOOL TEACHER'S LOVE FOR FINERY CAUSES DOWNFALL

Former Sauk Center, Minn., Girl Confesses to Theft of $8,000 From Bank.

St. Paul, Minn.—A pretty "Main street" school teacher, who three years ago came to the Twin Cities to escape the tedium of small-town life in Sauk Center, Minn., the prototype of the Gopher Prairie of the Sinclair Lewis novel, faces a bitter penalty for indulging illegally a love of finery and gay companionships. Miss Leila Lewis, twenty-eight, has just confessed to the theft of $8,000 over a period of two years from the funds of the First National bank, where she was a bookkeeper.

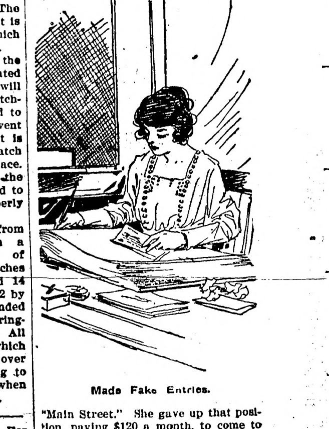
For two weeks the bank officials have known of the peculations, but did not make a formal complaint on account of the illness of the girl's mother. Recently Mrs. Lewis' funeral was held.

Of the money taken not a cent remains. A half dozen hats, a few shimmering party gowns, some jewelry trinkets of small value and the memory of free-handed entertaining of her chosen girl companions are all that is left.

University Graduate.

Investigators are having difficulty in reconciling a number of other factors to an ordinary case of a bank bookkeeper who stole. Miss Lewis is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and friends recall that she was an exceptionally popular student, being a member of the Bib and Tucker, Pinafore, Y. W. C. A. and other organizations.

In Sauk Center, where she went to teach in the high school when she left the university she was a popular member of the town's "younger set," described more or less faithfully in "Main Street." She gave up that position, paying $120 a month, to come to St. Paul and work in the bank for a salary of $75.



Made Fake Entries.

Miss Lewis confessed that she took the money not with any hope of gain from investments and ultimately replacing it, but simply to enjoy the luxuries that were forbidden to a worker receiving a moderate wage. The stolen funds went for clothes for herself, for elaborate gifts of trinkets and wearing apparel for her girl friends, for taxicab transportation in connection with her frequent parties in chop suey palaces and for her habitual treating of her friends.

Used Clever System.

The defalcations were made possible without discovery only by exceptional cleverness and a sound knowledge of accountancy, bank officials said, for the slightest slip in the system she used would have meant disclosure. Miss Lewis opened a charge account in the name of "Mrs. C. A. Wallace," who she said was her housekeeper, with an exclusive women's wear shop, and drew checks in this name. When they were presented at the bank she destroyed them and made false entries.

At the bank the former school teacher made many friends, and became especially valuable because of her knowledge of foreign languages, which she used to assist in handling the European correspondence.

Apparently Miss Lewis had few men friends. During recent months a young brother has frequently been her companion, but he told the police he had no suspicion that his sister's elastic finances had any other source than her salary. She expressed a hope that ultimately she would be able to replace the amount of the peculations, but her employers say her family has small resources.

Robbers Steal Clothes, Leave Man Naked in Car

Fresno, Cal.—Sheltered from the eyes of a curious world only in scanty side curtains, M. R. Parra, real estate man, was found in a highly embarrassed state of mind, crouched in the back of his machine where he had been stripped and left in his unconventional condition at an earlier hour by two unfeeling bandits. The holdup men got a valuable watch and chain and minor jewelry besides Parra's best suit of clothes.

The above figures show that for the class of notes acceptable at a commercial bank, the rates charged are about 5½ per cent, whereas for loans at a store they run as high as 36 per cent, and for chattel mortgages, 42 per cent. The rates given here represent the direct cost charged by the institutions named; in each case the total cost to the borrower is made slightly higher by indirect costs, such as stamp taxes, legal, brokerage or other fees. Thus the total cost to the borrower, who discounts his own note at a bank for 5½ per cent, is 5.74 per cent due to deduction of interest in advance, stamp tax and computation on a 360 day basis. In the case of mercantile credit the total cost sometimes goes over 38 per cent and for chattel mortgages over 45 per cent. The above figures, however, give the comparative charges as made by the loaning institutions themselves.

Labor —that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifiying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

Let us tell you more about this cut-cost paint.

BOURBONISM AS A CAUSE OF STRIFE

BY EVANS WOOLLEN,

President, Trust Company Division, American Bankers Association.

Evans Woollen

The continuance of property-right and the existence of efficient government in this land of universal suffrage depend upon the dominance of sound public opinion. More than anything else we need understanding. We need understanding between those who have and those who have not, between "the better off" and the "worse off"; understanding between those who employ and those who are employed. Understanding between all these is possible but understanding is impossible between the Bourbon and the radical. Accordingly, a contribution on our side to understanding is the avoidance of Bourbonism.

Some of us may well re-examine our conception of property rights. If those who own property and those who are charged with its conservation recognize this fact; That property-right is best defended, not on grounds of tradition, but on grounds of usefulness, there is a chance, through open-minded discussion, for understanding between them and those who vote. On the other hand, with the Bourbon who holds that property-right, unchangeable in all its aspects, is not discussable in any aspect there is no chance for understanding. There is chance for clash. He promotes the class consciousness that is his danger and the danger of those whose business it is to conserve property into the future.

Is it possible, in the second place, that some of us may well re-examine our conception of free speech? Thus also we may help, each his mite, to avoid misunderstanding between Bourbon and radical. Some of us would find ourselves assuming free speech as the right of those who accept the political and social institutions in which we believe. Whereas the fact is, of course, that free speech, short of incitement to law-breaking, is the right of all of us. It is the right of the communist and the socialist as much as it is the right of you and me. If we who believe in our political and social institutions recognize this fact: That free speech, short always of incitement to law-breaking, is the right of those whose ideas we dislike not less than of those whose ideas we like, we promote understanding.

Indeed, let us go farther and say that we had better abate somewhat of our zeal for repressive legislation. Government by jailing can put out the communist and the socialist, but cannot put down communism or socialism. That is the task of those who think straight and discuss generous-mindedly.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON WHAT WOMEN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT MONEY

"When you are as old as I am," said Aunt Emmy to her niece Molly, "I hope there won't be so many widows like Mrs. Strong losing every cent through ill advised investments and having to take any sort of a job to keep body and soul together."

"Why not, Aunty?" inquired Molly. "Widows and orphans have always been victimized."

"They don't need to be," replied Aunt Emmy. "Every day better investment advice is open to women. Now-a-days the banks make their depositors feel that they can go to them with their financial problems. The more women have to do with banks the wiser they become about the disposition of their money. In time women will know enough to look carefully into every investment before they venture, and to question any promises to pay more than a reasonable return. It takes an experienced financier to judge if investment is safe. Women as a rule do not understand the tragedies that lurk around money. They love nice things and naturally want them so they are often led into foolish investments and speculations because they seek to gratify their wishes quickly. The so-called 'sure thing' that pays enormous dividends is usually sure loss.

"Don't think, Molly, that I mean that women should not seek to get the most out of their money. They should. But the way to get the most is to keep it safe. They should seek advice. Properly and conservatively invested at six per cent and the interest re-invested each year, money will actually double itself in twelve years. If you take $5,000 and lay it away it will be only $5,000 to the end of time. If you put it into an ill advised investment—it might all be lost over-night. But if you get good advice and put it to work in a good investment it will be $10,000 in a dozen years."

"I don't think I ever realized so clearly before that women ought to know more about money—I thought it was only for men," said Molly.

"Women are often left on their own resources," said Aunt Emmy. "If they talked with their banks more there would be fewer Mrs. Strongs."—ANNE B. AYMES.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593. times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Mr. A. D. Collette, of Warren, called on the Marshall County State Bank officials last week with reference to a proposed Boys and Girls Club work project in Holt. Mr. Collette spoke to the school children the same day and explained the work of the club. He has charge of the club work in Warren and would like to have a club started in Holt in order that Marshall County might be represented at the County and State Fairs. Large cash prizes are offered the boys and girls in the contest. The local Club work will be in charge of Robert J. Lund who has had previous experience in club work in southern Minnesota. It is hoped that a corn and dairy calf project can be started this year. Each project is separate in itself so that the boy or girl may join either project. The parents are strongly urged to see that their boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 years are given a chance to participate in this club work. It has proven to be a wonderful work for boys and girls and something they can do in connection with their regular farm work. Help the boys and girls feel at home on the farm and get them interested in the different farm projects. This will also create an interest for the older folks. Corn and Dairying will in the very near future take the lead in production of this community, so lets give it a boost. Futher information can be secured at the bank.

Corn and Dairy Calf Projects

We want any boy or girl from 10 to 20 years of age to take part in our Corn and Dairy Calf project. Many have already given their names to become members and we want many more so that the project may be worked successfully.

The Corn Project requires the raising of 1 or 5 acres of corn. We suggest a one acre project this year. Large cash prizes are offered on this project and it will be well worth the effort to join this project.

The Dairy Calf Project requires that each member must own a grade or purebred heifer of a dairy breed and feed and care for it during the period of the contest. The winners of the county will get a free trip to the State Fair in the fall. Large Cash prizes are also offered in the project.

The Officers of this bank will be glad to cooperate in this work and push it to a successful conclusion. Send your boys and girls in so that we can get their names. Give your boys and girls a chance to prove their worth on the farm.

THIS BRIGHT BABY GIRL

Brought Joy to Home. Mrs. Price's Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scootac, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me. It has surely made our home a happy one."—Mrs. ROBERT PRICE, Scootac, via Lockhaven, Pa.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use.

The Very Thing

The man entered the store and looked around with a rather puzzled manner.

"Is there something you wish?" a clerk asked.

"Well—er—yes," the man replied. "I am—that is, I would like to get a book suitable for a man—er—about to get married."

"Yes, sir," the clerk answered. "Here, Mr. Buford, show this gentleman some of our large-size pocketbooks!"

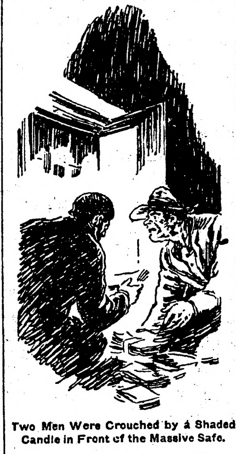
There followed the subdued shuffle of feet; the guarded scrape of a match; the flicker of a tardy candle. A dim light fell through the open door in a long splotch of yellow across the sitting room and the knob of the safe was softly turned. By some supersense that marvelously functions at such a moment, he knew when the door opened. Across the silence came the subdued crinkle of paper. The ripe instant had come.

Pushing the curtains aside, he left the closet. A board in the floor creaked as his weight came upon it. He stood perfectly still until the rattle of the paper told him the creaking board had not betrayed him; worked his way around the wall and peered past the door-jamb.

Two men were crouched by a shaded candle in front of the massive safe; on the floor lay several bundles of money and a number of loose bills.



Two Men Were Crouched by a Shaded Candle in Front of the Massive Safe.

Even in the dim light there was no mistaking them. That powerful figure with the swart face could be but one man in the world—Black Bogus. The pointed beard, the frock coat and neck stock, the tall hat on the floor, disclosed with equal positiveness the far more dangerous identity of the other—the formidable and mysterious man who called himself Caleb Hopkins—the third man of the mountain girl's warning.

Although the man creeping around the door-jamb made far less sound than the rattle of the money, yet Black Bogus caught the alarm; whirled on the instant, his hand at his hip.

Fate figures in split fractions at such a time—and the odds were two to one, with probably a third somewhere outside. The half haunting resemblance that had so puzzled the woodsman never seemed stronger than at that dangerous instant, but it meant death to falter. There was a bright flash in the candle-light; Black Bogus, a hideous grimace upon his truculent face, seemed to shrink together; the revolver that he had not had time to raise fell from his fingers; he pitched forward upon his face; lay still.

Before he struck the floor, almost before the bullet that finished forever his wild career had found its mark, Jack whirled his weapon upon the other man. His head had been deep in the safe—a fact that probably saved the woodsman's life. Like a viper out of his coil the head flew out of the safe, and with it—the ivory-handled six-gun.

But the split fraction of the instant had lost him the advantage. His weapon had hardly left its holster before it was shot out of his hand—pieces of the ivory butt flew about the room, and blood streamed from the shattered fingers that held it.

But Hopkins was not a coward. That, at least, could not be set down against him. Instead of leaping for the still open window, he sprang straight at Jack Warhope. The woodsman could have shot him down; instead, he jammed the revolver back into its holster and met the oncoming rush.

It was a battle the like of which the Flatwoods had never seen. No two such men can clash and come through unscathed. But it is doubtful if Hopkins at his best could have matched the tremendous strength and quickness and skill of the big woodsman. With his right hand shattered by the bullet, it soon became apparent that, for all the wild fury of his onset, he was fighting a losing battle. He realized it, and the despair bereft him of his caution. The woodsman realized it, too, kept his head, tightened his guard and watched for the opening that he knew was bound to come.

It came sooner than he thought. Hopkins, desperate and breathing thick, swung at the woodsman's head, but missed. The attempt had for the instant exposed his stomach, and the woodsman took advantage of it. The blow weakened Hopkins; he tottered, gasped, instinctively lowered his guard. Like lightning the woodsman swung his terrific right to the point of the bearded jaw, and Hopkins went down like a beef under the mallet.

But Loge Belden was still unaccounted for, a circumstance the woodsman had not forgotten, that had puzzled him no little. Bruised and panting himself, he dragged Hopkins back of the safe out of range of the window—as it chanced, near the candle on the floor—and stood over him.

His heavy mass of black hair had fallen across his brow—amongst the black, one lock of glaring red. The woodsman snatched up the candle; bent closer and covered the lower part of the bearded face with his hand.

"My God!" he muttered—"the red lock—it's Ken."

He set the candle down; straightened; stood staring at the prostrate figure on the floor, for the moment swept beyond his habitual calm and poise. The transformation that the one lock of red wrought on the bearded face was unbelievable—cruel; sinister; brutal—as if the face of Red Colin, the old sea pirate, had sprung out of a long dead past.

The fallen man stirred, rattled his heels on the floor, moved his arms, sat up and stared about him. Suddenly aware of the hard eyes upon him, he hurriedly raised a hand and hastily brushed the mass of hair back into place.

"It ain't no use, Ken" came from the other side of the candle, "I seen it."

The man on the floor scrambled to his feet; glanced toward the window, at the candle within reach of his foot, as if meditating some desperate move; frowned at the shattered fingers; stiffened, leaned against the safe door.

"Well—?"

The old arrogant haughtiness that the woodsman remembered so well—that used to awe him, dominate him—was in the expressive monosyllable. But it didn't awe him now—it rasped him; crawled up through his blood and struck a spark from his eyes. He was a long time answering; when he did, it was with another question.

"What have y'u got t' say why I oughtn' t' hand y'u over t' Jerry Brown?"

"Not a d—n' thing, though I'd rather be pinched anywhere else in the world than here"—a shade of the haughtiness left his tones—"on account of—Sis."

The big woodsman winced—which the other, with his quick wits, just then strung to keenest pitch, doubtless noticed.

"Live while y'u may; t' h—l when y'u must—it's a game of chance anyhow, with the odds on the man with the quickest fingers. I've seen twenty-seven years of it—a game not worth the candle."

"It is if y'u play it square."

"Square," the other snarled, "a word the devil invented t' throw men off guard. There ain't any such word"—he hesitated, a softer light flitted across his expressive face—"except—in the Flatwoods."

The woodsman caught the transient softer light—an expression that in other days used so to w! . him.

"Then why not come back t' the—Flatwoods—?"

The other glanced down at the money on the floor; half lifted his face and covertly studied the man before him.

"Texie—she still b'lieves in y'u, and I ain't quite give up b'lievin' in y'u m'self. You was careful t' git—her"—his eyes were again drawn irresistibly toward the concealed house-boat—"out of danger t'night, and I 'low y'u never aimed t' hurt Pap Simon, and y'u ain't takin' away nothin' but what y'u brought. It would kill—her, if she knowed it was you that done—this"—he swept his hand toward the scattered money, the open safe, the dead robber; glanced in the direction of the churchyard, where lay a new-made grave—"and worse. You could go 'way—a while, and then come—back." He paused; his eyes hardened. "But the next time y'u've got t' come—clean."

The eyes of the other turned in every direction except toward the man addressing him. A moment of silence fell.

"Where's Belden?" Jack suddenly asked.

The other started; glanced at the open window—a bit uneasily, as it might have seemed.

"He didn't show up, that's all I know."

"Did they know who y'u—are?"

The man addressed glanced down at the huddled body on the floor; frowned in the direction of Eagle hollow.

"Cattle like them—h—l!"

The woodsman frowned at the words, but apparently decided to pass them over.

"Then—nobody needs t' know." He dropped a half-opened hand toward the body of the fallen robber. "He's enough t' satisfy Jerry Brown, and one more mark ag'in' 'im won't make no difference t' Black Bogus now."

Still watching the window, as well as the man leaning on the door of the safe, he picked up the ruins of the ivory-handled six-gun—being careful to hunt the pieces that had scattered about the room—and dropped them all into the pocket of his hunting blouse; lifted the tall hat from the floor and held it forth; motioned toward the open window.

The other took the hat; put it on with curious deliberation; stared hard at the scattered money; stepped around the body of his dead associate; crossed the floor and, closely followed by the woodsman, who still watched him narrowly, crawled through the window and stood in apparent stolidness, as if waiting to be told what to do next.

The woodsman, no little rankled that his offered clemency—an offer that had cost him much to make—had been received with cold, even haughty indifference, dropped to the ground behind him and stood a moment sounding the night. Except at Uncle Nick's, where Mrs. Curry probably lay tossing with anxiety, not a candle was alight. He closed the window and turned to the stolid figure in front of him.

"I'm givin' y'u time to warn Loge Belden off and take t' the woods—if y'u're quick. When I think the time's up, I'm aimin' t' fire off Pap Simon's shotgun and rouse the village. This house will be put under guard t'night, and t'morrow all that money will be took t' the city and put in the bank, where it ough' t' be'n long ago"—a thought of the mountain girl crying under the window the night before crossed his mind, and his voice grew crisp and cold— "and if y'u never come back, w'y, that'll be soon enough f'r me; but if y'u do, y'u've got t' come clean."

A black scowl swept the bearded face of the other; his eyes glared dangerously. Warhope—the bound boy—that he had committed the blunder of so vastly underrating! He half turned, a muttered oath on his lips; but mastered the outburst, and, with the air of a man who bowed to circumstances, strode across the yard, nursing his shattered hand and fumbling the elaborate frock coat about him.

All unknown to the woodsman there lay concealed in that same frock coat another weapon—a small single-shot pistol of heavy caliber that thugs of the underworld often carried, deadly at close range but inaccurate at a distance—a weapon that the men of the woods knew nothing about. At the brink of the yard, just where it dipped to the little park, he suddeny snatched it forth; whirled and fired.

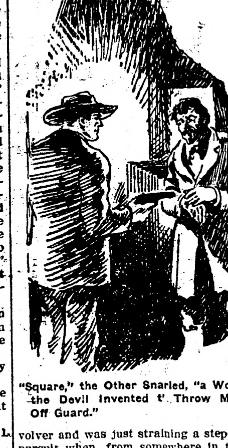
It all occurred in the flick of an instant. Amazed at the treachery, the woodsman sprang out of the dim square of candle-light that fell through the window. He snatched out his revolver and was just straining a step in pursuit when, from somewhere in the yard behind him, there came a low cry—his name—so faint as to leave a doubt that he had heard. It froze him into a listening statue.



"Square," the Other Snarled, "a Word the Devil Invented t' Throw Men Off Guard."

It came again—a woman's cry—borne upon the breath of the night. He would have known that voice among shouting thousands. He turned and bounded down the yard toward the gate.

Up from the gate she came, half-running, half-reeling, but before he could reach her she stopped, stood for a moment groping with her hands, drooped forward and fell with her face upon the grass.

107 MINERS DIE IN EXPLOSION

Blast Occurs In West Virginia Mine Shortly After Morning Shift Enters Shaft

Wheeling, W. Va.—One hundred and fifteen miners were believed to have been lost in an explosion and fire in the Benwood Mill mine of the Wheeling Steel corporation at Benwood, a few miles down the Ohio river from here.

After struggling for more than six hours to overcome falls of rock and earth in the drift mouth of the mine, rescuers gained access to the wrecked underground passageways by way of airshafts. Four bodies, all burned, were located within a few minutes. Two of these miners were alive when found but they expired before they could be brought to the surface.

Experts of the United States bureau of mines sent in a rescue car from Pittsburg, held little hope for any of the entombed men. Those who escaped the explosion and fire, they said, could not hope to win out in the deadly afterdamp.

At the mine it was reported 125 men went to work and that nine had escaped. The state bureau of mines at Charleston, however, announced that its report showed 107 men entombed.

Rescue Cars to Scene.

The combined mine rescue power of the United States government and the State of West Virginia was rushed to the aid of the stricken community in the hope that some of the miners would be brought out alive. The United States bureau of mines sent a car from Pittsburg and was prepared to order in a car from Maryland and another from southern West Virginia. The state's rescue car, stationed at Fairmont, also was sent to the scene.

The explosion occurred about three miles back from the drift mouth. Scores of men, women and children soon gathered on a slope facing the entry. They stood in a drizzle of rain, spurring on the rescuers who were digging frantically at the mass of rock which blocked the way into the mine.

BONUS DIFFERENCES FIXED

Early Agreement on Points of Varience Between Two Bills Expected.

Washington.—Senate and house conferences on the insurance soldiers' bonus bill met Monday to iron out differences between the bills passed by the two chambers with prospects of an early agreement and report of the measure to President Coolidge. The senate made more than a score of minor changes in the bill as passed by the house, but the main provisions were kept intact. Both chambers voted for cash payments to veterans not entitled to more than $50 and 20 year endowment insurance policies to the others.

Some discussion is expected over the amendment made by the senate on motion of Senator Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, postponing from January 1, 1925 to July 1, 1925, the date of issuance of the insurance policies. The amendment, however, would make cash payments allowed by the bill immediately available instead of nine months after the date of enactment.

Senator Walsh explained later that his proposal was intended to allow time for a new congress to amend the bill after it became law to include an option giving veterans the right to choose full cash payments. Democratic leaders served notice they would make a fight for such an amendment after the bill became a law, which leaders of both parties expect regardless whether President Coolidge gives it his approval or returns it with a veto.

SHIPS SMASH ICE BARRIER

Imprisoned Lake Steamers Force Way Into Duluth Harbor.

Duluth, Minn.—The fleet of freighters ice locked in Lake Superior, just outside the local harbor for five days, broke through Monday and were reported by coast guards to be making slow progress toward the Duluth ship canal.

Eight ships moving abreast were pushing through the honeycombed ice. The rest of the fleet of approximately 30 ships followed in their wake.

Sunday night's warm rain softened the ice and when a light southerly breeze sprang up early, displacing the nor'easter' which had raged steadily for five days, the skippers started their charge toward the harbor.

The drive of the imprisoned ships because of a light fog, was not noticed by the coastguard watchman until they had covered about half of the distance of eight miles from the outer edge of the ice field.

The Schoonmaker and two other freighters and the steamer Hamonic broke through and reached the harbor by 11:15 a. m. Thirty other freighters were strung out along the seven mile width of the ice field making very slow progress.

It's Easy to Pay For a Chevrolet

Everybody wants an automobile.

Everybody can pay for a Chevrolet.

Everybody can afford to own a Chevrolet.

You can buy a Chevrolet just as you buy any other important necessity. Not one family in a thousand pays cash in full for a home. They make a substantial down payment, then pay off the mortgage with what they used to pay for rent, plus other savings.

A Chevrolet can be bought just as you buy a stationary home. It earns its own way and you ride while you pay.

It is the best paying investment any family can make because it provides transportation, saves time, and makes all outdoors your playground, bringing health and happiness to the whole family.

There is a Chevrolet dealer near you. Ask him to show you the different models and explain how easy it is to get, use and pay for the one you want.

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Marshall—Tom Davis of Minneapolis launched his statewide campaign for the farmer-labor gubernatorial nomination in his old home town here.

Thief River Falls—The annual Guernsey auction sale will be conducted by the Red River Valley Guernsey Breeders association here June 12.

Rochester — Glenn T. Phelps was elected president of the Rochester Baseball association, which will direct the destinies of this city's club in the Iowa-Minnesota circuit.

Grand Rapids—Fifty men are hunting crows in their spare time, as a result of the competitive crow hunt inaugurated by the Itasca County Game Portective league.

St. James—E. C. Davis of St. Peter, was elected president of the Ruling Elders association of the Mankato presbytery in session here. The meeting was attended by 50 elders and pastors.

Minneapolis — A recommendation that the receivership of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad be continued until Jan. 1, 1927, was received by Minneapolis bondholders from the New York committee representing the bondholders' interests.

Worthington—The commencement exercises of the Worthington high school will be May 29. A class of about 50 will receive their diplomas. Theodore Christianson of Dawson will deliver the address to the graduates.

Jackson—At a well attended meeting of business and professional men of this city the subject of establishing a public heating plant was discussed. It is proposed to form an organization to build the plant which would later be turned over to the municipality free from all incumbrance.

Marshall—On the top of the boxcar in which one of the two pouches of mail stolen from the Great Northern station was located, the other pouch was found by trainmen. The pouch had been cut open, but the contents were not so badly tampered with as in the case of the first pouch.

Austin — Earl Dunfee, veteran local hurler, has been signed for the pitching staff of the Austin club of the Southern Minnesota league. Austin expects to have one of the fastest outfits in the loop, although it will be organized almost in its entirety from local players.

Red Wing — The local American Legion post is seeking the loan of cows to be used in the milking contest to be put on at its spring carnival in May. The contest is to be open to milkers from Minnesota and adjoining states and a special effect is to be made to have Senator Magnus Johnson as an entry.

Rochester—Mark A. Woods of Lincoln, Neb., Coolidge delegate to the republican national convention and national chairman of the Pershing for President club 4 years ago, in a statement issued here, indicated he proposes actively to launch the campaign of General J. J. Pershing for the vice-presidential nomination.

Fairmont—The Spanish War Veterans' camp is now preparing for the state encampment of their organization, here July 6 to 8. The veterans are utilizing the week of the anniversary of the war's declaration to raise the funds that will be needed to entertain their comrades at the state encampment.

Duluth—Captain Guy A. Eaton, senior naval officer of the Ninth United States Naval district and commander of the Minnesota Naval Militia, died here. Captain Eaton, aged 53, was a wartime commander in the United States navy. He was at one time commander of the old battleships Iowa and Kansas, and also served as acting commander of a section of the United States fleet.

Hibbing—Reports having gone out that great quantities of iron ore are to be shipped and that the ranges are again rejoicing in abundant prosperity with the result that there has been a rush of unemployed to the range. Those who do not want to work with pick and shovel should keep away. Engineers, office help and other skilled labor the mining companies will draw largely from their own organizations or from former employees. The opening for this class of employment are few.

Montevideo—Mrs. Thomas King of this city, a sister of the late Rev. Thomas J. Gibbons who before his death 10 years ago was vicar general of the Catholic diocese of St. Paul, is the owner of the oldest and most novel clock in this section. The clock was found 260 years ago in a scrap heap back of a monastery in the Swiss Alps by a Belgian priest. It still keeps accurate time, although a local jeweler says it has mechanical features peculiar to itself and found in no modern timepiece.

Akeley—Tilmar Smith, superintendent of the Akeley public schools for several years, and who also is engaged extensively in farming, has filed for republican nomination for congress for the sixth district. Mr. Smith formerly was an attorney.

St. Paul—A quarantine against California livestock, skins and feed was put into effect by the Minnesota Livestock Sanitary board, and strict rules covering shipment of other commodities were formulated to guard against importation of hoof and mouth disease. The quarantine, to continue in effect until the disease has abated.

St. Cloud—St. Cloud's real and personal property has an assessed valuation, according to the 1823 report of the public auditor of $7,322,393.

Bemidji—Dedication of the new Masonic temple, on the shore of Lake Bemidji, took place here with grand lodge officers in attendance.

Chisholm—Visitors to the Chisholm park can now see the bear triplets born in captivity at the park. They have been taken from the mother and placed in a pen by themselves.

Thief River Falls—A conference of the Northern Park Region, Missouri Synod of the German Lutheran church, will be conducted in this city April 29 to May 1.

Faribault—The cornerstone of the new gymnasium now being built at St. Mary's hall was laid after impressive services conducted by Bishop McElwain of Minneapolis.

Fergus Falls—Mr. Hanna Kempfer, who represented Otter Tail county in the legislature in the last session, filed for renomination. Mrs. Kempfer was one of the four women members of the Minneosta legislature.

Fairmont—Martin county has sold $115,000 in road bonds, the money to be used in completing the Fairmont-Sherburn road and a three mile stretch of road on the Truman highway.

Waconia—At a special election here, Waconia voted on a waterworks and sewer bond issue, both being carried by substantial majorities. It is estimated the total cost will be about $50,000.

Moose Lake—The first serious brush fire of the season, after sweeping over a territory of practically 150 acres, and endangering a number of summer homes in the region south of here, was extinguished by rangers.

Mankato—Ralph Hammett has been awarded the Nelson Robinson junior tarveling fellowship prize from Harvard university, according to word received by his parents. The award was made to Hammatt because of his scholarship record.

Madison—A hen owned by M. T. Hoff of this city has adopted several kittens which were abandoned by their mother. The hen gathers the kittens under her wings at night, and they seem quite content with their new mother.

Faribault—Winding up a bitter fight, which has lasted for more than a year, the city council closed a deal whereby the city of Faribault becomes the owner of the old fair grounds. The land was purchased for park and playground purposes.

Albert Lea—A large pelican is now a member of the family of game birds in the game preserve on Albert Lea lake. He keeps busy fishing, and while mixing with the ducks, terns and other birds, pays little attention to them. A pelican is a rarity here in recent years.

Duluth—Its passage into the Duluth-Superior harbor blocked by a heavy field of ice, the steamer Canadian, laden with 90,000 bushels of flax, was compelled to put about for Two Harbors for shelter. The steamer will remain there until shifting winds empty the ice choked channel.

Mountain Lake—A six ton transformer at the substation of the Northern States Power company here burned out and exploded with a loud report that was heard for many miles. The flare of blue flame gave many the impression that a fire was raging in the village.

Eveleth—Through the courtesy of the Oliver Iron Mining company, the city of Eveleth is paying $90,000 in old bills. Councilman Owens stated that the Oliver company advanced $90,000 on their taxes in order to help the present council relieve the situation existing among merchants and others who are creditors of the city.

Chisholm—After one year of village tax revenue being held at $495,000, because of a district court ruling holding illegal portions of former levies of $400,000, the council has passed a resolution levying $106,350 for roads and bridges. This levy was authorized by a vote of the electors at the recent village election, and it is believed this vote will protect the levy from being declared illegal. The tax will again bring the total to $600,000.

Cloquet—A triumph in paper making, whereby wood which ordinarily has been in little demand, including poplar, tamarack, birch and jack pine, are made into a fine product for books and magazines, is reported to have been achieved at the plant of the Northwestern Paper company. After a year and a half of construction operations the plant has just been put in operation, using a sulphate or soda pulp process, the application of which marks a big step forward in paper making.

Rochester—Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the balloon Goodyear III, which is declared to be one of the three successful contestants in the national elimination balloon race, presented the Rochester post of the American Legion with the American flag which his craft carried during the race at a banquet tendered in his honor. The legion presented Van Orman and his aid, C. E. Wollan, with a silver loving cup as a souvenir of their unexpected visit here.

Mankato—Organization of a woman's auxiliary to the Mankato Shrine club, for the purpose of aiding the Shrine hospital for crippled children at the twin cities, was perfected at a banquet meeting of members of the Mankato Shrine club and their wives, when 40 women were enrolled.

Owatonna—Owatonna and Northfield divided all but one of the four places awarded in the three events for commercial students in the fifteenth state high school district. Faribault was the only other school to place, getting second in the shorthand contest.

Heart as a Pump

"Half a ton of blood flows through your heart every hour," says Doctor Henderson, lecturing at Harvard Medical school.

This is a terrific amount of work for a delicate pump. It is obvious that life can be prolonged and health improved by getting plenty of sleep and lying down for 20 minutes or so in mid-day and early evening. When standing, our hearts pump blood the full height of the body. When reclining, strain is taken off the pump, blood flows like water through horizontal pipes.—New Orleans States.

Labor —that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

The Idle Word.

An idle word may be seemingly harmless in its utterance, but let it be fanned by passion, let it be fed with the fuel of misconception, of evil intention, or prejudice, and it will soon grow into a sweeping fire that will melt the chains of human friendship, that will burn to ashes many cherished hopes, and blacken more fair names than one.

Fighting Fishes.

Prize-fighting fishes are very common on the coast of Japan and Siam. Their pugilistic tendencies are most pronounced, so much so that the natives make them take the place of boxers in Siam, and arrange matches in glass bowls between two of the species, heavy bets being laid on the result.

Spring is the time to paint before the flies come. Use Sun Proof Paint sold by The Carlson Merc. Co.

The play "Professor Pepp" takes in sixteen characters, a larger caste than in either the other two plays, previously presented by the same Dramatic Club of Newfolden. Dont fail to see it.

Seeding has been put back so much with continued showers that probably less wheat will be sown and more corn, soy beans, mangels, potatoes and alfalfa will be planted than otherwise planned.

One hundred and ninety farmers have signed the creamery patronage contract at Greenbush. They have bot another cream vat and expect to have to ship butter twice a week to save buying a new ice box. They also expect to have to build a new creamery as they have out grown the old one, which proves it pays to stand by your farmers creamery, by signing the patronage contract.

If you saw "Safty First" and "Am I intruding" and liked them, you certainly will like "Professor Pepp" which is a whirlwind of fun from start to finish. Come and have a good laugh.

We have always heard that "Politics makes strange bedfellows," but just why Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls want to go back on their promises and give the J. H. to Warren is beyond our comprehension. Those cities have been holding love feasts and everything would be lovely if nobody made a kick.

Now is the time to paint your buildings. We sell the best sun proof paint on the market.

There is some measure of relief in sight for farmers who have not been able to pay their real estate taxes on account of the low prices for farm produce. Application may be made thru any bank to the Agricultural Credit Corporation to buy the out standing Tax Certificates for the delinquent taxes on your farm land. They charge six per cent interest and allow partial payments. The county charges twelve per cent interest and the amounts must be paid in full. The Marshall County State Bank will make the applications for farmers in the Holt territory.

Take Notice

Notice is hereby given to the Public that I will not permit any live stock running at large on the SE1-4 of Section 28-156-48 and otherwise known as the Tobiason Land. Any live stock found trespassing will be taken up according to law.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

One day last week while busy at work in the creamery, P. L. Anderson got a piece of steel or cement in his eye. As it was very painful he thot he would have to make a trip to see a doctor, when someone mentoned that Dr. Brandenburg was in town. The doctor was called to the creamery and Pete was soon at work again. In emergency cases people are beginning to realize that Dr. Brandenburg is going to prove a real asset to Holt and vicinity.

Sudden Death of John Engstrom

John Engstrom died very suddenly about 9:50 Monday forenoon. He was apparently in his usual health when he arose in the morning. After doing the chores he remarked to his wife that he nearly fainted while doing the milking and she told him he better lie down awhile and she would separate the milk, but he thot he could do it himself. He started the separator, but when partly thru had to give up and had scarcely lain down when he gave a couple of gasps and passed away. Dr. Brandenburg was immediately called and pronounced death due to heart disease.

The deceased was born in Wamland, Sweden on April 16th. 1869. He came to America in 1888 and took a homestead in Holt township in 1896 and had made his home there since then. In 1901 he was united in marriage with Miss Mathilda Skoglund. Three sons, Elmer, Sidney, and Hughie, were born to this union who with the bereaved wife and mother, the aged parents, one sister, Mrs. Chas. Mclean and one sister in Sweden, remain to mourn his sudden death.

Funeral services were held at the home Wednesday noon and at the Mission church in Holt in the afternoon, Rev. Myhrer officiating, and the interment was made in the Holt cemetery.

The News extends deepest sympathy to the heartbroken family and their friends.

Professor Pepp

This play is genuinely funny throughout, in fact it is hard for the cast to get down to business. There are sixteen people in this play.

Much new scenery has been built for it and many beautiful effects are produced.

Mr. Haun, as Prof. Pepp, a nervous wreck, is a scream, Adolph Eckman, the chief comedian, as C. B. Buttonbuster, Edith Burgess as Betty Gardener, the professor's ward, Lucille Beardsley as Petunia Muggins, the hired girl, William Loken as Howard Green, a suitor for the hand of Betty, Ruth Hanson as Aunt Minerva Boulder, who thinks 99 men out of every 100 are villians, the other one aint got good sense, and also others characters.

The scene of the play is at Prof. Pepp's residence on the college campus In act I Prof. Pepp returns from Russia, and C. B. Buttonbuster, age 48 comes to college.

In Act II Buttonbuster is hazed, Prof. Pepp is surrounded by Nihilists, Bronto & Bumski.

Act III a garden party by moonlight. Celebrating the football victory. Buttonbuster the football hero, the serenade, Aunt Minerva on the warpath, a double wedding.

Dont miss this play, the climax of all plays by the Newfolden Dramatic Club, 2 1-2 hours of fun.

Save your laughs for May 16th.

Corn and Dairy Calf Projects

We want any boy or girl from 10 to 20 years of age to take part in our Corn and Dairy Calf project. Many have already given their names to become members and we want many more so that the project may be worked successfully.

The Corn Project requires the raising of 1 or 5 acres of corn. We suggest a one acre project this year. Large cash prizes are offered on this project and it will be well worth the effort to join this project.

The Dairy Calf Project requires that each member must own a grade or purebred heifer of a dairy breed and feed and care for it during the period of the contest. The winners of the county will get a free trip to the State Fair in the fall. Large Cash prizes are also offered in the project.

The Officers of this bank will be glad to co-operate in this work and push it to a successful conclusion. Send your boys and girls in so that we can get their names. Give your boys and girls a chance to prove their worth on the farm.

With a cry, Jack Warhope caught up the unconscious girl in his arms, to discover that she must have been in the river, for her garments were completely saturated and her hair hung about her shoulders, sodden and dripping.

He was wrapping his hunting blouse about her when, with a startled exclamation, he jerked away his hand and held it up between his face and the sky—it was smudged with blood. He bent over the girl—blood was streaming from her right shoulder and running down her side. That last bullet from the edge of the yard—it had found the core of a tragic target.

Picking her up in his arms, he ran around to the kitchen, dashed the door open and laid her on the sofa in the sitting room.

He had wrapped her in blankets snatched from the parlor bedroom, tore up a sheet for bandages and was doing his best to stop the blood, when there came the sound of a man running across the yard, and the next moment Uncle Nick, doubtless alarmed by that last shot—coming as it did upon the heels of the housekeeper's story—was calling and pounding at the sitting room door. Jack threw it open.

"Texie's hurt!" he cried. "Quick—Doctor Arnold—and Aunt Liza and Mrs. Curry."

Without a question the old man hurried away.

The woodsman had brought the candle out of the room where the dead robber lay, closed the door and was doing his best to stop the blood and restore the girl to consciousness, when the doctor ran in.

A hurried word or two and he was at the hurt shoulder. The bullet—it was his first care. With quick skill he hunted it; fortunately located it almost immediately. It had just missed the lung, ranged upward and lodged barely beneath the skin at the top of the shoulder. He made a small incision and probed it out.

He had washed the wound and had it nearly dressed when Aunt Eliza came running in, followed an instant later by Mrs. Curry, flurried and panting. Changing Texie's sodden garments for dry ones, while the woodsman built a fire in the kitchen stove, they laid her between warm blankets in the parlor bedroom.

Picking up the candle, the woodsman crossed the floor, threw open the door of the room where the dead robber lay and motioned for the two men.

Even the doctor started, aghast at the gruesome, huddled form sprawled there among the littered, blood-spattered money. Uncle Nick's muttered cry brought the two women running from the sick room, to gaze with the others—awed to silence by the tragedy that had again visited the quiet cottage.

The woodsman well knew that questions would be flashing through each mind—had been since the discovery of Texie's hurt—knew that each looked to him for the answer. A low moan came from the parlor bedroom. That last treacherous shot—he knew that the man with the red lock could never come back. It had been a mistake to shield him; a blunder to trust him—a blunder that was being paid for at a fearful cost.

The doctor was the first to break the silence.

"What does this mean?"—the question was half a demand.

"It means—Caleb Hopkins," was the hard, incisive answer.

The doctor started; the two women caught their breath; Uncle Nick swore, felt ashamed of it, looked foolish.

"This dead man"—the woodsman dropped a hand toward the huddled form—"is Black Bogus." The two women looked at each other; shrank back. The doctor's eyes lifted; he drew a step nearer and gazed hard at the body. "Him and Hopkins and"—Loge Belden, the man was about to say, but thought of the mountain girl, and he didn't; besides, Belden had not shown himself at the robbery—"they're both outlaws and counterfeiters. Hopkins would take good money out of the safe and put counterfeit bills in place of it.

"It was him that killed Pap Simon—that is, Pap Simon run out on 'im that night while he was changin' the counterf'it f'r good money, and in the scuffle died of heart disease. That shet off their game, of course, so they planned t' make a clean sweep t'night and go.

"Hopkins—went t' town and writ back a letter t' Texie, makin' out it was from—Ken. The letter said he was sick in town and wanted 'er t' come to 'im. So she went, leavin' a note with Mis' Curry f'r me. The minute I got the note I knowed it was—Hopkins. I'd be'n suspicious of 'im and had be'n watchin' 'im, so I rode after 'er as quick as I could—clean t' the city, t' the place where the letter said Ken was sick; found I was off the trail; rode back as fast as Graylock could bring me t' try and pick it up.

"I found where Hopkins had headed Texie off up the road a ways and got 'er on that house-boat Uncle Nick and the rest of us saw hid there at the head of Mud haul the day we went seinin'.

"But I found where he'd hid it at Alpine island, and watched 'im sneak back to the woods—t' wait f'r dark, as I 'lowed. As soon as he was out o' sight, I took 'is skiff, crossed to the island, got on the house-boat without lettin' Texie know I was there and found out she was safe.

"Then, without lettin' 'er know it was me, I moved the house-boat and hid it in a new place; left her locked in—b'cause I thought it would be the safest place she could be jist then—and hurried here t' watch the house, fully b'lievin' they intended t' rob the safe t'night.

"About midnight they come. I—killed Black Bogus and hurt Hopkins, but he—got away. Texie must 'a' broke out o' the house-boat somehow and swum ashore. I didn't know it, but she was jist comin' into the yard when I jumped out o' the winder after Hopkins, and that last shot he fired at me hit her."

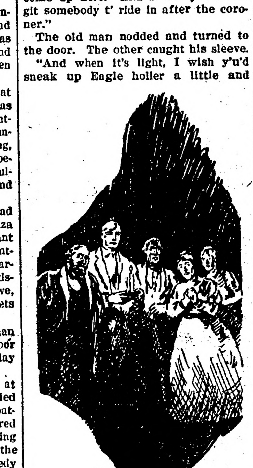
It was a tremendous recital, brief; terse; not quite true; yet anything but false; by far the longest speech he had ever made in his life, even with so much left out. He saw questions still in the eyes fixed upon him. A moan came from the parlor bedroom—and every other consideration gave way to the sufferer.

Alone with Uncle Nick, the woodsman securely fastened the window that had been pried open, closed the door on the gruesome scene and went to the kitchen. Curious faces were beginning to gather in the yard. He turned to the old man.

"Uncle Nick,"—his voice showed the strain he was under—"send them away. Tell 'em as little as possible, but for—her sake, keep 'em away—Jerry Brown above all, if he happens t' wake up and take it into 'is head t' come up here. And I 'low y'u better git somebody t' ride in after the coroner."

The old man nodded and turned to the door. The other caught his sleeve.

"And when it's light, I wish y'u'd sneak up Eagle holler a little and kinda throw an eye out f'r Loge Belden."



"It Means Caleb Hopkins," Was the Hard, Incisive Answer.

The brows of the old hunter lifted.

"I wondered why y'u left him out in—there." He jerked his head toward the room they had just left.

The next moment, with a step that the years seemed powerless to totter or stiffen, he had glided through the kitchen door and out among the curious faces in the yard.

CHAPTER XIX

The Sprawled Figure on the Broken Floor.

The sleepless night wore itself out; morning came to the cottage; and Texie still lived.

On the heels of the dawn Uncle Nick poked his head in at the kitchen door and motioned with his finger. The woodsman lifted his face from his hands, rose and went out.

Without a word the old man turned and, with another very positive motion of his hand, led the way across the corner of the yard, into the little park, out through the fallow pasture lot and to the Eagle Hollow road.

Well within the dim gray jaws of the hollow he paused.

"When I p'inted m' nose up the crick this mornin', as you said, I noticed the door o' that ol' cabin whar Hen Spencer raised the devil that night wus part way open. I knowed it hadn't be'n open f'r years, so I snuck up and peeked in. Come on."

With the long, lanky, half running stride that he had probably copied from the Indians, the old ranger and scout, closely followed by the young man, trotted away up the gulch, climbed the fence in front of the cabin of the dead woodchopper, ran up through the dew-wet weeds to the half-opened door, pushed it wider and entered.

There on the dusty floor boards, partly twisted on his side, his face staring up, one arm crumpled under him, with a dirk knife buried to the hilt in his breast, sprawled the man that called himself Caleb Hopkins—dead.

The woodsman stooped over the body; looked up curiously at his aged companion.

"Do y'u know 'im?"

"It's Hopkins."

"Look close."

The old man glanced at his companion, caught the odd expression in his eyes, stooped over the sprawled figure and bent his eyes intently upon the dead face, slowly shook his head.

"Course, I don't 'low 'is name's Hopkins, n' more'n mine is," he muttered, "but it's the best I can do."

The woodsman stooped; raked the mass of hair down; brought the red lock into view; spread his hand over the lower part of the face to hide the beard.

"By the lord—Ken Colin."

Jack took his hand away from over the beard; scraped the hair carefully back into place.

"They say that red lock comes down from ol' Red Colin, a sea pirate hundreds of years ago, that it shows up every three 'r four generations, alw'ys bringin' along with it a drop 'r two of bad blood. It shore played the devil with Ken."

"Didn't it!" was Uncle Nick's thoughtful comment—"robbed and murdered 'is ol' man, an' then preached 'is funeral—Lord!"

A short silence fell.

"I could 'a' killed 'im there at the safe," the woodsman mused, half to himself, "but I—didn't. I only shot away 'is gun and fought 'im fair. When he was down, with 'is hair all mussed up and the red lock worked out in sight, that was the first time I knowed 'im. After that I tried t'—save 'im and let 'im git away, not knowin' he had another pistol hid on 'im. When he thought 'e had me off guard, he turned around quick and shot; missed me—and hit—her."

He stood a long time silent, his head half bent aside, his thoughts doubtless back where a hapless sufferer lay moaning; turned at last; gazed at the knife, buried to a gruesome depth in the blood-mussed shirt-front of the fallen man; glanced up at his old friend and found the deep-set eyes studying him in thoughtful retrospection.

"Uncle Nick, what sort of a lock have y'u got on y'ur jaw?"

"Tight as a clam shell, if you say so," was the ready answer.

"I'm askin' y'u t' lock it"—his words were serious and slow. "It ain't no use t' worry—her"—he jerked his head down the gulch—"by lettin' 'er find out it was—him—"

He gazed down at the sprawled body.

"I'm askin' you t' 'tend t' layin' 'im out and buryin' 'im; and be p'inted p'tic'lar t' keep 'is hair combed so's the red lock don't show. Nobody would know 'im only by that. The way he had 'imself cobbled up—them clothes and spec's and whiskers, and the way 'e talked, and 'is face puckered up the way 'e kep' it—he didn't look a bit more like Ken Colin than you do. Stay here, and I'll send Al up with Doctor Arnold's stretcher t' he'p y' carry 'im in."

He stooped to straighten the dead man and—a subconscious act of compassion, perhaps—to get the cramped arm out from under him. As he moved the arm, the frock coat fell open and a piece of soiled white paper stuck in a pocket of the vest caught his eye.

He drew it forth, glanced over the dozen or so scrawled words and passed the paper to Uncle Nick. The old man, muttering something about not having his glasses along, passed it back and the woodsman read aloud:

"This man aint no preacher. Hes Slim Finger Doolin. Hes the slickest forger and counterfitter that ever lived and devilish light fingered with a six gun. He ruined my sister. That's why hes dead. He aint no human. Hes got the guts of a snake and the devils blood. Thats why I knifed im stid uv shootin im white. It wont be no use follerin me cause yu wont ketch me.

"LOGE BELDEN."

A long silence followed the reading of the note. The woodsman was the first to break it.

"I ain't aimin' t' follow 'im," he said, while a spark of flint narrowed his eyes—"a man that'll back his sister like—that."

"I 'low he's about as black as the devil makes 'em," was the old hunter's thoughtful comment, as he slowly reached for his pipe, "but we'll haf t' consait 'im one white feather."

He kicked Black Bogus' box to the open door, stood it on end, sat down and scraped his match on the door-jamb.

With a final word of caution to keep secret the identity of the dead man, the woodsman hurried away.

At the inquest an hour or so later Jack merely repeated the statement he had made the night before. Of Loge Belden and his sister—knowing at last her pitiful secret, he let fall no word. The house-boat, when he went to its hiding-place days later, had disappeared. They had probably gone with it. They were never followed.

As to the True Black Fox.

The true black fox is black all over with the exception of the tip of the tail which is white, but I will say that these animals are very rare indeed, says a writer in the Sportsman's Digest. The silver, or silver gray, is practically the same color save that the back and shoulders are shot with more or less gray hairs; the less light hairs there are the more valuable the pelt. Foxes that have a very small amount of these gray hairs are classed as black. The cross fox is a mixture of the dark fox and the ordinary red one, rusty-colored patches being visible at different points, especially on the shoulders and rump. As in the case of the silver, the more black on the cross fox the greater his value.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Tracy—D. H. Evans has been elected president of the Citizens State bank here, succeeding the late S. P. Hicks, who was accidentally killed in Chicago a few days ago.

Fergus Falls—The Ninth District Bankers' association will hold its annual convention here May 15. The officers of the association were in Fergus Falls making arrangements.

Waconia—At a special election here, Waconia voted on a waterworks and sewer bond issue, both being carried by substantial majorities. It is estimated the total cost will be about $50,000.

Hibbing — Although plans may be somewhat curtailed because of the drop in iron ore prices, it is rumored that the Oliver Iron Mining company is going ahead with its plans for the new ore crushing plant to be erected in the vicinity of the Morton road.

Faribault—A porker tipping the scales at 1,100 pounds, was shipped from Faribault by John Mullen, of the Faribault Shipping Association. The hog, which is the largest ever shipped from Faribault, was raised by A. B. Kinney, of Walcott township.

Marshall — Marshall's radio broadcasting station owned by J. C. Miller, has undergone its first test. Word from Spokane, Wash., brought the information that the program was clearly heard in that city. A station call will soon be assigned.

Two Harbors—The 1924 iron ore shipping season on the Duluth and Iron Range railroad was officially opened here with the arrival of the first ore boat of the season, the steamer Mullen, which was loaded with St. James ore.

Lamberton — Leonard Redding, Otto Schmid and L. J. Wilt, former officers of the State bank of Lamberton, were indicted by the grand jury on a first degree grand larceny charge. The bank has failed twice within the last two and a half years.

Little Falls—Fire did considerable damage to the Herald Printing company's plant. The fire started in the basement, probably from the metal pot. The presses, machinery and paper were damaged by smoke and water.

Currie—Huge snapping turtles have appeared in such large numbers on the shores of Lake Shetek that Oscar Beal of Valhalla and others are finding it profitable to capture them and ship them alive to eastern cities, where there is a ready market for them.

Albert Lea — The city council has hired two local bands for a series of concerts to be given here during the summer. The two bands, one a junior organization of high school students and the other the local Elks' band, will provide semi-weekly concert programs on evenings during the summer.

Austin—A strip of land lying between the Shaw Memorial gymnasium for boys, and the Horace Austin State park has been presented to the city for a dual purpose by N. F. Banfield, Sr., prominent local resident. The property will be used both as a public park and a boys' playground.

Albert Lea — A regional conference of child welfare boards of Waseca, Faribault, Steele and Freeborn counties will be held at the First Methodist church here, May 9. Judge E. F. Waite, Minneapolis, and Mrs. Robert Gilman, director of the Women's Co-operative alliance, will speak.

Balaton—A business merger of much interest in this section occurred when the First National bank and First State bank were consolidated. The state institution has taken over the business of the national bank and the consolidated bank will be known as the First State Bank of Balaton.

Hibbing—Reports having gone out that great quantities of iron ore are to be shipped and that the ranges are again rejoicing in abundant prosperity with the result that there has been a rush of unemployed to the range. Those who do not want to work with pick and shovel should keep away. Engineers, office help and other skilled labor the mining companies will draw largely from their own organizations or from former employees. The openings for this class of employment are few.

Faribault—In line with the policy of the Faribault Chamber of Commerce to attractively present the lake resources of this community to the public, the tourist committee of the chamber has arranged for a window display at the office of the Ten Thousand Lakes association in St. Paul the last two weeks in May.

Mankato—The funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Kohler of this city, marked the close of two lives that had been something out of the ordinary. They lived happily together for 70 years, and died on the same day.

Minneapolis — A recommendation that the receivership of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad be continued until Jan. 1, 1927, was received by Minneapolis bondholders from the New York committee representing the bondholders' interests.

Eveleth—Through the courtesy of the Oliver Iron Mining company, the city of Eveleth is paying $90,000 in old bills. Councilman Owens stated that the Oliver company advanced $90,000 on their taxes in order to help the present council relieve the situation existing among merchants and others who are creditors of the city.

Wadena—Edward Hines of Hubbard county, superintendent of Itasca state park and ofrest, and former member of the Minnesota legislature, died in a local hospital, at the age of 65.

Pine City—K. M. Bolum of Long Lake was elected President of the Tenth District Bankers association in convention here.

Ada—Crookston was selected as the meeting place in 1925 at the closing session of the annual convention of the 14th district Women's Christian Temperance union here.

St. James—Watonwan county will send from $1,500 to $2,000 to aid the suffering children of Germany, as a result of the relief drive in progress here, according to Rev. E. P. Birkholz, county chairman.

Redwood Falls—A delegation of more than 50 Knights of Pythias from Minneapolis is expected to be in Redwood Falls, Monday, May 12, to exemplify the degrees of the order to a class of new members.

Madelia—Scores of friends and neighbors of Mrs. Rose Davis recently joined her in celebrating her 105th birthday Mrs. Davis, who is believed to be the oldest woman in Minnesota, enjoys reading newspapers and magazines.

St. Charles—Club women took possession of the high school here, as they gathered in the auditorium from all parts of the first district, to conduct the 20th annual convention of the First District Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs.

Mountain Lake—A six ton transformer at the substation of the Northern States Power company here burned out and exploded with a loud report that was heard for many miles. The flare of blue flame gave many the impression that a fire was raging in the village.

Montevideo—Lake Lac qui Parle, which for several years has been gradually drying up, again has water at its normal stage and can again take its place along with Minnesota's many popular lakes. A new concrete dam has been completed at the lower end of the lake which was the means of raising the water.

Glenwood—The business men of Glenwood have offered to raise a fund of $8,000 to assist in the building and equipment of a creamery. The money will be loaned to the new creamery for a period of five years, without interest. Dairy farmers are now being signed up to deliver cream to the new creamery.

Winona—One of the first steps in the $100,000 program of the board of municipal works for improvements of Winona's waterworks system was taken when the board awarded the contract for sinking a fifth artesian well which, when completed, is expected to bring the total daily supply of artesian water to 5,000,000 gallons.

Fergus Falls—The steady decline in wheat acreage in this county is illustrated in a statement made here by C. R. Wright, who is the largest farmer in Otter Tail county. Mr. Wright farms 6,400 acres. In 1910 half of this was in wheat. He has been steadily cutting down the wheat acreage and this year has only 340 in wheat, 600 in oats and the balance in feed crops.

St. Paul—R. J. "Cy" Thompson, who embezzled $2,000,000 from the Hormel Packing company, Austin, Minn., has been turned down again by state parole board. He was sentenced to prison July, 1921. The parole board which spent the last two days interviewing applicants for clemency announced that five of the 137 applicants had been given their conditional freedom, while Thompson was one of the 132 rejected

Fairmont—After being actively engaged in business in this city for 60 years, Albert L. Ward, banker and former state senator, was at his office on the day of the 60th anniversary at 7 a. m., his usual hour for starting work. He is the oldest resident of Fairmont, being in his 83d year. When Mr. Ward drove up to the present site of Fairmont, April 28, 1864, an old fort was the principal building, and he came by oxen team.

Willmar—A slab of stone which is believed to be the largest ever taken from a quarry in this section of the country has just been cut from the quarry near Cold Springs. The slab is to be used in the construction of a new bank building in California. The stone measures 26 feet in length and its other dimensions are 3½ by 4 feet, and it weighs 50,000 pounds.

Minneapolis—Minnesota mills produced one-fifth of the total output of wheat flour for the entire United States during 1923, the Federal Trade commission said in a report of the wheat flour milling industry submitted in response to a Senate resolution offered by Senator Norris of Nebraska. Minneapolis stood first in flour production with Buffalo and Kansas City following in the order named. The mills of Minnesota and Kansas produced three-eighths of the entire output of 1921 and one-half of it was manufactured by mills in Minnesota, Kansas, New York and Missouri.

Moose Lake—The first serious brush fire of the season, after sweeping over a territory of practically 150 acres, and endangering a number of summer homes in the region south of here, was extinguished by rangers.

Bemidji—Dedication of the new Masonic temple, on the shore of Lake Bemidji, took place here with grand lodge officers in attendance.

Fairmont—Martin county has sold $115,000 in road bonds, the money to be used in completing the Fairmont-Sherburn road and a three mile stretch of road on the Truman highway.

"Queen of Fruits" May Find New Throne Here

The mangosteen, reputed "queen of fruits," and long thought to be impossible of cultivation outside the Asiatic tropics, is to be thoroughly tested in tropical America, according to plans of the United States Department of Agriculture. Seeds from this fruit, which are among the most difficult in the world to transport long distances, have after years of failure finally been successfully brought to Washington. Plants grown from these seeds will be kept in the greenhouses there for two years, when they will be ready for the testing.

The mangosteen is a tree which grows about twenty feet high and produces a delicate fruit of a reddish brown color about the size of an apple.

NO TROUBLE WHEN BABY CAME

Mrs. Crossan Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Dakan Also Tells What This Medicine Does

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I decided to try it as I had had such a hard time with my first child. I took nine bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I never felt better in my life than the day my baby girl was born. I will be glad to tell what it will do, to any woman who will let me know her address."—Mrs. ROSA DAKAN, 2227 S. 11th St., St. Joseph, Missouri.

Back To Normal Health

New Orleans, Louisiana.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while I was carrying my child and I must praise it highly because I never suffered one day during that time and could do all my housework and had a very easy confinement. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound because I have a weakness due to working around the house too soon after my baby was born. But thanks again to the Vegetable Compound I am getting back to normal health once more. I advise any woman to take it."—Mrs. A. MEYN, JR., 2019 Touro St., New Orleans, Louisiana.

Not A Bit of Trouble

Wilmington, Delaware.—"I was nervous and weak and not at all regular. I worked in a factory at the time and could not work very much. I was sick over a year, then a friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I started to pick up as soon as I began taking it. Then I took it again before my first baby was born and I never had a bit of trouble. I recommend it highly." —Mrs. JANE CROSSAN, 612 Pine St., Wilmington, Delaware.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped many other women just as it has helped Mrs. Dakan, Mrs. Meyn and Mrs. Crossan.

Consider the statements of these women. They give you the benefit of their actual experience with the Vegetable Compound.

A nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of the Vegetable Compound reports that 98 out of every 100 have been benefited by its use.

This is a remarkable record and proves the dependability of the medicine for the relief of the troubles women often have.

For weak and run-down conditions so common after child-birth it is well adapted. It strengthens and tones up the system and restores normal health.

The Vegetable Compound contains no harmful drugs or narcotics and can be taken in safety by the nursing mother. For sale by druggists everywhere.

How It Went

"Well, sir," said Tud Differdang of Turkey Trot, "when I was over at Slippery Slap tuther day I listened to a queer trial."

"Did, eh?"

"Eh-yah! They had a couple of brothers-in-law up for fighting. 'Pears like, in the course of the rucus Jim Waller had pulled out Tobe Snatch's whiskers by the roots. Well, arter the jury studied the case for quite a spell they took and turned Jim loose and fined Tobe fifteen cents, the price of a shave."—Kansas City Star.

Broke the Rules

A small girl, with her mother, was watching two men at work in the hall of a public building. They were kneeling in the middle of the flooring repairing the mosaic with pieces of colored stone, carefully fitting them together in a gigantic jigsaw puzzle.

After two or three minutes one of the men lifted a small piece of stone that was not quite the right size, placed it on a small block and began to chip the edge. The child was astonished at such a breach of the rules of the game.

"Oh, mummy, look," she cried. "He's cheating."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Simple Explanation

"One summer I spent my vacation on a farm with two old maids," observed a story teller the other night. "The corn season had just opened and we had corn every day. I observed that when Mary ate corn Lizzy didn't; when Lizzy did, Mary didn't. I couldn't figure it out; so one day I asked: 'Mary, how does it happen when you eat corn Liz doesn't, and when Liz does you don't?'

COURT UPHOLDS BUREAU RULES

Right of Compensation Bureau To Classify Jobs, Fix Rates and Premuims Sustained

Bismarck, N. D.—The state supreme court, in a decision handed down on Monday in the case of the state against the Hughes Electric company, involving workmen's compensation bureau premiums, lays down binding precedents to govern the further action of courts in decisions affecting that bureau. The high court holds with the workmen's compensation bureau.

The decision holds that the legislature may refrain from classifying employments and determining hazards, leaving that to the bureau, may refrain from fixing rates and premiums, delegating that to an administrative board, says that the original rates are not to be held unreasonable even though they may have been higher than necessary, and says that an employer may not escape payment of premiums because a former rating left a surplus in that classification.

The decision, affirming District Judge Coffey, upholds the wide powers given the compensation bureau and upholds its methods.

The court holds that "a clerical error by the workmen's compensation bureau in its premium notice and its paying order whereby an employer was charged at a higher rate on employés in its steam heating industry than the bureau's published or manual rate does not invalidate such notice and order, nor does it relieve such employer from paying the manual or fixed rate for that industry."

It further declares that "in enacting a workmen's compensation law the legislature may refrain from classifying employments and determining hazards to workmen engaged therein, and from fixing rates and premiums for insurance, leaving such detail to an administrative board under proper rules and regulations; in performing its duties such administrative agency must follow the rule and direction of the legislature to give validity to its acts."

WORK OUT PLAN FOR LOANS

Stutsman Bankers Advocate One County Loan Body.

Jamestown, N. D.—Conclusion that applications for livestock purchase loans, to be obtained through the Agricultural Credit corporation, can best be handled by one central committee for the whole county working with the co-operation of the bankers in the locality from which the applications come, was reached at a meeting here of about 50 bankers of Stutsman county and some from neighboring counties.

R. S. Goodhue, Stutsman county agent, R. R. Wolfer of the Farmers and Merchants National bank of Jamestown, and others took the position that the most benefit is to be obtained through loans for buying purebred sires, the placing of young heifers, purchase of small flocks of ewes, and buying as much as possible within the county and state

Speakers urged that the purchase of high class cows or the sudden plunging into investments in purbred stock should not be encouraged but that rather the high class stock should be "grown into," by the introduction of purebred sires, in both cattle and hogs, and sticking to the particular strain that the individual farmers best "takes to."

MONARCHISTS ARE BEATEN

New Coalation Government in Favor of Dawes Payment Plan.

Berlin.—The promised "big coalition," of the moderates, comprising the Socialist, Clerical Democratic and Peoples' parties, is regarded as assured on the basis of partial returns from Saturday's parliamentary election.

The people have apparently placed their seal of approval on the Dawes reparations report, as the leaders of the moderates, including Foreign Minister Stresemann, based their campaign on the adoption and execution of the report as a sure cure for the country's ailments.

The Nationalists and Communists made some gains but the vote polled by General Ludendorff's ultramonarchists, did not come up to expectations and the result indicates decisive failure of the reactionary and radical campaigns.

Among the notables elected are Count Van Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States, General Ludendorff, head of the extreme Nationalists, Chancellor Marx, former Chancellor Wirth, the young Prince Von Bismarck, grandson of the iron chancellor, and Admiral Von Tirpitz, the minister of the navy during the World war.

BAKER, SORLIE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Blow To Head Kills League Candidate When Car Leaves Road Near Steele

Steele, N. D.—State Senator B. F. Baker of Renville county, Nonpartisan league candidate for governor in 1922 and the league candidate for commissioner of agriculture and labor this year, was killed about 3:30 p. m. Saturday by blows to his head when the automobile in which he was riding overturned on a highway about 14 miles north of Steele, Kidder county.

A. G. Sorlie of Grand Forks, league candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, sustained a fractured collar bone and concussion of the brain from which he had not rallied sufficiently to tell of the accident.

Roy Frazier, clerk of court of Dunn county and chairman of the state central committee, sustained wounds to the head and concussion of the brain, and he, too, remained in a state of semi-consciousness, unable to relate anything of what caused the turning over of the car, owned and driven by himself.

Messrs. Sorlie and Frazier are in the Grand Pacific hotel in Steele, where Dr. F. B. Lodge of Steele says they seemed to be resting well. He was confident Mr. Sorlie's injuries are such that he will suffer no serious effects, but the condition of Mr. Frazier is regarded as more doubtful as he seems to have suffered much more severe injuries to the head than did Mr. Sorlie.

There being no eye witnesses, and with the surviving members of the party unable to tell of the affair, it is impossible to indicate just what happened. The machine, a Dodge touring car, had been noticed as traveling at a high rate of speed when it passed a farm about two miles from the scene of the accident.

Apparently the automobile, carrying the three men bound from Bismarck to Carrington where they expected to attend a political meeting Saturday night, rolled completely over twice before it came to a stop, the three occupants being thrown out and all of them suffering blows to their heads.

COOLIDGE VETOES PENSION

Veterans Deserve It, But Taxpayers Overburdened, He Says.

Washington.—Exercising the veto power for the first time, President Coolidge returned to the senate Saturday without his approval the Bursum-Fuller omnibus pension bill.

The president in doing so informed the senate that he objected primarily to the bill because it would entail an "unwarranted expenditure of the money of the taxpayers" at a time when "the burden on the taxpayers must not be increased, it must be decreased."

"The desire to do justice to pensioners, however great their merit, must be attended by some solicitude to do justice to taxpayers," the executive said in his message. "The advantage of a class cannot be greater than the welfare of the nation."

The president's message reached the senate soon after it convened, but was not taken up until late in the day. After it had been read, Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico, who, with Representative Fuller, Republican, Illinois, is author of the bill, moved that the matter be laid on the table to be taken up Tuesday.

CLAIM 300 VOTES FOR M'ADOO

Claim Contest With Governor Smith Is Against Boss Control.

Chicago.—Out of the 122 delegates selected in Massachusetts, Ohio, Washington, and North Carolina, 68, or more than one half, are for William G. McAdoo for the Democratic presidential nomination, David Ladd Rockwell, national McAdoo manager, said in a statement Saturday. The total delegates now under the McAdoo banner are more than 300, he said, adding that in every state but one, the McAdoo forces "won substantial victories."

"As only 16 states have so far selected delegates," the statement said, "McAdoo's position in preeminent." Referring to the statements of some newspapers that the contest in the national convention will be between McAdoo and Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, the statement said such a contest "is notice to the great rank and file of the Democratic party that the contest now is just what we have all along claimed—between the progressive forces in the Democratic party behind the candidacy of McAdoo, and the reactionary forces of the Democratic party under the control of the bosses."

Washington.—Sale of a quantity of American war materials to the value of $100,000 to the government of Cuba, which is confronted with a revolutionary uprising, is under negotiation in Washington. His Question

"Well, suzz!" remarked Mrs. Johnson, in the midst of her reading. "I never knowed that before!"

"Never knowed what?" asked Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.

"Why, it says here in the paper, 'Beans and other small objects can be removed from a child's nose by rubbing red pepper on his upper lip.'"

"Hain't he got to poke some beans up his nose first?"—Kansas City Star.

Hans O. Hanson has rented John O. Johnson's house and expects to move there soon.

Arnold Hoel was here from Hibbing Saturday to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs Olaf Halvorson.

Rev. Ordahl was called to Benson Tuesday by the serious illness of his brother who is suffering from an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Eide's baby was sick with tonsilitis and Dr. Brandenburg was called to see the little one, who is now nicely recovering.

Elmer Engstrom who is working in Minneapolis and Hughie of Duluth were called home the first of the week by the sudden death of their father.

The farmers creamery have partitioned off the east side of their storeroom which makes them a nice office and suitable for their board meetings. Iver Omoth did the carpenter work.

The school board has engaged Mrs. Geo. J. Smith to teach in our schools next year for $115.00 per month, the same salary she is now receiving. We think the board are fortunate in being able to secure her services for another year.

Since last week Thursday Rev. Myhrer has conducted five funerals as follows: On Thursday a little son of Frits Ledin of Strandquist, on Saturday, Mrs. Olaf Halvorson, on Monday forenoon, David Trusale aged 96, in the afternoon Miss Louise Bjorsness both of Newfolden and on Wednesday, John Engstrom in Holt.

Dr. C. E. Snyder, Dentist of Middle River will be in Holt every Friday from 9 A. M. to 5.00 P. M.

Red Lake Falls still seems to favor re-routing the J. H, via the way of Warren. If Warren ever gets it the former will loose out to Crookston.

R. L. Adams planted four acres of onions for Dr. Brandenburg one day last week. He used a wheel planter and worked over time, but it was a big days work just the same.

Last week the Thief River Falls papers apoligized for the action taken by their commercial club regarding the J. H., and promised they would now favor the east route, They started the row and now it is up to them to make good.

Nels Lysne is the fortunate possessor of a cow that gives milk so rich that it is almost cream. He had a sample at the creamery last week which tested 8.3, and she is just a common cow, not pure bred. Who can beat that test?

Mr. and Mrs. M. Halvorson have moved onto their son Olaf's place so that his mother could more conveniently care for his three little motherless children, and Oscar Bottom and family have moved onto the M. Halvorson farm.

The Newfolden Dramatic Club is very pleased to announce its third and last play, "Professor Pepp," to be given Friday night May 16th at the Community Hall at Holt, Don't miss it.

The play "Professor Pepp" takes in sixteen characters, a larger cast than in either the other two plays, previously presented by the same Dramatic Club of Newfolden. Dont fail to see it.

If you saw "Safty First" and "Am I intruding" and liked them, you certainly will like "Professor Pepp" which is a whirlwind of fun from start to finish. Come and have a good laugh.

The boys and girls club work will be in charge of Robert J. Lund who has had previous experience in club work in southern Minnesota. It is hoped that a corn and dairy calf project can be started this year. Each project is separate in itself so that the boy or girl may join either project. The parents are strongly urged to see that their boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 20 years are given a chance to participate in this club work. It has proven to be a wonderful work for boys and girls and something they can do in connection with their regular farm work. Help the boys and girls feel at home on the farm and get them interested in the different farm projects. This will also create an interest for the older folks. Corn and Dairying will in the very near future take the lead in production of this community, so lets give it a boost. Futher information can be secured at the bank.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Farmers' Co-Op. Cr'y. Co., Holt, Minn.

Is your DeLaval separator in good running order?

If it isn't, then you may be losing butter-fat and shortening the life of the machine; and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it isn't the fault of the machine but due to the fact that it needs attention, adjustment, cleaning, or the replacement of some part.

Bring in your De Laval Separator to us and we will put it in first-class running order. Bring in the complete machine, and in order to save expense clean out the oil chamber and gears with kerosene or boiling water. You can do this just as well as we can.

VOL. XIV. HOLT, MARSHALL COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY MAY 16, 1924 NO. 2

Where's That Black Nigger?

T R F & Warren Try to Hide Him

Trading the J H for a Court House

A Story of Intrigue and Deception

We know that the villages along the proposed east route of the Jefferson Highway, Holt, Middle River, Strathcona and Karlstad, have many loyal friends in the city of Thief River Falls who have and are still giving their support to the east route, and to these friends we wish to humbly apologize for the appearance of this article.

According to information and not hearsay, coming from the city of Thief River Falls itself, there is another class there of pretended friends, masquerading as sheep in wolfs clothing, secretly working for the west route, but professing to favor the east one, are carrying on a campaign of intrigue and deception.

It is to this class we wish to pay our due respects.

The villages along the line of the Soo and Great Northern are in the natural trade territory of Thief River Falls and we believe have been loyal in their support of that city in the wholesale and retail trades and along professional lines.

We believe Holt has given as good support to that city at their county fairs and other doings as any village in Pennington county.

Why then do they deliberately turn their backs on their neighbors, friends and customers, including Holt, Middle River, Strathcona and Karlstad, on the proposed east route, of the Jefferson Highway when we so badly need their help to get it?

On the proposed east route the fartherest distance between towns is 16 miles, and on the west route 32 miles. For good roads No. 32 has No. 33 skinned to a finish, and it will take more than 4 1-2 miles of grading and graveling to make No. 33 a good road.

Is there a nigger somewhere in a woodpile near the new court house, Thief River Falls expects eastern Marshall county to help them build some day?

Is it possible that Warren has in exchange for the Jefferson Highway, promised to "keep hands off" when Thief River Falls calmly proceeds to annex a portion of eastern Marshall County?

Warren the wily politician, knows full well that eastern Marshall county will never vote to be annexed to Pennington county, with the agitation for tax reduction all along the line. Thus Warren has everything to gain and nothing to loose by such a deal, while exactly the opposite is true of Thief River Falls.

The lame excuses made for the action of the Thief River Falls Commercial Club in this matter makes it look as though they should have a guardian appointed to keep them from being duped.

If the Jefferson is going to prove a liability instead of an asset, as our neighbor to the south tries to make out, why send it to Warren?

Is it possible they have an old grudge to pay off?

The officials of the Jefferson Highway association were here Tuesday to look over the different proposed routes. They were accompanied by a delegation from Karlstad. Thief River Falls was conspicuous by their absence. The latter place will show by their support and influence, regarding the re-routing of the Jefferson, whether they want Holt, Middle River, Strathcona, Karlstad and other northern towns to go elsewhere to do their trading.

After a careful survey of the different highways leading out of Thief River Falls and north, the Jefferson Highway officials finally designated the East Route to include Holt, Newfolden, Strandquist and Karlstad. Due to the bad condition of the road west from Strathcona, the Directors of the J. H. preferred the route as designated. Thief River Falls had their flag raising when they sent their delegation to Warren to buy the tourist trade coming from Winnipeg. It is evident that they dared this in the face of their trading towns to the north. It seems queer that our broad-minded men (?) to the south should deliberately slap us in the face and especially so Karlstad who stands 100 percent with the Association. The Warren Sheaf states in issue of April 23rd: "Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls business men have not boosted for the Jefferson highway north of Thief River because they did not figure the road was well enough maintained and worthy of it, Mr. Farley said at the meeting."

It may not be improper at this time to thank T. R. Falls for showing their colors. The officials of the J. H. are men with vision and can judge for themselves as to the best route for their highway. They did not appear to be in want for any advice from our southern neighbors.

But wait a minute. Something else blossomed out in the investigation of this East Route. Middle River has always been a booster for the J. H. and were unfortunately left off the trail for the present. Why? Due to bad condition of the road west from Strathcona to Karlstad. Not only so, but the Warrenites had so kindly stated that this road was no good and never would be. A delegation coming from outside the state gets a sentiment at our County Seat that we are the backyard of the County. We have always known that Eastern Marshall County has always been asked to take a back seat for Warren—but surely we did not expect strangers to come into our County and tell this old news to us. It appears that this sentiment by our so-called fellow countyites has become so openly that it is high time for Eastern Marshall County to band itself together in a strong protest to our County Dads. We do not have to stand in the side lines and help cheer for our disgrace. Something should be done to show them we are awake.

Eastern Marshall County has a few good friends in Warren, but it also has some very small statured would-be-men who take delight in throwing lemons and rotten eggs this way. If you have any grudge toward Eastern Marshall County, come over and fight it out and not tell the world about it at our backs. We admire men who meet us face to face and willing to let the other man defend himself. We do not blame Warren for trying to get the Jefferson Highway, but we expect them to be business men about it by showing advantages for the route their way instead of giving us Eastern fellows the black eye on our roads. It strikes us as a mighty small stunt to pull.

There is no use "hood-winking" us any longer, all we ask is: "Come off your high horse" and be friends with Eastern Marshall County. We are a part of Marshall County and because Warren is the County Seat, is not saying your on top of the world. When we are in need of better roads we will expect a fair deal. Eastern Marshall County openly condemns any slam from Warren.

Something for the Farmer to Think About

Considerable interest will be found in studying the results in different feeds for your dairy cow. Thru the courtesy of G. W. Taylor, County Agent of Roseau County, we have the following statistics on the number of pounds of the different kinds of hay-feed required to make a pound of butter:

26 lbs Alfalfa makes 1 lb of butter
130 lbs Timothy makes 1 lb butter
118 lbs Wild hay makes 1 lb butter
155 lbs Oats straw makes 1 lb butter

These figures will vary somewhat due to the curing and date of cutting of the hay.

Look these figures over. It takes exactly 4 1-2 times more wild hay to make a pound of butter from your dairy cow than does alfalfa or clover hay. Alfalfa yields you from two to three crops a year, wild hay only one crop and that is usually a slim one. Butter being the largest money crop in Holt, these facts should be of great interest to every man who has a dairy cow on his farm. Tame hay has other good points in favor of your farm, soil and crops which we can not discuss in this short space.

MARRIED TWELVE YEARS BEFORE BABY CAME

Gladly Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska.—"I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the newspapers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine." — Mrs. JOE NOVAK, Box 662, Louisville, Neb.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Romance Is Gone From Land of Turk

Americans who still think of Turkey as a romantic land where men spend their time principally reclining on luxurious cushions while the beautiful women of their harems dance, sing and display their charms, should stay at home and continue reading "The Arabian Nights." A trip to the storied realms of the Near East would blast their pleasant delusions.

According to Maynard Barnes, formerly of St. Paul, now American consul at Angora, Turkey, the vivid harem life which once characterized Turkey has vanished. Mr. Barnes recently visited St. Paul.

In two years in the consular service in Turkey, Mr. Barnes declared, he has found only one real harem. The lord and master of that was ninety years old, and he had four wives—"beautiful houris" they would be called in fiction. All the romance was removed from even this one harem, however, by the fact that the youngest of the "houris" was seventy-five years old.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Is Your Work Hard?

Is your work wearing you out? Are you tortured with throbbing backache—feel tired, weak and worn out? Then look to your kidneys! Many occupations tend to weaken the kidneys. Constant backache, headaches, dizziness and rheumatic pains result. One suffers annoying kidney irregularities; feels nervous, irritable and worn out. Don't wait! American Women Visit Cave Famed in Legend

Recently two American women in search of adventure set out from Athens on a small coasting steamer and headed for Crete. The object of their visit was to visit the cave of the minotaur, famed in the legends of ancient Greece.

Miss Charlotte Lyttle, who writes about her experiences in the Mentor, says that they found the natives invariably hospitable and always ready to give them food and assist them in any way. These two women traveled afoot over the island.

Their baggage was carried by mule packs. In the neighborhood of Gortynos they climbed among the foothills to a cavern dug out of the side of the hill. Here they found the labyrinth where legend claims that a Greek youth named Theseus slew the minotaur; a monster, half man and half bull, who devoured every nine years seven youths and seven maidens sent as hostages from Athens.

Couldn't Let Him Go

The honeymoon had not yet begun to wane when the young bride answered the telephone fairly early one morning. She recognized the voice as that of the PBX girl down at the office, a snippy young blonde person for whom she had no use whatever, being morally certain that she would vamp her husband at the first opportunity.

"Hello! Is this Mr. Smith's residence?"

"Yes."

"Is Mr. Smith there?"

"Yes."

"Let me have him, please."

"Huh! I'll do nothing of the kind! I haven't had him very long myself, and what's more, I have decided that he is to be my permanent husband!"—Indianapolis Star.

It was only a little after the breakfast hour when a young man rang the bell of his best girl's house, and waited, hat in hand, on the doorstep. If the girl's mother was surprised at this early call, she managed to appear gracious about it.

"Good morning," chirped the youth. "Can I see Pansy? She was blooming at the ball last night."

"I'm afraid you can't see her," responded her mother, not unkindly. "Pansy is a trifle wilted this morning."

To Cut Celluloid

Anyone who has tried to cut sheet celluloid knows that it is not as easy as it looks, says Popular Science Monthly. The best way is to make a deep scratch with a sharp scriber or the like, and part the celluloid by bending it sharply along the scratch. This trick is particularly useful when curved or irregular shapes must be cut.

CHAPTER XX

Search of the Languid Eyes.

All through the long and terrible day following that tragic night, the angels of life and death waged their grim struggle in the parlor bedroom, where the hapless sufferer writhed in the delirium that followed the shock of her wound.

Toward evening Aunt Eliza, believing with the others that the end was near, beckoned the woodsman to the bedside.

It fairly staggered him to see the frightful change the hours had wrought. Under an impulse of pity that he could not resist he bent over the bed, caught up her hands and spoke her name. She instantly grew more quiet and turned her face toward his voice.

The doctor was quick to notice this, and at his direction Jack dropped on his knees by the bedside and began talking to her, softly stroking her hands and wrists and face the while; and as he talked she grew calmer.

Hour after hour the man knelt and crooned the story of their playmate days, while the doctor plied his utmost art and the women lavished their care.

Late that night she seemed to quiet away into a light sleep. A smile struggled out upon the doctor's grim features and he went out into the yard for a moment of relaxation. The woodsman laid the girl's hands down upon the covers, rose to his feet, stumbled out to the kitchen and dropped down on a chair by the cook stove.

Barely a minute after, Aunt Liza, sleepless and faithful, tapped him on the shoulder.

"She's frettin' ag'in."

He sprang up and hurried to the sick-room. But before he reached the bedside her tossing had ceased and she lay back against the pillow still and white. He caught up her hands; they were so cold it startled him.

At that moment the doctor came back in. The instant he entered the room the unusual stillness—or the instinct of his profession—must have warned him that something was amiss, for he hurried to the bedside and bent a keen look upon the patient.

"Her han's are like ice," the woodsman faltered.

"She's sinking fast," was the doctor's answer, as he made ready a powerful stimulant. "Rub her hands and wrists and temples—rub toward the heart—and try to call her back with some more of that Black rock and Whispering spring talk. And be quick with those hot cloths, you women. If we can only keep breath in her for the next hour—"

The woodsman, toiling with gray and graven face, was the first to notice the clamminess leaving her hands and a faint tinge of color beginning to drive the chill out of her fingers. The doctor bent low over her, noted the respiration, took her pulse again.

"She's got a chance," he muttered. "Keep on with that talk, Warhope, and rub her wrists and temples—and come on with more hot cloths, the rest of you."

Nearly an hour had gone when the girl's lids fluttered apart and the brilliant eyes strayed open—weak, haggard, but no longer wild and vacant with delirium.

Slowly the eyes traveled over the room, a languid questioning in them; searched the faces about her; dwelt at last upon the face of the woodsman.

"Jack"—it was only a whisper, fluttering out upon the labored breath, but it was the sweetest sound his ears had ever heard—"he didn't kill y'u—"

He dropped on one knee by the bedside, but dared not trust his voice with a word.

"Jack—what—what—?"

"You've be'n sick—bad—and we're all tryin' t' coax y'u back well. When y'u git strong, we'll have a long talk—you and me—but now, won't y'u jist try t' go t' sleep? Won't y'u?"

"Yes," she whispered, like a trusting child—"I'm so—tired—"

One hand stole across the covers and hunted his; the long lashes drooped over the languid eyes and she slipped away to sleep. The others tiptoed from the room.

"What she needs above everything," muttered the doctor, softly closing the door—"sleep—it will do her more good right now than all the medicine in the world."

And there Jack crouched—himself bruised and worn—afraid to move with her hands in his, lest she start awake and so lose one moment of the rest just then precious beyond calculation. Only a man of his superb physical powers could have held the cramped, uncomfortable pose so long.

Several times one of the women, and once the doctor, softly opened the door and peeped in but they as often closed it again and left the man to his silent

By the next day she was so much better that the doctor declared her out of danger—time alone being all that was necessary to bring her well.

In the serene evening the sun peeped under the porch roof for one last look before reluctantly passing on to less interesting scenes beyond the gates of the west; fell in at the open parlor window; crossed the floor and just missed the big old-fashioned sofa, soft and cozy with blankets, where the woodsman had carried the girl in his great arms, the wonderful landscape of lawn and bottoms and winding river spreading before her.

The woodsman himself sat on a low footstool at her side. The room had settled still.

From the kitchen came the low drone of voices where Mrs. Curry and Aunt Liza sat by the cook stove. A tall old clock in a corner of the parlor—taller than the woodsman himself, with a peasant man and maid on the face raking hay—punctuated the silence into a sort of drowsy rhythm.

The girl was so still that he thought she slept. Glancing around at her, he was amazed to see her eyes full of tears.

"W'y—what's the matter—?"

"Nothing—!"

Her lips quivered; she turned her face away and cried silently. He picked up her hand; attempted a comforting word. The sprawled dead figure in the old cabin crossed his mind—the brother in whom she still believed; whose death she still mourned; of whose degradation and deep dishonor she was haply spared from ever knowing—and the attempt failed.

She turned back to him after a time, brushed away the tears and a brave suggestion of the smile that made her eyes so wonderful brightened them.

"Ain't it jist terrible f'r me t' cry like this, when y'u're all s' good to me!"

He hitched the footstool closer to the sofa. It surprised him to feel a queer weakness in his breast and a tightness in his throat when he tried to speak.

"Do y'u think y'u're strong enough t' talk—some?"

"W'y, I could git up—a'most."

A sudden thoughtfulness displaced the smile.

"Do y'u remember that letter y'u give me from Pap Simons las' Sat-urd'y?"

The girl raised her eyes.

"T' be opened the day you're twenty-one—I've wondered and wondered what was in it."

He looked down at the floor; looked up again.

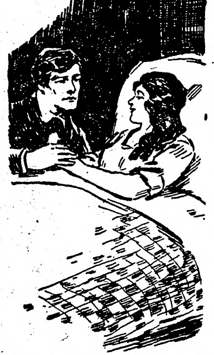
"This is the day."

"No!"

"I'm twenty-one t'day—and"—free, he was about to say, but didn't.

"Is it possible it's only be'n six days sence—"

"Six days," was his slow comment.



It Was the Biggest Word He Had Ever Said in His Life.

"Don't seem like s' much could happen in six days—hardly—"

He fumbled in his blouse; took out the letter in its formidable envelope; held it toward her.

She took it and, glancing over it, handed it back. He tore it open and drew out its contents.

Wide-eyed, they read it through—a title deed in fee simple to the Warhope homestead, together with all stock and betterments and growing crops thereon, duly conveyed and executed to Jack Warhope; and, folded inside the deed, a bank draft in his favor for ten thousand dollars.

The man stared at the girl; the girl stared at the man.

"I'm b'lievin' Pap Simon meant t' do this all along," he mused at last. "I can see it now, as I look back. That's why he was s' good to me. Mebbe"—he hesitated, "that's why he had me—bound—"

"Pore father!"—the girl's eyes strayed away to where the silver contour of the river rimmed the bottoms—"it was his—way."

He let loose the deed, leaving it in her hand. She turned back from the silver-rimmed bottoms and glanced it over again.

"W'y, it was made out only last Friday—he never knowed it, but that was lady-slipper day—and so he made it a —big day—after all—"

Very slowly, with the tightness still at his throat, the woodsman took out his pocketbook and laid a flattened yellow orchid in the girl's palm.

"I found it there at the edge of Mud haul, where you got on the house-boat."

The girl fumbled the flattened blossom in her hand; the color of returning health tingled into her cheeks.

"The one you found that—day," she stammered. She lifted a tiny glance up to him from under her long lashes; let her eyes stray far out across the bottoms toward Alpine island. "Pore—Ken! Hopkins met me up the road and told me he was sick on the boat. I didn't know Hopkins—then."

"I did—and I knowed Brickbat alley. That's why I rode after y'u the minute I got y'ur note. Hopkins was a —bad man, but we've already talked about him, and what b'come of him. All that money he stol'd I—tuck away from 'im at the parsonage the evening of the—funeral, and drove 'im out o' Flatwoods. That's why he went, and all that stuff he told y'u about—Ken was jist lies. I've got all that money hid, and we'll put it back in the safe as soon as you're able t' open it."

The eyes came back from the distant point where Alpine island split the silver rim of the bottoms.

"I know now that what he said was all lies, but I didn't then. As soon as I got on the boat I saw—Ken wasn't there, but Hopkins locked the door and wouldn't let me off. And such a cabin as that house-boat had—tight as a jail. He made all the apologies a man could f'r raisin' false hopes about—Ken, and told me he'd done it all f'r my own good. Then he told me there was two men plannin' to rob the safe that night and he'd brung me on the boat t' git me out o' danger."

She paused; looked at the man; went on.

"He said he was goin' t' git you t' he'p 'im and you'd both watch the house, and after the danger was over you'd come and bring me home. He said one o' the robbers would be Slim Finger Doolin, the most dangerous pistol fighter in the world. I asked 'im how 'e found it all out—not knowin' then that he 'imself was Slim Finger Doolin—but he said he'd rather tell me all about it next day. From that minute I was afear'd of him, though he was as polite and respectful to me as 'e could be, short of lettin' me go."

She felt the eyes of the woodsman upon her. He looked away and she went on.

"From that minute I mistrusted he was one o' the robbers, though I never let on, and as soon as he was gone I tried all I could t' git out. I was afear'd"—she looked down at the blanket; crumpled a corner of it hard in her fingers—"you might chance t' hear 'em, and I knowed if y'u did you'd fight, and I was half wild f'r fear they'd kill y'u. Oh, if I'd only knowed it was you that moved the boat!—Jack why didn't y'u let me out—!"

The man stared at the floor and twisted his great hands till the knuckles turned white.

"G—d!" he groaned—"if I only had! But I thought you'd be safest there. It was the worst mistake I ever made in my life—that and lettin' Hopkins preach Pap Simon's—funeral, but I didn't have no good proof on 'im then."

The girl glanced at his bowed form. The tick of the tall old clock in the corner throbbed loud on the silence; through the open window came the call of crows flying home.

"It was away in the night," the girl went on at last, thoughtful and slow, "b'fore I fin'ly got out by beatin' a hole in the roof with a stove leg, swum ashore and run home as fast as I could. I'd jist got in the yard when I saw you a-standin' there by the winder. Then come that shot and I thought Slim Finger Doolin had—killed y'u. I don't know what happened after—that—"

"After that," the man echoed, his voice low and broken, "we've all be'n tryin' to coax the bravest and most wonderful girl in the world back to life."

"Life!" she murmured, as if the word came new and strange to her after being so fearfully close to death. "Oh, I want so much t' have it all back ag'in—"

"And y'u shall have it back!" the man cried, catching the appeal in her voice. "You've got it now. Every breath brings the woods and hills, the sunshine and flowers, jist that much nearer—w'y, you're as good as well this very minute."

The smile in her eyes came alive again, stole out over her face and brought back a heartening suggestion of the dimples.

By some intangible bridge all unseen of human eyes, the smile found its way across to the man's grave and serious face; kindled it—like the glint of morning upon the front of Black rock.

He picked up her hand; touched the faded orchid in her palm.

"I 'low y'u ain't f'rgot the day we—I—found it—"

He felt the twitch of her fingers.

"I tried t' ask y'u t'—promise me—that day—I'm askin' y'u t'—promise me—now—"

It was the biggest word he had ever said in his life. Much like a man who had committed a crime and awaited his sentence, he raised his head; ventured a glance at the girl.

Something very wonderful had come to her face—like the birth of morning; and her eyes like star trails—a marvelous transfiguration that only one thing in the world can bring.

He slipped from the footstool and knelt down by her side; her arm came up off the blanket and hunted its way across his massive shoulders.

The peasant man and maid on the face of the old clock in the corner smiled, raking hay.

PROFESSIONAL NURSE SAYS TANLAC HAS NO EQUAL

Mrs. J. Clark Says Tanlac Was More Than Match for Her Troubles.

By reason of the fact that she speaks from her long experience as a professional nurse, the statement of Mrs. J. Clark, of 415 Walsworth Ave., Oakland, Calif., will be of interest to all who are in need of an upbuilding tonic.

"In all my fifteen years' experience as a trained nurse," says Mrs. Clark's statement, "I never found the equal of Tanlac as a stomach medicine and tonic. Two years ago an attack of influenza left me without appetite and my stomach in such a bad fix that the little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good.

"Stomach pains would make me so weak I would feel right faint. The least exertion would completely exhaust me and six months before taking Tanlac I was so weak I had to hire my housework done. I was in bed most of the time for two months and was getting desperate.

"Tanlac was more than a match for my troubles and eight bottles left me feeling fine. I eat and sleep like a child and have energy and strength that makes life a pleasure. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Wanted Respect

The teacher was filling out monthly report cards and writing the names of the children's fathers. She turned to ten-year-old Mary first and asked, "Mary, isn't your father's name John?"

Mary gave teacher a cutting look. "Yes, it is," she admitted, "but I would rather you would call him Mr. Moore."—Indianapolis News.

Increases Sugar Yield

The addition of small quantities of potassium iodide to fertilizers has been found by French scientists to increase materially the yield of sugar beets. Larger amounts decrease the yield of sugar in the beets. It is thought that the iodide has an important effect on the power of the plants to utilize the energy of the sunlight for the transformation of plant food into plant substance.

Labor
—that's the Big
Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifiying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

Professor Pepp

This play is genuinely funny throughout, in fact it is hard for the cast to get down to business. There are sixteen people in this play.

Much new scenery has been built for it and many beautiful effects are produced.

Mr. Haun, as Prof. Pepp, a nervous wreck, is a scream, Adolph Eckman, the chief comedian, as C. B. Buttonbuster, Edith Burgess as Betty Gardener, the professor's ward, Lucille Beardsley as Petunia Muggins, the hired girl, William Loken as Howard Green, a suitor for the hand of Betty, Ruth Hanson as Aunt Minerva Boulder, who thinks 99 men out of every 100 are villians, the other one aint got good sense, and also others characters.

The scene of the play is at Prof. Pepp's residence on the college campus. In act I Prof. Pepp returns from Russia, and C. B. Buttonbuster, age 48 comes to college.

In Act II Buttonbuster is hazed, Prof. Pepp is surrounded by Nihilists, Bronto & Bumski.

Act III a garden party by moonlight. Celebrating the football victory. Buttonbuster the football hero, the serenade, Aunt Minerva on the warpath, a double wedding.

Dont miss this play, the climax of all plays by the Newfolden Dramatic Club, 2 1-2 hours of fun. Save your laughs for May 16th.

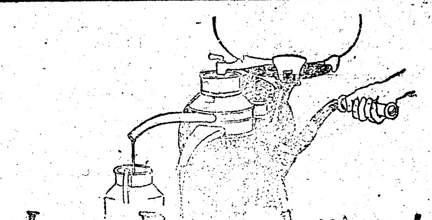
Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times onehalf cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Farmers' Co-Op. Cr'y. Co., Holt, Minn.



Is your De Laval separator in good running order?

IF it isn't, then you may be losing butter-fat and shortening the life of the machine; and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it isn't the fault of the machine but due to the fact that it needs attention, adjustment, cleaning, or the replacement of some part.

Bring in your De Laval Separator to us and we will put it in first-class running order. Bring in the complete machine, and in order to save expense clean out the oil chamber and gears with kerosene or boiling water. You can do this just as well as we can.

The American Creed

I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people and for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign states; a perfect Union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American Patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its Laws, to respect its Flag, and to defend it against all enemies

After a long wait the ripener and cooler for the farmers creamery has finally arrived. It has a capacity of 500 gallons and will enable the creamery to take good care of the increased amount of cream being received right along all the time.

"Professor Pepp" was one of the best plays ever given here by the Newfolden Dramatic Club. They also took in more money than at any of their previous plays. The talent did their work exceptionally well and each one seemed especially fitted for their part.

We are quite sure they would get a good crowd, should they decide to come our way again.

Some have given to the sufferers in Europe, and others who wish to give, may bring or send their gifts to me by May 27th, 7 p. m. There are thousands of needy, starving and perishing, both in body and soul, who need our help.

M. B. Ordahl, Pastor.

The men who are striking at the prohibition law do not realize that they are striking at their own property interest; that if they should accomplish what they wish and bring the prohibition law crashing to the ground they would bring down also the fabric of which it is a part. The Constitution would become meaningless. Popular elections, so long held sacred in their results, would become contemptible. The spirit of anarchy would be let loose and no man would know whether the safety of his wife and children could be assured by the law and the instruments of the law which had been flounted and condemned.

Roy A. Haynes
Federal Prohibition Commissioner.

The Warren Sheaf last week published a nice write up of Holt's creamery and bank, for which we wish to thank them.

If the farmers will continue to stand by their own creamery, this community will continue to forge ahead so that we will command recognition over a wide territory.

Co-operation has won for our creamery its present success, and we cannot refrain from urging upon the farmers that its continued success depends upon their signing the patronage contract and sticking by their creamery.

TALE WITH THRILLS

Here's a good sea yarn—as good as one of W. Clark Russell's old-time stories, and with the advantage of being modern. It opens with a mysterious murder and the securing of valuable papers by the villain, masquerading as a rich man's secretary. Thereupon the rich man and one of his daughters hastily start on a mysterious journey, its destination an island in the South Atlantic. The rich man's wife and his other daughter follow soon after. The captain's safe is robbed of his sealed orders. Dirty work in the forecastle and all over the ship. Mutiny, marooning and shanghaiing. A mysterious island that contains no gold, but something far more important than pirate's cave or treasure cache.

And love! Why, the rich man's son is in love with an actress, to the father's great indignation. One daughter is in love with a young man working on one of her father's docks. The other falls in love with an English lord who gets mixed up in the affair—a regular fighting son-of-a-gun. In the end six young and wildly beating hearts are made happy. The joke is that all three marriages are better than their wealthy and ambitious fathers and mothers could have hoped for.

And, by the way, the author, Crittenden Marriott—who is he? It's a new name, but it's dollars to doughnuts that he is some experienced spinner of yarns under a pen name. Certainly he writes like a skilled craftsman.

CHAPTER I

—1—

On a Dark Road

The trolley station at Curwen is small, consisting only of a closed-in shed with a single bench against its rear wall and a line of gimcrack, jigsaw scroll eaves overhanging its open front. On a dark night it is almost invisible and is practically nonexistent.

It was well after ten on an evening in late October when a buggy, drawn by a hard-driven horse and containing a single occupant, approached the station. The man who was driving continually peered ahead, in the manner of one trying to recognize some landmark that may tell him where he is. When he saw the rectangular bulk of Curwen station against the sky line, he leaned out, endeavoring to distinguish the white letters that spelled the name. Failing to do this, he threw back the lap robe and prepared to get out and inspect them more closely.

Midway in the move, however, he was stopped by the sudden siren shriek of an automobile that was coming up behind. He turned and looked through the glass-paned peephole in the back of the buggy and saw two great acetylene lamps splitting space with terrifying speed. Instantly he shook his reins and tried to draw out to the side of the road. He did not really doubt that the hastening chauffeur behind would slow down in time to prevent a crash. And yet that raucous shriek had sounded very imperative. Again he urged his tired horse.

The car did not halt, nor even slacken speed. Too late he realized that it would not or could not slacken. But his nerve was good; not till the very last possible second did he abandon his seat and leap for safety. As he did so, a cry rang out, the auto veered and plunged outward, away from him. Its rear wheels, skidding, struck his buggy and hurled it forward against the horse. Its front wheels climbed the ridge that bordered the road and the whole great machine dived downward toward the river, with a roar of throbbing engines, flying pebbles and whirring wheels. Staggering from his leap, he caught a glimpse of a dark form hurtling through the moonshine to the earth, and of the great automobile plunging into the water.

As he stared, shaken by the suddenness of it all, a beam of light switched past him and he realized that the door of a house, till then unseen, had been thrown open, letting out a white glare, and that a woman was calling to know whether anyone was hurt.

He laughed shortly. "Anybody hurt?" he echoed. "He ought to be, if he isn't. He ought to be dead. Bring a light, will you?" He plunged down the bank toward the spot where he had seen the dark form hurled from the automobile. As he went, his eyes roved over the river, seeking the automobile, but the placid surface of the stream was unbroken, as if the machine had never plunged into it.

A moment later he reached the bottom of the slope and bent over the body of a man, whose huddled and bent form bespoke serious injury if not death. As he stooped, however, a groan told him that life was at least not extinct. The next moment the glimmer of yellow light that had been increasing behind him became stronger, as if the bearer had removed a sheltering hand from before it. Its beams fell upon the wounded man, disclosing a ghastly wound across the brow.

He looked up. The light came from a lamp carried by a girl, whose face showed dimly in the gloom. The lamp itself, he noticed, was trembling slightly, perhaps from the haste with which the girl had brought it and perhaps from the shock of the occurrence.

"Oh! Poor fellow!" she breathed. "Is he dead?"

"He ought to be." The man spoke harshly. "Anybody who drives an automobile through the night forty miles an hour and runs down a horse and buggy ought to be dead. However, he isn't dead yet."

"Is anyone else hurt?"

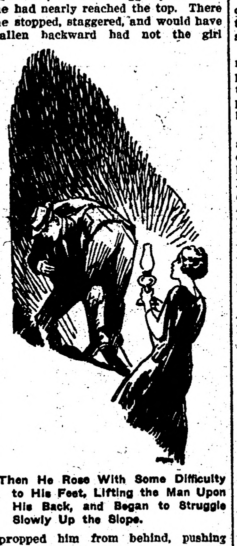
The man shrugged his shoulders. "If they were, they're past praying for," he said callously. "The auto went into the river."

The girl glanced at the water and shivered. "Can you get him to the house?" she asked. "We haven't any men about the place."

The man from the buggy had risen and was looking at the girl. She seemed to be about twenty-two or three years old, with clean-cut lips and a well-shaped nose. He could not make out her eyes, but her chin bespoke determination, and he guessed that her eyes might be gray.

"No," he said, consideringly. "I won't need to trouble you. I can manage, I think." He bent down again, caught the wounded man's arm and drew it over his right shoulder in accordance with the rules for carrying wounded on the battlefield. Then he rose with some difficulty to his feet, lifting the man upon his back, and began to struggle slowly up the slope. The girl followed.

The slope was short and not very steep, but the wounded man was heavy and the rescuer himself was scarcely in condition for the work. However, he went doggedly on until he had nearly reached the top. There he stopped, staggered, and would have fallen backward had not the girl propped him from behind, pushing with a strength altogether unexpected. The timely aid enabled him to step over the crest of the slope onto the road. "Thank you," he murmured gratefully. "You saved us."



Then He Rose With Some Difficulty to His Feet, Lifting the Man Upon His Back, and Began to Struggle Slowly Up the Slope.

"You could have saved yourself," said the girl, "if you had dropped your burden. Why didn't you?" A new respect spoke in her tones.

"I always play the game out if the cards have been dealt," remarked the man, lightly, as with firmer footing he crossed the road and the tracks toward the open gate on the other side. As he passed through it, he noticed that someone was standing on the porch, and heard a soft, quivering voice. "Oh, Edith," it called. "What has happened?"

"It's an automobile accident, mother," replied the girl, clearly. "An automobile jumped the bank and plunged into the river and threw out the driver. This gentleman is bringing him in."

The bearer mounted the steps firmly and followed the old lady into the house and the sitting room, where he thankfully let his burden slip from his shoulder to a broad lounge. "Is there a doctor anywhere in the neighborhood?" he asked as he rose.

The girl nodded. "I'll telephone," she said.

She went to a telephone hanging on the wall and gave a number. A moment later she turned around. "Doctor Fox is expected home any minute," she said, "and they will send him over as soon as he comes. He is the only doctor anywhere near. Can't we do something before he comes, Mr.—er—"

"Harrison," responded the man promptly. "Henry Harrison."

"Thank you. I am Edith Grant. Can't we do something, Mr. Harrison?"

Harrison nodded. "I'll try," he answered. He was already feeling the limbs of the wounded man. "One of his legs is broken and he's badly cut about the head. Get a basin of warm water and a sponge, please."

The girl turned to the older woman. "You're white as a sheet, mumsey," she said. "You must go and lie down. Come!" She led the unresisting old lady from the room.

A moment later she was back, bringing the water and basin. While the man straightened the mangled leg, she bathed the cut and bound it up.

A few moments later Doctor Fox arrived. "Good evening, Miss Grant," he said, nodding to the girl, as he bent over the mangled form. "How did it happen?"

Edith Grant glanced at Harrison, and he explained.

"Humph!" The doctor had finished tying up the broken leg. He glanced approvingly at the bandage about the wounded man's temples. Then he opened the muddy and bloodstained shirt and exposed the broad chest.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed.

At his tone Harrison bent swiftly forward and Miss Grant, who had drawn back a little, turned toward him with a startled face. "What is it, doctor?" quavered the girl.

"Matter?" The doctor was fingering the wounds. "This man has been shot. The bullet went clear through him and came out at his back. He's dying. Who shot him?"

Harrison and the girl looked at each other. Harrison's face was white. He seemed dismayed, perhaps terror-stricken, by the announcement. "I certainly didn't," he blurted out.

"You? Certainly not!" The doctor seemed a little surprised by the hasty disclaimer. "Not unless you were traveling with him. He was shot at least an hour ago. He must have been pretty far gone when he ran into you. Did you find any papers on him?" The doctor was working as he spoke.

"We haven't looked," Harrison spoke calmly. The doctor's assertion that the man had been shot an hour before seemed to restore his poise.

The doctor slipped his hand into the man's pockets and brought to light a purse, a watch and other small articles. At last he drew out a flat packet, carefully corded, but muddy, broken and bloodstained.

Hesitantly he stared at the seals, and then at the man. "I don't like to open this," he said. "I'll try to restore him to consciousness first, anyway." He hesitated, as if doubtful what to do with the packet. When Edith recognized his dilemma she reached out her hand to take it. But he shook his head. "No, thank you," he said. "I'll keep it." He slipped the packet into his pocket, then raised the man's head and poured a few drops of pungent liquor between the contorted lips.

Almost instantly the man opened his eyes and stared around him. "What has happened?" he demanded, striving to struggle up upon his elbow. The intonation of his voice was foreign.

Gently the doctor pressed him back. "Lie still," he ordered. "There's been an accident and you're badly hurt."

Into the man's eyes snapped a look of terror, and he snatched at his breast. "My packet!" he shrieked. "Where is it?"

"It's here!" The doctor thrust the packet into the man's hand. "It's safe. Now you must lie still."

"Still! Still! Good heaven!" The man laughed hoarsely. His fingers closed tightly on the packet. "I will lie still enough soon," he gasped painfully. "I must work now. I must see Henry Archman before I die."

"Henry Archman!" The doctor's eyes met those of Miss Grant. "Mr. Archman lives near here," he said soothingly. "We will send for him at once."

"No! No! I shall go to him." Again the man tried to struggle up. "Where is my car?" he demanded.

"Your car is at the bottom of the river," answered the doctor. "Listen to me. You have been badly hurt. You are dying—"

"I know it. Yes, I knew it when the bullet hit me! They think I shall fail. But I'll fool them! I'll beat them all yet." The man's voice rang with desperation. "I must see Henry," he reiterated.

"So you shall," the doctor promised glibly. "But you must lie still. I will get Mr. Archman for you. But first tell me who shot you."

The man made a gesture of contempt. "What does it matter?" he demanded. "You cannot touch them. They snap their fingers at the law. But Henry can beat them. That will hurt them worse. Get him for me!"

"But—" The doctor still strove to protest.

Edith Grant stepped forward. "Dying men have privileges, doctor," she said. She turned to the man on the couch. "Tell me your name and what to say, and I will telephone to Mr. Archman."

Here's a mystery. Who shot him? And what for? And what does he want of Archman?

Threats

I consider it a mark of great prudence in a man to abstain from threats or any contemptuous expressions, for neither of these weaken the enemy, but threats make him more cautious, and the other excites his hatred, and a desire to revenge himself.—Machiavelli.

SENATE PASSES SOLDIER BONUS

Insurance And Cash Measure Automatically Becomes Law By Action Monday

Washington.—The senate Monday overrode President Coolidge's veto of the soldier bonus bill.

The measure now automatically becomes law, the house having taken similar action.

The vote was 59 to 26 to overthrow the veto.

Several Republican organization leaders joined with a strong Democratic lineup in upsetting the veto on a vote which was in doubt until the last minute.

The vote was two more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

President Coolidge himself made an eleventh hour effort to stem the tide of support for the bill. He summoned seven Republicans favoring it to the White House but was unable to swing over enough votes to accomplish its defeat.

Thirty Republicans, 27 Democrtas, and the two Farmer-Labor senators voted to override the veto. Seventeen Republicans and nine Democrats voted to sustain the president.

Senators Ladd and Frazier, Republicans, North Dakota, voted to override the veto, as did Senators Johnson and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

The senate voted virtually without debate. An almost absolute silence prevailed during the roll call and as the result was announced cheering broke out in the crowded galleries.

President Cummins ordered the sergeant-at-arms "to clear the gallery," but as he added "if the disturbance continues," the Democrats arose and applauded loudly.

M'KENZIE TAX CASE ARGUED

Question of Procedure Raised—Victory Means $14,000 to N. D.

Bismarck, N. D.—Questions of procedure and legal arguments on the demurrer of the defense to the cross-petition of the public administration delayed the taking of testimony in county court here Monday in the case in which the State of North Dakota and Burleigh county seek to collect inheritance tax from the estate of the late Alexander McKenzie, former political leader of the northwest, who died in St. Paul.

The case had its inception in August, 1923, when the state tax commissioner raised the inheritance tax question on the filing of the McKenzie will with County Judge I. C. Davies here. The state contends that although Mr. McKenzie had maintained his place of abode for several years in St. Paul, he had voted in Bismarck, his former home, as late as 1920, and that for legal purposes, his residence actually was in North Dakota. The $900,000 estate of the former political leader has already been probated in the Ramsey county, Minnesota, probate court.

North Dakota, if it prevails in all the claims, would realize an inheritance tax of about $14,000, according to the estimate of the attorney for the administrator.

FLIERS ADVANCE 500 MILES

Yankee and Jap Sailors on Hand to Welcome Intrepid Airmen.

Yetorofu Island, Kuriles.—The three American army airplanes flying around the world landed here at 2:50 p. m. Monday, having made the 500-mile flight from Paramashiru island in a little over seven hours.

The landing was made on Lake Toshimioya. This is in the rear of Hitokappu bay, an indentation on the southeast shore of this island. A landing place on the lake has been marked by Japanese and American sailors from the destroyers Pope and Amatsukaze several days ago, when it was determined that Hitokappu bay was too rough for the planes to be brought down safely on its waters.

Men Burned by Tank Car Explosion.

St. Paul.—Two men were burned, one probably fatally, a third man was missing and nine other persons were endangered here Monday by an explosion of an oil tank car in the yards of the Craig Oil Refining company, on the west side. A spark, believed to have been generated when Peter Fishbach, an employe of the oil company, dropped the lid of the car into place, is held responsible for the explosion and fire that followed. Fishbach, who was enveloped by flames, is believed to have been fatally burned.

Releases S. D. Delegaton From Pledge.

Pierre, S. D.—Senator Hiram Johnson has released the South Dakota delegation to the Republican national convention from its obligation to vote for him for the party's presidential nominee, quoting John Sutherland, manager of the South Dakota campaign of Senator Johnson. Mr. Sutherland announced Monday the receipt of a letter from Senator Johnson stating that he releases the South Dakota delegation "from any obligation to me at the national Republican convention."

News Briefs from All the State

Austin—Owatonna was awarded the 1925 convention of the Central Baptist Young People's union at the close of its 1924 session here.

Austin—Seventy-five farmers attended the stone and stump blasting demonstration conducted by representatives of the University Farm, at the Will Hartje farm.

Ortonville—Acting on a petition of a majority of the dairy stock owners of the county the board of county commissioners has ordered an area test of the dairy cattle of Big Stone county.

Morris—J. F. Entel of Montevideo was elected president of the seventh group, Minnesota Bankers Association, at its closing session here. More than 200 bankers attended the three sessions.

Moorhead—Edward Fay, said to be the oldest Minnesotan living in Clay county, died here. He lived in this state since 1853 and was a stage driver. He was postmaster here from 1844 to 1890.

Two Harbors—The first brook trout fry of the season were received here when the local chapter of the Izaak Walton league distributed 100 cans to the various streams tributary to the city.

Thief River Falls—Thirty-four cars of Mennonites passed through here from Canada to Chiuahua, Mexico. They left Canada on account of restricting freedom and schools and ways of living.

Austin—The Milwaukee road has announced the discontinuance of two passenger trains between this city and Calmar, Iowa, daily. The change is believed to have been necessitated by the increase in motor traffic and the resulting falling off of rail travel.

Rochester—Diplomas will be presented to 96 nurses, 36 of these having taken their training at St. Mary's hospital and 60 through the Kahler school of nursing, at a joint commencement exercise to be held at the national guard armory here.

Currie—The committee named by the legislature to erect a monument in the memory of the early settlers of the Lake Chetek country will within a short time have their plans complete. A site for the monument has been selected near the graves of the pioneers killed in the Indian raids.

Owatonna—Final action will be taken in the selection of a site for the Tricounty Tuberculosis sanatorium to be constructed and maintained by Steele, Freeborn and Faribault counties at a meeting here. Sites have been offered by Owatonna, Albert Lea, Blue Earth and Winnebago.

Willmar—Through the efforts of the American Legion posts of Kandiyohi county, a complete and authentic collection of plats of all cemeteries in the county will be made. On these will be marked the graves of soldiers of all wars. These records will be preserved and continued.

Sleepy Eye—There has never been a time when so much interest has been taken in tho boys' and girls' club work in this county as there has this spring. The baby beef, dairy calf and pig clubs all have large enrolments and additional poultry and corn clubs have been organized for the first time this year.

Albert Lea—After an all day battle in which a large number of volunteer citizens from Albert Lea used a fleet of trucks, a gap in the new dam at the outlet of lower Albert Lea lake, was closed, thus saving that body of water from going down through the Shell Rock river and destroying the concrete bridge across the south end of the lake.

Bemidji—In a little Lutheran Free church of Nymore, where the family of Enevild Stangeland gathered to attend a program, funeral services for three members of his family who lost their lives in a fire which destroyed their home. From the rooms of the Stangeland home, the charred bodies of the three children were taken and because of the condition in which they were found, only one casket will be used.

Park Rapids—The directors of the Jefferson Highway took steps to shorten and relocate the highway in the northern part of the state. The city of Warren and villages to the north of that city were making strong bids before the highway directors for the location to be designated their way from Thief River Falls. However, a route was selected which will take the Jefferson traveler from Thief River Falls north to beyond Holt on a trunk highway and thence west and northwest over a graded and graveled state aid road through Marshall county passing through New Folden, and Strandquist, and thence through Karlstad, Halma and Bronson, striking a trunk highway at Hallock and thence to the border.

Fulda—More than 100 men are employed in the construction work on trunk highway No. 16 between this city and Windom. Five contractors have crews on the job and nearly 200 horses are being used.

Owatonna—State and federal authorities connected with the statistical route on which agricultural production costs are being studied, headed by Professor George A. Pond of the University of Minnesota, have invited farmers from all over southern Minnesota to attend the annual tour of the route, the date for which has been set for Wednesday, June 4.

HOUSEWORK NOT DRUDGERY

For Women In Good Health

Read How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Changed Conditions For These Housewives

Back Don't Bother Me Now

Lincoln, Nebraska. — "My back would bother me so and when I had to do any heavy lifting it made me sick to my stomach with the pains in my back. I have my housework to do and four babies to take care of so when I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I took it and I feel better. My back don't bother me and I can eat more and work. I do all my housework and washing for six in the family. I will tell other women to take the Vegetable Compound and you may publish my letter."—Mrs. CHARLES F. DOLEZAL, 1201 Garber Ave., Lincoln, Nebraska.

Felt Better At Once

Volga City, Iowa.—"I will tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was all run down and could hardly be on my feet. I was so cold I could not keep warm. I had numb feelings and then heat flashes would pass over my body. I had severe pains in my sides and was very nervous. I saw your advertisement in the newspapers so I thought I would try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I began to feel better as soon as I started taking it. I have taken it off and on for three years now. I keep house and do all my work for my husband and two little boys and make my garden. I feel fine and I tell others what the medicine has done for me. I think it is the best medicine in the world for women."—Mrs. THOMAS GRINDLE, Volga City, Iowa.

Can Do Any Kind of Work

Fouke, Arkansas.—"I had the 'Flu' and after that I had a pain in my side and was not able to do my work I was so weak. I found an advertisement in a paper and it told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would do, and I took it. Now I can do any kind of work I want to. I think every family ought to keep it in the house all the time and I intend to do so."—Mrs. DORA PHILYAW, R.R. No. 2, Fouke, Arkansas.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

This shows that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This goes to prove that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure-all—can and does do good work. For sale by druggists everywhere.

The Money Standard

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt said in a brilliant after-dinner speech in New York:

"Too many women judge men by the money standard. The more he makes, they think, the better man he is.

"The money standard is a false one. I can prove it by a reductio-ad-absurdum story.

"A middle-aged woman at a race track said to her middle-aged husband bitterly:

"'Look at that horse, James! In three and a half minutes it has won more than you have done in a business career extending over 27 years.'"

Washington

Washington—The senate passed a bill making the office of governor of Porto Rico elective in 1932.

Washington—An urgent deficiency appropriation bill, carrying $2,317,000, the bulk of it for Federal Court expenses, was passed by the house and sent to the senate.

Washington—Abolition of the new prohibition regime in Turkey was formally reported to the commerce department by Commercial Agent Gillespie at Constantinople.

Washington—President and Mrs. Coolidge entertained more than a thousand guests at the first of a series of garden parties planned for the month of May.

Washington—A bill to authorize the funding, over a 62 year period, of Hungary's $1,685,000 debt to the United States, as negotiated by the debt commission, was passed by the house and sent to the senate.

Washington—Plans to carry a fight against the Ku Klux Klan to the floor of the democratic convention were announced by supporters of Senator Oscar Underwood, (Ala.), candidate for the presidential nomination.

Washington—A Supreme Court review was denied in the case of Captain G. H. Miles of tho steamship President Van Buren, convicted in the federal courts in New York city on a charge of cruelly punishing Harry Baxter, who died while in confinement on the ship.

Washington—Renewing debate in the senate on proposed modification of the long and short haul sections of the interstate commerce act, Senator Smith W. Brookhart (rep., Iowa), declared he had been conservative in his estimate that $1,000,000,000 could be cut from the nation's railroad freight charges without reducing the labor pay item.

Washington — Secretary Herbert Hoover appealed to the nation's coal consumers to prevent a coal shortage by laying in coal supplies in the summer. He urged industries to purchase their stocks in the slack coal season to prevent congestion on the railroads in the fall, which, he said, would tend to increase the coal prices and create a shortage.

Washington—Funeral services, attended by President and Mrs. Coolidge, the members of the cabinet and their wives and a small group of friends, were held at the White House for Mrs. Hubert Work, wife of the secretary of the interior, who died here. The services were conducted by Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor emeritus of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church here, which Mrs. Work attended. Members of the cabinet were honorary pallbearers, and burial was at Arlington.

Domestic

Mineola, N. Y.—Major W. N. Hensley, Jr., stationed at Mitchell field, announced that he would attempt a dawn to dark nonstop flight of approximately 1,300 miles to Columbus, Neb., to visit his parents.

Freeport, Ill.—Aaron P. Lattig, 91 years old, a Civil war veteran and father of 11 children, died on the 70th birthday of his oldest son. Thirty-one grandchildren and 41 great grandchildren survive.

Atlanta—A resolution designed to put the Southern Baptist convention on record as unalterably opposed to modernism, or to anything, called science, that questions, discredits or denies fundamental doctrines of the Old and New testaments was presented to the convention by Dr. R. K. Maiden of Kansas City.

Boston—The Roosevelt Newsboys' Association has received one cent each from Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York and William J. Bryan, as their contributions to the penny fund which is being raised to present to Mrs. Harding a statute of Laddie Boy, the White House dog during the Harding administration.

Chicago—The National Livestock Producers Association announced the organization of the Producers' Livestock Credit Corporation, a corporation organized under the general co-operative law of the state of Illinois with a capital stock of $40,000, and designed to make available a new line of credit to feeders of livestock in Missouri, Iowa, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Leavenworth, Kan.—One hundred and fifteen of the 223 military prisoners serving time in the Leavenworth federal penitentiary received clemency as a result of the inquiry conducted in March by a special war department board. Eight were given outright pardons and 10 were reductions in sentences. Sentences of 71 life termers were reduced to terms of 20 to 30 years.

Seattle—Because the United States controls the world's supply of helium, the airship Shenandoah can reach the North Pole before the craft of any other nation, in the opinion of Captain Robert A. Bartlett, arctic explorer, and a passenger on the United States coast guard cutter Bear. The Bear left for its 36th annual cruise in the arctic.

New York Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, assailed the notion that "men can be made happy and prosperous and rich and virtuous by law" and attacked government interference in personal life.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—A strike of between 10,000 and 12,000 miners in the Wyoming and Lackawanna valleys was ordered.

Boston—Drugs valued at $75,000 were seized and six men and two women arrested in a raid on the Italian steamship America.

Sports

Minneapolis — Minneapolis' age-old dream of its own hockey and skating rink centrally located and on a par with the Hippodrome at the fair grounds came true. Without any "ifs," "ands" or "buts" about it, Gale Brooke and Ed Dickinson, veterans of many years in the skating business, announced definitely that they, with the financial and moral assistance of the same prominent businessmen who backed the Minneapolis hockey team so faithfully last winter, had completed all plans and arrangements for a modern skating and hockey arena at a cost of $200,000.

Foreign

Berne—Hugh S. Gibson, the new American minister to Switzerland, arriving here from Prague, will present his credentials to the president of the federation.

London—An agreement was reached settling the prolonged dispute over the miners' wages. The miners' federation has recommended a full delegate conference meeting to indorse the agreement.

Dublin—Dublin is sufferings from a strike of gas workers, and industries dependent upon gas for fuel have been forced to close. Restaurants are pressing old field kitchens into service to care for those unable to prepare meals in their own homes.

Paris—Monsieur and Mme. Cognaco have given another 15,000,000 francs to the French academy, the income of which is to be awarded annually in premiums of 10,000 francs each to 103 French families residing in France or Algeria of five or more children from the same parent. The parents must be under 33 years of age.

Tokio—The village of Hachinohe, close to Minato, where the United States army world fliers are scheduled to land, was virtually wiped out by fire which destroyed 2,000 homes, including all public buildings and banks in the business district. Hachinohe's elaborate preparations to celebrate the arrival of the aviators have been called off.

Paris—The strike of the French Wireless company's operators, which has been dragging on without apparent development for more than a week, has entered a new phase with the opening of negotiations between the union and the management. The operators, according to the Petit Parisien, propose, in case of failure, to call a general strike of ships' wireless operators.

Warsaw—The Polish government received a note from Soviet Russia demanding better treatment of the Ukrainians and white Ruthenians in Polish territory. The note quotes Article VII of the treaty of Riva between the two countries providing for the satisfactory settlement of the question of minorities on both sides. The note is interpreted here as inspired by a deisre to expand the sphere of soviet influence.

Mexico City—S. M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, is here to arrange the sale to the Mexican government of railway equipment to the amount of 20,000,000 pesos. After a conference with Finance Secretary Pani, Mr. Vaughn said: "If American business men woudl come to Mexico personally to settel their affairs, the difficulties with this country, would vanish and a dierent impression of Mexico would prevail."

Tokio—The effect of the French elections, foreshadowing an altered attitude toward Russia, is apparent in the foreign office, where a desire now is seen to resume early negotiations with the soviet. It is reported that M. Yoshizawa in Peking has been notified to get in touch with M. Karakhan, the soviet envoy, notifying him that Japan is ready to empower the minister in Peking with plenipotentiary powers to enter binding agreements.

La Courtine, Pay-De-Dome—The results of the experiment in exploding 10 tons of melinite at the Courtine camp near here in an attempt to solve the mystery of "zones of silence" were disappointing and puzzling. The blast blew a hole 20 feet deep and 60 wide in the soft soil. With the exception of one guinea pig, which died a martyr to science, a number of animals placed in holes at distances varying from 100 to 300 yards from the scene showed no ill effects.

Paris—Lieutenant Batelier, of the 34th French aero squadron, made a flight from Paris to Lyons with a new type of engine, called a "turbo compressor." It does not use gas and is worked by a series of copper tubes, through which air rushes, causing a suction which works a number of small pumps, which forces the pistons to work in the same manner as an ordinary airplane engine. Lieutenant Batelier reached an altitude of more than 18,000 feet and an average speed of 137 miles an hour.

Dakara, Africa—The Negro deputy Diagne, defender of battling Siki's case in the fighter's altercation with the French Boying Federation, was re-elected for Senegal in the French parliamentary elections. He is a republican socialist.

Rome—A dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia from Tirana, Albania, says that, in consequence of the situation growing out of the recent murder by bandits of the two Americans, Robert L. Coleman of San Francisco and George B. De Long of New York, a military dictatorship in Albania is believed to be inevitable.

Scales Show Loss of Bodily Weight

Five minutes from now, unless you eat or drink in the meantime, you will weigh less than you do now. In fact, you will weigh less a minute from now, because the body is constantly losing weight by evaporation and by loss of carbon in breathing.

Powerful but exceedingly delicate scales, devised recently by the Carnegie Institute, are now being used to measure the sum of these losses, states the Popular Science Monthly, and numerous interesting facts have been revealed by the scales. The more clothing a person wears the more rapidly he loses weight, because of increased perspiration.

A football player was shown to lose 14 pounds in a game lasting 70 minutes. A marathon runner lost 8½ pounds in a three-hour race. Ordinary men, performing no exertion, but merely sitting in a chair suspended from the scales, have lost weight so rapidly that small weights had to be added constantly to keep the balance even.

Red Cross Preparations

According to plans of the international Red Cross committee at Geneva, a world atlas "showing clearly the site and extent of all great catastrophes, past as well as present, and of such as may reasonably be expected in the future" is proposed. Maps showing the distribution of earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, "tidal" waves, hurricanes, tornadoes, typhoons, droughts, floods, dust storms, conflagrations in cities, invasions of locust, famines and the epidemic centers of plague, cholera and yellow fever will be included. Preparation of this atlas will be preliminary plans for immediate action when the S O S is sent from the world's trouble centers.

Permanent Paint

Dr. Kurt Schmidt of Munich has invented an electrically heated palette for applying hot paint mixed with wax and thus making it practically permanent. With this method Doctor Schmidt says paint may be applied on exteriors that will not have to be renewed for years, if ever.

WALLACE GIVES CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING RULES

Secretary of Agriculture Defines Ten Principles Essential to Success for Bank Association.

Ten principles requisite for the success of co-operative marketing plans have been prepared by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for the State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association, which has just published a nation-wide compilation of views, experiences and discussions regarding the movement. Mr. Wallace's principles are:

1. A co-operative organization must be controlled by its members, not as shareholders or investors, but as producers employing the facilities of the organization.

2. A co-operative association is not operated to make a profit on invested capital above the usual rate of interest, but to profitably market the products of its members at the lowest possible cost.

3. A co-operative association should be organized around a single commodity, or a group of commodities for which the same marketing machinery, methods and channels are employed.

4. The organization should have sufficient volume of business to enable it to operate efficiently and economically, and should control this business through definite legal contracts with its members.

5. The organization must perform definite functions. The organization of a co-operative marketing association is not an end in itself.

6. The members must understand the purposes of the organization and be kept fully informed regarding its activities and problems.

7. A co-operative association should have expert management. The duties of the manager of a co-operative association are more difficult than those of the manager of a commercial enterprise of equal size. The manager must not only conduct the business of the organization efficiently, but he must recognize the close, personal interest of every member in that business, and be able to maintain harmonious contacts with each individual.

8. Proper accounting is essential. Accounting is one phase of management but is so important in co-operative marketing that it is given special mention. The management cannot be properly advised regarding the status of the organization, nor properly inform the members, without accurate records.

9. Sound financial policies are also a part of management, but are of sufficient importance to be placed under a separate heading. One essential is that a co-operative association should build up adequate reserves in order that it may have the financial strength necessary to weather periods of stress.

10. A co-operative organization should be self-perpetuating. It should have a definite legal status, and once it is organized it should be so conducted that it would never be necessary to call upon outside agencies to re-establish the organization or shape its policies.

WHAT BANKERS THINK OF THE LABOR BANKS

With the advent of the labor bank three years ago, there was widespread speculation as to what labor turning capitalist would mean.

By bold calculations the most imaginative pictured a coup d'etat in finance wrought by the mobilization of labor's savings and strategic investments in the key industries. Prophecies of disaster came from the quarters of the other extremists.

Taking the middle ground was the great group of conservative bankers who saw the bank as a link—rather than a wedge—between capital and labor. It was their opinion that the experience gained in the management of the labor banks would bring a real understanding of the business of handling money and investments and develop a knowledge of the problems of capital. By making capitalists out of the workers, directing the investment of their funds into safe securities instead of wild-cat stocks and by promoting thrift, they saw good flowing from the enterprise. With the mystery taken out of banking, the bubble of fabulous earnings pricked, and the right of an individual to his accumulated savings firmly established, it was patent that the radicals would be disarmed of their thunder against the much-assailed capitalistic system. On the other hand, it was conceded that, with the rise of labor as a factor in finance, opportunities for the abuse of the worker by the bludgeon of cruel credit control would be more restricted.

In their appraisal of the movement, the events of the past two years have largely justified the view of the conservatives, although the time is still too short to permit a mature judgment. It is quite clear, however, that labor has not revolutionized banking, the control of credit has not been diverted from its former channels.—American Bankers Ass'n Journal.

WHEN FARMING IS BUSINESS-LIKE

By BURTON M. SMITH

Chairman, Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association.

Burton M. Smith

The farmer is a business man and as such should do business on a business basis. Like other business men, he needs financing. He should be able to secure loans on a similar basis with any other business man, and on conditions that will meet his needs.

On the other hand, the farmer should comply with the same conditions that are exacted from any business man. He should show the banker that the loan is for productive purposes. The farmer ought not to object to a request for a credit statement from his banker when negotiating a loan. This statement is not difficult to prepare when the farmer keeps records. The farmer who does not keep records is not doing business in a business-like way and is not entitled to the same consideration as the man who does.

For instance, loans to farmers for the purchase of well selected high-grade livestock constitute one of the most effective ways of financing the farmer and helping him to make a financial success of his business. In making these loans, the banker can well inquire as to whether the farmer has adequate housing facilities and plenty of the right kind of feeds before the investment is made.

If the banker is to encourage farmers in investments of this kind, he should have a hand in protecting these investments. It is to the advantage of the farmer as well as the banker to carry insurance on buildings, including fire and lightning, and if need be, tornado. Too much attention cannot be given to the health of animals. Neither the banker nor the farmer is justified in making an investment in dairy cows that have not been carefuly tested for tuberculosis.

Work It Out Together

Financing the farmer should be the result of teamwork. The banker and the farmer should consider each other as confidential advisers. The farmer needs to know the dangers attached to investments, and the banker needs more information on the possibilities of returns on farm investments well placed. No right-minded farmer ought to object to a careful diagnosis of conditions before the loan is negotiated. Both parties are interested in having the proposed investment pay the interest and eventually the principal, and also return a profit to the farmer.

There are times when the banker might loan to the farmer to the detriment of the farmer himself. The farmer who was kept from making a heavy investment in land when land values were at their peak is today blessing the banker for heading him away from what would have resulted in serious loss, if not bankruptcy.

Financing the farmer is a job that requires clear thinking and sound judgment. The underlying principles of a profitable loan or investment need to be carefully considered by all parties interested. Two heads are better than one, and when two or more men get together in sympathetic contact, determined to weigh the various possibilities of success and failure, and then act upon their united judgment, then the farmer is well financed.

TELLS BANKERS TO ADVERTISE

There is no greater medium of education in our daily life than the newspaper, and, of all mediums offered for bank advertising, the columns of the newspapers reach the innermost circles of our population in the most widespread manner, Motley H. Flint, Los Angeles banker, told the conference of the Savings Bank Division, American Bankers Association, held there recently.

"Advertising, one of man's modern selling forces, has found a fixed place in the banking field," Mr. Flint said. "This, too, in the face of dire predictions of many old-time bankers, who once ridiculed the idea that advertising could be applied to the selling of a service so intangible as that offered by banking institutions. The time was that a bank was satisfied with publishing its statement of condition. That day has been relegated to the past.

"There has been a gratifying response on the part of the public in this new appeal. From it has grown a better understanding by our people of banks and their functions. Where a bank account formerly was the exception it is now the rule. Surely this can be attributed principally to the fact that bankers have come out of their shells and, through advertising, have induced people generally to come into their institutions and learn more about the beneficial services banks have to offer. This can be shown in no better way than by the marvelous growth in savings accounts.

"Astounding sums are being invested annually in bank and financial advertising. I say 'invested' advisedly. It is not merely being spent; it is invested. It is invested for various reasons, and not the least of these is for the purpose of keeping the name of our banks before the people, accompanied by a bit of bank education."

Something for the Farmer to Think About

Considerable interest will be found in studying the results in different feeds for your dairy cow. Thru the courtesy of G. W. Taylor, County Agent of Roseau County, we have the following statistics on the number of pounds of the different kinds of hay-feed required to make a pound of butter:

26 lbs Alfalfa makes 1 lb of butter
180 lbs Timothy makes 1 lb butter
118 lbs Wild hay makes 1 lb butter
155 lbs Oats straw makes 1 lb butter

These figures will vary somewhat due to the curing and date of cutting of the hay.

Look these figures over. It takes exactly 4 1-2 times more wild hay to make a pound of butter from your dairy cow than does alfalfa or clover hay. Alfalfa yields you from two to three crops a year, wild hay only one crop and, that is usually a slim one. Butter being the largest money crop in Holt, these facts should be of great interest to every man who has a dairy cow on his farm. Tame hay has other good points in favor of your farm, soil and crops which we can not discuss in this short space.

Breadfruit.

The breadfruit, with the coconut and banana, furnishes the chief food of the natives of the Pacific islands. That is why we call it "breadfruit," because, for them, it takes the place of bread. Apart from its fruit, the tree itself is a very useful one, for, when beaten out, the inner bark forms a fine white cloth called tapa cloth.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3598, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

> ARCHMAN
> SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him.

"Telephone?" The man had grown suddenly calm. He seemed to have recovered complete possession of his senses. "Good! Good! Telephone to him at once that Morbach—"

"Morbach!" The girl echoed the name.

"Yes, tell him that Morbach is here. Tell him to come quick. Quick! You understand?"

"Yes, I understand." The girl went to the telephone, and lifted her hand to the receiver. Then she hesitated and turned. "Is it Mr. Henry Archman or his son Harry that you wish to see?" she asked.

"Henry! Henry! What have I to do with boys? Tell Henry to come—quick!"

The girl spoke into the telephone. Morbach lay feverishly listening while she got the desired connection. "Is Mr. Archman there?" she asked. Then: "Mr. Henry Archman isn't at home," she said.

"Not at home! Oh! Is any one there who is in his confidence? Any one who has the brains?"

The girl spoke once more into the telephone. "There's a woman at the phone now," she said, a moment later. "It's his daughter. Can you tell her something about your business with Mr. Archman?"

"My business!" The man laughed gaspingly. "Tell him that I have information that is worth millions. Tell him that I die. Tell him what you please. Only tell him to come."

Again Edith spoke into the telephone; then she turned. "Miss Archman says that she will send her father's secretary, Mr. Akin, here at once," she explained, "and that she will try and reach her father and send him here also. Mr. Archman's house is two miles away, and it will take some time for either of them to get here."

"He had better come quick." The man sobbed the words. "Doctor, you will keep me alive till he comes. I must not die till he comes."

"I'll do my best." The doctor bent over him and held a teaspoonful of some potent concoction to his lips. "Take this and lie as still as you can and save your strength."

The man swallowed the liquor and lay still. An instant later the doctor left him and went to the telephone and called up the police station.

Harrison heard him and seemed galvanized to action. Quickly he turned to Miss Grant. "I must go," he said. "I suppose this Mr. Akin will be here as he promised. Do you know him?"

The girl shook her head. "No," she said.

The doctor heard the words and came over. Harrison spoke to him. "I was just wondering whether Mr. Akin could be relied upon," he said. "I've got a horse and buggy out here and perhaps I might meet him and hurry him up. Good-night!" and he turned toward the door.

"Good-night," The girl spoke softly. "Let me thank you for what you have done."

"No thanks are necessary," responded Harrison hastily. "If they are due to any one, they are to you. But I guess there are no thanks coming to either of us. Good-night." He opened the door and went out.

A moment later the doctor looked up. "That gentleman hasn't gone, has he?" he demanded.

Edith nodded. "He said he was in a hurry and that there didn't seem anything more to do."

The doctor frowned. "Did he give you his name and address?" he asked.

Edith hesitated. "He gave me his name," she said. "It is Henry Harrison. But he gave no address."

"That's bad!" The doctor frowned. "This is a case of murder. you know. His testimony will certainly be wanted. However, I suppose he can be found."

"His buggy was struck in the collision. Perhaps it was damaged. Maybe he hasn't gone yet. Shall I see?"

The girl went out through the dining-room, closing the door between the two rooms as she passed through it. She was gone a long time—or so it seemed to the doctor. When she came back she shook her head. "He's gone," she said. "The night is too dark to let one see much. He's out of sight. Gracious!"

The doorbell had rung with startling suddenness. "I suppose that is Mr. Akin," the girl said, as she turned toward the hall.

A man of medium height, muffled to his ears against the October chill, stood on the threshold of the dimly lighted hall. "Is this Mrs. Grant's?" he asked. "My name is Akin. Somebody telephoned me that a man named Morbach wanted to see me."

Edith stood aside. "Come in, Mr. Akin," she invited. "It was I who phoned. I'm glad you've come. Mr. Morbach was hurt in an accident and is very anxious to see Mr. Archman or his representative. The doctor thinks he can't live more than a few minutes longer. Will you take off your coat?"

"No, thank you." The newcomer shrank deep into his capacious collar. "Where is the man?"

"In here."

The newcomer entered the door indicated and sat down in a chair that the doctor hastily placed for him beside the wounded man. Then he bent forward. "I am Mr. Akin, Mr. Archman's secretary," he said. "You have a message for Mr. Archman, I believe."

Morbach's eyes popped open. "You have come!" he cried. "Good—we'll beat them yet." He hesitated, his eyes roving over the faces of the others. "If I could only see Henry!" he groaned. "You are his man and you are all right, but it means so much, so much. Come here, all of you—you, doctor; you, young lady; all of you listen!"

The man lay still for a moment, gathering strength. When he spoke his voice was very faint. "Tell Henry that he is dying—he whom I have served so long, and that he wants to see her—her, you understand. I cabled Henry a week ago. Then I come, too, for I fear that the cable might leak. And I think it did leak, yes—for when I landed in New York they were waiting for me. I try to dodge—yes—I get an auto and start. It is no use. They attack me. But they do not get the proofs, for I do not bring them. He would not let me bring them. He will give them only into her own hands. Henry must bring her and get them. She will be rich—oh, yes! She will have millions to fight them with. And she will need them. But she must come at once. Henry must bring her by the way he knows, or by the way told in these papers—" The dying man raised the packet feebly. "It is by—by—"

The other leaned forward. "Yes, yes!" he cried eagerly. "The way is by—"

"It's all told here!" Again Morbach raised the paper. "But let him beware!" he cried. "Let him beware!"

Nellie Had Turned Around. "Mr. Carr!" She Exclaimed, in Tones as Wondering as Those of the Man.

A shudder shook his frame. "They got me and—and—" Again his voice died away. "The papers—tell all," he said, with a last expiring effort.

"I understand." The man took the packet and slipped it into his pocket. "I'll tell Mr. Archman," he promised.

"Yes, yes; tell him all. Tell him—"

The front doorbell rang sharply, cutting across Morbach's words, and he fell back on the lounge. Edith, turning away, went hurriedly into the hall, closing the parlor door gently behind her as she did so.

CHAPTER II

A Clew Wanted.

When Edith opened the door she found standing on the steps a sweet-faced young woman, apparently little more than a girl. Behind her glimmered the twin lamps of an automobile.

Quickly Edith stepped back and opened the door wider. "Come in!" she invited.

The newcomer stepped in timidly. "Is this Miss Grant?" she asked. "I am Nellie Archman. You telephoned for my father—"

"Yes! I am so glad you have come. Your father's secretary is with Mr. Morbach now."

"Mr. Akin?" For an instant Nellie looked puzzled. Then her face cleared. "I suppose he couldn't find father and thought it best to come himself," she murmured. "I telephoned you that he would come, you know, but later we decided that he should go to look for father and that I should come here direct. I don't see how he managed to outstrip me, but I am glad he did."

Edith nodded and turned toward the closed door of the parlor. "Will you see Mr. Morbach?" she asked.

But Nellie declined. "I had rather not," she said, "If Mr. Akin is here, he will do everything. I only came in case—"

The door opened behind her and some one came in hastily. "I got your phone message," said a man's voice, "and came over at once. I—Miss Archman!"

Nellie had turned around. "Mr. Carr!" she exclaimed, in tones as wondering as those of the man.

The two faced each other. Both seemed at a loss for words. The man, especially, seemed abashed.

Nellie was the first to recover herself. "I didn't know that you lived out here," she said.

The man seemed to recover himself. He smiled ruefully. "Discovered!" he said. "I've made an awful mess of things. I'm afraid. I—oh! Well! I've got to confess now." He turned to the other woman. Edith!" he began. "Let me—"

A sudden sharp outcry behind the closed door cut across Carr's words, and he broke off. Simultaneously, Edith threw open the door and hastened through it. As Nellie started to follow, the man stopped her. "You'll come with your father to the ship tomorrow, won't you?" he begged. "I can't explain now. There's no time. I've been a fool, but it was because—Good Lord! I can't tell you now. Promise me you'll come!"

Nellie nodded. "Yes, I'll come," she said slowly, in a tired, hard voice.

Inside the parlor the doctor was standing over the couch, straightening the injured man's arms. As the others entered he looked up. "It's all over," he said. "The man is dead. However, he told his story first. It sounds vague, but I suppose Mr. Archman will understand. Mr. Akin—Where is Mr. Akin?" He looked about him inquiringly.

Edith looked surprised. "I don't know," she said. "He didn't come into the front hall. He must have gone into the dining-room." She turned. "This is Miss Archman, doctor," she said. She did not introduce Carr, and Nellie, as she bowed gravely, noted that he had not entered the room.

The doctor's face cleared. "I'm glad you have come, Miss Archman," he said. "Your father's secretary was here a moment ago, but he has disappeared mysteriously. I suppose he'll turn up soon. I wish the police would come. Here they are now!" Another ring had sounded at the door.

It was not the police, however. The open door disclosed two men, one old and the other young.

The elder man's face was drawn and pale. "Morbach!" he exclaimed. "Where is he?" Then as no one spoke he went on impatiently. "You telephoned me," he rasped. "I am Mr. Archman."

"Yes, I know you, Mr. Archman." Edith stepped forward. "I'm sorry, but Mr. Morbach is dead. He died ten minutes ago. This is he!"

Archman stepped to the side of the couch and stared at the dead man's face. "I've known him forty years," he said. "And now he's dead and I'm left. How did it happen?" He looked up questioningly and saw his daughter. "Nellie!" he exclaimed. "You here? I thought I recognized the auto. How did this happen?"

Nellie glanced at the doctor, who made haste to answer. "Auto accident," he said tersely. "But that didn't kill him. He was murdered—shot through the body."

"Murdered!" Archman's lips tightened. "Good G—d! It must have been—" He clutched at the doctor's arm. "Did he leave any message—any word? They didn't get his papers, did they?"

"No! No!" The doctor shook his head consolingly. "No; your secretary got here in time. Mr. Morbach gave him papers and a message. It's all right. Your secretary has everything."

"My secretary? What fool talk is this? This is my secretary"—he indicated the younger man—"I got your message after he started, and I caught up with him at your gate."

The doctor's eyes widened. "I don't understand," he muttered. "Mr. Akin was here a moment ago. This gentleman can't be he."

"It is he. Don't you suppose I know my own secretary? If any one else is here, he's an impostor. If any one—Where is he? Let me see him!"

"He's gone!" The doctor's voice was hoarse.

"Gone! Gone! But he didn't get Morbach's papers!"

The doctor nodded. "Yes! He got them. He said he was Mr. Akin. None of us knew—"

"Nellie knew." Archman whirled on his daughter. "What does this mean, Nellie?" he cried.

The girl shook her head. "I didn't see him, father," she said. "He was with Mr. Morbach when I came and—"

The doctor interposed. "None of us knew him and none of us doubted him. Morbach gave him the papers. Were—were they very important?"

"Important! Important!" Archman's face grew so red that it was almost black. "What did he say, man? What did he say? Didn't you hear?"

The doctor nodded. "Yes; we heard," he answered. "He asked us to listen. He said that some one whom you would know was dying and wanted to see 'her.' He had cabled and then had come himself, apparently fearing that the message might have been intercepted—"

"It was. I never got it."

> Why are the papers so important to the rich man? And who impersonated his secretary?

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Ivanhoe—Business men of Ivanhoe have gone on record as backing the co-operative creamery.

Ellsworth—Ellsworth Presbyterians laid the cornerstone for their new $25,000 church. Rev. Henry Noeding, pastor of the new church, officiated.

Marshall—Marshall high school won first place over 13 preparatory schools in the southwestern Minnesota high school music contest here with 33 points. Madison high was second with 17 points, and Montevideo third with 16.

Ash Creek—Three men held up the State bank of Ash Creek, locked the cashier in the vault and made their getaway with $500 in cash, while bystanders across the street were under the impression that the men were transacting business.

Long Prairie—The 21st annual convention of the Sixth District Bankers association convened here. A feature of the program was an address on the state's resources by State Auditor Ray P. Chase. The visitors were tendered a banquet by the bankers.

Faribault—Within a short time cancer will be considered as a contagious disease, and with the germs discovered physicians may be able to prevent infection and bring about a cure, Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester, Minn., predicted in an address at the public health forum.

Hibbing—The Backus-Brooks lumbering interests have opened up two construction camps in the Bear River country, 10 miles west of Togo, and Foley Brothers of St. Paul are laying track for a new railroad to Harrigan's lake, near which point it will connect with the Net Lake branch.

Thief River Falls—Delinquent taxes in Pennington county are approximately $25,000 less now than they were the first of the year, when the total had reached $50,000, according to county auditor, who says many farmers have applied for loans from the Agricultural Credit corporation to pay up their delinquent taxes.

Owatonna—To forestall the building of a municipal lighting plant, the Southern Minnesota Gas and Electric company has submitted a resolution to the Owatonna city council to furnish gas and electric service at rates parallel to those expected by the council under its proposed municipal plant.

Slayton—The final reading made in the area test for tuberculosis which just has been completed in Murray county shows the infection to be but 4.4 per cent. This is about 3.5 per cent less than was estimated before the test began. In all 45,989 head of cattle were given the test for tuberculosis. Of this number 1,996 proved to be reactors.

Rochester—A. F. Nelson, of this city, refused an offer of $500 for a tree which he claims is the only specimen of its kind in the country. While on a visit to Denmark, his native land, Mr. Nelson got some sprouts of the European birch, which he says grows to a height of 400 feet. He carried the small sprouts carefully on his return and has been tending them faithfully ever since.

Marshall—Following the district high school music contest in which representatives of 14 high schools participated here, a permanent organization was affected. Superintendent Brown of the Marshall high school was named president of the organization and he will appoint a committee of three to arrange for a similar contest next year.

Minneapolis—A total of $10,000,000 of rural credit bonds of the state of Minnesota were sold, in the largest single sale ever conducted by the Minnesota Rural Credit bureau, to a syndicate headed by the First National bank in Minneapolis. Other members of the syndicate were the First National bank of New York, Lehman Bros., and the Hayden-Stone company. The two last corporations are New York investment houses.

Crookston—A movement is under way to establish a branch of the Glacier Park trail from Fergus Falls to Winnipeg. At present the trail is established via Fargo and Minot to Glacier Park and the feasibility of a branch through the Red River valley to the Manitoba metropolis is being urged. The proposed line would follow closely the Great Northern railway north of Crookston until Winnipeg is reached.

Rochester—Olmsted county farmers, with farmers from other counties in this section of the state, will join in a statistical tour in the vicinity of Owatonna, Wednesday, June 4. Professor George A. Pond of the University of Minnesota is extending the invitation to farmers all over southern Minnesota. The tour is to visit several of the 24 farms which are furnishing facts and figures on farm crops for dairying sections.

Fairmont—A project has been broached to have owners of land around Clayton and Tuttle lakes, in Fenhassen township, create a wild life preserve. A colony of herons annually makes their nests in the trees about the lakes, presenting a sceen that perhaps is not duplicated in southern Minnesota.

Luverne—About 75 physicians and surgeons of the Southwestern Minnesota Medical society met at Luverne for the 41st semi-annual convention of the association. An address was made by Dr. G. G. Balcom of Lake Wilson, president of the association.

Memorial Day

By R. J. McLauchlin in Detroit News

THEY had no part in fashioning the strife,
Whom we shall mourn today in reverent wise,
But willingly laid down each single life
Nor deemed too much this utter sacrifice.

And how shall fitting honor then be done?
Are tears sufficient, or enough our praise
To glorify the memory of one
Whose death has guaranteed these peaceful days?

Not so; though flags be everywhere unfurled
And grand processions throng a thousand streets,
Though anthems, rising from a grateful world,
Shall startle angels on their golden seats.

Let rather, from a nation's bended head,
Arise another anthem's strong refrain,
Singing, "Behold, our consecrated dead
Have died, but lo! their death was not in vain."

Before their memory may conflict cease,
Today be friends where yesterday were foes,
Let reason, friendship, tolerance and peace
The pillars of their monument compose.

Grave of an American in Scotland Cemetery

More than a score of American soldiers and sailors of the World war lie in the Craighton cemetery, Scotland, where, as in other cemeteries in foreign lands, American soldiers' graves are not forgotten.

MAY USE WORDS OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Suggestion That Portion of Speech Be Pronounced.

BEFORE the idea of Memorial Day was ever conceived, Abraham Lincoln expressed the finest statement of the ideals of this day in his famous Gettysburg address. Thus, the American Legion Weekly suggests, the following words originally uttered at the National cemetery, amid the Pennsylvania hills, many years ago, can again be pronounced this Memorial Day on the gentle slopes of Romagne, between the Argonne and the Meuse, as though they were now uttered for the first time:

"But, in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow, this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion, that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Should Remember Living

Memorial Day is not only a remembrance of the works of heroes, but an accusation against mankind for the way in which it has sacrificed them. The Memorial Day of the past remembers the dead; the Memorial Day of the future should remember the living and be a celebration of enriched civilization by its victories for peace and happiness.

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY
All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
Truman, Minn.—"I was badly rundown, had pains in my side and back; sometimes I could hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my work again. I do my housework, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-months-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIEDERHOFT, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minn.
Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.
The Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington—President Coolidge's cold persists in spite of gas treatment. Many engagements cancelled.

Washington—Secretary C. D. Wilbur tells congress navy has slipped badly and is still slipping for want of funds.

Washington—The senate approved an amendment to the interstate commerce act which would abolish the Pullman surcharge.

Washington—World court divorced from league suggested by Senator G. W. Pepper, wins approval of G. O. P. senators.

Washington—Representative W. R. Green, chairman of house ways and means committee, says United States can easily stand bonus cost and still reduce taxes.

Washington—Senator James Couzens of Michigan has returned to his Washington home from the John Hopkins hospital at Baltimore, where he underwent an operation recently.

Washington — President Coolidge and senate republican leaders will confer to decide whether senate action on American world court membership should be attempted before adjournment of congress.

Washington—An investigation into charges against Federal Judge William E. Baker of the northern West Virginia district, was authorized by the house when it passed a resolution directing such an inquiry.

Washington—The legislative appropriation bill, the last of the annual supply measures to be drafted, was reported by the house appropriations committee. It carries $14,714,661, of which $6,306,648 would be for house expenses, $2,470,759 for the senate, $1,127,000 for general expenses at the capitol.

Domestic

Lakehurst, N. J.—The navy dirigible Shenandoah made its first flight since the ship tore loose from its mooring mast Jan. 16.

New York—James M. Cox, former Ohio governor and democratic presidential nominee, said the forthcoming presidential campaign would be waged around two issues.

San Francisco—Lieutenant Ervine R. Brown, U. S. N. Supply corps, must return to San Diego to face trial by courtmartial for embezzlement of $120,000 of navy funds, a board of inquiry at Mare Island having decided he is sane.

Los Angeles—The home built at Arcadia, near here, for Prince Eric of Denmark, and his bride, formerly Miss Lois Booth, is ready for occupancy by the young couple whenever they arrive from their honeymoon, which is expected to be within a week or two.

Atlanta—A resolution designed to put the Southern Baptist convention on record as unalterably opposed to modernism, or to anything, called science, that questions, discredits or denies fundamental doctrines of the Old and New testaments was presented to the convention by Dr. R. K. Maiden of Kansas City.

Trenton, N. J.—The "old grads" of Princeton university issued a plea for the abolition of all intoxicating liquors from alumni reunions to be held here next month. The plea was in accordance with action by various alumni gatherings representing all classes since 1890.

Boston—The Roosevelt Newsboys' Association has received one cent each from Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York and William J. Bryan, as their contributions to the penny fund which is being raised to present to Mrs. Harding a statute of Laddie Boy, the White House dog during the Harding administration.

Seattle—Because the United States controls the world's supply of helium, the airship Shenandoah can reach the North Pole before the craft of any other nation, in the opinion of Captain Robert A. Bartlett, arctic explorer, and a passenger on the United States coast guard cutter Bear. The Bear left for its 36th annual cruise in the arctic.

Chicago—The National Livestock Producers Association announced the organization of the Producers' Livestock Credit Corporation, a corporation organized under the general co-operative law of the state of Illinois with a capital stock of $40,000, and designed to make available a new line of credit to feeders of livestock in Missouri, Iowa, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

San Diego—Juan de la Cruz Pipo, said to be 110 years old, is dead at the Conejo Indian reservation, near Alpine, San Diego county, according to word received here. One of his two sons said Juan never ate flesh of domestic animals or vegetables such as grown by white men and always arose at 4:30 a. m. and took a bath in a cold stream. Until a few years ago he could run up steep trails like a young man.

Boston—The Unitarian Ministerial union, at its annual meeting here, heard the result of a ballot taken among its members by mail on a resolution condemning war, showing that out of 225 ballots cast on this and other questions, 91 favored the resolution, 87 were against it, 36 did not vote on the question and 11 ballots were void. The union has a total membership of 468.

The first bath tub in America was exhibited by Adam Thompson at Cincinnatti in 1842. It was supplied with water from a tank in the attic and was strongly denounced as injurious to health.

An officer in a large Chicago savings bank said recently that since Mayor Dever started his drastic crusade against the sale of liquor in the city, his institution alone has registered 10,000 new savings account. Money talks, in this instance it preaches.

GREAT NORTHERN AN OLD CITIZEN

The States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana contain more than eight hundred billion feet of standing timber. There were cut from this timber and shipped over the lines of the Great Northern in the year 1923, one billion three hundred million feet of lumber, and these shipments are increasing from year to year.

The Great Northern is one of your oldest citizens. The original ten miles between St. Paul and Minneapolis were built in 1862. This was the first railroad in Minnesota. It continued to grow and develop new territory as it proceeded until now it serves the Northwest with over eight thousand miles of road. It brings the whole Northwest as far as the Pacific Coast to world markets and world markets to the Northwest. It provides also luxurious, modern passenger train service by which all the world may travel to the Northwest and the Northwest may travel to all the world.

The Great Northern is a desirable, dependable, pay-as-you-go citizen.

It paid, in 1923, to the 35,645. men and women who were engaged in its service $56,270,922, in salaries and wages. It paid, in 1923, for materials and supplies $56,662,850, every dollar of which, so far as practicable, was expended in Great Northern territory to support local industry. Its taxes for the year 1923 were $9,113,226.

It paid, in 1923, to its 12,129 employees in Minnesota, for salaries and wages $18,864,138.

The value of its property in Minnesota, according to findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is $106,964,376. Its taxes in Minnesota for the year 1923 were $2,340,638.

The Great Northern knows that your interests are bound up with its own. For better or worse it is an inseparable part of your community

Does not this great institution, a worthy citizen in every essential relation, merit your confidence and patronage because it is giving you efficient service and loyal cooperation?

Louis W. Hill
Chairman of the Board.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593. times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

"I AM AN ACTRESS"

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by 'phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor.

"He said that 'they' met him and followed him and attacked him. They wanted the papers that he was supposed to carry. But he did not carry them. His—employer—would give them only into 'her' hands. You must bring her to get them. She would be rich—exceedingly rich—and able to fight for her rights. You must bring her at once, either by the way you know or by the way explained in the packet. Once more he repeated his plea for haste—and died." The doctor turned to Miss Grant. "Does your recollection agree with mine, Miss Grant?" he asked.

Edith nodded. "Yes," she said; "exactly."

Archman's jaws hardened. "And they got the papers," he muttered. "How could they? How could they have known that Akin was expected?" Archman's eyes swept suspiciously over all in the room.

"I don't know." The doctor's voice had taken on a tinge of indignation. "Perhaps they overheard Miss Grant talking to your secretary on the telephone. The line is a party one and has half a dozen other telephones on it. What she said might have been overheard at any one of them."

Archman glanced toward the door. Then his secretary pulled him by the arm and he bent to listen. "Eh! What!" he shouted. "You mean that this is the woman?" He glanced at Edith. "You're sure?"

Akin nodded. "Yes; I'm sure," he declared.

Archman glared at the girl. "So!" he grated. "So it is a plant. I might have guessed."

Edith blanched. "What—what do you mean?" she gasped.

"Mean?" Archman laughed hoarsely. "I guess you know what I mean. You're in with them, too. You think you'll beat me, do you, miss? Well, you won't. Tell your employer that, miss!"

"Are you mad?" The doctor strode forward.

"Ask her whether I'm mad. Ask her whether she isn't the acting woman who snared my son, Harry. Ask her if she wasn't sent down here to finish her work? Ask her!"

Edith stepped forward. Except for two red spots that burned in her cheeks, her face was white. "Yes!" she said. "I am an actress. But I have not tried to snare your son, Harry. I have tried to avoid him. But this is my house. And as long as you are beneath its roof, I must ask you to treat me with respect. If you cannot do that, I must ask you to go."

CHAPTER III

One Way to Break In.

A year before the day on which the mysterious Morbach had met his mysterious death, Henry Archman had moved his family from Chicago to New York.

He did not want to leave Chicago. He had lived in the Lake city all his life, and he had spread his roots deep. His father, reputed to be well connected in his native land, Denmark, had brought him and his mother to the western metropolis fifty years before, and had opened a small grocery store, which many years later Henry Archman had expanded into the enormous meat-packing business of Archman & Company.

Henry Archman was sober, industrious, hard working, fond and proud of the country in which he had lived nearly all his life. He was perfectly happy, having everything he wanted—plenty of work and power over men and things. Like many another man, however, he was the victim of his family. He fought as long as he could against their desire to move to New York, but yielded at last.

Each of the family had his or her own reasons for wanting to migrate. Mrs. Archman, for instance, wanted to break into the Four Hundred and ultimately into the aristocracy of the Old world. She hoped to marry her daughters off to dukes, earls, or counts. Her daughter, Nellie, was not keen on titles, but she did want to meet eastern men. Her son, Harry, said he wanted to get a larger outlook on life, by which he meant that he wanted to find out if the Great White Way was as bad as it was painted. Her youngest daughter, Bessie, wanted to go because she was seventeen and liked anything that was new. When they all insisted, Archman surrendered. He moved to New York, bought a marble palace on Fifth avenue and another up on the Hudson.

He had long contemplated the opening of a New York branch, and two days after he reached Manhattan he had opened an office and had settled himself in it as firmly as if he had been there all his life. The fact that he had left Chicago did not mean at all that he had stopped building up his business. In fact, once he had gotten the New York branch to running smoothly he began to plan to get control of the meat supply that was beginning to come in from Argentina. Soon he determined to divert some of his transatlantic steamships to that part of the world. He selected one of his cattle boats, the El Rio, and sent her to the Ontario docks to be overhauled and fitted up with passenger accommodations, announcing that he was going to Argentina on it to open up the business. Day after day, accompanied by his daughter, Nellie, he visited the basin to see how the work was coming on. He paid little attention to his family's social progress.

Meanwhile Mrs. Archman was storming the social citadel. To aid her, she had unlimited millions, two handsome daughters, a good-looking son, and a somewhat vague claim, on her husband's side, to an aristocratic Danish ancestry.

Bess, the younger daughter, being a hearty, healthy American girl, made much good-natured fun of her mother's social aspirations. Continually she chaffed the elder lady, a mode of attack which Mrs. Archman took in good part and even enjoyed.

Early in the evening of the day when Morbach came to his death Mrs. Archman bustled in the parlor of her big country house, where her daughters were whiling away the time till dinner should be served. She was smiling happily, so happily that Bess noticed it. "What's up, mumsy?" She laughed. "Has Mrs. Van Astorbilt thrown open the doors of the Four Hundred to you?"

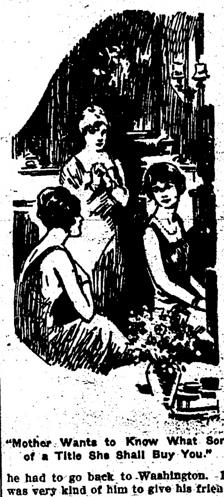
Mrs. Archman blushed. Then she laughed guiltily. "Not Mrs. Van Astorbilt," she answered. "Maybe she'll be next. This letter is from Lord George Caruthers."

Bess snickered. "Hail to Lord George!" she cried. "Who is he when he is at home?"

"He's an Englishman," explained Mrs. Archman. "He incloses a letter of introduction from Sir Butler Brayne."

"And who's Sir Butler Brayne, mumsy? Another face card?"

"I met him at Mrs. Paxton's three months ago. He is engaged to Marjorie Paxton, you know. He's an attache of the British embassy in Washington. I asked him to visit us, but he had to go back to Washington. It was very kind of him to give his friend a letter of introduction to us."



"Mother Wants to Know What Sort of a Title She Shall Buy You."

"Kind? Is that what you call it? Oh! Mumsy, mumsy! Where is your western independence! Perhaps he might do for Nellie, eh, mumsy? No! No! We can buy something better than a mere baronet, even one with prospects!" The girl swung around in her seat. "Say, Nellie!" she called. "Wake up! We're talking about you. Do you want to consider baronets or need only earls apply?"

A girl who was playing softly at the piano turned toward the others. She was tall and fair, with a mass of chestnut hair and a pair of sweet, gray eyes—the sort of girl that is likely to cause trouble among the young men in the neighborhood in which she dwells. "What is it, Bess?" she asked.

The younger girl groaned. "Oh! Wake up and stop mooning," she cried. "Mother wants to know what sort of a title she shall buy you."

Mrs. Archman flushed. "Stop, Bess!" she exclaimed. "You're getting hopelessly vulgar. There's no question about buying anybody. But I do want you to know the right people."

Bess had an answer ready. Bess always did have an answer ready for anything and everything.

This time Nellie forestalled her. "But who are the right people, mother?" she asked. "Are they men who have inherited things? Or are they men—splendid Americans—who are making their own way in the world with nothing but their own hands to help them? That's the sort of man I should like to meet and marry; that I should like to stand shoulder to shoulder with."

"Good heavens!" Bess flung up her hands in pretended horror. "And this from her royal highness, Princess Nellie!" she cried. "Say, Nellie, confide in your own little sister. She won't give you away. Where did you meet him?"

Nellie did not answer. As if repenting of her outburst, she had turned back to the piano and was again fingering the keys. She thus missed seeing the expression that had appeared on Mrs. Archman's face.

That poor lady had indeed been stricken with horror. Every word that Nellie had uttered was heresy in her eyes. Her ambitions for her girls were boundless, especially for Nellie, who from her earliest days had been dainty and queenly beyond compare. That Nellie might fall in love with a poor man had never entered her mind. Bess might do it, but Nellie—oh!—it passed belief.

Desperately she rose. "Where is your father?" she stammered. "He's late. Dinner's ready, and he's not here!"

"He isn't far away." Bess had noticed her mother's dismay, and she hastened to the rescue. "I think I hear him coming. Listen!"

Afar, the siren shriek of an automobile split the air.

"Uh-huh!" said Bess. "That's him. And if I can read auto language, he's mad. Who's done anything? Have you, Harry?"

The tall, slight youth of twenty-one, who had just entered the room, flushed uneasily. "I don't know what you mean!" he protested.

"I don't, either," Bess laughed. "But we'll find out soon. Let's look and see our doom approaching." She ran to the window and stared down the drive that led from the great gateway. "What'd I tell you?" she demanded, as she saw a big auto plunging toward the house. It needed no expert to see that the man who drove it was furious.

Scarcely waiting to stop the engine he leaped out and hastened up the steps to the house. His face was grim.

Bess, however, ran to meet him. Bess was the one member of the household who was not in the least afraid of Mr. Archman. Others might pretend not to be, but their pretense was always hollow. Bess, on the other hand, never seemed to realize that she had any reason to be afraid.

It followed, naturally, that she never did have any reason to be so. It followed, also, that Archman was fonder far of her than he was of any other living creature, fonder even than he was of his wife, who, though strong-willed enough with every one else, was humble and obedient with her husband. Bess could twist the stubborn old man around her little finger.

She met him at the top of the steps. "Hello, pops!" she cried, teeth flashing, cheeks flaming, hair flying. "Hello, pops! What's it all about?"

Archman's face relaxed. An apology for a smile curved the corners of his mouth. "About six-thirty," he answered gruffly. "Time for dinner. Where's your brother?"

"Harry?" The girl planted a butterfly kiss on her father's cheek. "Poor Harry! What's he done now?"

"None of your business, miss. Send him to my study instantly."

"Won't after dinner do, dads?" the girl pleaded. "Dinner's ready and you men are always so worked up until you're fed! Wait until after dinner, won't you?"

"No, I won't!" Mr. Archman turned. "Here, James, George, whatever your name is, tell my son I want him at once. At once. Understand?"

James, George—whatever his name was—fled with a mumbled "Yessir," and Archman plunged into his study and slammed the door behind him.

Five minutes later Harry Archman followed him. Harry was slight of build, and shy of manner. One who sought might trace a resemblance between his features and those of the older man, but the expressions of the two were so different that few would have guessed that they were father and son. Moreover, the boy was clearly afraid of the man.

"You wanted to see me, father?" he questioned.

Who has impersonated Akin? And why? And why is Archman so excited over the situation?

Why Blinks Had to Reach Home on Schedule Time

Promptly as the office clock struck five Blinks with unusual rapidity prepared to start for home.

As he hustled into his overcoat and made for the door his desk mate raised a surprised head. "What!" he said. "In a hurry again tonight? It's six nights now you've rushed home like this and haven't waited for a soda at the old stand. I'm beginning to think I've offended you, or something like that."

"No," Blinks laughed. "You haven't hurt my sensitive soul, but the fact is this, we've got a cook up at the house now, and while the missus didn't mind my rolling in late the cook won't stay unless I arrive every evening on time."

All practicality has to be tempered with humanity.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Hibbing—Hundreds of dollars of damage was done to Hibbing gardens when a killing frost hit here.

Virginia—The second reunion of Virginia pioneers, commemorating the big fire of 1893, will be conducted June 15, it has been announced. J. Adam Bede, pioneer newspapers editor, will deliver the principal address.

Rochester—The majority of the pure bred Holstein dairy cattle sold here at the annual sale of the Holstein Breeders' association were bought by farmers from Olmsted county. The 50 cows sold for nearly $10,000.

Detroit—On June 19, 20 and 21, Detroit will entertain representatives of the League of Minnesota Municipalities at their annual convention. It is expected that more than 175 communities in the state will be represented.

Detroit—The ban against Sunday movies in Detroit will be continued as the result of the election here at which time the matter was submitted to the voters. The proposition to permit moving pictures to operate on Sunday was defeated 820 to 457.

St. Paul—Senator Robert M LaFollette declared he will have nothing to do with the so-called third party convention at St. Paul June 17. He asked his friends to stay away, giving his reason the participation in the St. Paul convention of communist organizations.

Wabasha—The 1924 wool pool, under direction of the Minnesota Cooperative Wool Marketing association will center here, officers of the organization having made a contract by which facilities of the Wabasha wool warehouse become available to members. R. E. Jones of Wabasha is sales manager.

Detroit—Thirty-nine spellers, champions of their respective districts, competed for the county championship here and when the smoke of spent syllables had cleared away, Evelyn Erickson of district No. 2 and Anna Parker of district No. 112 were declared winners. They will compete in the state contest at the State Fair next fall.

Rochester—Deputy Game Warden Rex. R. Robinson has in his possession a strange creature caught by a fisherman. Some call it a mud puppy but others call it a salamander. It has gills like a fish, but it also has pronounced ears, eyes with eyelids on them and other evidences of being an animal. It has four little feet but when placed on the ground it squirmed along like a snake.

Fairmont—August Rosenberger, a farmer near the Iowa-Minnesota line, running a farm of 300 acres, has practically solved the labor problem by a system of rotation that is attracting a good deal of attention among farmers in his neighborhood. Dividing his land into five tracts. Rosenberger starts a field with soy beans, following with corn the second year, oats and red clover the third year, with sweet clover alternating in half the field, and other crops in the other two fields.

Crookston—A movement is under way to establish a branch of the Glacier Park trail from Fergus Falls to Winnipeg. At present the trail is established via Fargo and Minot to Glacier Park and the feasibility of a branch through the Red River valley to the Manitoba metropolis is being urged. The proposed line would follow closely the Great Northern railway north of Crookston until Winnipeg is reached.

Bemidji—Elmer E. McDonald, a former member of the state Legislature and vice-president of the state bar association dropped dead at the summer home on Lake Bemidji. Mr. McDonald had practiced law here the last 22 years of his life, also having a St. Paul practice until 1912. He was a former county attorney of Beltrami county and had been active in arranging the affairs of the Minnesota State Bar association convention, which will be held in Bemidji in June.

Minneapolis—Four-fifths interest in the Corn Exchange and a similar interest in the Flour Exchange, separate properties, are to be included in William Henry Eustis' gift to Minnesota's needy, crippled children, and the gift, when Mr. Eustis fulfills his $1,000,000 endowment pledge, will be increased by $500,000. By Jan. 1, 1925, Mr Eustis, former Minneapolis mayor, will have given to the cause of the needy, crippled children substantially all of his physical property, amassed in 43 years of productive business activity, including liquid assets and loop district real estate, aggregating a value of more than $1,000,000. His gift, in the form of a trust to the University of Minnesota and a site on which now is being built the Michael Dowling school, will be 50 per cent larger than his original agreement.

Fertile—At a recent drive for members the Fertile Legion post added 111 new names, making a total membership of 172 members.

Detroit—The third annual state historical conference is to be conducted here June 20 and 21, with a program of exceptional interest.

Stephen—Two rocks, one weighing 150 pounds, were placed on the Great Northern tracks north of here, evidently for the purpose of wrecking the southbound passenger train. The largest rock was hurled 150 feet by the locomotive, which held the rails, but lurched violently.

Hibbing—Holstein breeders of St. Louis county will meet in Hibbing June 14.

Worthington — John Levine, who came to Nobles county in 1882 and has since resided here, celebrated his 100th birthday at his home here.

Austin—Owatonna was awarded the 1925 convention of the Central Baptist Young People's union at the close of its 1924 session here.

Owatonna—Owatonna may have a junior college, providing two years of college study under college requirements, as the result of action taken at the annual meeting of the Owatonna High School Alumni association.

Duluth—Seventeen forms of ballots will be used at the primary election of state and county tickets because of the number of districts, Walter H. Borgen, county auditor, stated.

Mankato—The J. B. Nelson Construction company of this city has been awarded the general contract for the construction of the new Plainview high shocol building, which is expected to cost about $175,000.

Rochester—Glencoe was chosen as the next meeting place of the Minnesota Holstein-Fresian association at the meeting of that body here. Officers of the organization were not chosen at this time.

Marshall—The Ghent Co-operative Creamery company has commenced operations in that village. The new company has more than 100 shareholders and holds contracts for the cream from 1,000 cows.

Grand Rapids—An eight months old registered Guernsey owned by A. L. Sheldon of Sheldon's Guernsey farm of this place, was sold at Chicago for the sum of $1,025. The heifer was sold to Hynicka brothers of Lebanon, Pa.

Long Prairie—The 21st annual convention of the Sixth District Bankers association convened here. A feature of the program was an address on the state's resources by State Auditor Ray P. Chase. The visitors were tendered a banquet by the bankers.

Jackson—Because of the cool weather and the large amount of farm work that is yet to be done, attorneys interested in cases on the calendar on the district court here agreed that all jury cases should be continued and Judge Dean dismissed the jury, a number of whom were farmers.

Eveleth—Tito Muscatelli, son of Mr. and Mrs. Liberio Muscatelli, has been notified of his appointment to West Point from this district. He was recommended by the Associated Italian Americanization clubs of the range and sponsored by Congressman O. J. Larson of the eighth congressional district.

Slayton—The final reading made in the area test for tuberculosis which just has been completed in Murray county shows the infection to be but 4.4 per cent. This is about 3.5 per cent less than was estimated before the test began. In all 45,989 head of cattle were given the test for tuberculosis.

Albert Lea—Preparations are being made by members of the local Travelers' council and local business men for the entertainment of delegates and visitors to the thirty-first annual convention of the grand council of the Minnesota-North Dakota district of the United Commercial Travelers of America. The convention is to be held here on Friday and Saturday, June 10 and 11.

Rochester—A. F. Nelson, of this city, refused an offer of $500 for a tree which he claims is the only specimen of its kind in the country. While on a visit to Denmark, his native land, Mr. Nelson got some sprouts of the European birch, which he says grows to a height of 400 feet. He carried the small sprouts carefully on his return and has been tending them faithfully ever since.

Minneapolis—A total of $10,000,000 of rural credit bonds of the state of Minnesota were sold, in the largest single sale ever conducted by the Minnesota Rural Credit bureau, to a syndicate headed by the First National bank in Minneapolis. Other members of the syndicate were the First National bank of New York, Lehman Bros., and the Hayden-Stone company. The two last corporations are New York investment houses.

Bemidji—Seeking refuge in a dense swamp near the home of his father, Dan Glick, 19 years old, was found by Sheriff Julius R. Johnson and deputies five miles west of here and arrested as being implicated in the shooting of Charles Runyan, Bemidji taxicab driver, who was lured by a fake call into the country and shot. Runyan, who is at the Lutheran hospital here, is improving and has a good chance for recovery.

Mankato—Mankato will be host to three conventions during June and members of the local Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations, including local dentists, dry goods men and firemen, are preparing for their entertainment. The Southern Minnesota Dental society will hold its convention June 5, 6 and 7. June 18 and 19 the Minnesota Retail Dry Goods association will hold its annual meeting. June 10 and 11 the Minnesota State Firemen's association is expected to bring between 500 and 600 visiting firemen to the city for Mankato's biggest convention of the year.

Owatonna — Southern Minnesota county agents closed a two-day meeting here. Various phases of the problems confronting the farmers of the northwest were discussed both days.

Hamel—A youthful lone bandit held up and robbed the cashier of the State Bank of Hamel of between $1,200 and $1,300. The bandit sauntered about outside the cage and then walking over to the window drew a gun and commanded Miss Larson to "stick 'em up." Keeping her covered the bandit strolled around inside the cage and scooped up all the money in the cash drawer.

SICK WOMAN MADE HAPPY

Entirely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mart, Texas.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up as I was all run-down, nervous and sick. I ached and hurt all over so that I was often compelled to go to bed, and I had to have most of my work done. No medicine seemed to help me until one of my neighbors who was taking the Vegetable Compound insisted on me trying a bottle of it. The medicine helped me from the first, and the best of all is that I can even sew again without that awful, nervous feeling I was used to having. And I used to take crying spells, with such a blue feeling that I cannot explain. Now all that has left me. I feel so cheerful, and I have gained in weight, sleep well and eat hearty. Oh! I wish I had words to express what this medicine has done for me! I am a housekeeper and do everything from the sewing to the washing now and it doesn't hurt me. You may use my letter in any way you wish. I will be glad to help any suffering woman to the road of health and happiness."—Mrs. B. F. BRANNON, 404 Travis Ave., Mart, Texas.

Teaching Kindness

Preparations are in progress by the Oregon Humane society to make effective a law enacted by the recent state legislature which provides that each public school of Oregon shall devote fifteen minutes of the school day to the instruction of children on the subject of kindness to dumb animals.

Senator Walsh of Montana said in New York the other day:

"Warlike states hate one another because they see their own faults reflected in one another. It's like the Washington-Jefferson story.

"'Look-a-yere,' said Washington, as he slammed his cards down on the table, 'dat's twice yo's called me, Jefferson! If yo' don't know no mo' dan to confuse me with dat bow-legged, flat-footed, hard-lipped no 'count colored man, Jefferson, why, we'll stop de game right now!'

"'Ah axes yere pardon, Washington,' said the other player. 'Ah sure axes yere pardon, sah. End of National Debt

Secretaries of the treasuries of the United States and of Colombia living in 2924 will have the pleasant task of paying off the national debts of their countries without asking the citizens to dig up a cent—that is, provided the Banco Mercantil of Bogota or a successor is ready to come across with the $5,574,523,952,30 that will theoretically be due to the United States and Colombia under the terms of a deposit of $10 recently made in that bank by Henry G. Granger of Bogota to encourage the spirit of thrift. The contract between the bank and the depositor calls for the payment of compound interest at the prevailing rate for 1,000 years, when the total is to be split fifty-fifty between the United States and Colombia.

A Similarity

"Well, sir, I was reading last night about a feller, over there in Europe, som'rs, that held his hand in the flame of a lamp until it was burnt off," related Tobe Sagg of Sandy Mush. "He didn't flinch nor change expression while it was burning, neither."

"H'm!" returned the acquaintance addressed. "That's just the way I do when my wife gives me a raking—hold still and don't flinch. If she seed it hurt she would go right on for half the night."

Before marriage a man yearns for a woman; after marriage he earns for her.

Age 31 Has Tragic Meaning for Average Man or Woman

U. S. Life Tables show health span extends only from 18 to 31—Earnings fall off rapidly after 40

Physical freedom and full vigor—what are they worth to you? This is a question the average American can answer from his own bitter experience—for at age 31 the average American begins to slip. After 40 his earning power drops off rapidly. These appalling facts are shown by the United States Life Tables, 1920.

Age 31! The age at which men and women should be entering their period of greatest usefulness and happiness! The beginning of the supposed "prime of life."

Not the prime of life. The age of decay! What causes contribute to this fearful condition?

Unwise eating. Sleeplessness. The loading of the body with drug stimulants, which appear to give added energy, but actually borrow this energy from the body's own reserve.

Every school child is taught to avoid stimulants. Most mothers enforce the no-coffee rule for children. Then comes maturity—and the squandering of the reserve strength which the body has stored up. Figures show that the average American is able to stand the pace just 13 years. Then, with half his life yet before him, he hits the down grade.

Medical literature classifies caffein as a poison. Like strychnin, it is sometimes by doctors given in cases of heart failure. The average cup of coffee contains the usual dose of caffein administered in these cases.

Coffee contributes no nourishment to the body. Its only virtues, as a beverage, are its warmth and flavor. A hot, appetizing, drugless drink is a benefit with every meal.

People in 2,000,000 American homes enjoy such a drink in Postum. A drink with the rich, mellow, full flavor and fragrance of roasted whole wheat and bran—flavor which people in 2,000,000 homes like better than any other.

Try Postum for thirty days—you can't expect to rid yourself of the effect of a habit of years in a day or two. Know that you are enjoying a drink which contributes, rather than robs, reserve strength. We will give you—free—a full week's supply of Postum to start you on your thirty-day test.

Ask for either Postum Cereal (the kind you boil) or Instant Postum, the easiest drink in the world to prepare. Either kind costs less than most other hot drinks. SHOALS WOULD BE GIFT TO FORD

Manufacturer's Bid and Administration's Attitude Denounced in Norris Report

Washington—Henry Ford's Muscle Shoals bid and the attitude of the administration towards it are denounced in vigorous terms in the majority report of the senate agriculture committee which at the same time recommends enactment of the amended Norris bill for government ownership and supervision.

The report, drafted by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, chairman of the committee, makes repeated reference to what it terms Mr. Ford's withdrawal as a candidate for president and his decision to support President Coolidge and assails in particular the plan to replace in the properties the Gorgas steam plant sold to the Alabama Power company for $3,472,482.

The house bill, the report says, carries out the idea of the president in reference to the sale of the Gorgas plant and directs the secretary of war to construct a steam power plant of 40,000 horsepower in Warrior river, on which the Gorgas plant is situated, upon land to be obtained by purchase or condemnation and to purchase or condemn a right of way therefrom to Muscle Shoals and turn it over to the Ford corporation.

Propaganda favoring Ford's bid, the report says, has been spread over the country from two quarters—one centering in real estate speculation and the other being directed to the farmers who, it asserts, have been led to believe that definite assurance has been given that the price of fertilizer will be cut in half if Ford gets Muscle Shoals.

The Washington representative of one of the largest farm organizations in the United States has been from the very beginning actively engaged in spreading this propaganda, the report alleges, adding that "while drawing a salary from the farmers of America, he is carefully feeding them deceptive literature tending to mislead them into Mr. Ford's camp."

N. D. OIL TAX CASE UP SOON

Standard Oil Objects To Computation Methods.

Bismarck, N. D.,—Hearing may be held in federal court before Judge Andrew Miller soon in the law suit involving the efforts of the state to collect about $75,000 additional income tax from the Standard Oil company of Indiana, according to C. C. Converse, state tax commissioner.

The present state tax commissioner reviewed the Standard Oil company's income tax reports for 1919, 1920 and 1921, when the tax was assessed by the state tax commissioner's office when George E. Wallace, who served as tax commissioner under Lynn J. Frazier as governor. The present state tax commissioner holds that the oil company assessments were too low.

The distinction which is to be the bone of contention in the courts is that the Standard Oil company claimed that the amount of income which the state can reach is determined by subtracting the wholesale price of the gasoline at the refineries from the retail price in North Dakota, while the state tax commissioner claims that the proper method of computing the income on which the tax is levied, is by subtracting from the sales price the actual cost to the Standard Oil company of refining the gasoline. The difference is approximately $75,000 in income tax.

The state tax commissioner proceeded to assess the tax on this basis, and the Standard Oil company brought suit to enjoin collection. Several state officials were named defendants.

HOUSE TO ADJOURN SATURDAY

LaFollette Leads Fight To Have Congress Resume July 9.

Washington—While the house was voting Monday to adjourn Saturday, Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, opened a fight to have congress resume its sessions after the national political conventions.

The Wisconsin senator, leader of the insurgent group, introduced a resolution under which a recess would be taken until July 9, after which a specific agricultural and transportation program would be embarked upon.

Senator LaFollette's resolution, proposed a substitute for the routine adjournment measure already prepared by administration leaders, recited statistics which, he said, showed "conclusive evidence of alarming conditions in the agricultural states."

WHIPPING BOSS GETS NEW TRIAL

Florida Supreme Court Reverses Decision in Tabert Case

Tallahassee, Fla.—Thomas W. Higginbotham, convicted "whipping boss" who was convicted in circuit court here last July of second degree murder, and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment as an outgrowth of the death of Martin Tabert, of North Dakota, was granted a new trial in a decision handed down Saturday by the Florida supreme court, reversing the lower court.

The supreme court held that the circuit judge erred in granting a change of venue for the trial from Dixon county to Columbia county, on motion by the state and over the defense objection without first having made an actual test as to whether it practically was impossible to procure an impartial jury in Dixon county.

Higginbotham was convicted July 27 last, on an indictment charging him with having caused the death of Tabert as the result of a beating administered while the North Dakotan was serving a term in the Putnam Lumber company's convict camp, where Tabert had been sent from Leon county for three months for beating his way on a freight train. Following his conviction, counsel for Higginbotham appealed the case to the supreme court alleging that 38 errors were made by the circuit court in trying the case.

Tabert's death in the Dixie county lumber camp in February, 1922, resulted in an investigation of the whole convict leasing system of Florida and its abolishment by the state legislature at its 1923 session.

That body also prohibited corporal punishment, substituting the so-called solitary confinement cell. The investigation of the case followed adoption by the senate of North Dakota of a memorial asking the Florida law makers to look into the case.

PROTEST IN FRIENDLY TONE

State Department Offers No Comment In Presenting Note To Public

Washington.—Japan's "solemn protest" against the exclusion section of the new immigration law was formally presented to Secretary Hughes Saturday by Ambassador Hanihara, and was made public by the state department without comment.

Coupled with the protest is the request of the Japanese government that the American government "take all possible and suitable measures" for removal of "discrimination."

The communication declares international discriminations are particularly "unwelcome" when "based on race" and adds that discriminations of that character is expressed in the exclusion statute.

The history of commercial agreements between the two countries, it is declared, shows that the Japanese government has sought to protect its nationals from "discriminatory immigration legislation in the United States," which position was "fully understood and appreciated by the American government."

"The Japanese government desire now to point out," says the note, "that the new legislation is in entire disregard of the spirit and circumstances that underlie the conclusion of the treaty (of 1911)."

It is added that the provisions of the new law "have made it impossible for Japan to continue the undertakings assumed under the gentlemen's agreement."

At the end Ambassador Hanihara appended the following paragraph:

"I am instructed further to express the confidence that this communication will be received by the American government in the same spirit of friendliness and candor in which it is made."

MAKE ANOTHER BIG JUMP

American World Flight Planes Arrive at Kushimoto

Tokio.—The American army around the world fliers reached Kushimoto, on the southern end of the main island of Japan at 10:32 Sunday morning. They made the 350 mile flight from Kasumigaura, 50 miles north of Tokio, which point they left at 6:07, in 4 hours and 25 minutes.

When leaving here the flyers planned to stop at Kushimoto, at the southern end of the main island of Japan merely to take on fuel, continuing their journey to Kagoshima on the southern island of Kyushu. From Kasumigaura to Kushimoto is 350 miles and a similar distance faces the fliers between that port and Kyushu landing place.

Ace Flies Through Ship's Hanger

Lakehurst, N. J.—Lieut. Al Williams, navy airplane speed king, thrilled 100,000 spectators at the naval air station aerial circus when he flew his plane at a speed of 100 miles an hour through the Shenandoah's mammoth hanger, Saturday. Shooting through the door opening 100 feet wide Lieut. Williams held the crowd in breathless suspense the brief moment he was out of sight until his plane came gracefully from the other end of the great shed. Williams skimmed the floor with only fifty feet to spare.

Discoverer of Tut's Tomb Searched for Many Years

Back of all the news about that prominent Egyptian ruler, Tut-Ankh-Amen, has been the unceasing effort of Howard Carter, who spent 30 years searching for the tomb of the monarch now known to the civilized world far better than any other king that ever held the scepter in the Nile valley. Americans played a large part in the eventual discovery of the great archeological treasure unearthed by the English Egyptologist, which lends a peculiar interest to his visit here. The thoughtless who look merely at the results of such long, tedious and costly hunts as that for the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen fail to take into consideration the heroic patience that is willing to spend a lifetime without any certainty of a final reward, such as came to Mr. Carter, when he opened the unlooted tomb.

Doubtful Compliment

Children often understand the purpose of remarks which they chance to overhear, especially if made concerning them, though the literal meaning of the words may not be grasped. This, evidently, had been the case with Martha, the four-year-old daughter of C. A. Jewett, for after he had offered thanks at dinner one evening recently, Martha unfolded her small hands, and, looking up to mother with about as much of admiration and affection as a child's face could express, and plainly wishing to say something nice of daddy, made this rather unexpected comment: "Mother, isn't daddy a perfect little devil?"

"This goof sold his home and moved away," said the chief, "and we all thought it was because his wife had died. I met him on the street the other day and asked him why he'd moved, and the fish replied:

"'I'm going to get married again, and I had to beat a fireman and a policeman to the wire to do it. A fire-station's no good neighborhood decoration after an experience like that.'"

And now Chief Oilre thinks the firemen have been slandered.—Houston Post.

Profit in "Waste"

France is putting to use the seeds and skins of grapes, converting them into seed oil and seed cakes, in which form they find a ready sale. It is asserted that it makes a satisfactory substitute for castor oil in the lubrication of high-speed internal combustion engines, and that the cakes and silage of wine, residue, including both skins and seeds, are useful as stock feed. Last year a seed-crushing plant at Perpignan, Pyrenees-Orientales, carried on profitable operations, and it is said that at least one additional factory of this kind will be placed in operation in the wine region.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignee of the Mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Clarence Larson and Bertha Larson, his wife, Mortgagors, to Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated October 11th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, A. D., 1919, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 152.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment dated October 25th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of October, A. D., 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 98 of Mortgages, on page 580.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Paul Kemp, by written assignment, dated November 25th, A. D., 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 284.

And whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Four Hundred Fifty-one and 54-100 Dollars ($451.54) and the first half of the taxes for the year 1923 amounting to Forty-nine and 15-100 Dollars ($49.15); and whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.00), with accumulated interest from the 11th day of October, 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid, as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Fifteen (15), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 22nd day of July, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $500.09 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated as attorneys fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated May 31st, 1924.

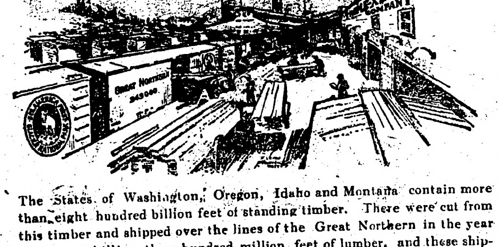
GREAT NORTHERN AN OLD CITIZEN



The States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana contain more than eight hundred billion feet of standing timber. There were cut from this timber and shipped over the lines of the Great Northern in the year 1923, one billion three hundred million feet of lumber, and these shipments are increasing from year to year.

The Great Northern is one of your oldest citizens. The original ten miles between St. Paul and Minneapolis were built in 1862. This was the first railroad in Minnesota. It continued to grow and develop new territory as it proceeded until now it serves the Northwest with over eight thousand miles of road. It brings the whole Northwest as far as the Pacific Coast to world markets and world markets to the Northwest. It provides also luxurious, modern passenger train service by which all the world may travel to the Northwest and the Northwest may travel to all the world.

The Great Northern is a desirable, dependable, pay-as-you-go citizen.

It paid, in 1923, to the 35,645 men and women who were engaged in its service $56,270,922, in salaries and wages. It paid, in 1923, for materials and supplies $56,662,850, every dollar of which, so far as practicable, was expended in Great Northern territory to support local industry. Its taxes for the year 1923 were $9,113,226.

It paid, in 1923, to its 12,129 employees in Minnesota, for salaries and wages $18,864,138.

The value of its property in Minnesota, according to findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is $106,964,376. Its taxes in Minnesota for the year 1923 were $2,340,638.

The Great Northern knows that your interests are bound up with its own. For better or worse it is an inseparable part of your community.

Does not this great institution, a worthy citizen in every essential relation, merit your confidence and patronage because it is giving you efficient service and loyal cooperation?

Louis W. Hill
Chairman of the Board.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25 00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Under the terms of the new electric light contract for the village, the latter retains all tittle to the present property for twenty years and then vote to turn the line over to the distributing company, but the village keeps all other property, such as the building, dynamos, engine and meters. If the company fails before paying in the 7000.00 in fall, the village keeps the money paid in and the line inside the incorporation. Thus the taxpayers cannot be loosers, the company pays the bonds and interest, and everyone should vote "Yes" on Monday.

Death of Old Resident

Math Larson suffered a stroke of paralysis about ten o'clock Saturday night and died at 4:30 Sunday morning. The funeral was held in Ringbo Wednesday, Rev. Raaum officiating. Obituary next week.

Farmers Day at Crookston

Wednesday June 18th has been reserved by the Experiment Station at Crookston for the Farmers of Holt as their visitors day. Last year about 75 made this trip to Crookston and it is hoped that over 100 will make the trip this year.

You will all arrange for a ride with someone who has a car. We will all meet in Holt at 7 o'clock on Wednesday morning, so as to be able to leave by 7:30, and get back in time for the evening chores on the farm. Take along your lunch for dinner. The experiment station furnishes coffee, cream and sugar free. We suggest you register at the bank before Wednesday so that a check-up can be made for those who are unable to get a car, those having room for more passengers will give the number they can take.

Are we all going—sure we are—one whole day—with our neighbor.

Washington—The senate declined to authorize a loan of $25,000,000 to Germany for the purchase of foodstuffs in this country.

Washington—House and senate conferees agreed to eliminate the Borah amendment designed to give publicity to campaign contributions from the postal salaries increase bill.

Washington—A deficiency appropriation bill, carrying $158,196,000 of which $131,943,000 would be for meeting the first year's cost of the soldier's bonus was passed by the house.

Washington—A world fair in the United States in 1930, with a congressional commission to determine its site, would be provided for under a bill prepared by Representative Bloom (dem., N. Y.)

Washington—Secretary of War J. W. Weeks, with the approval of President Coolidge, recommended to congress enactment of legislation extending independence of the Philippine islands at the end of 25 years, or in 1949.

Washington — Secretary of War Weeks, with the approval of President Coolidge, recommended to Congress the enactment of legislation extending independence to the Philippine islands at the end of 25 years, or in 1949.

Washington—The senate judiciary committee reported a bill by Senator Selden Spencer, Missouri, for two additional judges in the eighth federal circuit. Minnesota and 10 other states include the circuit. The bill will not be acted on until the short session of congress.

Washington—William M. Butler, campaign manager for President Coolidge, declared national convention votes, instructed or favorable to the nomination of the president had reached a total of 1,066, with 555 necessary for a choice. Senator Hiram Johnson of California was given 15 votes, consisting of 13 in South Dakota and 2 in Illinois, while Senator Robert M. La Follette was awarded 28 of the 29 in Wisconsin. All other delegates were placed in the Coolidge column.

Domestic

Cleveland—Churches are getting too far into politics, said Richard Washburn Child, author and former ambassador to Italy, in an address here.

Urbana, Ill.—Degrees will be conferred on more than 1,600 graduates at the 53rd commencement of the University of Illinois. Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, former member of the Illinois faculty, will deliver the commencement address.

Cleveland—Delegates to the triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers adopted a resolution giving a blanket indorsement to all of President Warren S. Stone's policies, financial and political, in the conduct of the affairs of the brotherhood.

Chicago—Resolutions suggesting the Chicago municipal pier be renamed "Woodrow Wilson pier" in memory of the late former president, have been introduced in the city council. An ordinance recently passed, changing the name of Western avenue to Woodrow Wilson road caused a storm of protest from residents, and the pending resolution is considered likely to supplant the former action.

Edwardsville, Ill.—Fire losses in the United States in the last year amounted to $375,626,800, or a per capita loss of approximately $3, according to a report made public here by Simons Kallorman, statistician for the National Fireman's association. The largest fires occurred in November, when four fires caused damages of more than a million dollars each.

Belgrade—Seven were killed, 15 seriously injured and 50 slightly wounded when communists broke up a nationalist demonstration in the town of Trovvlje. The communists stormed the meeting and started a free for all fight which police were unable to quell. The nationalists have demanded that the government dissolve all antinationalist organizations.

Cleveland—The fourth triennal convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, considered by President Warren S. Stone one of the most important in its history, opened a four weeks executive session here. The convention will consider, among other things, a report of a committee working on plans for amalgamation of the brotherhood with that of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Richmond, Ind.—The question of an acceptable form of worship, made an issue in article 28 of the revised statement of faith, will not be settled until the next general assembly of the United Presbyterian church, it was decided.

Attica, Ind.—The death list in the wreck of Wabash passenger train No. 2, near here Sunday night, mounted to 11 when J. Charles Wilmoth, St. Louis, died at a hospital here. Eight of the wreck victims are at undertaking parlors in Williamsport; two are in this city, while on body is at Danville, Ill.

Nogales, Ariz.—Governors of three American and four Mexican states planned to greet President Obregon of Mexico when he visits Nogales.

Columbus, Ohio—A movement to make Ohio known as "the state with 1,000,000 rose bushes," sponsored by a number of state civic organizations, is reported to be spreading rapidly. Special campaigns have been planned by many communities to "plant a rose bush in every yard."

Cleveland — William Mongemery Brown, retired bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church of Arkansas, found guilty of teaching doctrines not held by the church, returned to his home in Galion "to get ready for this business when it comes up again in October." Sentence is to be passed then.

Newark, N. J.—George L. (Tex) Rickard, Fred C. Quimby and Frank B. Flournoy of New York were arraigned before Federal Judge Lynch and pleaded not guilty to indictments charging illegal transportation of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight films. A similiar plea was entered by Fred C. Quimby, Inc., a corporation, included in the indictment.

Sports

Michigan City, Ind.—Georges Carpentier and Jack Curley left for Curley's home at Great Neck, L. I., where the Frenchman will rest in order to recover from a sprained ankle before engaging in another match in this country. Georges limped to an auto with the aid of a cane, assisted by Curley. The swelling in the ankle has been reduced but there is still much pain. Georges has denied reports that he will retire from the ring and expects to engage in other matches in this country this summer.

Minneapolis—Dr. L. J. Cooke, head basketball coach at the University of Minnesota for the past 27 years and one of the outstanding figures in Gopher athletics, voluntarily resigned his coaching position to become ticket manager of the new stadium. The athletic senate announced the appointment of Dr. Cooke. The Gopher coach was offered the position as ticket manager some time ago but he said that he would not accept unless his work was lightened somewhat.

Foreign

The Hague—It is reported from Doorn that the former kaiser is encouraged by the result of the recent German elections and will try to join the crown prince at Oels.

Riga—Russia has 17,700 automobiles, according to a census compiled by the Moscow government. There are 68 private automobiles in Moscow, 45 of these being in the hands of chauffeurs who appropriated the machines from their wealthy employers during the revolution.

Paris.—The work of rebuilding the war ruined Rheims cathedral has started as a result of John D. Rockefeller, Jr's. gift of $1,000,000 for repairs to the martyred church. Scaffolds are hurriedly being built around the building while scores of workmen are busy with stones and mortar.

London — William Marconi spoke from Poldhu, Cornwall, to Australia, by radio telephone, according to the Daily Mail. Transmission occupied one-sixteenth of a second and was acknowledged by cable. The distance from Cornwall to Australia is more than 10,000 miles.

London—As many as 60,000 immigrants bound for America are stranded on this side as a consequence of the overlooking of the quotas for June by the shipping agencies. All American consuls in Britain are refusing to vise further passports until the new immigration act comes into effect July 1.

Vienna—A civil engineer arriving here by airplane from Bucharest says that, while M. Bratiano is in difficulties, he is still the prime minister. Ten thousand peasants with General Averescu at their head entered Bucharest Tuesday. Averescu made a long address denouncing Bratiano and demanding his resignation. The peasants then quietly dispersed. Prime Minister Bratiano's position is greatly weakened, however.

Moscow—Among the more significant resolution passed by the communist congress just ended is one forbidding anti-religious propaganda among the peasantry. As a substitute for an anti-religious campaign the resolution recommends dissemination of knowledge on natural science in its bearing on agriculture. The resolution is designed to remove ill-feeling of peasants against communists, who do not recognize religion.

London—Radio telephonic communication between Europe and America is "coming soon," Guglielmo Marconi, wireless inventor, declared in an interview in which he discussed the results of his recent radio speech from Cornwall which was heard distinctly not only by a prepared listener in Australia but also by a friend in Canada, J. H. Thompson, of Montreal. The beam system was not used in this experiment. Mr. Marconi said the results of beam system transmission undoubtedly would prove its availability for high speed telephony.

Tokio—A straight talk on American exclusion marked the dinner of the "people and the Press" here in honor of Cyrus E. Woods, the retiring American ambassador. Baron Sakatani introduced Ambassador Woods and expressed concern over the results of the new exclusion law. Ambassador Woods, in his response, said: "Recent development may have led to some doubt of the American friendship for the Japanese, but I ask you to turn your minds back a few months to the time of the earthquake and to remember the genuine friendship America displayed toward Japan."

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Duluth—Two baby deer captured in the brush near Duluth, are the latest additions to the zoo. They are being fed "on a bottle."

Faribault—Something new in commencement programs was given here when four graduates of the State School for the Blind put on the entire graduation exercises without the assistance of an outside speaker.

Marshall—The Ghent Co-operative Creamery company has commenced operations in that village. The new company has more than 100 shareholders and holds contracts for the cream from 1,000 cows.

Grand Rapids—An eight months old registered Guernsey owned by A. L. Sheldon of Sheldon's Guernsey farm of this place, was sold at Chicago for the sum of $1,025. The heifer was sold to Hynicka brothers of Lebanon, Pa.

Duluth—Seventeen checks accepted by George H. Vivian, St. Louis county treasurer, amounted to $7,000,000. The largest check received by Mr. Vivian was for $3,045,488.43 from the Oliver Iron Mining company and the smallest on record was for 82 cents.

Mankato—Louise Just and Mildred Patterson, representing Rapidan, won the county boys' and girls' clubs breadmaking contest. The Mankato team was second and Judson third. The three teams will participate in a southern Minnesota sectional contest.

St. Paul—Senator Robert M LaFollette declared he will have nothing to do with the so-called third party convention at St. Paul June 17. He asked his friends to stay away, giving his reason the participation in the St. Paul convention of communist organizations.

Albert Lea—Nearly 100 people, including 7 great-grandchildren, 22 grandchildren and 7 sons and daughters, attended the 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Stensrud here. Mr. Stensrud, who is 89 years old, came to Minneosta in 1864, and has lived in this vicinity since that time.

Red Lake Falls—Up to June 1, $557,350 had been loaned the farmers of Red Lake county by the Minnesota Rural Credits board. A total of 119 loans have been filed in the office of Frank Jeffers, register of deeds, since the bureau started operations nine months ago. The loans range in amounts from $900 an 80 acre tract to $14,000 on a 480 acre farm.

St. Paul—Figures compiled by Levi M. Willcuts, internal revenue collector for Minnesota, show that the tax bill signed by President Coolidge will mean a saving of $2,295,000 to federal tax payers in this state. The 25 per cent reduction applies to the 1923 tax and refunds will be made to persons who have paid in full within the next 90 days.

Redwood Falls—Redwood county will again have a booth the State Fair in September. The decision has just been arrived at and a committee is at work collecting samples of agriculture products. Every effort will be made to make the booth more representative of the county's products than ever before.

Waseca—The Waseca county board has authorized the sale of $250,000 state trunk highway reimbursement bond issue, proceeds of which are expected to be turned over to the state highway department for the purpose of improving trunk highway No. 13, Waseca county from north to south, Waseca county from nort hto south, would mean good roads to Minneapolis from this city.

Faribault—The Rice county district court is able to function without cost to the taxpayers—at least it has been since the first o' the year. A statement by Clerk of Court Robert H. Sime notes that fines and fees secured by the court have provided an income of $2,000 over expenses. It is the first time in the county's history that the district court has not been run at a loss.

Duluth—One hundred and seventy men and officers, Naval Reservists from Minnesota and North and South Dakota steamed out of the harbor here on the U. S. S. Paducah, bound for Cleveland where preparations have been made to entertain them. The Paducah is but one of several other crafts carrying reservists from lake states to the Ohio port, where they will stage a monster parade as a feature of their visit there on the spring training cruise.

Albert Lea—The Freeborn County Co-operative Egg and Poultry Products association, which recently filed articles of incorporation is signing up farmers in the county and is expected to begin operations within a few weeks. The association, a farmers' concern, will cover all of Freeborn county, part of Waseca and the northern sections of Worth and Winnebago counties in Iowa.

Duluth—Opposition to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence tidewater proposition rapidly is diminishing according to the statements made by Charles P. Craig of this city, executive secretary of the Tidewater association, who has returned from an eastern trip.

Mankato—Preparatory steps toward the organization of a Blue Earth County Fruit Growers' Association were taken at a meeting here. Nothing definite was done to solve the marketing problem facing the fruit growers in the vicinity but there was a strong sentiment expressed for the organization of a co-operation association.

Crosby—A special election has been valled by the village council for June 24 for the purpose of deciding whether the village shall issue bonds in the extent of $85,000 to take up outstanding orders.

Tracy—Rosie M. Hanson was granted $10,000 by Judge E. A. Montgomery in district court as damages in a suit for $76,000 brought by Miss Hanson against the Minneapolis Street Railway company.

Park Rapids—The annual picnic of the Shell Prairie's Cattle club at Fish Hook lake near here was attended by approximately 500 persons. Officers of the state association were present as well as a number of breeders from the Otter Tail county.

Alexandria—Editors and publishers of the state will throw aisde the cares and worries of the "paste pot" and frolic at a four-day outing at Alexandria, beginning June 26, under the auspices of the Notrhern Minnesota Editorial association.

Fergus Falls—Dr. A. B. Cole, one of the best known physicians and public men in northern Minneosta, died here of heart disease. He was 76 years old. Dr. Cole had served two terms in the Minnesota Senate and was a candidate for the Legislature this year.

Duluth—Organization of the Commercial clubs and civic bodies of northern Minneosta into a permanent organization will take place at Hibbing July 1, according to arrangements made at a conference of officers of the Duluth Chamber of Commerce and the Hibbing Commercial club.

Deer Creek—The Deer Creek creamery was detsroyed by fire. The fire originated on the roof from chimney sparks. New machinery, valued at more than $1,000, had just been installed. The creamery was owned by a farmers' co-operative company. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Wabasha—The 1924 wool pool, under direction of the Minnesota Cooperative Wool Marketing association will center here, officers of the organization having made a contract by which facilities of the Wabasha wool warehouse become available to members. R. E. Jones of Wabasha is sales manager.

Winona—The largest class in the history of Winona Teachers college was graduated here when diplomas were awarded by resident director, S. H. Somsen, to 156 students at the commencement exercises. Diplomas previously had been awarded to 93 students, bringing the total number of this year's graduates to 249.

Duluth—Brush and forest fires in the Canadian border country, checked by heavy atmospherical conditions, were well in hand, according to a wire received from Grover M. Conzet, acting state forester. Mr. Conzet, who rushed to International Falls in response to reports of serious fires raging near there and Blackduck, inspected the fire area. He state that weather conditions were more favorable now and the fires were not running.

Minneapolis—A total of $10,000,000 of rural credit bonds of the state of Minnesota were sold, in the largest single sale ever conducted by the Minnesota Rural Credit bureau, to a syndicate headed by the First National bank in Minneapolis. Other members of the syndicate were the First National bank of New York, Lehman Bros., and the Hayden-Stone company.

Bemidji—Seeking refuge in a dense swamp near the home of his father, Dan Glick, 19 years old, was found by Sheriff Julius R. Johnson and deputies five miles west of here and arrested as being implicated in the shooting of Charles Runyan, Bemidji taxicab driver, who was lured by a fake call into the country and shot. Runyan, who is at the Lutheran hospital here, is improving and has a good chance for recovery.

Minneapolis—A warning that black stem rust is now abundant on common barberry bushes in the north central area and that the winds will shortly be carrying this rust to growing cereal crops was broadcast by the Conference for the Prevention of Grain Rust, an organization representing the agricultural interests of thirteen Middle Western states. Immediate eradication of all common barberry bushes was urged as an effective means of reducing rust losses.

Duluth—Duluth soon will have one of the largest match plants in the United States operated by the Federal Match Corporation. When the Federal Match Corporation was formed it acquired nine plants, two of which were located in Duluth. For reasons of economy, it was decided to consolidate these two Duluth plants. The plant formerly operated by the Minnesota Match Manufacturing Company was less than half the size of the second plant, formerly operated by the Union Match Company.

Bemidji—Using automobiles instead of horses to follow their hounds, a party of wolf hunters, including State Game Commissioner Jay Gould, former Governor John Lind and son, John; Ed Eylar, president of the Hennepin County Sportsmen's club, and members of the Bemidji chapter of the Izaak Walton league, bagged seven wolves in the vicinity of Hines. Three wolf cubs were found in a hollow tree and were saved alive. The others were all shot. Two hounds were used to drive the wolves out of the woods

Duluth—Sixteen million bushels of grain has been shipped from Duluth and Superior elevators for lower lake ports during the season up to June 1. This is 1,600,000 bushels over the shipments of last season, this being due to the 11 days earlier start of shipping.

Winona—First public announcement was made at the 11th annual commencement at St. Mary's college here that the extension would expandt into a four year college, with full curriculum leading to degrees in art and science, commencing with the fall term next September.

WHEAT ACREAGE IS SHARPLY CUT

Production Shows Sharp Decline --Condition of Winter Crop Is 76 Percent

Washington.—A smaller crop of wheat this year than produced last year was forecast by the department of agriculture in its report of June 1 crop conditions. Smaller acreage of both winter and spring wheats and less favorable conditions than last year are responsible.

A total wheat crop of 693,000,000 bushels this spring was forecast.

Spring Wheat 184,000,000 Bushels.

The spring wheat crop, for which the first forecast of the season was announced, was placed at 184,000,000 bushels, the area planted being estimated at 16,920,000 acres, or 90.1 per cent of last year's acreage.

Winter wheat was forecast at 509,000,000 bushels compared with a forecast of 553,013,000 bushels a month ago. First production forecasts for the season of other crops are: Oats, 1,232,000,000 bushels; barley, 160,000,000 bushels; rye, 62,500,000 bushels; and peaches, 52,500,000 bushels.

Wheat Condition 76 Per Cent.

The condition of the crops on June 1, from which the production forecasts are computed was: Winter wheat, 74 per cent of a normal; spring wheat 82.3; all wheat, 76; oats, 83; barley, 79.5; rye 87.4; hay 83; pastures 82.2; apples 74; peaches 72.7.

The total wheat acreage, combining winter and spring wheat areas, is 53,818,000 acres this year, or 92.3 per cent of the combined areas last year. The acreage of oats is 41,625,000 acres, or 101.9 per cent of last year; and of barley 7,552,000 acres, or 95.5 per cent of last year.

N. D. Condition Best by Far.

The acreage, condition on June 1, and forecast of production of bushels of spring wheat in important producing states follow:

Minnesota—acreage, 1,438,000; condition, 87; forecast, 16,889,000. North Dakota—7,436,000; condition, 94; and 67,470,000. South Dakota—2,235,000; condition, 85; and 21,739,000. Montana—2,737,000; condition, 88; and 36,128,000. Idaho—580,000; condition, 73; and 10,500,000. Washington—1,000,000; condition, 57; and 9,690,000.

PLAN COAST TO COAST FLIGHT

Maughan To Span Continent In Less Than 20 Hours

Mitchell Field.—Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, who is preparing for his third attempt to fly across the continent between dawn and dusk, left for Washington by airplane Monday, where he conferred with the chief of air service.

Lieutenant Maughan made his second test flight recently, attaining a speed of 165 miles an hour. The test was made in the 12-cylinder pursuit plane in which he will make the coast-to-coast attempt later in the month.

The flight this year will be attempted from dawn to dusk, Lieutenant Maughan announced, instead of from sunrise to sunset, the time on which both his previous efforts were based. The change, it is anticipated, will give him considerable more flying time.

The schedule has been figured out in accordance with the official time of June 21, the longest day of the year, when dawn will begin at Mitchell Field at 2:20 o'clock eastern time, and twilight at San Francisco will end at 9:41 eastern time. The time between dawn and dusk will be 19 hours and 19 minutes.

The distance from Mitchell Field to Crissey Field, San Francisco, is 2,670 miles.

JAP AGITATION DYING DOWN

Tokio Police Not to Prosecute Men Who Broke Up Dance.

Tokio.—Belief that the peak of the agitation in Japan against American enactment of a law barring Japanese had passed, was expressed here Monday. The active phase of the agitation, it was agreed, cannot continue more than two or three weeks.

Leaders of the "Great Forward Society," and the "Iron Heart Society," organizations said to have fomented Saturday night's anti-American demonstration in the ballroom of the Imperial hotel, were summoned before the chief of police of Tokio. They denied the demonstration was staged with any intent of intimidating or insulting foreigners and declared they only wanted to shame the Japanese who were dancing there with a number of Americans and nationals of other countries.

It is understood the police believe the demonstration does not warrant any prosecutions.

Surplus to Be $350,000,000.

Washington.—The government will close its books for this fiscal year on June 30, with a surplus of between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000, Director Lord of the budget bureau, has informed President Coolidge. The estimates, Director Lord said, took into account the 25 per cent reduction in income taxes payable this year. Larger customs receipts and a greater return from miscellaneous internal revenue taxes account for the increase over the estimated surplus of $320,000,000 which was counted on last November.

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas.—"Words cannot express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Everymonth I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine."—Mrs. J. B. HOLLEMAN, 2214 E. Marshal Street, Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Schools for Ski-Runners

So popular has skiing become in the last few years, especially in the Scandinavian countries, that training schools are now being established where the elements of the sport will be taught. Inclines are built in the instruction halls so that beginners may practice balancing and acquire the confidence necessary to negotiate the steep slopes.

FATHER AND SON

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by 'phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull.

"Yes; I wanted to see you!" Archman was plainly trying to hold himself in check, and was as plainly failing. "Yes! I wanted to remind you of some things you seem to have forgotten. One of them is that Archman & Company doesn't play favorites. Your job isn't very important, but it's all you've got between you and the sidewalk, and I'd advise you not to throw it away and trust to the old man to play parachute, because he won't. A boy can't fool around theaters half the night and give good work to the house the next day. You've got to cut it out, or Archman & Company will cut you out. In other words, it'll fire you."

Harry turned red and white. He tried to say something.

But his father gave him no chance. "That's what I want to say to you as head of the firm," he rasped. "Now I want to add something as your father and not as your employer. I've been hearing tales about you and a so-called actress—"

Harry flushed. "Akin told you, I guess," he gritted. "I heard he's been sneaking around."

"Akin didn't tell me until I asked him. He didn't need to tell me. When a boy with a rich father makes a fool of himself, there are plenty of people to pass the news along. The papers will do it if nobody else. A sort of human tadpole blew into my office today with newspaper proofs of a story about you that he was going to publish unless I paid him a thousand dollars."

"Did you do it?" The boy almost shouted the question.

"I did not. The man who tries to conciliate a polecat always gets the worst of it. The thing to do is to keep away from the place where the polecats are. You haven't done that. This Fluffy Ruffles—"

"Don't say anything against her, father. I warn you!"

"I am not going to say anything against her. She'll say it for herself soon enough. She is making a fool of you for her own ends. But I am not going to argue the point with you. I haven't time and it wouldn't be any use. I learned long ago that there aren't arguments that will reach a fool when he's in love. You'll wake up after a while. In fact, I think the husks are due to sour on your belly mighty soon. If they're still sweet, go on eating them. But you'll have to take the consequences. Cut it out or you'll lose your job! Understand?"

The boy's brief flush of anger had faded. "You're not fair, father," he pleaded. "Miss Grant is a lady. She—Oh! By George! I feel like a cad even to defend her; it seems like admitting that there was some foundation for what you say. She's the best and the dearest and the sweetest girl in the world. She's the prettiest—"

"I don't doubt it. They always are. If they weren't pretty they wouldn't be dangerous. You want to remember that there are lots of ways that a man can commit suicide that are better and more all-round satisfactory than hanging round a—"

"Father!"

"Oh! All right. It's just as well you stopped me. I'm not ready to talk. However, that's enough on that score. Now listen to me. As you know, I am going to start for Argentina in two weeks or less—as soon as the El Rio is ready. I'm not going to ask any promises of you but I want you to remember that while I'm away you've got your mother and sisters to look after, and that you've got to be decent for their sakes. Understand?"

"Yes."

Dated June 7, 1924.

H. R. WHOMES,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

D. E. TAWNEY,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee,
Morgan Block,
Winona, Minnesota.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignee of the Mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Clarence Larson and Bertha Larson, his wife, Mortgagors, to Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated October 11th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, A. D., 1919, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 152.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment dated October 25th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of October, A. D., 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 90 of Mortgages, on page 580.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Paul Kemp, by written assignment, dated November 25th, A. D., 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 284.

And whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Four Hundred Fifty-one and 54-100 Dollars ($451.54) and the first half of the taxes for the year 1923 amounting to Forty-nine and 15-100 Dollars ($49.15); and whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.00), with accumulated interest from the 11th day of October, 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid, as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum: and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Fifteen (15), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 22nd day of July, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated as attorneys fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated May 31st, 1924.

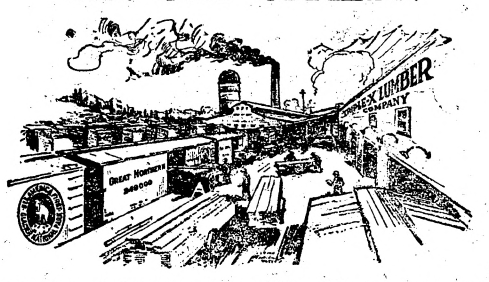
GREAT NORTHERN AN OLD CITIZEN



The States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana contain more than eight hundred billion feet of standing timber. There were cut from this timber and shipped over the lines of the Great Northern in the year 1923, one billion three hundred million feet of lumber, and these shipments are increasing from year to year.

The Great Northern is one of your oldest citizens. The original ten miles between St. Paul and Minneapolis were built in 1862. This was the first railroad in Minnesota. It continued to grow and develop new territory as it proceeded until now it serves the Northwest with over eight thousand miles of road. It brings the whole Northwest as far as the Pacific Coast to world markets and world markets to the Northwest. It provides also luxurious, modern passenger train service by which all the world may travel to the Northwest and the Northwest may travel to all the world.

The Great Northern is a desirable, dependable, pay-as-you-go citizen.

It paid, in 1923, to the 35,645. men and women who were engaged in its service $56,270,922, in salaries and wages. It paid, in 1923, for materials and supplies $56,662,850, every dollar of which, so far as practicable, was expended in Great Northern territory to support local industry. Its taxes for the year 1923 were $9,113,226.

It paid, in 1923, to its 12,129 employees in Minnesota, for salaries and wages $18,864,138.

The value of its property in Minnesota, according to findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is $106,964,376. Its taxes in Minnesota for the year 1923 were $2,340,638.

The Great Northern knows that your interests are bound up with its own. For better or worse it is an inseparable part of your community

Does not this great institution, a worthy citizen in every essential relation, merit your confidence and patronage because it is giving you efficient service and loyal cooperation?

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593. times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19 96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second — Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

COOLIDGE AND DAWES G. O. P. TICKET

Illinois Man Selected for Second Place After Lowden Refused Unanimous Nomination—From Start to Finish It Was All Coolidge—Platform Sets Forth G. O. P. Principles.

Calvin Coolidge

For President,
CALVIN COOLIDGE
of Massachusetts.

For Vice President,
CHARLES G. DAWES
of Illinois.

Cleveland.—The above is the ticket selected by the Republican national convention to make the fight for the party in the forthcoming Presidential election.

Before the roll call had been half completed the story had been told. The vote resulted: Coolidge, 1,065; La Follette, 34; Johnson, 10.

Thomas Scott, the lone Coolidge delegate from Wisconsin, moved to make the nomination unanimous.

"With the exception of a very few voices the nomination of Calvin Coolidge is made unanimous," announced Chairman Mondell.

The first ballot for vice president showed Lowden in the lead, with Burton, Dawes, Hoover and Kenyon following closely. On the second ballot the convention turned to Lowden and he was unanimously nominated. In a telegram to the convention the former governor of Illinois absolutely refused to accept the nomination.

After a three-hour recess another ballot was taken and before it was finished Dawes was so far in the lead over Hoover that the nomination was made unanimous amid the wildest enthusiasm.

With President Coolidge's nomination a foregone conclusion and everything else prearranged, there was really nothing to do but give the stamp of official party approval when the various matters were brought before the convention.

President Coolidge's name was placed in nomination by Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, president of the University of Michigan. He presented a scholarly eulogy of the President, which was frequently interrupted with wild demonstrations. His first mention of the President's name was all that the crowd had been waiting for. It was the signal for the wildest orgy of noises that the convention had yet experienced. It made previous outbursts pale into insignificance and has been equalled seldom in the history of party conventions.

As One Who Knows Him.

"I shall speak as one who for years has known the President," said Doctor Burton. "I follow this plan, because I believe you want to hear from one who has a first-hand knowledge of his subject. The people have an unsatiable desire to learn about the life and ways of this man. The better you know him the more you will trust him. The more carefully you study his written words the more certain you will become of the clarity of his mind, the depth of his thought, and the soundness of his judgment.

"There is no real statesmanship without these qualities. My function is to present the man. The emphasis must be just there.

"He is not a superman, and would be the last to think so. There is not a trace of show or ostentation about him, for he does nothing merely for appearance. He may be an example, but he would never set one. His quiet, unobtrusive, and natural way of doing things was beautifully and graciously illustrated during the sad days of last August when he assumed the duties of the Presidency. He personified the plain, simple virtues of our citizens at their best.

"Yet this is not all. If it be said that he is rarely common, it must also be known that he is nobly uncommon. A great man is always simple and direct. About this man there is something elemental. He 'can see into the heart of things.' He knows that every person has a soul and that the greatest thing about America is her spirit. He never lacks dignity. The office he occupies is exalted, for when he performs a public duty it is a ceremony."

Only One Problem.

The vice presidential nomination was the hard nut to be cracked. Days and nights of milling, maneuvering, canvassing, conferring, deciding and undeciding had failed to crystallize sentiment for any considerable length of time on a candidate for second place on the ticket. Time and again a name would be proposed that seemed to solve the problem only to have the whole thing upset either by the declination of the gentleman in question or for geographic reasons. One after another, the party leaders went down the list of names advanced. Some objection was found to each one. So it went on and on, jumping from one name to another, and getting nowhere.

The Republican national convention of 1924 will go down in history as one of the most unique gatherings of the kind ever held. Old-timers who have been attending conventions for years never saw anything like it. It was much like a prayer meeting. With everything settled long before the convention met, save only the name of the man to be chosen running mate for President Coolidge, there was nothing much to get excited over. The President completely dominated the convention. The delegates were there to carry out his wishs, eagerly, willingly. Not that he attempted to interfere. They had accepted him as their leader, and were whole-hearted in their purpose of following his leadership.

The so-called "old guard" had no hand in this convention. They were there, of course, but just as privates in the ranks.

Burton Sounds Keynote.

Theodore E. Burton of Ohio was the keynoter. Assuming the gavel as temporary chairman, he delivered an oration that held the delegates in their seats for an hour and a half. The aged Ohio statesman is one of the last of the old school type of orator. He has had vast experience in politics, and he knew exactly what to say. His allusion to President Coolidge as the man to whom the peopel looked for leadership, rather than to congress, gave the convention its first chance to break loose. Every mention of the President's name was the signal for a demonstration.

"Much of the blame which is visited upon Republicans in the present congress is not deserved," said Congressman Burton, "because on many major questions their party has not commanded a majority in either branch. Let us not for a minute forget the importance of a Republican majority in the next congress, made up of members tried and true, who will stand united.

"The people—and all the people—have confidence in Calvin Coolidge. It is a time when there is a hunger for simple, robust virtues, for a leadership which shall be based on no cheap or selfish motives.

"As a candidate for the Presidency, and this in the midst of temptations stronger than those by which the angels fell, he has shown no truckling, no scheming for votes, but has gone calmly and steadily on his way unaffected by the lure of expediency or the promise of success."

Mondell Is Chairman.

Frank W. Mondell, former congressman from Wyoming, was chosen permanent chairman. His speech was short and was mainly a plea for a Republican congress. "Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to round out a satisfactory program could and would have been avoided," he declared, "had there been dependable Republican majorities in congress."

The first big demonstration of the convention came when Coolidge's name was mentioned by Charles F. Warren in the introductory to the report of the committee on resolutions. The delegates from Wisconsin, sole dissenters from the platform as presented by the committee, sat silent amid the bedlam of noise that broke loose. Round and round the Wisconsin delegation the frenzied crowd of delegates smiled, shrieked, howling, jeering, waving banners and threatening and cajoling. The uproar lasted for nearly an hour and only subsided when physical endurance reached its limit.

Turn Down Wisconsin Plank.

The convention was disinclined to listen to Congressman Cooper when he took the platform to present the minority report of the committee on resolutions which contained the Wisconsin or LaFollette planks. He was jeered and booed while Chairman Mondell pleaded that the Wisconsin man was entitled to the courtesy of a fair hearing. Mr. Cooper was a good sport and was not ruffled by the violent antagonism of the convention. He proceeded with the reading of his resolutions in a calm, clear voice, and then offered them as a substitute for the report of the majority. The Wisconsin delegation alone voted for this motion and the majority report was adopted with a roar.

Charles G. Dawes

The platform is said to embody the Coolidge program for legislation which the President thinks will keep the country on the way of prosperity. Much is made of governmental economy and tax reduction. A proposed solution of the financial burdens of the people is offered.

The first session of the convention was taken up with preliminaries, the reading of the call for the convention and the keynote speech of the temporary chairman.

Permanent organization was effected Wednesday. The committee on resolutions was reported to be still laboring with the platform, but the reports of all other committees were quickly disposed of and the convention took a recess until evening, when the platform was presented.

Countless Pleas Offered for Planks in Platform

Martin B. Madden of Illinois, who was an important member of the committee on resolutions, figures out that spokesmen and spokeswomen of nearly 300,000,000 Americans made pleas for platform planks. Madden says he is forced to the conclusion, therefore, that about one out of three of Uncle Sam's children is interested in at least a trio of outstanding public issues. The women, the churches, organized labor, the colored race, the Filipinos, the drys, the wets, the klansmen, the anti-klansmen, the high tariff folks and the low tariff folks, the proponents and the opponents of nearly every 'ism that federal flesh is heir to, constituted the 300,000,000 on whose alleged behalf platform favors were sought.

The "keynote prayer" is one of the convention innovations that Cleveland introduced. Almost every one of the distinguished clergymen who opened proceedings with an invocation lapsed, perhaps subconsciously, into political supplication.

Ring Oddly Restored

Some thirteen years ago, while Miss Lena Piper was employed in an office at Laconia, N. H., she lost a diamond ring down a partition. At the time the floors were torn up and a search made, but no ring was found. Just lately, workmen who were at work enlarging the building tore down a back wall, and the ring was found and returned to Miss Piper.

"JAMES CARR!"

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart.

CHAPTER IV

Quick Decisions.

Muttering wrathfully to himself, Henry Archman strode out of the Grant cottage and sprang into his car. Nellie Archman, though as much exercised as her father, both by the accusations he had brought against Miss Grant and by the as yet unexplained presence of Carr, and his ambiguous admissions, yet lingered for a moment to take a formal leave. Conventions bind women more tightly than they do men.

"I am sorry," she said. "I cannot believe that father is justified in speaking as he did. I am sure he will tell you so himself later, and will thank you for your efforts to enable him to hear what Mr. Morbach wanted to say. Good-night."

Edith bowed. "Thank you, Miss Archman," she said gratefully. "This is not the time nor the place for explanations, but I can assure you that your faith is not misplaced. Good-night."

As Nellie came out of the door Archman called to her impatiently. "Get in here, Nellie," he ordered sharply. "Akin can follow in your car. I want to talk to you."

Nellie obeyed in silence. She expected her father to refer to the scenes at the cottage and she was ready and indeed curious to listen and learn.

Archman, however, disappointed her. He threw over the lever and the automobile leaped away like a live thing, splitting space like a hand-guided cannon ball. No swifter could it have gone had its driver been possessed by the seven devils of Scripture. No man could drive at such a pace and spare any attention to anything else. Nellie knew it and settled herself back to wait.

Not till the gates of his big stone house were reached did Archman slacken speed and turn to the girl. "I'm going to take you on a trip with me, Nellie," he said. "We start in an hour. Pack a suitcase with what you need most. We don't take any trunks."

Nellie's eyes widened. "Good gracious! Father—" she began.

"I can't discuss the matter. It's an emergency. Get ready!"

"But, father, where are we going? When will ge be back?"

"God knows. Not for weeks, certainly."

Nellie's face blanched. "I can't go away like that, father," she protested.

"You must go. You heard the doctor's version of Morbach's message. You are the girl I am to bring. There's no time to lose. I must get you there before 'he' dies."

"Before who dies?" demanded the girl.

"I can't tell you now. It would take too long. Besides, I am not sure myself. And it is 'his' secret, not mine. The matter is imperative. Get ready at once."

Archman's tones had lost their irritability. They were subdued, and even solemn. Nellie's protest died on her lips. Never before had she seen her father awe-stricken.

The car rolled up to the steps of the house. Archman stopped it and jumped out and helped Nellie to descend. "Hurry, daughter!" he said. Then he turned to the footman who came hastening out. "Leave the car here, James," he ordered. "Fill the gas tank and see that it's in good shape. I'll want it again tonight." He turned and hurried into the house into which Nellie had already preceded him.

Bess met him at the steps. "Oh, father!" she cried. "What's it all about?"

Archman half paused. "I can't talk now, Bess," he answered, as he passed. "Ask Akin. He's just behind. Or ask Nellie. She'll want you to help her pack, anyway. Where's Harry?"

Bess clutched at her head. "Help Nellie to pack!" she echoed. "Good gracious! Harry isn't home! He went out just after you did."

Archman's brows darkened. "I guessed us much," he growled. "Tell your mother I want to see her in five minutes. And help Nellie to get ready." He passed on up the stairs.

Bess started after him. Then she ran to seek her mother and deliver the message. This done, she raced up the stairs to Nellie's room.

Meanwhile Archman had hurried into his office and sat down at his desk. He jerked the telephone toward him. "Long distance," he ordered curtly. "Give me New York—Desbrosses, 58641. Quick, central!"

A moment later the phone tinkled and he picked it up. "Hello! Is this Captain Bunker? Good! Do you know my voice, captain? Hush! No names. This phone may leak. It's leaked once tonight already, or it's got the credit of it. When can you put to sea? Yes! I know you need coal and stores and all that. What I want to know is the earliest possible moment you can be ready for a two thousand-mile trip. Five days! Five days! D—n! Oh, very well! If you can't you can't. Now listen. I'll be at your house some time before morning. Wait up for me. I'll give you instructions then. Understand? All right. Make no mistake. That's all."

Archman slammed the receiver back upon the hook and looked around. "Come in!" he ordered irascibly. "Come in, Martha!" he called. "I want to talk to you. The summons has come at last."

"What!"

"Yes! It's come at last. It didn't reach me. The messenger was murdered and his papers have been stolen. But I've had warnings, and I can guess what he wanted to say. I've got to start at once."

Mrs. Archman paled. "Murdered!" she gasped. "Will you be in danger?"

Archman jerked his shoulders impatiently. "Of course not," he rasped. "Now, Martha, don't you go to worrying. Everything will be all right."

"But where are you going?"

"I can't tell you. It's not my secret."

"But when will you be back?"

"I don't know. I may go to Argentina first. I'll try to keep you informed as to my movements, but you mustn't worry if I fail to do so. I may take Nellie on with me or send her back."

"Nellie! You're taking Nellie?"

Archman's eyes widened. "Yes! I thought you understood. It's for Nellie that I'm going."

Mrs. Archman's pleasant face grew paler. "You've never explained about Nellie," she began.

"I've explained all that I could or can. The secret isn't mine. When I brought the child home I told you that it was only for a time—that some day she would be required of us. The time's been slow in coming, but it's come at last."

"But why tonight! Can't you wait till tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow will be too late. I've got to try to outrun the thieves who stole that paper. I'm going south by railroad and on by any means that offer. I can't tell you how. The El Rio will follow as quickly as it can—probably in five days. Get Nellie's trunks packed and send them on board. I don't know whether I will come back myself or go on to Argentina. I don't know anything except that I must get Nellie away before the thieves have time to watch and follow us."

"But who are the thieves?"

"I can't tell you. That is, I can't tell you who is behind the thing, though I guess. I know the actual thief. It's that Grant woman."

"Who?"

"An actress who calls herself Edith Grant. She's snared Harry—"

"Harry! My Harry!"

"Yes! Your Harry." Archman spoke grimly. "I don't blame the boy very much. They chose their agent well. Morbach died in her house. Harry's mad about her. That's what I was talking to him about tonight."

"He—he isn't planning to marry her, is he?"

"Maybe he is. But you can bet your last dollar that she isn't planning to marry him. No! Don't worry about that. She'll drop him when she gets through with him. And, after all, the quickest way to cure a fool is to give him his head."

Mrs. Archman did not pursue the subject. She had unbounded faith in her ability to manage her son. "I haven't been troubled about Harry," she said. "But I have been about Nellie."

"Nellie! Nonsense!"

"It isn't nonsense." Mrs. Archman hesitated, then went on. "Only tonight she told me that her idea of happiness was to stand shoulder to shoulder with her husband and fight the world with him. She was thinking about some particular man, Henry."

"Nonsense!" Archman spoke vigorously, but his eyes were troubled. "It's only girl's talk. You women are always seeing things."

Mrs. Archman shook her head doubtfully. "I'm not so sure," she said. "I've been thinking. She's been going to your ship a good deal. Is there any one there who—"

"Nonsense!" Archman reiterated the word, but his tones were more uneasy than before. "Well!" he said. "It doesn't matter, after all. She'll have time to forget before we get back. Is Nellie ready?"

"I'll see." Mrs. Archman went to the door, then hesitated, and came back. "Did—did you see Mr. Van Kull?" she asked timidly.

Archman's face drew dark. "Yes! I saw him." He choked. "He—he—You were right, Martha. He snubbed me. Good Lord! If I wasn't going away! But I've got to go! I'll be back, though, and then if I don't make things warm for Mr. Van Kull, I'll eat the toughest bull in the yards, and that's saying a lot. Is Nellie ready?"

"I'll see."

Meanwhile Nellie, aided by Bess, was dressing and packing madly. Suddenly she threw up her hands and dropped into a chair. "Oh!" she wailed. "How can I go and leave him this way?"

"Leave who?" Bess stared blankly.

"Leave Jim. Oh! I've got to tell you Bess. You've got to help me. There's a young man—"

"Oh, Nellie!"

"Yes." The girl spoke desperately. "He's in charge of some of the repairs on father's ship. I've seen him nearly every day. He's poor, of course, and you know mother wants me to marry a duke or something, and of course Jim isn't a duke and—and— He hasn't said anything definite, but I thought—thought—"

"Oh, Nellie! You darling!" Bess threw her arms about the other. "Of course he meant it. Nobody could help meaning it where you were concerned. What is he like?"

Nellie's face lit up. "He's the most splendid man I ever saw," she breathed. "He's magnificent. But it's his eyes that I love. They're deep brown and soft, and yet they look as if—as if—Oh! I don't know how they look—like those of a young god going into battle, I suppose. Of course, you'll think I'm silly, but—"

"I don't! I don't! It's wonderful. Go on."

But Nellie was off on another track. "And then tonight he came into Miss Grant's cottage. Yes! He did! It seemed that she had telephoned for him. He turned quite white when he saw me. Then he said—said some dreadful things if he mean't them as they sounded. I won't let myself believe that he did mean them that way, and yet—Oh, Bess! I'll die if he did mean them that way. Then he begged me to be sure to come to the ship tomorrow so that he could explain something. Of course, I haven't any right to ask explanations, and I couldn't go there to see him after what happened tonight. But—"

"Nellie!" Mrs. Archman's voice was calling outside the door.

Nellie snatched at her sister. "Go to the ship tomorrow, Bess," she begged. "See him and tell him I had to go away. And find out what he wanted to tell me. If it's got anything to do with Miss Grant, I'll die! You will go, Bess, won't you?"

"Of course, I will. You poor thing. What's his name?"

"James Carr! You'll find him on the El Rio."

The door opened and Mrs. Archman appeared. "Come, Nellie," she said. "Your father is ready."

Ten minutes later good-bys had been said and Archman and Nellie and Akin were in the car, rolling down the road to New York. Fifteen minutes later the engine stopped and refused to go again.

Swearing mad, Archman jumped out and began to investigate. He discovered that the gasoline tank was empty. "Humph!" he grunted. "They want me to miss the train, do they? This is the first gun of the fight. Well, there'll be plenty more. Here, Akin, you go back toward the house and hunt for gasoline, while I scout ahead of us."

Half an hour later Akin got back. But he found an empty car. Archman and Nellie had vanished. The morning mail, however, brought a note of explanation to Mrs. Archman.

"Tell Akin that Nellie and I couldn't wait for him. Fire James for not filling the gas tank. I guess he got his pay for not doing it. Anyway, fire him. I'm off.

"HENRY."

What have the stolen papers to do with the mysterious voyage? And where are they going?

HEADACHES GONE TIRED NO MORE

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Hopes Other Women Will Benefit by Her Experience

Skowhegan, Me.—"I was sick most of the time and could not get around to do my work without being all tired out so I would have to lie down. One day when I was reading the paper I saw the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertisement and saw what it did for other women, so I thought I would try it. I have taken three bottles, and cannot begin to tell you what it has already done for me. I do all my work now and keep up the whole day long without lying down. I have no more headaches nor tired feelings. I hope every woman who takes the Vegetable Compound will get as much benefit out of it as I have."—Mrs. PERCY W. RICHARDSON, R.F.D. No. 2, Skowhegan, Maine.

You have just read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped Mrs. Richardson. She gave it a trial after she saw what it had done for other women. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been thus praised by women. For sale by druggists everywhere.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Faribault—H. H. Kirk, superintendent of schools at Jamestown, North Dakota, has been named to succeed W. E. Pelk as superintendent of the local schools.

Hibbing—A special bond issue of $400,000 to provide for the erection of Memorial building to soldiers and sailors carried at the special election by a two to one vote.

Duluth—Angered by the actions of his father, who had driven him from his home, Joseph Pierre Savoie, gave immigration authorities information that his father was in this country illegally, leading to the deportation of Joseph E. Savoie and his five children to Canada.

Faribault—Shattuck school, local military academy, has again been placed on the list of military schools recognized by the war department. The local school has retained its place as an honor school since the practice of announcing the 10 best military institutions in the country was begun by the war department.

Ivanhoe — That Lincoln county will have an average crop of rye in spite of the backward season is indicated by samples of the grain which have been brought here from farms in the vicinity of Hendricks. The sample stalks measure 5 feet in length and are headed out with tops that measure from 4 to 6 inches.

Fergus Falls—The Guernsey Breeders of this county conducted their annual meeting and picnic and elected officers for the coming year as follows: R. E. Halstad, president; H. A. Putnam, vice-president; Leo Burns, secretary, treasurer. C. Axel Anderson, president of the county Holstein Breeders association, was the principal speaker.

Duluth—Racing with death, Mrs. Peter Lindert De Voist of Duluth, delegate to the republican national convention at Cleveland, flew by airplane from Minneapolis to Duluth in an hour and 50 minutes, but reached the bedside of her husband, republican leader and business man, a few moments after his death from a paralytic stroke.

Redwood Falls—Every citizen of Redwood Falls has been called upon to assist in ridding the city of moonshiners and bootleggers. Mayor W. T. Wilcox and the local Law and Order league have formulated a pledge which the citizens are asked to sign, wherein they express themselves as being heartily in favor of driving the moonshiners, bootleggers, vagrants and other undesirables from the city.

Moose Lake—John Paul Kruger, manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company at Moose Lake, has been awarded a Theodore N. Vail bronze medal by the awards committee of the Northwestern Bell company, for applying first aid and saving the life of a man who had come in contact with some high power electric wires while painting a railroad trestle near Moose Lake, Aug. 13, 1923.

Minneapolis — William Harcourt Lynn, former state senator from Minneapolis, died at New Rochelle, New York. Mr. Lynn was a brother-in-law of former President Rafael Iglesix of Costa Rica. Mr. Lynn met President Iglesix in Costa Rica while there on business and married the president's sister. He practiced law in Minnesota for several years following his graduation from Ohio State university.

Eveleth—Following arrest of two men and one woman, alleged to be ringleaders of a gang of counterfeiters, Eveleth police discovered the and confisacted a complete outfit for the manufature of spurious paper money, as well as several large bundles of fraudulent federal $5 and $20 notes, in a garret. The arrests followed successful attempts to pass the bogus currency on local merchants.

Brook Park—One thousand Minnesota farmers attended the first of the 16 demonstrations of the university land clearing, crops and livestock feeding train on the Moline farm near Quamba visited the exhibits, and listened to the lectures of experts on the train here. Two-thirds of the land cleared was prepared for crops with heavy plows, discs, and special roller harrows drawn by tractors and horses. Approximately 300 heavy white pine stumps were split with sodatol.

Duluth—Thirty million fish were hatched this year at the government hatchery at Lester Park, according to S. P. Wires, superintendent. These fish, nursed from the embryo to the fry size, are being distributed throughout the United States. The output of the station for the year is: 13,000,000 whitefish, 3,000,000 pike perch, 12,000,000 lake trout, 150,000 brook trout, and 50,000 rainbow trout. During the winter, 825,000 lake trout eggs were sent to other stations.

Northfield—The national convention of the Lutheran Free Church of America met here with 200 delegates from nine states and one province in Canada present.

St. Cloud—P. H. Martin of St. Paul was elected state chief ranger of the Catholic Order of Foresters at their district convention here.

Minneapolis—Beaten back by the successive attacks of the years, a battered remnant of 175 veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic answered roll call at the annual convention of the department of Minnesota.

Redwood Falls—Redwood county will again have a booth the State Fair in September. The decision has just been arrived at and a committee is at work collecting samples of agriculture products.

Faribault—Conviviality and good fellowship ran high among the 1,200 men and women, immigrants or descendants of immigrants from the Sogning district of Norway who are attending the annual national gathering of the Sogning Laget.

Detroit — Gill Nokken of Moorhead, Minn., is leading in the race for the prize offered for the largest wall-eyed pike caught in this vicinity. His catch weighed 9 pounds and 2 ounces and was made in Ice Cracking lake.

Albert Lea—Nearly 100 people, including 7 great-grandchildren, 22 grandchildren and 7 sons and daughters, attended the 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Stensrud here. Mr. Stensrud, who is 89 years old, came to Minneosta in 1864.

St. Paul—Mrs. Henry C. Lund died of injuries suffered when a runaway automobile, without a driver, coasted on a hill in East Seventh street and ran her down. The car was parked near the curb when the brakes failed to hold and it rolled down the street, gaining speed rapidly.

Winona—Mrs. Daniel Newell is dead at the age of 105 at the home of her daughter, Miss Mary Newell, at Harmony, Minn., after a brief illness. Mrs. Newell, who was born in Monroe county, Pa., had resided at Harmony for more than 25 years.

St. Cloud—At the annual convention of the Minnesota Retail Furnace Dealers Association, A. C. Schliep of Zumbrota was elected president; John Kindler of St. Cloud, vicepresident, and Charles M. Zapf, Paynesville, secretary-treasurer.

Madison—Three thousand persons attended the closing meeting of the Tronderlag Steernet here. Officers elected Tuesday are Rev. D. G. Ristad, Manitowoc, president; W. P. Ronglie, Grand Forks, N. D.; secretary-treasurer.

Alexandria—Editors and publishers of the state will throw aisde the cares and worries of the "paste pot" and frolic at a four-day outing at Alexandria, beginning June 26, under the auspices of the Notrhern Minnesota Editorial association.

Crosby—Searchers at the Milford mine, scene of the disaster Feb. 5, which took a toll of 41 lives, brought out the body of Nels Retira. It was found on the 175 foot level. Retira, who was 40 years old, was married and had four children. The family now lives at Brainerd.

Winona—The largest class in the history of Winona Teachers college was graduated here when diplomas were awarded by resident director, S. H. Somsen, to 156 students at the commencement exercises. Diplomas previously had been awarded to 93 students, bringing the total number of this year's graduates to 249.

Crookston—The first of the annual "visiting days" by Red River valley farm clubs to the Northwest School of Agriculture opened here when members of the Big Woods Farmers club of western Marshall county were guests at the farm school. Last year 41 communities were represented in the visiting-day series.

New Ulm—William Silverson, 72 years old, president of the Eagle Roller Mill company of New Ulm, one of the largest inland flour mills in the United States, died at Miami, Fla., where he had made his home for the past several years. In 1885, he erected a flour mill at Nicollet, and later became interested in the Eagle Mill in this city.

Duluth—The U. S. S. Paducah, carrying a crew of more than 100 Minnesota naval militia men, steamed into the Duluth-Superior harbor after a successful two weeks' cruise down the lakes. Captain Clyde W. Kelly, commanding officer, commended the men on their work during the cruise. The vessel was anchored at Cleveland during the Republican National convention and the crew participated in a huge parade staged there.

St. Paul—Hamline University will conduct a drive for $1,500,000 next fall, it was decided at the annual meeting of the Hamline board of trustees. B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis was re-elected president of the board. E. W. Randall and J. M. Hackney were elected vice presidents. The Rev. F. A. Cone, secretary, and W. P. Westfall, treasurer. H. G. Matthews of St. Paul and Mr. Nelson were re-elected trustees. New trustees are W. G. More of Duluth, Bishop Charles Edward Locke of St. Paul and Judge John Meighan of Albert Lea.

Tent Caterpillar Pest

Tent caterpillars are a serious pest in many sections of the United States. If there are wild cherry trees in the community, the pest becomes troublesome, as this insect prefers the wild cherry. Where the attacks are bad, steps should be taken to destroy the nests and insects on the wild cherry as well as on the cultivated tree. Spraying the tree thoroughly with an arsenate of lead spray is very helpful in controlling them.

An annual loss of millions of dollars is sustained by the live stock industry through such diseases as tuberculosis, hog cholera, contagious abortion, mange and others too numerous to mention.

Quinces are usually propagated from cuttings or by mound-layering, though they may be propagated from seed. The seed should be handled much the same as apple seed, that is, it must be kept under cool, moist conditions for six to ten weeks prior to planting.

FREIGHT BOOST IS SUSPENDED

New Lignite Schedule Canceled But Present Rate Held Too Low

Fargo, N. D.—Proposed increased freight rates on lignite coal from the mines in North Dakota were found not justified Monday in decisions announced both by the interstate commerce commission at Washington and the North Dakota state commission. At the same time both commissions held that the present rates are too low.

The schedule of rates, increasing them 40 to 60 per cent, proposed by the railroads last fall and which had been suspended, were ordered canceled by the interstate commerce commission.

The interstate commerce commission held that present rates are too low, but that the record is insufficient to determine specific proper rates for the future. It submitted a scale of rates proposed by the examiner who conducted hearings in the case for the purpose of securing the views of all interests concerned as to its fairness.

88 Per Cent Moves Intrastate.

The state commission's decision is applicable to shipments of coal moving wholly within the state, while the interstate commerce commission decided the case affecting shipments of coal from North Dakota lines to points beyond the borders of North Dakota. About 88 per cent of the lignite coal moves wholly within North Dakota.

"The commission finds," says the decision, "that because of the low heating value of lignite, which is shown to be only half that of bituminous coal, it is entitled to a different classification and a lower basis of rates than bituminous coal; that the proposed freight rates would limit the movement of lignite to points adjacent to the mines; that the carriers have failed to justify the schedule under suspension."

LABORITES FOR LA FOLLETTE

Bar Communists to Win His Favor—Back Him for President.

St. Paul.—The Communist party—attacked so strongly by Senator La Follette—was kept out of the Farmer-Labor third party convention here Monday on the eve of its assembly.

Organizers of the convention served notice on Communist delegates that they could not enter the convention under the banner of their party. All the Communists, as members of the various trades unions, will be permitted to participate in the gathering if they present credentials from their unions.

This decision came after organizers had decided that La Follette should be indorsed as a candidate of the third party despite the denunciation of the convention because of Communist representation. The decision to oust the Communist party was taken as a peace offering to La Follette.

William Z. Foster, head of the workers' party of America, put a stiff fight against the movement to exclude the organization of which he is a member.

William Mahoney, St. Paul laborite and chairman of the committee, served notice on Foster that if he wanted to get in the convention at all he must come in as representative of a trade union.

PROBE CAUSE OF EXPLOSION

Low Air Pressure, Burning Tag, and Damaged Gun, Named.

San Pedro, Cal.—Three possible causes of the premature explosion which killed 48 men in a turret aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi last Thursday were slated for closer scrutiny at sessions of the naval court of inquiry.

One possible explanation of the blast was that the air pressure operating the breech mechanism of the 14-inch rifle was abnormally, perilously low, too low to eject from the barrel every glowing particle of powder left by the last charge fired.

Another theory supported by testimony, was that one of the linen index tags attached to powder bags was left on a bag of explosive when it was rammed into the breech and that a smouldering portion of this tag clung to the gun bore and ignited the new charge before the breech could be closed.

The third explanation suggested in the evidence so far presented was that there was something radically wrong with the gun that turned on its crews. Observers testified that the big rifle, in previous firings Thursday, had been from 5 to 10 seconds late—a delay seeming significant in view of the fact that the crew of No. 2 turret was the fastest crew in the fleet.

Shanghai—America's aerial expedition around the world was reunited. Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commander, whose plane, the Chicago, was delayed at Kagoshima, Japan, by engine trouble, not only negotiated the 500 mile hop across the China sea, but did so in 1¼ hours less time than was required by the other two planes of the air "fleet" which had preceded him.

The time made by Smith, who, with his mechanician, Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, spent strenuous hours conquering his refractory engine.

Doing Away With Tedium of Travel

The phrase "the tedium of travel" will speedily become meaningless, so far as long-distance railway journeys are concerned, if other companies follow the lead of the London & Northeastern and run "cinema coaches," says London Tit-Bits.

Experiments recently carried out on long-distance trains proved conclusively that even on trains traveling at express speed films can be shown with results as good as in a first-class picture theater. True, a few difficulties from oscillation and so on had to be overcome, but these have now been dealt with successfully.

The coach used as railway film-theater by the London & Northeastern was not specially constructed for that purpose. A coach in storage was taken out, dismantled, refitted, shuttered and equipped with operator's room and screen. Power was supplied by the train's electric-lighting system and the auditorium was seated for 30 people.

All cinema-theater regulations have been strictly observed in the construction of this railway picture house.

No Need to Bother With the Middleman

A farmer of German descent entered the drug store of a small Ohio town, as the story was told at the Salesmanship luncheon recently by Martin L. Pierce of Canton, Ohio, expert in industrial relations.

"I want an undertaker," he announced to the druggist, who, as it happened, was president of the local Salesmanship club.

"Why, who's dead?" the druggist inquired sympathetically.

"Nobody's dead, but my wife's sick, so I want an undertaker," the farmer repeated.

"You don't mean an undertaker, you want a doctor; I'll get you one," the druggist replied reaching for the phone.

"Oh, no, I don't; I want an undertaker," the man insisted. "Ain't we been hearing at every meeting of the Salesmanship club how we should eliminate the middleman?"—Houston Post.

Corrected

A zealous but untrained reformer had obtained permission to speak at the county jail.

"Brothers," he pleaded with them, "lose no time in turning to the pathway of righteousness. Remember we are here today and gone tomorrow."

Gloomy voice from the rear: "I've got eighteen years here yet."

Life gives you just 13 years of real health—and happiness

Average Health Span extends only from age 18 to age 31, according to United States Life Tables, 1920

Assuming that you are the average person, you will enjoy health—physical freedom and full vigor—only from age 18 to 31. This astounding fact is shown by the United States Life Tables, 1920.

Your earning power will decrease rapidly after 40. That period commonly called "the prime of life" will actually be an age of decay.

This sounds sensational. It is sensational. But it is true—and it is something to which the wise man or woman will give serious thought.

Of course, it is not natural, or right. It is the direct result of an artificial mode of life—of careless eating, sleeplessness, and stimulated nerves. Nature provides a danger signal—fatigue—to warn when the body needs rest. The person who regularly deadens the fatigue signal by the use of a drug is overriding the warning of nature.

That is what coffee does. The average cup of coffee contains 1½ to 3 grains of the drug caffein—classified as a poison. This is a dose of caffein of the size often administered by physicians in cases of heart failure. It is a powerful stimulant. It appears to give new strength by deadening the fatigue signal. Actually, this new strength is robbed from the body's own reserve.

Coffee contains no nourishment. Its only virtues, as a beverage, are its warmth and flavor. A good, hot, drugless drink is a benefit with every meal.

Millions enjoy such a drink in Postum. A drink made of whole wheat and bran, skillfully roasted, with a little sweetening—nothing more. A drink with the rich, mellow, full-bodied flavor of this wholesome grain. Every member of the family can drink it every meal of the day, enjoy its deliciousness, crave it, knowing there isn't a sleepless hour, a headache, or a taut nerve in it.

For the sake of your years following age 31, we want you to try Postum for thirty days. You can't expect to overcome the effects of a habit of years in two or three days, or even a week. To make this a sporting proposition, we will give you a week's supply of Postum free. Enough for a cup with every meal for a week. But we want you to carry on for the full thirty days.

Carrie Blanchard, who has personally served Postum to over 500,000 people, will send you her own directions for preparing it. Indicate whether you want Instant Postum, the easiest drink in the world to prepare, or Postum Cereal, the kind you boil. Either form costs less than most other hot drinks. Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale,

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignee of the Mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Clarence Larson and Bertha Larson, his wife, Mortgagors, to Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated October 11th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, A. D., 1919, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 152.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment dated October 25th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of October, A. D., 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 90 of Mortgages, on page 580.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Paul Kemp, by written assignment, dated November 25th, A. D., 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 284,

And whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Four Hundred Fifty-one and 54-100 Dollars ($451.54) and the first half of the taxes for the year 1923 amounting to Forty-nine and 15-100 Dollars ($49.15); and whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.00), with accumulated interest from the 11th day of October, 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $500.00 for taxes paid, as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Fifteen (15), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 22nd day of July, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $500.00 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated as attorneys fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated May 31st, 1924.

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people and for the people, whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign states; a perfect Union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American Patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its Laws, to respect its Flag, and defend it against all enemies."

"The men who are striking at the prohibition law do not realize that they are striking at their own property interest; that if they should accomplish what they wish and bring the prohibition law crashing to the ground they would bring down also the fabric of which it is a part. The Constitution would become meaningless. Popular elections, so long held sacred in their results, would become contemptible. The spirit of anarchy would be let loose and no man would know whether the safety of his wife and children could be assured by the law and the instruments of the law which had been flounted and condemned."

TOTAL VALUE OF FARM PRODUCTS BY YEARS

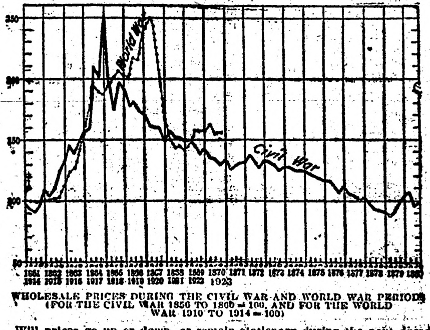
1914	$9,895,000,000	1919	23,787,000,000
1915	10,775,000,000	1920	18,328,000,000
1916	13,406,000,000	1921	12,402,000,000
1917	19,331,000,000	1922	14,604,000,000
1918	22,480,000,000	1923	16,064,000,000

During 1923 the American farmer carried over $16,064,000,000 worth of grains and live stock, dairy and poultry products, fruits and vegetables from the farm to the market. The total value of the nation's farm output was $1,460,000,000 more than the estimated value for 1922 and over $6,169,000,000 more than the value of the farm products in 1914.

In 1921 and 1922 the value of farm products was lower than any year since 1916, when the total was $13,406,000,000. With the entrance of the United States into the World war, prices for farm crops almost doubled in value. In 1917 the total value of farm products was $19,331,000,000, an increase of $5,925,000,000 over the previous year. In 1918 the value had reached $22,480,000,000 and in 1919 it was estimated at $23,787,000,000. In 1920 the total value of farm products decreased in the one year more than $5,450,000,000. In 1921 there was a still greater reduction, the total value having dropped to $12,402,000,000, the lowest since 1915. Since 1921 values have been working their way back to normal.

Of this year's crop more than $2,000,000,000 worth were marketed by the farmer's own business organizations at the actual cost of handling. Reports from 2,600 grain co-operatives show business totalling $490,000,000; 1,841 dairy products organizations did a business of $300,000,000; 1,182 live stock shipping associations, $280,000,000; 78 cotton co-operatives, $100,000,000 and 14 tobacco organizations, $132,000,000. Only 8,313 of the 10,300 organizations have reported, of which 90 per cent were primarily engaged in selling farm products.

Outlook for Farm Prices



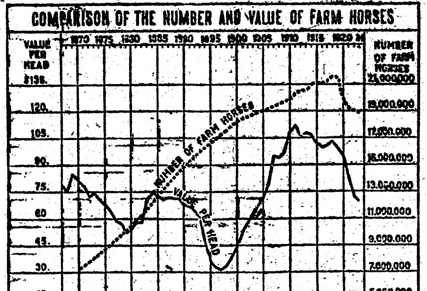
WHOLESALE PRICES DURING THE CIVIL WAR AND WORLD WAR PERIODS (FOR THE CIVIL WAR 1856 TO 1860 = 100, AND FOR THE WORLD WAR 1910 TO 1914 = 100)

Will prices go up or down, or remain stationary during the next decade? If you knew the answer to that question and knew how to take advantage of the situation it would mean money in your pocket, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

Dr. G. F. Warren, agricultural economist of Cornell university, has collected evidence on the price trend to be expected. He finds prices are acting in almost exactly the same way they did following the Civil war. The price level following the Civil war continued to fall for 18 years. Dr. Warren believes price levels in the United States will again act in this way.

The present huge supply of gold has much to do with the situation. Great Britain alone has sent to the United States since the beginning of the war more than $1,800,000,000 worth of gold—nearly a quarter of all the gold money in the world. Before long, Dr. Warren thinks, Europe will take her gold back. Then prices will go down.

Prospects Bright for Better Horses



Both farm and city are demanding more and better horses, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

Despite the 15,281,295 automobiles and trucks in the United States, there are 18,263,000 head of horses and mules on farms today and 2,300,000 horses pulling loads in city streets. The coming of the auto and trucks reduced the equine workers in cities by 2,000,000 between 1910 and 1920, a reduction of 35 per cent. But during the last three years there has been a decided trend in the opposite direction.

Between 1910 and 1920 the horse population on farms decreased 10 per cent. On January 1, 1924, there was 18,263,000 horses, compared with 21,555,000 six years before. This was the smallest number since 1905. Still, 97 per cent of all field work is done by horses and mules.

Around 1915, under the influence of stimulated war production and replacement by mechanical power, horse prices began to decline. By January of this year average values per head were the lowest since 1903. Mule prices, unlike horses, advanced during the war, reaching their peak in 1920. In 1923 there was a third more horses and mules sold than during the previous year.

Good mares and stallions are scarce. During the war horse breeding languished. The number of colts produced failed to keep pace with the losses by death. Between 1910 and 1920 horse and mule colts combined decreased 22 per cent. The largest percentage of the horse population is old.

Low prices will continue to discourage horse and mule production and cause still further decrease in the population until the average price turns upward. Unless breeding operations are increased, demand will soon be greater than the supply. How soon the market turning point will be reached for the rank and file of horses is uncertain. Prices have already improved for the better than medium grades. The constantly increasing demand along with the limited supply is indicative that the turning point is not far off.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows others what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Community Club of Holt Visits School

With banners stating "The Largest Co-operative Creamery in Marshall County" and other slogans, the Holt Community Club drove 62 miles today for their visit to the Northwest School. The Holt Club is composed of the splendid business men and farmers of the adjoining territory. According to the president, P. L. Anderson, the community boasts several achievements. During the past year, said Mr. Anderson, the local creamery increased the financial earnings 40 per cent and increased its volume 25 per cent. This, he said, is an indication of the growth of dairying and diversified farming throughout that section.

New settlers are being attracted to Holt and every indication is at hand for a prosperous community. One activity of the club has been the encouragement of the raising of alfalfa which is showing a large increase this year. According to the secretary, R. J. Lund of the Marshall Co. State Bank, that bank advanced loans so that six new silos have recently been built. Other members of the group mentioned that at the Dairymen's convention in Crookston last fall Holt won third prize in point of attendance. The club spent the afternoon visiting the various experiments, being naturally interested in the feeding experiments, forage crops and the general work of the school and station.—Crookston Daily Times.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

LORD GEORGE

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman receives a map, with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation.

CHAPTER V

A Message Received.

Three days after Archman's abrupt departure with Nellie, Mrs. Archman and Bess were sitting at the breakfast table. The murder of Morbach had created a sensation. Reporters in droves had descended upon the Archman home and, failing to obtain interviews with any of the family, had built towering fabrics of surmise on the unconcealable fact that Mr. Archman and Nellie had left the country abruptly, immediately after coming from the scene of the crime. The inquest followed and the three Archmans, and Akin as well, had been obliged to appear and testify. None of them could give any information as to the murder itself, but Mrs. Archman had been compelled to admit that the sudden departure of Mr. Archman and Nellie had been due to it. Her assertion that she did not know the wherefores of the situation, nor even the place for which her daughter and husband had set out, naturally added to the interest of the case. The coroner, urged on by the newspapers, went beyond all reasonable bounds in his questionings, and drove Mrs. Archman to the verge of collapse.

He was much more merciful in his examination of Miss Grant; that young lady being an actress, the papers were much less desirous of advertising her. Nothing as to her relations to Harry Archman came out. Henry Harrison, who had played so important and yet, to all appearances, so casual a part in the events of the evening, had disappeared utterly; perhaps—so said the papers—merely to avoid annoyance and perhaps for some more significant reason. The pretended secretary had also disappeared, leaving no trace.

Aside from these annoyances, each of the three Archmans had much to worry them. Mrs. Archman had heard nothing from Nellie and had received only one brief note from her husband, and that one, dated at New York, merely declared that he had seen Captain Bunker and had given him his orders, and that he and Nellie were about to leave town and he would not write again, "to avoid giving information of his movements to possible spies."

The intimation that he might be watched and followed was naturally not comforting, and Mrs. Archman was very glad that the letter came after the conclusion of the inquest, so that she had not been compelled to mention it to the coroner. Moreover, she was worrying over both Bess and Harry. With Nellie's departure the girl's remark about "splendid Americans who made their way by their own efforts" would naturally have ceased to trouble her. Unfortunately for her peace of mind, however, Bess took it up and echoed it constantly, with the vague intention of smoothing Nellie's way in case of necessity, until Mrs. Archman began to believe that it was Bess and not Nellie who had fallen in love with a poor man.

Then, too, she had sounded Harry about his inamorata, and had received evasive replies that added to her alarm. Her whole world was crashing around her.

Bess, too, had her troubles. Her promise to Nellie to visit the El Rio and see Carr had seemed simple enough when she made it, but had so far turned out to be beyond her power to keep. The rush of reporters and detectives and the suspense of the inquest had taken up every available moment. Even when this was over Mrs. Archman had thrown up her hands in amazement when Bess proposed a visit to the ship. "Good heavens! What are you thinking of, Bess?" she cried. "Haven't you seen the El Rio enough to last you for a while?"

Bess hesitated. "I want to see if Captain Bunker can tell us anything about father," she said, uncertainly.

"Well"—Mrs. Archman considered—"we'll go as soon as all this excitement is over."

Harry Archman, like his mother and sister, was uneasy and apparently bewildered. Whether this was because he had taken his father's warning to heart or because of some other cause, did not appear.

Certainly all three were gloomy enough—so gloomy that Bess was moved to protest. "Gracious!" she cried. "Cheer up. The worst is yet to come! We aren't all dead yet. Cheer up, or I'll begin to cry, too! Cheer up!" She looked at her mother.

Mrs. Archman dabbed at her eyes. "I ca-can't!" she burst out, and rushed from the room.

Bess looked after her with a sigh. Then she looked at Harry. "Poor mumsy!" she murmured. "It's tough. She can't get into society. Lord George won't visit us now. Dad and Nellie have gone away, nobody knows where. And you—say, young man, you'd better own up. I know you've done something awful. Mother said 'sssh' when I asked her what it is. What is it? 'Fess up!"

Harry glared at her. "Don't be rotten, Bess!" he begged. "I'm in a hole."

Bess softened instantly. She was very fond of Harry. "What's the matter, old boy?" she asked. "What's wrong? Tell Little Sunshine."

"Everything's wrong—awfully wrong. And the worst of it is I don't know just what is wrong. I know some of it, of course, but—"

"Well?"

"You know Edith Grant?"

"Edith Grant! Of course I know her. I've not been deprived of my ears during the last few days, have I? Of course I know her. But I don't KNOW her."

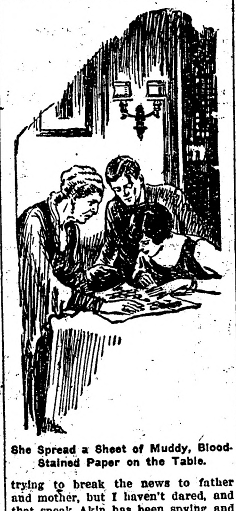
"Well, I do! I've known her six months. And I'm going to marry her."

Bess' eyes widened. "But Harry—" she began.

"Yes; I know," the boy broke in. "For goodness' sake, don't start to preaching. I've heard all the preaching I can stand, from father and from mother. Edith is just as good as gold, and I am going to marry her, I don't care what anybody says."

"Good gracious! First Nellie, and now you—"

Harry did not notice the reference to his sister. "Yes, I'm going to marry her," he reiterated. "I've been engaged to her for a month. I've been trying to break the news to father and mother, but I haven't dared, and that sneak Akin has been spying and telling tales, and, oh, it's rotten!"



She Spread a Sheet of Muddy, Blood-Stained Paper on the Table.

"But, Harry! You must tell mother at once."

"How the dickens can I?" demanded the boy. "I might have told father when he brought up the subject the other night, but he wouldn't listen, and then that man Morbach had to get murdered and to die at Edith's house, and father lit out and—oh! It's the devil and all!"

Bess nodded. "It sure is," she agreed.

"It was mere chance that Morbach was taken to Edith's house. You know that. He had been shot long before and the accident with the machine took place just in front of her door, and of course she had them bring him in. And when dad found out that she was the girl he had just been reading the riot act to me about, he made up his mind that she was part of the conspiracy to steal the papers. And I can't get him now to try to set things right."

"But why don't you tell mother?"

The boy groaned. "I don't dare. Mother is good, but she's crazy about getting into society and she wants me to marry into it, and now Akin has poisoned her mind, too, and—and—oh!—it wouldn't be any use. Of course, I want Edith to marry me right away, but father threatens to take my job away if I do, and if he does that we wouldn't have anything to live on. If father and mother could meet Edith, they'd like her and everything would be all right."

Bess nodded. "Maybe it would," she acceded. "Something's got to be done, of course. I'll try to think up something."

"All right." Harry jumped up. "You're the best sister that ever was, and I'm sure you'll find a way to help us. Hello, mother!"

Mrs. Archman had come into the room. Her eyes were bright and her cheeks flushed.

"Good heavens!" she exclaimed. "See what I have found in my mail. It was typewritten and I thought at first it was a bill or something. But it isn't. Listen!"

"Dear Mrs. Archman: I inclose a document that I intercepted on its way to your husband the other night. I thought it was something different. I have no use for it, and as Mr. Morbach said it was of great importance, I return it herewith, with the suggestion that you get it to Mr. Archman at the earliest possible moment, by absolutely safe hands."

"There's no signature," said Mrs. Archman. "Now look at the inclosure." She spread a sheet of muddy, blood-stained paper on the table. It was the map of an island, drawn in black, with a dotted red line running up and halfway around it.

Bess stared at it. "It's a map of an island, all right," she said. "But what island? Where is it?"

"I don't know." Mrs. Archman snatched up the paper. "There's no name on it."

"And no longitude nor latitude, either," remarked Harry. "It might be anywhere. I guess father knows. But where is father?"

"Where is he?" Bess laughed scornfully. "I'll bet I know where he is. He's on the way to this island. That's where Captain Bunker is to meet him. Give the captain the map and he'll give it to father."

"Maybe." Mrs. Archman's wits were not quite so rapid as those of her children. "I'll go in and see Captain Bunker right away."

"We'll all go!" Bess made the declaration, instantly and enthusiastically.

Harry nodded assent, and Mrs. Archman agreed excitedly. Before any of them could make a move to start, however, a footman came in with a card.

Mrs. Archman took it. "Lord George Caruthers," she read blankly. "He's come, in spite of all this turmoil."

"Come!" Bess laughed. "Of course he's come," she exclaimed. "You couldn't keep him away!"

"Well—somebody's got to stay with him."

"Stay with him! Nonsense! Take him along!" Bess laughed excitedly. "Come, let's meet him and ask him. Good gracious! I feel as if I were living in a play!"

CHAPTER VI

Bound South.

Lord George turned out to be a blue-eyed, ruddy-skinned, Roman-nosed droopy-mustached Englishman perhaps thirty years of age, who said, "Oh, say!" exactly as an Englishman should. Though perhaps a little astonished for the moment, he seemed to be delighted to visit the El Rio. "Oh I say!" he exclaimed, when Bess put the question to him. "That's perfectly jolly now, don't you know!" When on the way down to the city, Bess explained the circumstances, or as much of them as she understood, he seemed more and more delighted. "Fancy now!" he said. "It's mighty exciting—what?"

Bess agreed with him enthusiastically. "Isn't it?" she cried. "Here's the devoted subhero racing to bring the dread tidings to the hero—dad's the hero, of course—and he's murdered on the way and robbed of his blood-bought dispatches. The hero guesses what's in them and races off to what he thinks is the rendezvous, leaving his faithful vassals to follow. Then the thief repents—or does he repent? I reckon he's plotting something, though I don't know what it is. What do you think, Lord George?"

"Really, I can't guess. What could he be plotting, now, Miss Archman?"

"I'm just trying to find out. You see, there's nothing to tell where the island is or what there is on it. We're just guessing what father may know. Maybe—maybe the thief figures that father has gone there and that we will lead him to it somehow."

"You'll have to be jolly careful, won't you? What?" Lord George spoke as if he were interested. His eyes never left Bess' vivacious face.

Mrs. Archman noticed his interest and smiled at Bess so warmly that that young woman, after a moment's stare of incomprehension, giggled outright. "Not this time, mother," she said aloud, impatiently, trusting to boldness to protect her. "I decline to be a meal ticket." Then she spun on their guest. "Mother is greatly interested in charity work, Lord George," she explained. "She is a member of a society that provides meal tickets for the impecunious."

Lord George looked bewildered, as well he might. "Ah, yes! Quite so!" he said blankly.

> Either the thief has a conscience—or else he is using the family to find the father. What's your guess?

How Fast They Go

The average man walks three miles an hour, or four feet a second, while a horse trots seven miles an hour, or ten feet a second.

Some people are known by their intentions and others by their works.

CLOSE VOTE WAS PRIMARY FEATURE

Several Contests On Both Tickets In Doubt Until Last Precincts Report.

THE TICKETS.

Republican.

United States Senator—Thomas D. Schall.
Governor—Theodore Christianson.
Lieutenant Governor—W. I. Nolan.
Secretary of State—Mike Holm.
State Treasurer—Henry Rines.
Attorney General—Clifford L. Hilton.
Railroad Commissioner—Frank W. Mattson.

Farmer Labor.

United States Senator—Magnus Johnson.
Governor—Floyd Olson.
Lieutenant Governor—Emil E. Holmes.
Secretary of State—Susie M. Stageberg.
State Treasurer—Carl M. Berg.
Attorney General—Thomas Sullivan.
Railroad Commissioner—A. E. Smith.

St. Paul—In one of the closests and most spectacular primary elections ever held in the state, the voters of Minnesota last week registered their choice for the various candidates to make the race on the different tickets at the general election in November.

Results In Doubt for Days.

The results on many of the offices were in doubt for several days after the voting was done, and in some of the contests the official count of the state canvassing board only will determine the exact figures.

Congressman Thomas D. Schall, who early in the campaign was figured third in the Republican race for United States Senator, made a wonderful run, and on the unofficial return is about 1,300 votes ahead of his nearest competitor, Judge Oscar Hallam. Ole Sageng, of Ottertail, made a poor race for third place, when it was figured up to the day of election that he would be a contender for the nomination with Judge Hallam.

On the Farmer-Labor ticket, U. S. Senator Magnus Johnson was renominated by such a tremendous majority over his opponents that there was never question as to the result after the first few precincts were in.

Governorship Race Spectacular.

The race for the Governorship nomination on the Farmer-Labor ticket was spectacular. With a field of seven candidates to choose from the voters centered on Tom Davis and Floyd Olson, both of Minneapolis, and the official count with the probability of a contest recount will only determine which is to lead the banner of the Farmer-Labor forces in the fall campaign. Olson had a tremendous lead in Hennepin county, while Davis strength was in the small cities and towns of the southern part of the state, Olson carrying fewer counties than Davis, but his Hennepin county vote being so large put him across with a little over 200 plurality in the final unofficial count.

Theodore Christianson, of Dawson, won the Republican nomination for Governor handily, with a margin of over 6,000 votes. The surprising run of Mayor George E. Leach in the Minneapolis neighborhood, threatened Christianson early in the counting, but Christianson's out in the state strength gave him a final and decisive lead.

State Ticket Contests Close.

Contests for several of the state offices on both Republican and Farmer-Labor tickets were close, but the tickets as shown above are the unofficial winners. The final official count is not expected to reverse any of these findings.

Nominees for Congress.

First District—Allen J. Furlow, "ozffgodarwere" —..O..yooJJJl..CS Rochester, Republican; Julius Reiter, Rochester, Farmer-Labor.

Third District—August H. Anderson, Red Wing, Republican; A. C. Welch, Glencoe, Farmer-Labor.

Fifth District—Walter H. Newton, Minneapolis, Republican; Albert G. Bastis, Minneapolis, Farmer-Labor.

Sixth District—Harold Knutson, Republican; S. C. Shipstead, Brooten, Farmer-Labor.

Eighth District—Victor L. Power, Hibbing, Republican; William Carrs, Duluth, Farmer-Labor.

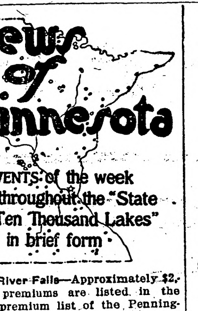
Tenth District—Godfrey C. Goodwin, Cambridge, Republican; George D. Brewer, Minneapolis, Farmer-Labor.

Judgeship Results.

The final unofficial figures show that Albert Johnson and Judge Wilson will be on the fall ballot for Chief Justice; Judges Holt and Stone, and William A. Anderson and Thomas Fraser will appear on the ticket for associate justices of which two will be chosen at the election.

There were no contests for Democratic nominations, and the Democratic ticket as elected by the state committee will appear on the general election ballot in November. James J. Farrell, of Carver county, is the candidate for United States Senator, and Carlos Avery, of Hutchinson, will lead the Democratic hosts as the governorship candidate.

In the second, fourth, fifth, seventh and ninth Congressional districts, there were no contests for the various nomination, but all parties will have candidates on the fall ballot.



News of Minnesota

EVENTS of the week throughout the "State of Ten Thousand Lakes" told in brief form

Thief River Falls—Approximately $2,000 in premiums are listed in the annual premium list of the Pennington county fair, distribution of which was started this week by the secretary, J. J. McCann.

Thief River Falls—Oswald Hanson, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Severt Hanson of Silverton, met death by drowning in a rain barrel. A physician was summoned here but efforts to revive the child proved futile.

Lakefield — The village council has purchased a tract of five acres of land not far from the business section of town and it will immediately be converted into a city park and tourist camping ground.

Hibbing — The Mahoning Mining company has been shipping on an average of 300 cars of ore daily, and has been one of the busiest mines in the iron ore industry. The cars have a capacity of 50 tons, and 90 cars make up a train load.

Montevideo —Chippewa county has joined the counties of the state which have started warfare on the crows which infest farms. The county commissioners have fixed a bounty of 10 cents to be paid for each crow killed in the county.

Fairmont — Officers were elected here at the annual meeting of the Second District American Legion convention as follows: T. Otto Streissguth of New Ulm, commander; Walter D. Payne, Lakefield, vice-commander, and John Roberts, Worthington, chaplain.

St. Paul — The American Farm Bureau Federation will conduct its annual convention this year in Chicago, Dec. 8, 9 and 10, the executive committee voted at its mir-year session. This date will give delegates an opportunity to attend the international livestock show, which will close the Saturday preceding.

St. Cloud — Adoption of students in elementary grades by business women's clubs of Minnesota and establishment of a scholarship fund for each club will be sought this year by Mrs. Delima R. Harvey, recently elected president of the Minnesota Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Glenwood—John Stuttleberg of Clara City was elected commander of the Seventh District American Legion at its annual convention here. D. W. Gibbs of Marshall was elected first vice-commander and E. A. Benson of Appleton, second vice-commander. Mrs. L. L. Gibbons of Lowry was elected president of the seventh district auxiliary and Mrs. E. A. Howard of Wheaton was elected vice-chairman.

Minneapolis — Hennepin county's first all-woman jury returned a verdict of $100 damages in a $5,000 personal injury suit brought by a woman plaintiff. The verdict came in sealed after nine hours of deliberation. The verdict was on behalf of Clara Herrick against owners of a building. She asked damages because of a fall from a porch which she blamed on a faulty porch-rail.

Redwood Falls — Three boys, two of them twins, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Helgerson, 9 years old, the third a cousin 11 years old, were drowned in the Minnesota river near Belview. The drowning occurred within several hundred feet of a picnic gathering, and the tragedy did not become known until the bodies of the boys were found at the bottom of the river. They were within a few feet of each other.

Faribault—It is announced here that A. A. McPheeters, agent of the Rice County Farm Bureau, is to become general manager of the Minnesota Co-operative Egg and Poultry Association on July 1. His resignation has been tendered and accepted. He will have a temporary office here until permanent headquarters are opened in St. Paul.

Slayton—Following the recent area tubercular test of dairy herds of Murray county a number of dairymen of the county have organized a cow testing association. Farmers from the vicinity of Slayton, Hadley and Lake Wilson have entered the new organization and a competent man has been engaged to carry on the testing operations.

Northfield — Members of the Lutheran Free Church of America, ending their annual conference here, went on record as favoring the outlawing of war by condemning participation in any war except one in defense of foreign invasion. The Lutherans voted a budget of $50,000 for foreign missions in China and Madagascar and $35,000 for home missions. The convention selected Willmar for the 1925 meeting place.

Silver Lake — More than 700 children from Minneapolis orphanages competed for $4,000 in prizes at the annual picnic conducted for them by the City Fire Fighters' union at the Salvation Army Fresh Air camp at Silver Lake. The prizes were furnished by Minneapolis merchants.

Minneapolis — Iris Gudim, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Gudim, was reported out of danger following a fall which resulted in the left side of her neck being pierced by a pair of scissors which she carried. At the General hospital, a portion of the scissor blade was removed from her neck.

Noise That Annoys Not

Liege is, at this time of the year, the center of a sport which has no followers elsewhere.

Attending cock-crowing competitions is one of the ways in which the Belgian artisan spends part of his leisure. Special roosters are bred for these contests, and that which outcrows his fellows is adjudged the winner.

The roosters are placed in cages, each of which is set an inch or so from its neighbors. This proximity, it seems, produces that spirit of rivalry without which the affair would fall flat.

A marker it appointed for each bird, his job being to note the number of crows made. As a rule a match lasts an hour.

Coat That Christ Wore on Calvary?

The cathedral at Treves, in Rhenish Prussia, is said to contain the coat Jesus wore on the day of His crucifixion. Tradition states that it was found by the Empress Helena while on a visit to the Holy Land in the Fourth century and was deposited by her father for safe keeping in the cathedral at Treves. In the Ninth century the coat was concealed from invaders in the crypt of the church, but was brought to light and solemnly exhibited in 1196. It was not shown again until 1512, when, owing to the vast crowds that flocked to see it, Pope Leo X decreed that it should be exhibited only once every seven years thereafter. It is said that in 1844 the coat was viewed by one million pilgrims in the course of a single week. In 1891, the first time of its exhibition since 1844, it was seen by nearly two million pilgrims. However, at least twenty "holy coats" are exhibited and said to have been worn by Christ that day on the "hill called Calvary."—Montreal Family Herald.

Penalty of Negligence

"Mizzus Tarpy just told me that Lum Gawky fell dead a spell ago while chopping stove wood," excitedly cried Mrs. Johnson, upon her return from a neighborhood call.

"Goodgoddlemighty!" ejaculated Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "That pore feller might have been alive right now if he had begun breaking his wife in to do her work when they was first married."—Kansas City Star.

Keeping Him In

"Confound a cuss that'll leave his cistern uncovered so's another feller falls in!" yelled Gabe Giggery, who at that moment was in Mr. Johnson's cistern. "As soon as I get out I'll whip you on less ground than a two-dollar bill will cover!"

"Good thing for me, and mebby you, that you mentioned that fact before I fished you out," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "I'll just let you stay in there till you don't."

Big Sardinian Dam

The dam on the Tirso river in Sardinia, officially opened April 28, creates an artificial lake with a capacity of 450,000,000 cubic meters of water, which will give an estimated annual output of 50,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric power and irrigate 75,00 acres of land. The cheap power created by this dam will permit local electrolytic treatment of zinc ores, which have been exported hitherto, and will favor the development of other industries in the region. This is the first of several similar projects in Sardinia to increase the agricultural developments of the island.

Boy Scout Saved Brother

Just as his seven-year-old brother who had fallen through the ice on a pond near Kalamazoo, Mich., was being drawn under the surface by the current, fourteen-year-old Scout Carl Johnson, at peril of his own life, plunged into the icy water and, securing a hold on the little fellow, pulled him to safety. The scout then extricated himself from the water's grip and the broken hole, and promptly hustled his small brother home to recuperate from the ice bath. Application for an honor medal for the youthful hero has been made to the national court of honor by the local council.

Couldn't Find the Boxes

"Will you please tell me where the boxes are?" was the question propounded the pastor's secretary of the First Baptist church, Vermont and Meridian streets, as she stepped out of her office the other day.

It was a bewildered colored man who asked. Evidently he had been wandering about the church for some time.

On being asked what boxes he wanted, the colored man said: "Why, lady, ain't dis yere de pos' office?"—Indianapolis News.

Will blind confidence lead you to physical disaster at age 31?

This is the experience of the average American, United States Life Tables, 1920, indicate

For the average person, health—physical freedom and full vigor—extends only from age 18 to 31. Then the slump. After 40, earnings fall off rapidly. What do these startling facts (taken from the United States Life Tables, 1920) mean for you?

It is time to check up. It is time to take stock of the present, and face the future with open eyes. Blind faith in the power of the human body to absorb punishment has failed miserably. Unwise eating, stimulated nerves, sleeplessness; disregard of the simplest laws of health; the lashing of the overwrought body to new exertions by the use of drugs—physical decay beginning at age 31! This is the tragic chronicle.

Nature provides a danger signal—fatigue—to warn when the body needs rest. Certain drugs have the power to deaden the fatigue signal. One of the most common of these drugs is caffein—a drug classified as a poison. The average cup of coffee contains from 1½ to 3 grains of caffein—a dose equal to that often administered by physicians in cases of heart failure.

Caffein, by deadening the danger signal of fatigue, appears to give new strength. Actually, this strength is robbed from the body's own reserve, stored up for life's emergencies.

Coffee contains no nourishment. Its only virtues as a beverage, are its warmth and flavor. A good, hot, drugless drink is a benefit with every meal.

Millions enjoy such a drink in Postum. A drink made of whole wheat and bran, skillfully roasted, with a little sweetening—nothing more. A drink with the rich, mellow, full-bodied flavor of this wholesome grain. Every member of the family can drink it every meal of the day, enjoy its deliciousness, crave it, knowing there isn't a sleepless hour, a headache or a taut nerve in it.

For the sake of your years following age 31, we want you to try Postum for thirty days. You can't expect to overcome the effects of a habit of years in two or three days, or even a week. To make this a sporting proposition, we will give you a week's supply of Postum free. Enough for a cup with every meal for a week. But we want you to carry on for the full thirty days.

Carrie Blanchard, who has personally served Postum to over 500,000 people, will send you her own directions for preparing it. Indicate whether you want Instant Postum, the easiest drink in the world to prepare, or Postum Cereal, the kind you boil, for your week's free supply. Either form costs less than most other hot drinks. Fill out the coupon, and get your first week's free supply of Postum—now!

STORM LOSSES IN DETAIL REPORTED

Much Damage To Farm Structures---Hail Loss Is Small

Mandan, N. D.—With resumption of telephone communication and assembling of information, details of the losses sustained during the tornado of last Wednesday and the hail storms of the preceding day, are becoming available.

Near Hebron, a large barn on the Frank Brecht farm was demolished. The terrific downpour which sent torrents of water rushing through the streets, entered the basement of the Jack Roth home, swept out the basement walls and formed a new channel to a nearby creek.

The hail storm which struck north of Carson, Tuesday, although badly damaged the winter rye, caused but little loss to the young wheat.

The same hail storm caused losses on several farms near Raleigh. The roof of the Westrum Bros. implement shed at Raleigh was blown off and Hubert Wessel, farmer southeast of Raleigh lost more than 200 chickens when his chicken house was demolished.

At Flasher, Otto Feland lost several sheep, Albert Goshell lost several hogs and pigs killed by the hail; many windows were knocked out at the Ben Wing farm, while Guy Hedlicka lost more than 100 turkeys and chickens.

The body of James Osterloth, 16, swept away by a rush of water while herding sheep near Golva, is believed to have been washed into the Missouri river and had not been recovered up to Tuesday. The same storm destroyed the Dakota Western Farmers elevator at Glova with a loss of $15,000. Windows were blown in at Beach and a Chautauqua tent blown down but none was injured.

CUT TO SAVE $50,000 YEARLY

Interstate Tariffs Slashed 10 to 23 Percent.

Bismarck, N. D.—General reduction of express rates in the western district which includes North Dakota, ranging from 10 to 23 per cent and effective on or before Jan. 1, 1925, is ordered in a decision just handed down by the interstate commerce commission, according to the current bulletin of the North Dakota railroad commission.

It is estimated that the annual reduction to North Dakota shippers alone will be at least $50,000 annually, says the bulletin. The case had been pending since 1922 and several hearings and arguments were had in which the North Dakota commission took part.

The bulletin anounces that the interstate commerce commission has set for hearing in Duluth Minn., July 29, next, complaints of the Grand Forks Commercial club and Dluth Chamber of Commerce, regarding the freight rates on butter, eggs and dressed poultry from North Dakota to Duluth, Chicago and so on. The Grand Forks complaint alleges that the rates from Aberdeen, Watertown, S. D., and so on to Chicago discriminate against the rates from Grand Forks, Jamestown and other points. The North Dakota railroad commission has formally intervened and will be represented at the hearing to oppose any rate increases and generally protect the interests of the state.

At Stanton, a lumber shed of the Mandan Mercantile company was wrecked and a large plate glass window in the Adam Sailer store shattered. Small buildings and hay racks were blown far and wide.

SAYS SOCIETY IS TO BLAME

Whole Structure of American Living Is at Foundation.

Princeton, N. J.—The two Chicago students, Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., the alleged murderer of Robert Franks are insane, according to Dr. Stewart Paton, Princeton University lecturer on nero-biology.

Dr. Paton, who is a recognized authority on the criminal mind and whose testimony has been used in a great many trials because of his extensive research work, blames the condition of the two students on their home training and the one sided education that American schools and universities are offering students. It is Dr. Paton's belief that all teachers are narrow minded, and cannot help the university student in gaining control of the savage incidents that are present in the human race, handed down from our forefathers.

Many Things Have Been Subject to Tax Levies

Carriages were the first subject of a tax levy by the federal government, according to the researches of the congressional library. Snuff and refined sugar came next, followed by sales at auction. By 1813 retailers of liquor were made a source of governmental revenue, and retailers of foreign merchandise as well. In 1815 manufactured iron, candles, hats, umbrellas, and shoes, were taxed along with playing cards.

Coal, paint, cement, marine engines, and screws were among the articles upon which the government levied in the days of the Civil war. In these times, too, architects, civil engineers and contractors had to settle with the collector of internal revenue. Before the war ended, lawyers, physicians and dentists had been added to the list and about every one else, including all manufacturers.

Quebec Planting Trees

A contract for planting 10,000 trees on the Montreal-Quebec highway was awarded to a Pollette nursery by the provincial department of highways and roads. Half of these trees were to be planted this spring and the other half next fall. This number is in addition to the 2,000 trees to be planted by the lands and forest department for the account of the roads department. A total of 200,000 plants will be necessary to improve the scenery along the principal highways in the western section of the province.

Animals Not Only Pets

In the rush of signing up for the pet parade, a youngster went into the Irvington branch library and asked whether she might enter the contest. When questioned as to what kind of a pet she was going to take, she replied:

"I haven't any pet, but another little girl wants to know if she can take her baby brother."—Indianapolis News.

Heredity

"How many are four and five?—hands up!"

A forest of hands perforated the air.

"Ah, you—little girl in the front seat."

"Fo'oer and fi'iv," answered the young daughter of a former telephone operator, "are- ni-yun."—Bell Telephone News.

New Primrose

At the famous Kew gardens in London a new primrose of great beauty has recently been exhibited. It is the Primula rosea, a beautiful primrose from the Himalayas, which has been flowering profusely at the foot of the dripping well in the Rock garden. It has rich carmine-pink blossoms, which are very effective, particularly when viewed from a short distance. This new primrose ranks among the best of all waterside plants, but it is said to be equally happy in other situations. It will grow in almost any soil, but preferably in a rich loam that contains a slight mixture of peat.

Helpful Advice to Overworked Women

MRS. C. E. CHAPMAN
1920 ELM ST., NEW ALBANY, IND.

DAY in and day out, week in and week out the tired, over-worked housewife and mother toils on, sweeping, dusting, cooking, cleaning and mending. Is it any wonder that after a time a weakness, such as Mrs. Chapman had, develops and the wife and mother pays a toll in physical weakness and pain for her efforts of love, the natural result of overwork?

Women who find themselves afflicted with weakness, pain, headaches, backache, nervousness, irritability and melancholia will be interested in Mrs. Chapman's letter, and should realize that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is especially adapted to overcome such conditions.

Mrs. Chapman's Letter Reads as Follows:

NEW ALBANY, IND.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weakness which many women have from over work, and from which I suffered for quite a while. I wasn't fit to do my work and my sister advised me to take this medicine. After the first few days the pains were not so severe as they had been and after taking a few bottles I am not bothered any more. I am doing my housework every day and highly recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman suffering from female trouble. Only yesterday a friend called me on the 'phone and knowing what it did for me wanted to know what to ask for at the drug-store, as she meant to give it a trial."—MRS. C. E. CHAPMAN, 1920 Elm Street, New Albany, Indiana.

Another Case of Nervous Breakdown

MEMPHIS, TENN.—"Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sweep a room without resting, I could not do any of my work except a little at a time and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one threw a little book on to my porch and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health."—MRS. O. J. HINCKLEY, 475½ E. Georgia St., Memphis, Tenn.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignee of the Mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Clarence Larson and Bertha Larson, his wife, Mortgagors, to Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated October 11th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, A. D., 1919, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 152.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment dated October 25th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of October, A. D., 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 90 of Mortgages, on page 360.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Paul Kemp, by written assignment, dated November 25th, A. D., 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 28[illegible].

And whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Four Hundred Fifty-one and 54-100 Dollars ($451.54) and the first half of the taxes for the year 1923 amounting to Forty-nine and 15-100 Dollars ($49.15); and whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.00), with accumulated interest from the 11th day of October, 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid, as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum: and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Fifteen (15), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 22nd day of July, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated as attorneys fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated May 31st, 1924.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON VII

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association

Bank deposits are broadly divided into two kinds:

1. SAVINGS DEPOSITS
2. COMMERCIAL DEPOSITS.

J. H. Puelicher

SAVINGS DEPOSITS=deposits more or less permanent, in a savings bank or savings department of a bank, on which interest is paid, and which are withdrawn against the depositor's receipt; they in effect represent conservative investment of funds accumulated through personal thrift.

COMMERCIAL DEPOSITS=deposits in a business account at a bank from which money is withdrawn by check; they represent an essential facility for the conduct of business.

Many persons and all business houses have checking accounts in which to deposit the cash and checks which they receive and against which to draw their own checks to pay bills, wages and purchases. Thrifty people almost universally keep their savings in a savings account.

THE TIMID BORROWER

"I'd like to borrow $50 to buy a cow I saw yesterday," said a farmer to the cashier of a country bank.

The cashier hesitated. "No, I can't lend you $50 for a cow, but I'll let you have $100 or $125."

Astonishment was written all over the face of the man seeking funds. "Why, I can't afford to pay that amount for a cow. I'm rather hard up just now."

"If you can afford to buy a cow at all, you can afford to buy a good cow instead of a poor one," replied the cashier. Then he proceeded to explain just why a high-priced cow was cheaper than one costing only $50.

"The average cow, producing about 165 pounds of butterfat valued at 50 cents a pound, earns $82 as a year's gross income," he said. "Deducting the cost of feed leaves a profit of only $10 to $12, and does not take into account the labor involved, depreciation, and other overhead expenses Now can you honestly afford to buy this kind of a cow? A $100 or $125 cow will produce 300 to 350 pounds of butterfat. You can figure the profits for yourself."

Convinced of the profitableness of investing more money in a cow, the farmer left the bank with the funds in his hands. He started paying for the animal with his first milk check One half of each milk check went to the bank to pay off the indebtedness while the farmer retained the remainder for his expenses.—Banker Farmer.

Our Business System

For the benefit of all our patrons, it should be of interest to them to know our method and system of doing business.

We pay according to quality, 3 cents more per pound for the butterfat in first grade cream. All shareholders receive an 8 per cent dividend on shares of $25.00, which means $2.00 every year for each share. Besides the dividend, shareholders receive one-half cent more per pound for butterfat than non-shareholdes, regardless of whether they are monthly or cash patrons. To illustrate what this amounts to, let us figure what the amount would be on our largest patron for 1923. His total pounds of butterfat was 3593, times one-half cent equeals $17.96, plus a $2.00 dividend would make the extra amount, by being a shareholder, the neat sum of $19.96. Shareholders are part owners of the creamery, have a vote and something to say at the annual meetings, can hold office and help all the rest of the shareholders in making this the best creamery in the northwest. We are the biggest in the county, let us hold our own. It is advertising of this kind that shows what is being done in the vicinity of Holt.

Obituary

Mrs. John Udstrand died shortly before three o'clock Tuesday morning June 24, aged 59 years, eight months and 12 days. Mrs. Amalie Udstrand was born at Harstad, Norway in 1865. She came to America in 1896 and was the same year united in marriage to John Udstrand.

They made their home in Ringbo where they lived together until February 28th, 1923 when they were parted by the death of her husband, John Udstrand. Mrs. Udstrand has been failing in health the last couple of years and on June 14th, she was taken seriously ill with the paralysis, which affected both her heart and her brain. Her sufferings were great, until Tuesday morning when she quietly passed away. At the time of her death, all her children and her brother Mr. Thoften were at her bedside.

Funeral services were conducted at the home and the Ringbo church Thursday afternoon, Rev. Raaum officiating and interment made in the Ringbo cemetery.

Mrs. Udstrand leaves to mourn her death, three daughters, Mrs. Markestad, Hedlie, Jalma and one son Palmer, also four brothers and three sisters.

Relatives present at the funeral from a distance were:

Mr. and Mrs. Aaserud and children, Mr. and Mrs. Christenson and children, Mrs. Lampeland, Miss Ekness, Miss Bendixson and Mr. K. Udstrand of Grand Forks. Mr. and Mrs. Aakre, Theressa and Constance Aakre, Mr. John Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. Wraa, all of Goodridge Minn. and Mr. Thoften of Mples.

Card of Thanks

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors for their kindness and help given us during the illness and death of our beloved mother, also for the beautiful flowers.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington—Forest fires threaten the giant Sequoia trees in five national forests in California.

Washington—Horacio Vasquez, president elect of Santo Domingo, was entertained by President Coolidge at a luncheon attended by members of the cabinet, justices of the supreme court and members of the diplomatic corps.

Washington—First step in plans to give the United States an American manned merchant marine has been taken by the shipping board under a decision to place boys between 18 and 23 on commercial ships' crews, with the intention of having the boys work up to officers' berths.

Washington—Continuance of the present wage scale and working conditions, with a few changes in favor of the men, has been agreed upon, it was announced at the shipping board, by the Masters, Mates and Pilots association, the Neptune association and the Marine Engineers Beneficial association. The agreement is effective July 1 and runs for a year.

Domestic

Los Angeles—Plans to destroy 7,300 acres of cotton near Tucson, Ariz., in the war against the boll weevil, were halted by federal injunctions.

Cleveland—Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, Chicago, was elected president of the American Institute of Homeopathy, in its 80th annual convention.

New York—William H. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, arrived to arrange for the opening of eastern headquarters of the republican national committee.

Cincinnati—Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, advocated "war against war," but not the type of pacifism which would deny the necessity of preparedness, in an address to the Ohio Christian Endeavor union.

Chicago—Marvin E. Barnhart, attorney, and one of the chief prosecutors of William Bross Lloyd and 19 other alleged communists four years ago, is dead. He was 55 years old and a native of Cass county, Ind.

Boston—Courtney Crocker, Boston attorney, was appointed adviser in foreign affairs to King Rama VI of Siam, succeeding Dr. Francis F. Sayre, son-in-law of President Wilson, who is to do special work for Siam in America.

New York—An animal with a body shaped like that of a dachshund, but with webbed feet, with a head like an anteater, with long hair and which sings somewhat like a bird, was brought from South America by William Schurz, commercial attache of the American embassy at Buenos Aires.

Conrad, Mass.—Nearly 100 members of the Coolidge family association, all descendants of John Coolidge, who settled in Watertown, in 1630, attended the annual reunion at the home of Sidney Coolidge here. President Coolidge and his father both expressed their regrets at being unable to attend.

St. Louis—Lieutenant Sidney R. Sears, 57 years old, nationally known pistol expert and crack shot of the St. Louis police department, was shot four times and killed as he sat in a police automobile in front of a Negro tenement house where he and two other officers were investigating an alleged Negro fight.

Wilmington—Two lives were lost and damage estimated at nearly $1,000,000 was caused by a wind and rainstorm which struck this section. A score of persons were injured. More than 300 houses were unroofed in Wilmington and much damage done to business places in the center of the city. Hundreds of trees were uprooted.

Chicago—Requests for seats for the trial of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons who have confessed kidnaping and slaying Robert Franks, a neighbor boy, for excitement, continue to arrive at the state's attorney's office here from lawyers from all sections of the country. A request to be admitted to the trial which starts August 4 was received today from Leonard B. Fowler, former attorney general of Nevada.

Kearny, N. J.—Cans of tobacco totalling 1,800,000, brought for overseas troops with the contributions of patriotic citizens in the war, are being used as filler for a new road along the banks of the Hackensack river here. The tobacco, which had been stored in French warehouses, was purchased by a New York concern and shipped to this country. Recently government customs inspectors condemned 6,000 cases remaining unsold as "unfit to smoke."

San Francisco—Forest fires which have burned over an area of 2,000 acres in Tulare and Fresno counties have gone beyond the control of squads fighting the blaze.

New York—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, who has been in a hospital due to a breakdown caused by overwork, was reported improving.

New Haven, Conn.—Relations between Canada and the United States never have been friendlier, Premier William Lyon Mackenzie-King, of Canada, said after receiving an honorary degree from Yale.

Chicago—The American Union of Swedish Singers opens its quadrennial festival and convention here with two concerts scheduled. The organization is composed of 54 choruses with a total membership of 1,500, scattered over the United States.

Sports

New York—Louis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, has accepted the final terms of Tex Richard, promoter of a 15 round bout between Firpo and Harry Wills, 220 pound Negro, thus concluding negotiations which have been pending for two months.

St. Paul—Tommy Gibbons will sail from New York for England where on July 26 he will box Jack Bloomfield, light heavyweight champion of England. The math was closed by cable several days ago but the terms $50,000 for Gibbons end in addition to traveling expenses was not settled until later. Tom now is the proud father of five boys. The St. Paul boxer expressed a wish at Michigan City before his fight with Georges Carpentier that his next child would be a girl. Mrs. Gibbons became the mother of twin boys recently.

Minneapolis—Twenty-six days ahead of schedule, the halfway mark in the construction of the University of Minnesota's new $700,000 stadium was reached when cement pouring for Section 6, the curved end of the huge horseshoe, began. If the construction program on the edifice continues at the present rate, it was estimated by Mr. Elwell that the entire stadium with its 50,000 seating capacity, would be ready for use by the time of the first scheduled football game next fall with North Dakota on October 4, although the contractor's contract calls for completion by October 25, a week before the Michigan contest.

Foreign

Calcutta—The American round the world fliers arrived in Calcutta from Akyab, on the Bay of Bengal.

Brussels—General John J. Pershing and other members of the American battle monuments commission were guests of the king and queen.

Geneva—German labor served notice at the international labor conference that the struggle for eight hours would be carried on by means of strikes.

Paris—The strike of journeymen bakers has not succeeded in interfering with the bread supply of the metropolis. The prefecture of police numbers the strikers at 700 of the 7,000 employees in the city and suburbs. The bakers' union, however, claims [illegible] workers are out.

Dublin—The city manager plan used in the administration of a number of American cities is advocated by some people for Dublin, now that the Dublin corporation has ben dissolved by President Cosgrave. There is general public approval of the steps taken by the government, which has entrusted city affairs to three commissioners.

Paris—Harold F. McCormick denied reports of an estrangement with his wife, Ganna Walska, Polish singer. Mr. McCormick says he and his wife are proceeding to Carlsbad to take the cure next week after which he will visit his daughter, Mathilde Oser, and his new granddaughter, whose name he does not yet know.

Belgrade—The fossilized skeleton of a prehistoric man 45 feet tall has been discovered near the Village of Chtip. The petrified remains were buried 20 feet under the ground and were dug up by workmen building a railroad. The skeleton will be taken to the national museum here. Its entirely preserved teeth are 18 inches long.

London—The British government has announced it is not going to abandon the Sudan. This indorsement of the previous government's policy was given in the house of lords by Lord Parmoor, lord president of the council. It is regarded as significant, in view of the impending visit of the Egyptian premier, Zagloul Pasha, to discuss the Egyptian demand for cession of the Sudan.

Quebec—Four young women, all graduate students of American universities, reached Quebec after hiking from Chicago by way of Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Rochester, Albany, and Montreal. The four girls are May Kemp, B. S. C., Northwestern university; Lillian Hall of the art institute; Cecilia Silverstein, Lyceum Arts conservatory, and Elsie Mayer, Ph. B., Chicago university.

London—Baron Arnold, undersecretary for colonies, informed the house of lords that the British government had instructed its ambassador at Washington to inform the United States government that Great Britain desires that the conduct of matters at Washington exclusively relating to the Irish Free State should be entrusted to a minister plenipotentiary accredited to the United States. He added the government trusted this proposal would be acceptable to the United States.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Willmar—Wesley, 2 year old son of Aldrick Tengwall, near here, met death by choking when he fell from a corn planter and became caught in the machinery.

Bemidji—Bemidji will entertain about 150 physicians of the northern part of Minnesota when the Upper Mississippi Medical society summer meeting takes place here.

Owatonna—One solid mile of their strongest telephone wires was completely wiped out and the poles lost in the vicinity of Tracy, where a tornado struck, it was learned by Tri-State Telephone officials here.

Hibbing—The village council has ordered a drastic cut in the operating forces of the village, holding that funds will not permit the present working forces. Approximately 100 men in all departments were discharged.

Crosby—At a special election here on the $95,000 bond issue, a vote of 149 was cast against the issue, with 100 for, defeating it by 49 votes. The bonds were to cover outstanding orders for Crosby.

Duluth—George A. Ferguson of Minneapolis, commander of the Minnesota department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was unanimously re-elected without opposition at the annual state convention of the veterans here

Hibbing—Through the efforts of D. D. McRachin, Hibbing, member of the State Fair board, the Hibbing concert band will fill a three day engagement at the fair it was announced. This will be the first appearance of the Hibbing band at the fair in several years.

Windom—After suffering for a week from injuries sustained when he was bitten by a rat, Jacob Jenzen died at his home near Mountain Lake. Jenzen was catching rats in his corn crib when a huge rodent caught him in the hand, biting him near the thumb. Blood poison resulted from the injury.

Two Harbors—An innovation in the display of fireworks will feature the Fourth of July celebration in Two Harbors, according to an American Legion committee which has charge of arrangements. A scow will be anchored in Agate bay, opposite the pavilion in the Two Harbors municipal park and the fireworks will be discharged from the deck.

Thief River Falls—While excavating at his home here, Alex Cloutier unearthed an adult Indian skeleton, wrapped in birch bark. The body was turned over to the coroner. This find recalls similar ones in this vicinity, the regular burial ground of the Indians for years previous to the opening of a reservation here 18 years ago having been across the river and known as Squaw Point.

Winona — Representative Sydney Anderson of the First district, who announced several months ago that he would retire from congress at the end of his present term, both because of ill health and a desire to provide better for his family has been appointed president of the Flour Millers National federation, an organization comprising all manufacturers of wheat flour in the United States. It was learned here.

Fergus Falls—Officers of the Nordlandslaget, the largest of more than a dozen "lags" that are holding reunions here this summer, elected for coming year are H. H. Borgen, Duluth, president; S. W. Davidson, Minneapolis, secretary; L. Strauman, Minneapolis, treasurer, P. Bernhard, Sioux Falls; John Dahl, Hatton, and J. Jorgenson, Maynard, vice presidents; and Mrs. Smeby, Northfield, financial secretary.

Rochester—"When you've lived a hundred years and watched a whole century of the world's foolishness, you can't help but beome a little bit bored," philosophized Mrs. Martha Lee, Olmsted county pioneer woman, on the occasion of her one hundredth anniversary. Mrs. Lee has decided opinions on some subjects and expresses then freely. Mrs. Lee admits she has never voted. "I got along for more than ninety years without voting and I guess I don't need to now."

Austin—Nearly 60,000 dairy cattle in Mower county herds will be tested for tuberculosis on the area test plan as the result of signing of petitions circulated by the county bureau and their signature by more than 51 per cent of the farmers in the county. The county board has appropriated $15,000 for the testing and state and federal funds will be used to reimburse farmers whose animals are found to be reactors. A few local farmers have opposed the plan and announce that they will not allow their herds to be tested. This action will prohibit them from selling milk or cream produced by the herds or from selling the animals themselves.

Montevideo — Chippewa county has joined the counties of the state which have started warfare on the crows which infest farms. The county commissioners have fixed a bounty of 10 cents to be paid for each crow killed in the county

Fergus Falls—The Vosselaget at its closing session elected Governor R. A. Nestos of North Dakota president with L. W. Bos, president of St. Olaf college of Northfield, as vice-president. John Glimme of Chicago was elected treasurer. Minneapolis was chosen for next summer's reunion.

Wells—Probably the oldest woman to cast a vote in this part of Minnesota was Mrs. Mary Dibble, 87. She has been a resident of Minnesota for 66 years, first in Fillmore county and later coming to Faribault county. Her father fought in the Revolutionary war.

Currie—The committee in charge of erection of a monument on the shores of Lake Shetek in memory of the pioneers who lost their lives in the Indian raids of 1862, has now completed its plans. A 30-foot shaft of gray Minnesota granite has been selected and will bear suitable inscription.

Northome—While driving along a country road near here, Martin Tifer, a farmer, caught a pack of five wolves in a place where they could not get away from his automobile. Running them down with the machine Mr. Tifer killed two of the wolves and disabled the other three so they were easily dispatched.

Eveleth—A Safe Drivers' club in Eveleth has enrolled more than 100 members, after a three-days' campaign. Those who enroll sign a pledge to drive carefully at all times, obey the laws, pause a all railroad crossings, protect the lives of children, and obey traffic signs and officers.

Maynard—A. T. Ellingboe, resident here, has set a record which will be hard to beat. Ellingboe served as town clerk, justice of the peace and school district clerk in the town of Wang, Renville county, for 45 years. He was elected in March, 1876, and up to March, 1921, did not miss an election. Ellingboe moved here three years ago.

St. Paul — The American Farm Bureau Federation will conduct its annual convention this year in Chicago, Dec. 8, 9 and 10, the executive committee voted at its mir-year session. This date will give delegates an opportunity to attend the international livestock show, which will close the Saturday preceding.

Carlton—This year about 150 farmers in Carlton county were induced to plant alfalfa. Many of them did not believe that alfalfa would grow in this section where clover is a weed. Some farmers who used lime on some of their alfalfa acreage report that it has brought a tremendous growth, compared to those acres where lime was not used.

Blooming Prairie — Approximately 100 employees and officers of independent telephone companies operating in 30 communities in this section participated in a district conference of the Minnesota Telephone association here. Addresses and discussions on service, traffic and operation problems formed the program.

Alexandria — Farmers living near Alexandria can have free use of the old municipal electric power building here for a co-operative creamery as long as they want it. Twenty of them, headed by Edward Roth, went out to find out whether they can sign up for delivery to the proposed co-operative the cream from 1,000 cows for five years. That number of cows was set as the minimum for efficient operation of the creamery.

Hibbing—The laying of the corner stone of the new $100,000 Catholic community center in South Hibbing was the occasion for one of the biggest Catholic gatherings on the Mesaba range. A parade was conducted and extended over a mile in length. In spite of the heat, the marchers, representing more than a dozen Catholic societies, marched from North Hibbing, headed by the Hibbing concert band. Approximately 15,000 persons viewed the parade.

Faribault—Coming from all parts of Minnesota's vast agricultural lands, county agents were assembling here for their annual summer meeting. With the first cutting of alfalfa in the stack or the barn loft and with the farm livestock family contentedly grazing on the ample pastures, the agricultural agents in the absence of any farm plague such as a drought or a grasshopper scourge, were "at ease" and ready for four full days of combined pleasure and work.

Bemidji—Bemidji is the only postoffice in Minnesota whose business has increased sufficiently the last year to warrant advance of that office from second to first class. The new rating become effective July 1 from which date the changes in the compensation of postmasters will be figured. Changes in other Minnesota postoffices are: Third to second class, Crosby and Osakis; third to fourth class, Carlos, Dunnell, Embarrass, Farwell, Kilkenny, Odessa and Tamarack.

Park Rapids—Irvin S. Cobb, Robert H. Davis of Munsey publications, Charles Palmer of New York and Charles Heddon of Dowagiac, Mich., who have been in Minnesota on a 10-day fishing trip, left for the East. The party opened the bass season at Park Rapids on what Mr. Davis characterized as "the best bass grounds in America." Declaring that it was the best bass fishing he had ever had, Mr. Cobb announced that he would return to open the season at the same place next year. Arrangements for the trip were made by the Ten Thousand Lakes association.

Ortonville—The city council has ordered all gasoline and kerosene pumps removed from the sidewalk curb here. This action was deemed necessary for the protection from fire which might result from pedestrians tossing lighted matches.

Slayton—Murray county commissioners at a meeting voted a relief fund of $8,000 to aid the 14 farmers in the northeast corner of the county, victims of the tornado. A committee was appointed to distribute the money as needed. Of the 14 farmers who suffered extensive loss, only two had insurance.

4 INDICTED ON FRAUD CHARGES

Sinclair, Fall and Two Dohenys Are Named in Oil Indictments

Washington—Criminal indictments were returned by a federal grand jury here Monday against Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior; Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny, Sr., oil operator, and E. L. Doheny, Jr., as an outgrowth of the leasing of the naval oil reserves.

Four indictments were returned. The first named Fall, Doheny, Sr., and Doheny, Jr., charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the leasing of the California reserve.

In the second, Fall and Sinclair were accused of conspiring to defraud in connection with Teapot Dome lease.

The third indictment charged Fall with accepting a bribe of $100,000 for using his official influence in the California leases in behalf of Doheny, Sr.

The two Dohenys in the fourth indictment were charged with inducing Fall, in behalf of the Panama Petroleum company, by the "unlawful and felonious" payment of $100,000 to take an unlawful action.

Secretary Fall, it was testified before the oil committee, was loaned $100,000 by Doheny, and the money was delivered in a satchel by Doheny, Jr. Later Doheny obtained the lease to the Elk Hills reserve in California. Sinclair obtained the Teapot Dome, Wyo., reserve without competitive bidding.

The indictments served to start the government's criminal cases in the oil imbroglio. Civil suits already have begun by Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel, appointed to conduct the prosecutions.

Fall Welcomes Indictment.

Three Rivers, N. M.—Former Secretary of the Interior A. B. Fall, now living quietly on his ranch home here, in a statement Monday, said that he welcomed his indictment as "affording an opportunity for the United States courts to pass upon socalled evidence and to construe the laws of congress."

96 KILLED IN OHIO STORM

Sandusky Hard Hit and Other Points Feel Brunt of Saturday's Storm.

Cleveland.—Ninety-four persons were known to be dead in Ohio as a result of Saturday's severe wind, rain, and electric storm which swept the coast of Lake Erie from Sandusky to Lorain, wrecking a large portion of Lorain and parts of Sandusky.

Although the loss of life was not as great as at first believed, relief workers said Monday that the list of dead may grow. Several hundred persons were reported injured, several score of them seriously, and the property damage was estimated at more than $30,000,000.

The storm first struck Sandusky, doing most of its damage in the eastern part of the city, and then jumped almost 25 miles to Lorain, where the greatest loss of life occurred.

At Lorrain, where approximately 125 city blocks were destroyed and 70 were killed, the greatest loss of life occurred in the State theater, a four-story building which partly collapsed and crushed many of the spectators at a matinee movie show. As soon as rescue work was organized Saturday night, a survey of the situation led to the deduction that many scores had been killed for buildings had been whipped down over the heads of several fairly large assemblages.

HERRIOT IS FOR OCCUPATION

French Chamber Gives Premier Vote of Confidence on Question.

Paris.—Premier Herriot is determined that the Ruhr must continue to be occupied and that funds to cover the expense of the occupation must be provided, even though he should be defeated by his insistence on this point. He made his stand clear in the chamber of deputies Saturday, declaring that to leave the Ruhr would be tantamount to abandonment of the rights of France, and when he asked for a vote of confidence on the question, it was given him 456 to 26. The Communists alone voted in the negative, while 94 Socialists refrained from voting.

Clearly, the premier staked the life his his newly-born cabinet on the vote for the 205,000,000 francs appropriation. He caused a split in his majority, but his opponents, when it came to a vote, thought it best to permit him to continue, rather than go back on an occupation policy they had espoused throughout M. Poincare's tenure of office.

Chicago Plans Hotel-Hospital

Chicago.—A contemplated project for a $10,000,000 24 story combination hospital and hotel to be used for a clinical center for the middle west was announced here Monday. The plans have not yet matured but it is explained that the hotel-hospital will be intended primarily for the diagnosis of diseases, half the building be devoted to the hotel where out of town guests may stop while awaiting admission to the hospital. A radio set for each room will be a feature of the hotel section.

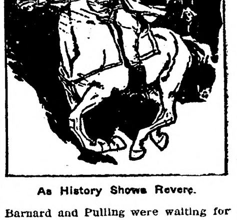
Worthy of Honor With Paul Revere

History Slow to Record the Deeds of Tom Bernard and John Pulling.

In Boston the 18th of April is celebrated in memory of that first spectacular step in the Revolutionary war when, at the signal from the tower of old North church, Paul Revere made his famous ride through the night, apprising the countryside of the coming of the British soldiers to seize the military stores at Concord. The actual facts in that memorable event leave Paul Revere a dashing and picturesque hero, but there is no good reason why he should have the center of the stage to the complete eclipsing of others who played their parts equally well. Longfellow's poem, "Paul Revere's Ride," not only carried the story as he told it far and wide, but it set the pace for a great many school histories, till it now seems fixed. He as much as admitted that he had selected Revere because his was a poetical name.

The scheme to frustrate the secrecy of the British in their night march to Concord was carried out by a group, several of whom did their part at imminent personal risk. Every citizen of Boston suspected of being a mischief maker was under close surveillance by the British and the learning of the secret plans and flashing of the intelligence by lanterns from the church tower to the waiting messenger across the river was a dangerous undertaking. Tom Barnard and John Pulling, acting as spies, obtained the information and communicated it to the sexton, who was to hang the lanterns in the belfry of the church. Robert Newman, whose name has not been transmitted to posterity by any of the histories, was held a prisoner in his house by British officers who were billeted upon him. While these officers were asleep he climbed out of a rear window of his upstairs bedroom to a sloping shed roof and thus reached the ground, where Barnard and Pulling were waiting for him with instructions to hang up two lights. That task performed he regained his room the way he came, but his lodgers, hearing sounds overhead, were astir. It had been raining and Newman's garments were wet. These he cast off in a pile on the floor and jumped into bed. This would not have saved him had not his wife hidden the clothing in a closet and substituted for them dry clothes. These were accepted as evidence that he had not been out of the house.



As History Shows Revere.

William Dawes as well as Paul Revere was intrusted to make the ride to Concord and rouse the farmers on the way. They seem to have ridden separately, but they came together at Lexington and were joined there by Samuel Prescott, whose lateness abroad was due to a visit with his sweetheart. Instead of riding alone into Concord at 2 o'clock in the morning, Revere did not reach Concord at all. After leaving Lexington the three men met a mounted patrol of the British, who tried to capture them. They took Revere, but Dawes and Prescott escaped. Dawes it was who first reached Concord and spread the news that the soldiers were coming. It was not until 1889 that the Massachusetts Sons of the American Revolution paid tardy tribute to William Dawes by placing over his grave a tablet commemorating his part in the historic ride of April 18, 1775.

Love of Country

Love of one's nation is a newer growth, for nations in the modern sense are a product of the recent centuries. But love of one's own people, one's community, one's soil, one's speech, is as old as man. All these loves are fused in modern patriotism, the broadest, the most altruistic, the noblest emotion civilized man has yet achieved. It is a deep, abiding growth upwelling within man, and the world would be infinitely poorer were it to fall or weaken.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Mrs. Shaw Calls Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a God-Send to Sick Women

Cambridge, Maine.—"I suffered terribly with pains and soreness in my sides. Each month I had to go to bed, and the doctor told me I simply had to go under an operation before I could get help. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and I told my husband one day to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I took the third dose I felt better. I took it four times a day for two years, getting better all the time, and now for four years I don't have any pains. After taking the medicine for two years I had another child—a lovely baby girl now four years old—the life of our home. I do praise this medicine. It is a Godsend to women who suffer with female troubles and especially for pains at the periods. I surely was very bad once, and I know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation." — Mrs. JOSIE M. SHAW, Route No. 1, Cambridge, Maine.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 out of every 100 were benefited by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Somewhat Personal

A young man, sitting on the back porch steps at his home in North Pennsylvania street the other day, exposing his prematurely bald head to the "life-giving power of the sun's rays," looked up to behold his neighbor's three-year-old son William regarding him intently.

"What's on your mind, William?" the man asked.

William was slow to answer, but his reply was full of meaning.

"You look like Mutt," he said, and then went on with his play.—Indianapolis News.

Only Playing

A small boy accompanied his mother, who just "dropped in" to hear a part of the testimony in a trial at the county building. Counsel objected heatedly to one question after another put to the defendant. Finally there came a recess and counsel chatted amiably. The boy looked at them in wonder. "Ma, I thought they were mad at each other," he exclaimed.—Detroit News.

"YOUNG CARR"

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman receives a map, with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation. He makes a good impression.

Mrs. Archman looked scandalized, and Bess, evidently fearing that she had gone too far and that Lord George might later guess her meaning, hastily swung the conversation back to what was, after all, the real topic at issue.

The conversation ended only when the auto drew up beside the entrance to the Ontario docks, where the El Rio was being put into shape for her voyage.

The tide was in and the gangplank was far from horizontal. Bess ran up it hastily and looked about her, wondering if by any chance she might catch sight of the Adonis whom Nellie had described. She did not do so, however, and before she could look farther the others had followed her.

A tall man in an officer's uniform was moving about the deck, giving orders now and then. He saw the party and stepped forward. "Good morning, Miss Archman," he said, taking off his cap to Bess.

Bess nodded. "Good morning, Mr. Collins," she returned. "This is my mother, Mr. Collins; and Lord George Caruthers. You know my brother Harry, I believe. We want to see Captain Bunker on particular business."

Collins acknowledged the introductions. "Captain Bunker isn't on board just now," he said. "But I'm expecting him back every minute. Perhaps"—he turned to the Englishman—"perhaps if Lord George is a navy man, he would like to go over the ship."

"Delighted, I'm sure," remarked Lord George.

Meanwhile Mrs. Archman had been staring up and down the cluttered deck. "Well," she said, "I've heard all my life about keeping things shipshape. This is the first time I was ever on a ship, and I must say I'll never put any faith in the expression again. Are things usually this way or are you—er—fall cleaning?"

Collins looked somewhat startled. Then he glanced about him and a slow smile curled his lips. "Well," he said, "you might call it that. Things are badly torn up just now. But we're all right below and we'll be all right up here in a couple of days, when we sail. I'll be delighted to show you about," he ended. "Come this way." He turned toward the companionway.

Mrs. Archman started down the steps. Lord George stood aside to let Bess follow. The girl, however, stepped back. "I'll be down in a minute, Lord George," she said. "I'll just poke about a bit on deck first."

When Mrs. Archman, Harry and Lord George had reluctantly vanished down the companionway Bess turned and picked her way forward over the obstructed deck. Close by the cook's galley she noticed a young man who was sitting on the deck laboriously fitting a short piece of plank into a break in the rail. He was by no means an Adonis, but he seemed to possess some of the characteristics that Nellie had described, and she stopped and looked at him until he raised his eyes and saw her. Hardly he scrambled to his feet and snatched off his cap. "I beg pardon!" he exclaimed.

Bess' teeth flashed. "You needn't," she answered. "You don't know me. You're Mr. Carr, aren't you?"

The young man nodded. "I can't deny it," he laughed.

"Well, I'm little sister. Big sister gave me a message for you. And I've been wondering whether I ought to give it to you or not."

An expression of sudden intelligence swept over the young fellow's face. "Oh! You're Miss Bess Archman," he said. "I ought to have guessed, though if you don't mind my saying so, you don't look a bit like your sister." His face changed. "You will give me the message, won't you?" he begged. "If you knew how hard these three days have been to me you wouldn't hesitate."

Bess had been staring at him frankly. "I like you," she said suddenly. "'Shake!'" She held out her hand.

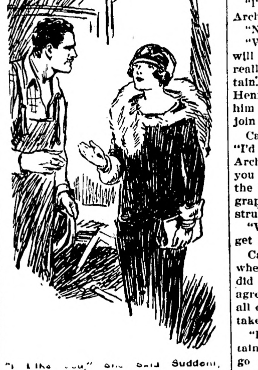
The young man grasped it ardently. "Thank you! Thank you!" he cried gratefully.

Bess' eyes twinkled. "Nellie said to tell you that she was sorry she couldn't come to the ship as she had promised. She said you seemed to have something particular to tell her, and that, if you had, for you to tell it to me and I would send it on."

The young man was evidently thinking rapidly. "I can't say all I would like, even to you." He laughed, with a sudden brilliant smile. "But I will say this: I love your sister and I wanted to ask her to marry me. Just as I was about to speak, she met in my sister's house—"

"Your sister's house?"

"Edith Grant is my sister. That's her stage name. And now your sister has gone, thinking all sorts of things about me, and I can't get to her to tell her, and I don't know where to write."



"I Like You," She Said Suddenly. "Shake." She Held Out Her Hand.

Bess hesitated. The young man's very apparent misery went to her heart. "Just between you and me," she said, at last, "Captain Bunker has orders to meet father and Nellie somewhere. You might send a letter by him. But remember, it's a dead secret."

"Oh!" Carr's eyes [illegible]. "So that's where—" He broke off and stared over the girl's shoulder. "Who is that standing with the lady at the companionway?" he asked.

Bess' eyes followed the direction of his. "That's Lord George Caruthers," she said. "Do you know him?"

Carr's eyes grew introspective. "I am not sure," he said. "He looks to me like—er—" He broke off. "Well, maybe I'm wrong," he said. "But he certainly looks like somebody I know." His expression showed plainly that his thoughts, whatever they were were not pleasant.

Mrs. Archman's glance, roving about the deck, settled on her daughter and Carr. She flushed and started instantly toward the two over the cluttered deck. "Bess!" she called, as she drew nearer.

Bess faced her calmly. "I'm glad you've come, mother," she said. "I want you to meet Mr. Carr. He is superintending the repairs on father's ship. Mr. Carr, this is my mother and Lord George Caruthers."

Lord George nodded in friendly fashion. Mrs. Archman, however, glared. [illegible] the temperature had dropped. "Oh, yes," she said with a very slight inclination of her head. "You're the carpenter, I believe, Mr. Carr?" She glanced at the chips on the deck.

Carr smiled [illegible] and not [illegible]. "I'm trying to be one," he answered coolly, "but I'm not making very much of a hat at it. I'm always smashing my thumb," he ended confidentially.

"Ah!" Mrs. Archman raised her brows. Then she turned her back deliberately. "Come, Bess," she said. "Captain Bunker is just coming on board."

Bess nodded. "All right, mother," she said. Then she turned to the young man. "Good morning, Mr. Carr."

Carr's eyes were perplexed as he stared after the three. Particularly did his eyes follow the broad back of Lord George. "So that's mother's plan, is it," he murmured disgustedly. "Confound the fellow. I know I've seen him before, and it wasn't in England, either. Where the dickens was it?"

As the four reached the gangplank Captain Bunker came up it. "I'm sorry I wasn't on board when you came," he said. "I hope Mr. Collins made you at home."

"Mr. Collins was very nice," responded Mrs. Archman. "But I wanted to see you particularly, captain."

"Certainly. Will you come into the chart house, madam?"

Mrs. Archman nodded and followed.

"Captain," she said, as she took her seat, "where are you to meet my husband?"

If Captain Bunker was surprised he did not show it. "I don't know, madam," he said. "I'm sailing under sealed orders."

"What does that mean?"

"I have a sealed letter, which I am not to open till I get out to sea. I can't tell you where I am going, because I don't know myself."

"Then you don't know whether you are to meet him on an island? It is important that I should know."

Captain Bunker shook his head. "I know absolutely nothing," he protested.

"Very well; then listen to me." Mrs. Archman recounted the events that had started Archman southward, and told of the arrival of the map. "I'm sure this map was part of the stolen papers, and I am very anxious to get it to my husband. I came down here to ask you to take it and give it to him when you saw him. But I have changed my mind since I came."

"Ye-es." The captain did not know what was coming.

"Yes! For reasons of my own, I want to get my son and daughter away from New York. How many staterooms can you have ready for passengers by the time you are ready to sail?"

The captain counted up on his fingers. "Six," he said.

"That will be enough, captain. We will all go south with you."

"But—my dear madam!" Captain Bunker caught his breath. "I can't take you. I have no orders."

"I'm giving them to you now. Mr. Archman did not forbid it, did he?"

"No; but—"

"Very well, then; it's settled. I will take all the responsibility. It will really solve a lot of difficulties, captain. Besides, I'm not easy about Henry. I want to see him and give him that map myself. Yes! We'll join you, captain."

Captain Bunker shook his head. "I'd be delighted to have you, Mrs. Archman," he said. "But I can't take you without orders from the head of the firm. I can't really. If you'll telegraph to Chicago and get them to instruct me—"

"Very well: I'll do it. Meanwhile, get ready for us."

Captain Bunker nodded. He knew when to make a virtue of necessity, did Captain Bunker. "Of course," he agreed. "I'll be delighted to have you all on board, you know. I just couldn't take the responsibility myself."

"I understand. By the way, captain—do all the workmen on the ship go with us?"

"Oh, no! Most of them are carpenters connected with the docks. Young Carr is in charge of them."

"Who?"

"Young Carr. Yonder he is." The captain pointed. "Most of the men are in his charge. We are shipping a new crew, you know, but none of them are on board yet."

"Er—who is Mr. Carr? What do you know about him?"

Captain Bunker looked surprised. "Nothing much," he answered. "He's attached to the yards here. He seems a pleasant young fellow, though a little close-mouthed and inclined to be mysterious."

Will Mrs. Archman's pursuit of her husband fit in with his plans or frustrate them?

Pressure of Steam

Modern steam boiler practice is catching up with pure science. Some engineers may have remembered at high school or college learning something of what is called the "critical temperature" or "critical pressure" of a gas, the former being the temperature above which the gas might not be condensed at any pressure, and the latter being the pressure when the critical temperature was attained. All this was considered pure science" or "high brow stuff" with no application to practical affairs. But the critical temperature and critical pressure of steam are only 706 degrees Fahrenheit and 3,200 pounds a square inch and boilers are now being used at pressures of more than 1,000 pounds with the tendency toward higher and higher pressures. Many interesting things happen to boiler water and steam when near the critical point and now practical engineers are beginning to take keen interest in what was formerly thought fit only for laboratory discussion.

Consumption of Butterflies

The natives of Australia consume every year millions of butterflies. These insects live largely in the mountain rocks. The natives catch them by lighting wood fires, the smoke of which suffocates them. The natives collect them in baskets, put them in the oven and, after having sifted them to get rid of the wings, make them into a sort of tart, much appreciated among connoisseurs.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignee of the Mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorised to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Clarence Larson and Bertha Larson, his wife, Mortgagors, to Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee; dated October 11th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, A. D., 1919, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 152.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment dated October 25th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of October, A. D., 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 90 of Mortgages, on page 560.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Paul Kemp, by written assignment, dated November 25th, A. D., 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 284.

And, whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described, in the sum of Four Hundred Fifty-one and 54-100 Dollars ($451.54) and the first half of the taxes for the year 1923 amounting to Forty-nine and 15-100 Dollars ($49.15); and whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.00), with accumulated interest from the 11th day of October, 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Fifteen (15), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 22nd day of July, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated as attorneys fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated May 31st, 1924.

PAUL KEMP.
Assignee of Mortgagee.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN

"Aunt Emmy," said Jane, "I wish you would make something clear to me. Last night Mr. Wilkins and Ted were talking about bonds. Mr. Wilkins said a lot about 'public utility bonds,' whatever that means, and seemed to think that they are the greatest things ever, so I thought maybe Ted and I might buy one with that $1,000 Daddy gave us for a wedding present, but I'd like to know more about them first."

"You have the makings of a financier, Jane," laughed Aunt Emmy, "since you have sense enough to stop, look and listen before you buy. I like public utility bonds, too—that is, good ones. They are bonds issued by corporations that serve the public with something useful, hence the name, public utility. The gas company, the electric light and power company, the telephone and similar companies are public utility corporations. Their business is based on real public needs. But it is also essential that they be well managed to be a good investment.

"Of course there are other bonds equally good. Always bear in mind that when you buy a bond you loan money to the corporation whose bond you buy. You do not buy a share of the business, as you do when you buy stock. The bond you buy bears interest, and this interest must be paid to you before the company can pay out a single cent in dividends. Nevertheless bonds must be carefully selected with the advice of someone who knows."

"How do you think one can know if a company is safe or not, Aunty?" asked Jane.

"Well, that is difficult. But I should say that if a company whose bonds you fancy has been doing a good business for ten years and has not failed to pay a dividend during that time the chances are that it will keep on doing as well unless something entirely unforeseen occurs. The best thing to do is to check up your own opinion with your banker. Once you have bought bonds in any corporation don't put them away and forget them. Seek your bank's advice from time to time and keep informed of the progress of the corporation you are interested in. If you see anything in the papers that alarms you in any way go at once to your bank and ask their advice about selling out and reinvesting in something else. Banks have facilities for keeping in touch with financial conditions, and they are always glad to help."—ANNE B. AYMES.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FOREIGN TRADE

For many decades we have produced a surplus of products of the farm that has been sold in foreign countries. As long as we continue to produce a surplus above domestic consumption, it is a prime necessity that there be a market for it. It is true that this surplus is but a fraction of our total production. Nevertheless, it exerts an effect upon the price of the entire output which is entirely disproportionate to its relative size. A country store-keeper may sell a hundred straw hats at a fair margin of profit, but the twenty which he may not be able to sell at all, will wipe out the profit on the entire stock. The same thing is true of wheat, of corn, of any product of the farm.

It is true that we might exist without foreign trade, that we might depend exclusively upon domestic consumption. To do that, however, would require a complete reorganization of our whole commercial and industrial structure, a reorganization which would require years of time and which would entail losses beyond calculation. The more reasonable alternative is to take steps toward the restoration of a normal foreign market.—Walter W. Head, President American Bankers Association.

BANKERS DIRECT WAR ON CROOKS

Rising Crime Wave and Attacks on Banks Called Forth Increased Measures of Defense.

Criminal activities against banks have reached unprecedented proportions in recent months, according to a report made to the American Bankers Association by its Protective Committee, which directs the work of the Association aimed to combat criminal operations against banks.

"Sharp increases in crime perpetrated against banks definitely prove that instead of being broken the crime wave has risen to heights heretofore unknown to the banking fraternity," the report said. "Strangers continue to trick or otherwise inveigle unsuspecting banks into making generous contributions to their cause—a terrific toll which defies the imagination. Bank burglars and hold-up men have apparently redoubled their activities during the last six months. The number of criminals plying their trade in this field has grown to such proportions that there is now a fair sized army comprising this more desperate type of criminal, specializing against banks."

"Don't cash checks for strangers," is the warning emphasized by the Committee in view of the situation. It adds:

"We are gratified to report favorable results in a good proportion of cases investigated, which are due to the nation-wide activities of our detective agents through their staff of specialists in bank crimes. In Montana two fearless, well organized bands of professional yeggmen attacked more than a score of banks with such reckless abandon that the situation seemed beyond control. Realizing that conditions demanded prompt and drastic treatment, a trained crew of operatives were delegated to conduct a special investigation throughout the state. Nineteen men and two women were arrested. Of these four already are serving sentences, three are on trial, four are awaiting trial and the rest were freed for lack of evidence.

"A similar round-up was carried out in Oklahoma. Conditions in other states similarly bad were investigated and with the co-operation of local, state and federal authorities and the co-ordinated activities of members the percentage of arrests and convictions has materially increased."

The report pointed out that figures covering bank burglaries over a period of thirty years showed that 1,609 banks, members of the Association and entitled to its protective services, have been attacked, suffering losses aggregating $1,196,000, while nonmembers to the number of 2,357 were burglarized and suffered $4,250,000 in losses. The point was also brought out that there are only half as many non-members as members, so that these losses among them represent an excessively high rate as compared with members.

Aid Diversified Farming

A state bank of Granville, North Dakota, that is encouraging diversified farming among its farmer patrons, has purchased some purebred sires for the benefit of its customers. The bank realizes the necessity of good sires for the dairy herd, and has set aside a certain amount of money to be used in having a man look up animals and ship them to Granville.

Bankers of Lee County, Mississippi, are employing a dairy trained expert to give his whole time to the development of dairying. His salary and expenses are paid by the banks of the county in proportion to their deposits. This expert helps to arrange for loans to purchase cows, sees that the farmers have shelter and feed to care for the cattle, and advises with them in figuring out rations and in determining what crops to grow. He makes special engagements to attend scrub bull funerals.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON IX

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman
Public Education Commission, American Bankers Association.

What means has a savings depositor to prove that he has deposited his money in a bank? A person leaving his money as a deposit in a bank is given a pass book.

J. H. Puelicher

PASS BOOK=A small account book in which is written down by the bank a complete record of the deposits and other credits, the withdrawals or debits and the depositor's balance.

DEPOSITS=Money left with the bank by the depositor or some one for him creating a credit.

CREDITS=Items representing deposits or other amounts which are credited, that is, added to the customer's account; interest earned by his money is also added to his account from time to time by the bank and is a credit just as money actually deposited by him.

WITHDRAWALS=Money drawn from the bank by the depositor or by some one duly authorized by him to do so, creating a debit.

DEBITS=Items representing amounts withdrawn which are subtracted from the depositor's balance.

BALANCE=Difference between credits and debits.

It is best to deposit savings in a bank because your money is safe; it earns more money; a systematic record is kept; it stimulates more savings and your money is always available when required.

Baltimore—Dr. Charles E. Edmunds, for the last 15 years president of Canton Christian college, China, was installed as provost of Johns Hopkins university.

Chicago—A contemplated project for a $10,000,000 24 story combination hospital and hotel to be used for a clinical center for the middlewest was announced here.

Boston—The engagement of Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer of New York to Cyril Jones of Milton, Mass., a former tutor to one of Mrs. Pulitzer's sons, was made public.

Jacksonville—Two men were killed and two 600 foot lumber sheds were unroofed and partially destroyed in a windstorm which reached almost the proportions of a tornado at Eastport, Fla., eight miles east of here.

Spokane—Mrs. G. W. Gibson, her six years old daughter Doris, and her father, and mother Mr. and Mrs. John Jordan, all of this city, were killed when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul passenger train.

Chicago—Acting Mayor A. A. Sprague, on behalf of Mayor Dever, who is in New York attending the democratic convention, issued a proclamation asking the citizens of Chicago to donate $800,000 toward the relief of citizens of Ohio who suffered from last week's tornado.

Three Rivers, N. M.—Former Secretary of the Interior, A. B. Fall, now living quietly in his ranch home here, in a statement stated that he welcomed his indictment as "affording an opportunity for the United States courts to pass upon so-called evidence and to construe the laws of Congress."

Los Angeles—A watersnake, nonpoisonous and harmless, was responsible for the death of two persons at Gray's lake, near Chatsworth, north of here. Two women were rowing when the sweep of an oar brought a watersnake to the surface. They grew hysterical and leaped into the water. Neither could swim.

Chicago—Axel Wallenberg, Swedish minister to the United States, was the principal speaker here at the unveiling of a statue of Emanuel Swedenborg, the philosopher and physicist. Ten thousand persons attended the ceremonies, many of them from various parts of the country in Chicago for the eighth quadrennial music festival of Swedish singers.

Chicago—A. M. Loeb of Seattle, brother of Richard Loeb, who, with Nathan Leopold, Jr., has confessed to kidnaping and killing Robert Franks, visited his brother in the county jail here and had a conference with him. Dr. William A. White, alienist, retained by the defense in an effort to prove both boys insane when the crime was committed, has started an examination of Leopold.

Chicago—Crime in Chicago is on the increase, Warden Westley Westbrook of the Cook county jail said in reporting that 12,000 prisoners have passed through the jail already this year. The jail houses 676 prisoners now and a year ago had but 400. Warden Westbrook said youthful criminals were increasing, adding that the section devoted to boys from 17 to 21 years old is always overcrowded now.

Chicago—Brigadier General Charles Gates Dawes, republican vice presidential nominee, and Mrs. Dawes have left for Washington to visit President and Mrs. Coolidge. "Several days" was the most definite information obtainable as to the probable duration of the visit. It is understood he has arranged private matters so that he can indulge every moment from now until November in promoting his party's interests.

Chicago—Chicago's weekend recreation cost the lives of 15 persons. Nine were killed in automobile accidents and six were drowned.

New York—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, sentenced for conspiring to sell whisky illegally, was released from the Tombs on $25,000 bail pending an appeal to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. Elmer W. Jarnecke, his secretary, convicted of the same offense, has not provided bail.

Sports

New York—Jimmy Johnston, at one time, matchmaker for the famous Cromwell A. C. announced that he had matched Georges Carpentier and Gene Tunney for a fifteen round bout in the Polo Grounds on Tuesday, July 22. They are to battle for the American light heavyweight title, which Tunney now holds.

New York—Everett Scott, shortstop of the New York Yankees, reached his 1,200th consecutive game when he played in the Yank-Red Sox game at Boston. That's a lot of ball games and is a record that undoubtedly will stand for years. Every day Scott sets the record a little higher, and makes it a little more difficult for anyone else to reach.

Paris — The American Olympic track and field team, already crippled by a series of minor mishaps since its departure from the United States, faced its most serious loss so far when Leroy T. Brown, New York A. C., and H. M. Osborn, Illinois A. C., the high jumping aces counted on for a cleanup in this event, were taken to the Neuilly hospital for treatment. Brown is suffering from an injury to a tendon in the leg and Osborn from strained muscles in the back.

Foreign

Jaen, Spain—Locusts have destroyed the entire harvests in this province, the loss being especially heavy in the vicinity of Linares.

Berlin—Representatives of all German parties and emissaries from all countries separated from Germany by the Versailles treaty gathered at the reichstag to commemorate the fifth anniversary of the signing of the Versailles treaty.

Peking—Rev. George Douglas Byers, missionary of the American Presbyterian church on the Island of Hainan, was murdered June 24, presumably by bandits, according to word sent to the American consulate at Canton by the British Consul on the island.

London—Rumors that the Prince of Wales informed the royal family that having passed his 30th birthday, he would begin looking about for a bride, have caused a hurried arrangement of an unusual number of social affairs.

London—The international power conference, representing 39 countries and with a large American delegation, was inaugurated here with a reception by the Prince of Wales in a great hall at the Wembley exhibition where the conference will sit during the coming fortnight.

Toronto—"Community chests" in the United States and Canada will distribute in the coming year more than $50,000,000 for charitable purposes, it was announced at the meeting of the American Association for Community Organization at Knox college.

It is announced that the premier will attend the meeting of the League of Nations assembly with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Herriot of France.

Paris—The American battle monuments commission with which General J. J. Pershing arrived here, will begin a thorough study of the whole area of activities of the American expeditionary forces in France next week. Before the real work begins, the commission will visit the Marne battlefield for a preliminary look-over the ground.

Munich—Dr. Adolph Barkan, professor emeritus of ophthalmology of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, California, has been elected as honorary citizen of Ludwig-Maximilian University here in recognition of his services in alleviating distress among students. Dr. Barkan, a Hungarian by birth, is a member of numerous scientific societies in Europe and America.

Rio de Janeiro—President Bernardes has signed emergency bills to ameliorate the high cost of living, canceling for a period of 60 days the duties and clearance charges at all Brazilian customs houses on all staple foods, rice, sugar, potatoes, jerked beef, beans and corn. It was also announced that the government plans to purchase food abroad if prices are found lower than in the local market.

Pretoria, Union of South Africa—General James Barry Hertzog has taken the portfolio of native affairs with the premiership of the new nationalist cabinet, which is in process of formation following the defeat of the South African party at the polls. Colonel Frederic H. P. Creswell, labor leader, has been appointed minister of defense and labor, and Thomas Boydell, labor member of parliament, has been selected.

Madrid—An uprising among the Kabyles, a hitherto peaceful tribe in the western part of Spanish Morocco, is announced in an official statement.

DEATH TAKES COOLIDGE, JR.

Broken Blister Develops Septic Poisoning---Boy Makes Brave Fight

Washington.—Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of the president, died Monday at Walter Reed hospital of blood poisoning.

The end came after the boy had battled with the utmost bravery and fortitude for five days against a disease which had racked his body with pain and sapped the reserve strength of his frail constitution.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, who had maintained constant vigil at the hospital, were at his bedside, hopeful, and cheering and comforting their son to the last.

A sinking spell, the fourth he had suffered in 24 hours brought death, notwithstanding the use of oxygen and other restoratives, the courage which had withstood crisis after crisis and had beaten off repeatedly was unable to meet the attack. The collapse began at 6:30 o'clock and he gradually sank into eternity. He died at 10:30 o'clock.

The natural strength of a boy of 16, however, which was counted on as the most powerful resisting force to the creeping poison, was unable to meet the issue, and after having fought a brave but always losing fight, he succumbed.

Every resource of medical science was brought in play in the vain effort to save young Calvin's life. An operation was performed on the left leg last Saturday night to drain off the poison and blood transfusions and oxygen were resorted to in the later days of his illness.

Young Calvin was removed to the hospital Saturday and an operation the same night revealed inflammation of the bone marrow of the left leg, where the infection first localized in part. A slight rally followed, but on Sunday night his condition grew so serious that blood transfusion and oxygen administrations were resorted to.

The infection developed from a broken blister on the right foot sustained during a tennis match with his brother, John, on the White House courts last Monday. At first paying no attention to it, the youth developed an alarming condition by Wednesday night and physicians were summoned.

The poison, however, once started, had spread so dapidly that medical skill was without avail. A number of specialists were called to act with the White House physicians on the case and a desperate fight for life was made by the boy, who struggled in great pain and with high fever.

The White House, where a staff had been kept busy while the presidential residence was temporarily removed to Walter Reed Hospital, ceased to function for a time, and Secretary Slemp and others rushed to the hospital. In other parts of the city, there the illness of the boy had gripped public interest to the exclusion of almost everything else, there were anxious inquiries to his condition and expressions of sympathy for his parents.

Announcement that death had finally relieved the suffering of the frail boy was made by Mr. Clark. He walked slowly from the room and those who were gathered there knew from the demeanor that the end had come. Only the brief announcement of death was made and soon thereafter, President and Mrs. Coolidge, grief-stricken over their first great sorrow, made their way slowly to a White House automobile and were driven away. Both were worn from the long vigil.

LANGER PETITION REJECNED

Secretary of State Says Proposed Measure Does Not Conform to Law.

Bismarck, N. D.—Petitions to bond the state for $6,000,000 and to turn the control of the office of the state bank examiner over to the Association of Depositors in Closed Banks, were rejected Monday by Thomas Hall, secretary of state.

Filed late Saturday by Wm. Langer as attorney for the association, and as the sponsor of the plan for the creation of a new bonded debt for the purpose of paying off a portion of the depositors in closed banks, the petitions were represented by him as containing 20,100 signatures, with additional petitions to be filed today that would bring the whole number of signers up to 20,900.

In the measure proposed by the association, amendments to the constitutional bonded debt limit are set forth as well as extensive and exhaustive amendments covering the manner in which the state banking department shall be administered, the manner in which the affairs of the guaranty fund commission shall be handled, the manner in which the state bank examiner shall be appointed as well as establishing new restrictions upon state banks.

N. D. Crops Show Improvement.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Practically all sections of the state report improvement in the prospect of small grain crops as a result of continued favorable temperatures and rainfall during last half of June; corn and potatoes are reported showing generally good stands but of short growth, while flax is considered to have made normal progress, with what appears to be an average percentage of weedy fields, according to a summary issued by J. G. Diamond, statistician for the U. S. bureau of agricultural economics.

LA FOLLETTE TO HEAD NEW PARTY

"Progressive" Convention At Cleveland Prepares For Campaign

Cleveland.—After indorsing Robert M. La Follette as a presidential candidate, and providing for the organization of a new political party next January, the conference for progressive political action wound up its convention Saturday night.

The conference empowered its national committee to select a vice presidential candidate after conference with the "La Follette for president" committee.

La Follette was indorsed as a candidate on his own platform. The convention then adopted for itself a platform embodying the ideas contained in the Wisconsin document and in the statement of principles issued at the St. Louis session of the conference last February.

The final day of the gathering worked out strictly according to plans of the leaders and without appreciable opposition. But just before adjournment some of the delegates, dazed by the rapidity of events, had to be assured by the chair that La Follette had been "nominated" and that definite provision had been made for the new party.

The confusion arose from the fact that the report of the committee on organization recommended this action, and that no separate motion of indorsement was offered. The report itself was adopted without a dissenting vote, but the significance of this action did not dawn on either delegates or galleries, and there was a total absence of demonstration.

It is to direct the conference activities not only on the national ticket but also was ordered to co-operate for the election to congress, state legislatures, and other offices of all candidates "pledged to the interests of the producing classes and to the principles of genuine democracy in government."

The committee was definitely instructed to meet and organize for the campaign on July 18, and on November 29 to issue a call for the January new party convention.

DEPOSITORS' AID PROPOSED

Petition Given Hall Requesting Initiation of Amendment.

Bismarck, N. D.—Petitions said by him to bear more than the required 2,000 names, initiating a constitutional amendment to bond the State of North Dakota for $6,000,000 to aid in reimbursing depositors of closed banks, and for rewriting the banking laws, were presented late Saturday to Thomas Hall, secretary of state, by William Langer of Bismarck. Additional names were filed Monday, the last day on which petitions for initiating constitutional amendments could be filed, according to Mr. Langer.

There were about 20,100 signatures on the petitions, Mr. Langer said. The committee for petitioners, named, is composed of William Dyer, chairman; Robert Rotering, W. P. Steinmetz, M. E. Johnson, Harry Tucker, Oscar Nesvig, and William Langer.

Under the proposed amendment, $6,000,000 in bonds would be issued, $4,000,000 of which would go to the guaranty fund commission to be used in paying off depositors of closed banks, and $2,000,000 to the banking board to purchase collateral of insolvent banks, offered for sale, when such purchase seemed advisable to protect the depositors.

THREE DIE IN STEAMER FIRE

Five Members of Newsboy Band Among Those Not Accounted For.

Baltimore, Md.—Two negroes and a negress are known to have lost their lives and a fourth negro, a deck hand, is thought to have perished in a fire which destroyed the steamer Three Rivers while bound from Crisfield, Md., for Baltimore, off Cove Point, Chesapeake bay, early Sunday.

Five youths, members of the Baltimore Evening Sun's newsboys' band, are missing and it is believed they were lost.

All the survivors, approximately 90, of whom 50 were the remaining members of the newsboys' band, were brought to Baltimore by the steamer Middlesex, which had gone to the assistance of the burning steamer together with several other craft.

Scenes of terror which began as soon as the alarm was given, continued more than half an hour or until all the survivors had been picked up by the rescuing vessels.

Almost from the beginning of the conflagration, dense smoke filled the vessel and poured along the decks, threatening death from asphyxiation.

Many Farms Get Dairy Cattle.

Minneapolis.—Fifty farms of North Dakota have been started on their march from one-crop agriculture toward dairying and crop diversification, through the efforts of the Agricultural Credit corporation, whose records showed that distribution of six carloads of high grade dairy animals, direct to farmers, has been completed. The figures were made public by M. O. Grangaard, vice president, who added that ten more cars, already contracted for with farmers, will be distributed in the next few weeks.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Fergus Falls—Pelican Rapids at a special election last week voted to issue $18,000 in bonds for the erection of a new water tank and the sinking of a well for the waterworks system.

Moorhead—Frank A. Catlin, 68 years old, of Barnesville, Minn., engineer of the Great Northern railroad for 43 years died suddenly of heart disease.

Lakefield—Ruth Tallman of rural school district No. 66, is the champion speller of Jackson county, carrying off first honors in both the written and oral tests in the annual match here.

St. Paul—The postoffice department has announced new Minnesota postmasters as follows: Raymond P. Erickson, Franklin; Henry O. Halverson, Gonvick; George E. Van Buren, Leroy; Norman L. Swanson, Moose Lake; Carrie B. Quinn, Wells.

Jasper—For the second time in two years burglars entered the public garage in the village of Ihlen six miles north of here. More than $600 worth of tires and automobile accessories were carried away by the robbers on their last visit.

Rochester—Acting on the request of the public utilities board, the city council authorized that body to go ahead with the purchase of the water rights of the Rochester Milling company in North Rochester. The expenditure will be $38,685.

Mankato—Two men are dead and two others injured, one perhaps fatally as the result of an automobile wreck 10 miles northeast of here. The car, running at high speed, went off the road and into a ditch.

Worthington—A reorganization of the Worthington National bank has been effected by the sale of $75,000 in new stock to 32 business men of this city. The new capital invested in the bank makes it one of the strongest financial institutions in this section of the state.

Hibbing—Scranton mine has begun shipping ore after being shut down for several weeks while a slide in the north bank which dislocated tracks was repaired. South Agnew, a new shaft mine, is increasing its underground crew, indicating improved business conditions.

Duluth—Establishment of a veterans' pavilion at the Minnesota State Fair won the indorsement of delegates to the state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which adjourned here after selecting Mankato as the 1925 meeting place. The building is proposed to cost $4,000.

Wells—Probably the oldest woman to cast a vote in this part of Minnesota was Mrs. Mary Dibble, 87. She has been a resident of Minnesota for 66 years, first in Fillmore county and later coming to Faribault county. Her father fought in the Revolutionary war.

Eveleth—A Safe Drivers' club in Eveleth has enrolled more than 100 members, after a three-days' campaign. Those who enroll sign a pledge to drive carefully at all times, obey the laws, pause at all railroad crossings, protect the lives of children, and obey traffic signs and officers.

Windom—After suffering for a week from injuries sustained when he was bitten by a rat, Jacob Jenzen died at his home near Mountain Lake. Jenzen was catching rats in his corn crib when a huge rodent caught him in the hand, biting him near the thumb. Blood poison resulted from the injury.

Windom—The death of Dewain Cook at the hospital in Mountain Lake a few days ago, removes one of the pioneers of Cottonwood county and one of the best known and most successful fruit growers in the northwest. In the early '70s, Mr. Cook came to this section in Dale township. For several years he was a member of the state board of horticulture.

Red Wing—Judge Albert Johnson, in a decision filed in district court, orders that the temporary injunction granted last winter to D. M. Neill, taxpayer, restraining the city of Red Wing from selling $350,000 worth of light and power bonds and preventing the city from constructing such a plant, be made permanent. The temporary injunction was appealed to the state supreme court by the city and sustained there.

St. Paul—Minnesota state banks are on a sounder financial footing today than on the same day a year ago, and the banking business is "looking up" following the most serious depression since 1893, A. J. Veigel, superintendent of the state banking department, disclosed. A good crop in the northwest this year is all that is needed to point the way to normalcy. A total of 1,092 state banks are doing business today after weathering the depression storm and emerging from it on a financial footing that is remarkably strong, he said.

Onamia—The Northern Mille Lacs County Fair Association has taken steps to permanently establish an active fair association in the northern section of Mille Lacs county. The association is incorporated for $10,000 and shares at $5, amounting to $2,000, will be sold immediately.

Faribault—Faribault will have a fair this year, according to plans being made by a special committee of the chamber of commerce. Members of the committee expressed the opinion that it would be inadvisable to let the charter lapse by not conducting a fair.

Hibbing—Confining the activities of the farm to poultry raising, the Hibbing public school experimental farm will raise 1,200 chickens this year. The birds will be used to provide chicken dinners at the school cafeteria.

Rochester—Beef cattle of the finest type will be exhibited in large numbers in the livestock show at the Olmsted county fair, Rochester, Aug. 12 to 15. Premiums totaling $3,350 are offered for beef and dairy cattle.

Duluth—Ore shipments from upper lake ports for the month of June decreased 20.60 per cent, compared to the corresponding month in 1923. Seasonal shipments showed a decrease of 8.36 per cent for the same period last year, according to figures just given out by the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association.

Alexandria—North Dakota editors will join members of the Northern Minnesota Editorial association in the latter's annual outing, to be conducted at Detroit Minn. next summer. Northern Minnesota editors will conduct their annual business meeting at Little Falls Jan. 29 to 31.

Duluth—Grover M. Conzet of St. Paul, for 10 years connected with the Minnesota state forestry department, was appointed state forester. The state forestry board, in naming Mr. Conzet to succeed W. T. Cox, set his term of office under this appointment at five years "so that annual appointments will not interfere with his program of fire-fighting and reforesta-

Bemidji—Burt W. Eaton, Rochester attorney, was elected president of the Minnesota State Bar Association at its business session here. Howard Abbott, Duluth attorney, was chosen as vicepresident; Chester L. Caldwell of St. Paul was re-elected secretary, and William G. Graves, St. Paul, was elected treasurer to succeed Roy H. Currie, St. Paul.

St. Paul—A decrease of about 8,000,000 pigs in the spring crop in the corn belt is indicated in the June pig survey of the department of agriculture. The survey shows the flood of hog production in the corn belt that reached its height in the spring pig crop of 1923 is rapidly receding and has about reached a normal level, the report states.

Northome—While driving along a country road near here, Martin Tifer, a farmer, caught a pack of five wolves in a place where they could not get away from his automobile. Running them down with the machine Mr. Tifer killed two of the wolves and disabled the other three so they were easily dispatched.

Lanesboro—Charles Robert Drake, U. S. N., has been selected as honor man of Company O-33 out of 78 men. Drake was born at Lanesboro, on Oct. 16, 1905, where he has made his home since. He enlisted in the navy March 5, 1924. He was selected as honor man because of attitude, neatness, military appearance and good spirit.

Eagle Lake—Eight persons of one family, Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold, the mother, father and six children, were killed, while a son, 19 years old, is in a Mankato hospital with a fractured leg and minor injuries as the result of an automobile train collision. The entire family, with the exception of a son, 17 years old were in the machine when the tragedy occurred.

St. Cloud—The Northern States Power company, has purchased the properties of the St. Cloud Public Service corporation, valued in excess of $3,500,000. It operates a streetcar line at St. Cloud and two gas plants.

St. Paul—John J. O'Connor, famous St. Paul chief of police of bygone days, is dead at Glendale, Calif. Chief O'Connor retired in May, 1920, after 40 years in the St. Paul police department and after acquiring a national reputation as one of the most skilled hunters of criminals in the country. His reputation rested not only upon his record for the solution of several puzzling crimes and bringing to justice of many desperadoes, but upon his unique methods.

Duluth — Opening of Minnesota trunk highway No. 1 from west Duluth to Esko's Corner in Carlton county, the first paved link at the northern end of the Duluth-Twin City road took place. Paving of the highways from Duluth to Carlston has been under way since last fall, and work on the road from West Duluth over the new grade was completed. The new road gives motorists a new entry to Duluth that is expected to do away with the many complaints formerly received by city and county officials.

Redwood Falls—Several changes in county government have been recommended by a special committee of the Redwood County Farm bureau, which has been investigating the subject of taxation. The committee has just presented its report. It recommends that the county treasurer's office be consolidated with that of the auditor and that office of judge of probate and clerk of court also be made one. All fees received by county officials should be turned over to the county, the committee believes, and a stated salary paid all officials.

St. James—Ten thousand persons attended the Farm Bureau and Game and Fish club picnic at Otto Howe farm on the shores of Long Lake near here. J. F. Reed, president of the State Farm Bureau Federation, spoke for the Farm Bureau, laying stress on the importance of the passage of the McNary-Haugen bill before agriculture can be restored to a par with other business. Louis Benshoff, editor of the Detroit (Minn.) Herald, for the Watonwan Game and Fish club, made a plea for the strict enforcement of the game and fish laws to preserve good fishing for the next generation.

SUFFERED PAIN FOR YEARS

Mrs. Jahr Finally Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Howard Lake, Minnesota.—"I write to let you know that I have taken several bottles of your medicine in the last three months, and found it to be very good. I had pains and other troubles women have and was not able to do my work. Seeing your 'Ad.' in the paper, I thought of giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I got good results from it and feel able to do my housework now. I used to have lots of pains, but after taking the medicine I am relieved from pains that I had suffered from for years. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends, and hope this letter will be satisfactory for you to publish."—Mrs. JENNIE JAHR, R.R. No. 2, Box 81, Howard Lake, Minn.

Don't Want Innovations

Rothenberpurg on the Tauber, an ancient, medieval, walled city of which all Bavaria is proud, is falling victim to the march of industrial progress. A hundred years before America was discovered this town was a teeming village, despite its walls, moats and city gates, but in more modern times it has been a mecca for tourists. Of recent months, however, captains of industry have sought permits to erect vehicle factories and it is against this move that many of the citizens are now protesting.

"TREASURE!"

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman receives a map, with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation. He makes a good impression. Bess meets Carr and tells him her sister's message. She learns from him that "Edith Grant" is his sister. He says he loves Nellie. Mrs. Archman decides to take Bess and Harry and Caruthers and sail with Captain Bunker on the El Rio to meet her husband.

"He doesn't go with you, you say?"

"No."

"I'm very glad to hear it." Mrs. Archman stared out on the deck. "Would you mind calling the young people in?" she asked. "I want to tell them."

The three tramped merrily into the chart house. "Hello, mumsy," called Bess. "What's up? You're plotting something. I can see it in your eye. Own up."

Mrs. Archman smiled. "Right," she said. "I've something to tell you. I've decided to take you all with me on the ship to meet your father."

"Wha-a-at? You're joking, mumsy!" It was Bess who cried out.

Mrs. Archman kept her eyes on her daughter. "No; it's true," she said. "Your father needs us and we must go."

Bess showed none of the dejection for which the older woman was looking. Instead, her eyes twinkled. "Good!" she exclaimed. "No more school for yours truly!"

"School!" Mrs. Archman hesitated. Evidently she had forgotten school. "I must take along a governess," she decided.

"A governess!" Bess shrieked.

"Yes! So, captain, there'll be five of us—myself, my son, my daughter, a governess, and at least one maid. Oh! And of course there'll be Mr. Akin. You'll make preparations?"

"Yes, madam."

Mrs. Archman got up. "It will be quite a rush to get ready," she said. "We'd better be about it." She turned to the Englishman. "Lord George," she said, "I'm very sorry to rescind my invitation to you. But you can see how it is. Unless you would like to go with us on the ship—"

"On the ship? Really? How positively ripping! I'll be delighted to go!"

Mrs. Archman colored and caught her breath. She had not had the slightest idea that Lord George would accept. However, she swiftly decided that it was all for the best. She could see the paragraphs in the society news: "Lord George Caruthers is yachting with Mrs. Henry Archman and party—" She turned quickly to him. "Will you come, really?" she exclaimed. "I'm very glad."

"Well, rather! It'll be awfully jolly and all that, you know. Er—where are we going?"

"I don't know. Captain Bunker has sealed orders."

"Sealed orders! Oh, by Jove! I say! That's ripping, you know—positively ripping!"

In various stages of pleasure and dejection, the visitors left the ship. Bess looked about for Mr. Carr, but she did not see him. As a matter of fact, he was on his way to Captain Bunker's cabin, where he had been summoned to receive orders in regard to new fittings for the extra cabins that would be brought into use by the new passengers.

CHAPTER VII

Ship's Company

The first snow of winter was falling thickly as the El Rio chugged downstream between the towering man-made cliffs edged with crowded ships. Besides Mrs. Archman, the El Rio carried as passengers Bess and Harry, Lord George Caruthers, Akin, Miss Denslow, the new governess and Ann Hawkins, a maid. Miss Denslow had been engaged after three days' frantic search for someone qualified for the purpose who was willing to leave town on a sea voyage of indefinite length.

She brought a letter of introduction and recommendation from Miss Van Kull, the daughter of Nicholas Van Kull, on whom Mr. Archman had called with apparently disastrous consequences on the night of the murder. Mrs. Archman had jumped at the chance to repair the breach, and had immediately engaged Miss Denslow tentatively. A little later she had called up Miss Van Kull on the telephone, and, though she had not succeeded in getting speech with her, had received assurances that Miss Denslow was everything she should be—a lady, highly educated, companionable, and versatile in her accomplishments—and a warm friend of Miss Van Kull's. This was enough for Mrs. Archman, who had instantly confirmed Miss Denslow's engagement.

Bess, though more or less put out by her failure to escape tutelage, had become speedily reconciled at sight of Miss Denslow, who was a sweet-faced woman of perhaps forty years of age, with white hair, good, though lined complexion, regular features and beautiful white teeth.

The El Rio was a good sea boat. She did not pitch much, and she rolled only in a leisurely fashion that was a guarantee that most of her passengers would soon recover from any sickness that might at first annoy them. In fact, only Mrs. Archman, who had sought her stateroom as soon as the vessel crossed the bar, seemed at all affected. Miss Denslow was still busy in her stateroom, and Akin was ticktacking on his typewriter, but the other three were collected on deck. They were all in good spirits, even Harry, who seemed to have recovered from his depression of a few days before. "Well, we're off all right," he observed. "But I wish somebody'd tell me where we're going and what we're going for. We've moved so fast in the last week that I don't know where I'm at, at all."

"The question is, where is father at?" Bess remarked.

"Father? Oh, father and Nellie are roosting on that mysterious island! That's what mother says, anyway. For my part I can't see it."

Lord George chimed in. "It's jolly queer about that map, isn't it, what?" he observed. "As I understand the thing, Mr. Archman doesn't get the map and so he starts for the place shown on it. Then your mother gets it, and we all start for we don't know where. I say, it's quite a lark, isn't it?"

"I hope it will turn out to be a lark, Lord George," remarked Bess. I'm beginning to be a little frightened, I think. I can't understand why the thief should send the map back to us—if the map really is the one that was stolen. Oh, Miss Denslow! I'm glad you've come on deck, after all. Have you met Lord George Caruthers? Miss Denslow, Lord George!"

Lord George bowed. But as he raised his head, his eyes met those of the governess, and a curious expression of puzzlement came upon his face. Miss Denslow, too, seemed startled.

"It is a pleasure to meet Lord George," she said hastily.

"Ah! Yes! Quite so! It's a great pleasure, I assure you," stammered Lord George. "That is, I mean—er—haven't I met you before, Miss—er—Denslow? Did I catch the name? I'm a beastly duffer at catching names, you know."

Miss Denslow bowed. "Yes; it's Miss Denslow," she answered. "I fear it is unlikely that we could have met before. You know I am Miss Archman's governess."

"Governess?"

Harry laughed. "Bess isn't out of school yet, Lord George," he said, "for all she's put up her hair."

"Fancy, now! Oh! I say, I never would have thought it. I wouldn't really. At home, don't you know, a schoolgirl would be still in the nursery. But over here, upon my word, you can't tell them from young ladies."

Bess' teeth clicked viciously. Lord George seemed to be getting on her nerves. But for some reason she made no effort to counter. Instead she carried the conversation back to the earlier topic. "We were talking about our trip and how it will turn out. I suppose you know more or less about it?"

"More or less, yes!" responded Miss Denslow. "Rather less than more, I'm afraid."

"Well, it's this way." Bess recounted the events of the last few days. "We were just trying to figure out why the thief sent the map back," she ended.

Miss Denslow seemed to ponder. "Perhaps he was not a really bad thief," she suggested, rather breathlessly. "Perhaps he was after money and when he got only a map and saw that it wasn't any use to him, he just sent it back."

Bess nodded. "That must be the explanation," she agreed. "But still—"

From forward came four sharp strokes of the ship's bells. At the sound Harry jumped to his feet. "Ten o'clock!" he exclaimed. "Time for Captain Bunker to open those orders of his. I'll go see if he's done it."

Five minutes later he was back. "Captain Bunker says it will be fair and warm by morning," he remarked. "We ought to make more than a hundred miles of southing during the night and that'll make a lot of difference in the temperature."

"Harry!" Bess cried out sharply. "What are you talking about? Hasn't Captain Bunker opened his instructions yet?"

Harry laughed. "Yes; he's opened them," he said. "But it was a case of April fool."

Lord George and Miss Denslow both turned their heads suddenly. "April fool!" exclaimed the Englishman. "Oh, come now, old chap. It's October and not April. You're spoofing, aren't you?"

"Not a single spoof," rejoined Harry light-heartedly. "Not one! Father never did give anything away till he had to. When Bunker opened the envelope he found another envelope with 'Open this when you get to latitude 19 and longitude 64.' Only that and nothing more."

"Oh!" Lord George settled back in his chair. "My word! It must be something jolly well worth while that we're going after," he said.

Bess, however, was disappointed and showed it. "Well, where is latitude—whatever it is?" she demanded.

"It's off the coast of Haiti," returned Harry.

"Haiti! Good gracious!"

"That's what I say. What do you suppose it's all about?"

Lord George shook his head. "Couldn't it be treasure?" he suggested hopefully.

"Treasure!" Bess screamed. "Oh, I never hoped for anything so splendid!" she breathed. "Did you, Miss Denslow?"

Miss Denslow smiled and shook her head. "Not treasure!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I beg of you, not treasure! Treasure is so banal. And the sailors always mutiny and kill everybody except the hero and the heroine. Oh, please don't let us go after treasure!"

"All right, we won't." Harry spoke promptly. "We strive to please. We—yes, what is it? Oh, coffee. Yes; pass it to the ladies."

A bare-headed steward had come soft-footedly along the deck and was proffering a tray set with tiny cups. When he came to Lord George that gentleman shook his head. "No; thank you," he said. "I used to drink coffee, don't you know, when I first went to sea, but I found out jolly soon that it wasn't any good."

Harry laughed. "They say champagne is better for that bilious feeling," he returned feelingly. "Will any of you have some?"

Bess shook her head. "No," she said; "we don't want any, but you take Lord George down and see what you can find." She turned to the waiter. "Steward," she said, "see if there is any champagne in the cooler and get it out for Mr. Harry."

Harry got up, laughing. "That means we are not wanted here, Lord George," he said. "I guess Bess wants to talk to Miss Denslow about her lessons. Come along and let's sample that wine."

The two men wandered off along the swaying deck. When they were gone, Bess leaned forward. "I'd like to shake that man," she exclaimed viciously. "He gets on my nerves. I may be a schoolgirl, but I'll show him a thing or two before this trip is over. See if I don't!"

Miss Denslow smiled comfortably. "I don't doubt it, my dear," she said. "But don't be too hard on him. He seems to be a nice enough man."

Harry and Lord George came back along the dim deck. Lord George sat down, but Harry continued to stand. "I think I'll turn in," he said. "That champagne wasn't quite what it is cracked up to be. I think—yes, I'm sure I had better turn in."

Who is the governess? and what is there between her and Lord George?

Made Name as Sculptor

Clark Mills was an American sculptor, born in Onondaga county, N. Y., December 1, 1815. He died January 12, 1883. In 1848, when he was on the eve of leaving for Europe to study the art of sculpture, he received a commission to erect an equestrian statue of General Jackson. According to the story, Mills had never even seen an equestrian statue. He, however, set to work, designed his model and then found it necessary to learn the art of bronze casting, inasmuch as there was no one in this country prepared to mold his figure in bronze. The statue of General Jackson by Mills is in Lafayette square, Washington, and a replica is in New Orleans.

Egyptian Water Clocks

Casts of two ancient Egyptian water clocks have just been presented by the Egyptian government to the Science museum, South Kensington, London, England. One of the clocks comes from Karnak, and dates from the reign of Amenhotep II, 1,400 years before Christ. The other is from Edfu, in the Ptolemaic epoch. From an examination of these clocks and the scale of measurements recorded on each, it appears that the "hour" of that remote period was a variable length, being one-twelfth of the length of the day or night of the particular time of the year. A study of these ancient timepieces is regarded as important in the comparison of astronomical observations.

BAPTIST MINISTER GIVES TANLAC FULL CREDIT

No greater praise can be accorded a medicine than the voluntary testimony of a minister of the gospel. The preacher's high calling puts a grave responsibility on his every word, and he will not jeopardize his reputation by commending a thing without first assuring himself it is all right.

Tanlac has been endorsed by numbers of prominent ministers. They have put Tanlac to the test of personal service and their words carry conviction because they say what they know to be the truth.

One of the latest to speak out in behalf of Tanlac is Rev. B. E. Bell, a retired Baptist minister, 207 Elm St., San Antonio, Texas, who says:

"Before taking Tanlac I had suffered from stomach and nerve troubles for over 30 years and there were times when my condition was such that it required almost superhuman effort for me to prepare my sermons and go through with my Sunday services. Indeed, my work seemed like some great obstacle across my pathway—a burden too big to carry in my weak physical condition.

"But in six weeks' time Tanlac transformed my entire outlook, giving me what seemed like a new set of nerves and a brand-new digestive system. My appetite became ravenous, my nerves steady, my liver action regular and I could sleep sound for the first time in years. Whenever I have the slightest symptoms of trouble now I always resort to Tanlac, am taking some at present, and it never fails to smooth things out for me. I certainly have the best of reasons for feeling grateful to Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation; made and recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac.

How Mme. Thiers Saved the Scraps

A striking instance of the frugality of the Thiers household was given by "Le Petit Homme Rouge" in his Republican France." In the winter of 1872, when M. Thiers, though occupying the Elysee, was residing at Versailles, the author had occasion to call there on the morning after an official reception.

The commissary of the palace, to whom he was talking, was called away by a message that Madame Thiers had arrived. When he came back he explained that the lady and her sister invariably returned to Paris on the morrow of a reception in order to lunch off the remains of the dinner or supper of the previous night.

"The journey costs them nothing," he said, "for they travel at the expense of the state, and when they have lunched they carry all the food which still remains uneaten to Versailles." In proof of his statement he led the author to a window and showed him the palace servants unloading baskets and parcels from the brougham of Madame Thiers.

Canadian Musk Oxen

The musk ox, which makes its home in the northern part of Canada, is a connecting link between wild cattle and sheep. Its horns are similar to the Cape buffalo, and its flesh tastes like beef. It has next its body a dense coat of soft, clean, woolly hair, and through this grows a rain coat of very long, straight brown hair like that of the Tibetan yak. It has a tail so short and small that the animal seems tailless. Their horns meet in a broad base over the top of the skull, drop far down, then sharply curve upward for several inches, terminating in sharp points. They are specially designed for puncturing the vitals of wolves and polar bears. The musk ox lives and thrives even up to the farthest north for hoofed animals.

Canada Has Own Flag

Display of Canada's new "national flag" on formal occasions and officially has been made. The old flag for Canadian merchant ships was used for 30 years, but two years ago King George authorized the use of a new Canadian coat of arms designed for a quite different purpose and this has been appropriated for the new ensign. The main feature of the flag is the old union jack, with a combination of the crosses of St. Andrew, St. George and St. Patrick on which the new coat of arms is imposed.

Women Denounced Coffee

In "the women's petition against coffee," 1674, they complained that "it made men as unfruitful as the deserts whence that unhappy berry is said to be brought!" That the "offspring of their mighty ancestors would dwindle into a succession of apes and pigmies," and that on a domestic message a husband would "stop by the way to drink a couple of cups of coffee."

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Assignee of the Mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Clarence Larson and Bertha Larson, his wife, Mortgagors, to Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated October 11th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 22nd day of October, A. D., 1919, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 152.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment dated October 25th, 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 30th day of October, A. D., 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 90 of Mortgages, on page 580.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Paul Kemp, by written assignment, dated November 25th, A. D., 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 284;

And whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of Four Hundred Fifty-one and 54-100 Dollars ($451.54) and the first half of the taxes for the year 1923 amounting to Forty-nine and 15-100 Dollars ($49.15); and whereas, the said Paul Kemp, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Two Thousand Dollars ($2000.00), with accumulated interest from the 11th day of October, 1920, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid, as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of Section Fifteen (15), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State on the 22nd day of July, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $500.69 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars attorneys fees stipulated as attorneys fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated May 31st, 1924.

Labor
—that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

FALLACIES MET WITH FACTS

Declares People Will Make Short Shrift of Those Who Deceive Them When Aroused to Truth of Own Interests.

Three great misrepresentations, by which certain politicians have advanced their own interests at the expense of public welfare, were recently declared by F. N. Shepherd, Executive Manager, American Bankers Association, in an address at Kansas City, Missouri, to be the oft-repeated statements that "Wall Street" owns the corporations, that the Federal Reserve Banks discriminated against agriculture and deflated the farmers, and that there are seven billion dollars of "water" in railroad capitalization and rates should be reduced accordingly.

What Facts Tell

In regard to the alleged ownership of the corporations by "Wall Street," Mr. Shepherd showed that the securities of American corporations are very widely held by the people. The Union Pacific, he pointed out, has over 50,000 stockholders and the Pennsylvania Railroad 147,000 stockholders, 67,000 of whom are women, with an average ownership of 47 shares each. The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has 200,000 stockholders, 180,000 of whom are employees, and the United States Steel Corporation has 174,000 stockholders. According to a recent report of the Interstate Commerce Commission, he said, Class I railroads have a total of 777,132 stockholders, there being, therefore, practically as many owners of shares as there are employees.

"The real capitalists of America," continued Mr. Shepherd, "are these and the bondholders whose funds are invested in securities through their thirty million savings accounts, and through their ownership of over 71 million life and industrial insurance policies. Once arouse these people to the fact that it is their interests which are being attacked through these misrepresentations and they will make short shrift of those who deceive them.

Truth About the Federal Reserve

"As to the Federal Reserve System, instead of its discriminating against the farmer, exactly the opposite is true. During the period of greatest decline in the value of agricultural products, about which there has been so much loose talk, rediscounts with Federal Reserve banks in non-agricultural districts actually decreased by 23 per cent, but in agricultural districts rediscounts were actually increased by 56 per cent. The Federal Reserve Banks of the big cities of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Cleveland poured into other Federal Reserve Banks in agricultural districts literally hundreds of millions of dollars.

"As to the alleged seven billions of 'water' in the railroads, a physical valuation of the railroad properties has been under way for the past ten years, as a result of the La Follette Act, conducted by a body of unprejudiced, non-political experts by whom the valuation has been placed at $18,900,000,000. Although it has been officially stated, and reiterated, that, in arriving at this figure, no consideration whatever was given to capitalization, politically-minded men are still deceiving the public, and particularly the farmers, about the 'water' in the railroads. Railroad stock today is not watered. Any possible fair scheme of valuation today proves that our railroads are worth from one to two billion dollars more than their capitalization.

No Railroad Income Guarantee

"Further, demagogues are telling people that the railroad income is guaranteed. The Esch-Cummins Act does not guarantee any return to railroad stockholders, as the demagogues constantly assert. By its terms the Act simply provides a yard stick for rate making, which is that a fair railroad rate is one which would show a return of 5¾ per cent upon the actual value of the property used in transportation in a given territory.

"This provision bears no relation whatever to railroad capitalization and, moreover, no relation to individual railroads, some of which might show earnings under such a rate-making provision in excess of six per cent, and some much less. No consideration whatever is given in the Act or in the administration of the Interstate Commerce Commission to railroad capitalization or any return upon it."

MIDDLEMAN'S PROFITS.

Words of objection on the part of the farmer against the middleman often are in vain, but the farmer who raises on his own acres all that his table requires, the year round, places himself in a position where he is largely independent of the middleman. Often the remedy for many objectional conditions lies in our own hands.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

DEMOCRATS NAME DAVIS AND BRYAN

Convention Selects West Virgina Statesman for Head of the Ticket.

LONGEST IN HISTORY

Governor of Nebraska Picked for Second Place—103 Ballots Are Taken Before Choice Is Made.

For President:
JOHN W. DAVIS OF WEST VIRGINIA
For Vice President:
CHARLES W. BRYAN OF NEBRASKA

The above ticket was selected by the Democratic National convention Wednesday afternoon, July 9, the 14th day of the convention, and on the 16th session and the 9th day of continuous voting. On the 103rd roll call the drift turned to John W. Davis of West Virginia. When the roll call was completed it was apparent that he had more than 600 votes. Illinois started the landslide by changing its vote to Davis, other states quickly followed. Former Senator Thomas Taggart of Indiana moved to suspend the rules and make the nomination by acclamation. The motion was carried with a whoop and all the pent-up feelings that had kept the delegates on edge for so many days of balloting were let loose in a wild demonstration, in the midst of which the convention took a recess until evening to complete the ticket.

Well, it didn't look as if they would do it, but they did, at last. The Democratic party now has a ticket. The deadlock finally was broken. The dreary round of balloting has ceased and the almighty voice from Alabama has returned home to repair his worn vocal chords.

The bitter struggle between the McAdoo and Smith forces made this a record-breaking convention. For prolonged balloting and noisy demonstration, it is in a class by itself.

Throughout the long monotonous grind of roll calls frequent attempts were made by earnest Democrats to find some solution of the difficulty facing the convention, any solution that would leave the party in harmonious unity. Ralston, Cox, and one or two others who had been receiving votes withdrew their names in the hope that such action would start the tide toward some candidate upon whom the delegates could unite. But the only effect was to bring out new candidates.

Tuesday evening, after the 93rd ballot, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Smith manager, announced that he was authorized by Governor Smith to withdraw the governor's name if McAdoo would do likewise. But until Mr. McAdoo would withdraw, said Mr. Roosevelt, the supporters of Smith would continue to vote for the governor.

DEADLOCK IS JARRED

Just before the 100th ballot the deadlock was jarred by the reading of a letter from McAdoo releasing his delegates. The Smith followers did not take this as a bona fide withdrawal, so they continued to vote for the govenor. The 100th ballot showed the following vote for the principal candidates: Smith, 351½; McAdoo, 190; Davis, 203½; Meredith, 75½; Walsh, 52½; Robinson, 46; Underwood, 41½.

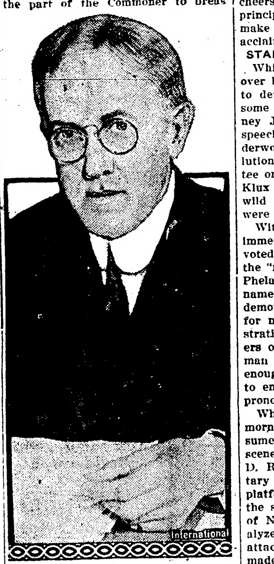
The story of the more than 100 roll calls is about as interesting as last year's stock market reports, and about as thrilling. While the balance of power was held by the leading candidates, there was no possibility of a nomination, and there seemed little likelihood that either Smith or McAdoo would ever weaken. The Smith following held its strength consistently throughout the many ballots, but the McAdoo strength fluctuated from time to time. McAdoo reached the peak of his power on the 69th ballot when he rolled up a total of 530 votes. Then he began to hit the toboggan, dropping to 310 on the 92nd ballot. Following the Smith announcement, above referred to, he began to pick up again and reached 421 on the 96th roll call. Shortly afterwards came his announcement freeing his delegates.

Smith climbed slowly in the first two days' balloting, passing the 300 mark, then more slowly until he reached his top vote on the 83rd ballot, 368. He stuck closely to this figure until after the withdrawal of McAdoo.

ON THE LONG ROAD

The balloting commenced on Monday, June 30, and continued with day and night sessions until the agreement finally was reached. The monotony of the roll calls was occasionally relieved by the excitement aroused by the meaningless switching of a couple of votes or the challenging of the vote of a state.

William Jennings Bryan added a dramatic touch on Wednesday when, arising to a question of personal privilege, he asked permission to explain his vote. It was a heroic attempt on the part of the Commoner to break the deadlock. He suggested the names of eight Democrats from among whom the convention might choose a leader. Last and most emphasized in the list was the name of William G. McAdoo, whom Mr. Bryan specially lauded, but the mention of the Californian's name threw the convention into a turmoil. Bryan was hissed and booed and had great difficulty in finishing his speech. If, as was intimated, it was an attempt to stampede the convention, it failed.



International

TWO BIG QUESTIONS

Not since 1896 when the big fight on the free coinage of silver was waged, has there been such a fight over the platform in any political convention. The two big questions at issue were the stand to be taken on the Ku Klux Klan and the League of Nations. All week the committee labored, day and night, in an effort to come to an agreement that would prevent the bringing up of the disputed questions on the floor of the convention. The earnestness of the members of the committee in their desire for harmony was dramatically illustrated just before the committee took a recess at six o'clock Saturday morning after an all-night session, when William Jennings Bryan offered up a fervent prayer for Divine guidance.

The Klan plank was bitterly fought on the floor. As it was finally adopted, mention of the Klan by name is omitted and the plank makes a plea for religious freedom and tolerance. This was the plank offered by the majority of the committee and it won out by a bare margin of four votes.

The other disputed plank was that referring to the League of Nations. Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker offered a minority report flatly favoring a declaration for the Wilson league. The plank submitted by the majority declared for a referendum on the league and was adopted by a 2-to-1 vote over the Baker plank.

MUCH FIREWORKS

This convention is in striking contrast to the Cleveland affair. Here's all the old-time stuff. From the drop of Chairman Hull's gavel calling the delegates to order there was something doing every minute. Excitement and enthusiasm ran high, even at times drifting into sporadic, physical combat. The first touch of the fighting spirit was injected when the Klan issue was dragged in by Forney Johnston of Alabama in placing Senator Underwood's name before the convention as a candidate for the Presidential nomination.

It was Temporary Chairman Pat Harrison who first let loose the flood gates that swept the convention off its feet. Senator Harrison is a master of oratory. He gave them the old-fashioned stuff and they liked it. With biting sarcasm and keen invective he scored the Republican party for its alleged deeds of omission and commission. His short snappy sentences had a sting in every one of them, and the delegates responded wildly to his every mood. Mention of the name of Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson set the convention wild, particularly the latter, which started a demonstration that lasted several minutes.

Senator Walsh, the permanent chairman, also did his share in inspiring the enthusiasm of the crowd. His activities as an investigator of the oil scandal gave promise that he would have something to say along that line, and he didn't disappoint. His denunciation of those hit by the senatorial investigation met with approving cheers. His enunciation of the basic principles upon which the party should make its campaign also were wildly acclaimed.

START NOMINATING SPEECHES

While the platform was being fought over by the committee it was decided to devote the time to getting rid of some of the nominating oratory. Forney Johnston of Alabama made the speech nominating Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama. He read a resolution he had presented to the committee on resolutions condemning the Ku Klux Klan. It started something. A wild uproar ensued, several fights were started, but quickly stopped.

With nothing else to take up the immediate attention the delegates devoted themselves whole heartedly to the "man who" stuff. Former Senator Phelan of California presented the name of William G. McAdoo. The demonstration which followed lasted for nearly an hour. Counter demonstrations were started by the followers of Governor Smith. When Chairman Walsh thought it had gone far enough he restored order long enough to entertain a motion to adjourn and pronounce it carried.

When the convention met Thursday morning the speech making was resumed with frequent repetitions of the scenes of the day before. Franklin D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, was brought to the platform in an invalid chair to make the speech nominating Gov. Al Smith of New York. Mr. Roosevelt is paralyzed in the limbs as a result of an attack of infantile paralysis. He made a remarkable speech and when he concluded by pronouncing the name of the New York governor a demonstration broke loose that lasted for considerably over an hour.

PANDEMONIUM CONTINUES

For seven hours the pandemonium continued as the names of Senator Ralston of Indiana, Senator Ferris of Michigan, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Former Senator Saulsbury of Delaware, David F. Houston of New York, Gov. Jonathan Davis of Kansas, and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, were added to the list of candidates.

CHARLES W. BRYAN

The convention adjourned to Friday morning on a vote which was said to be a test of the relative strength of the Smith and McAdoo forces. McAdoo lost out by a large majority.

And Friday was no different from the days that had gone before. More oratory and demonstrations, but they finally got to the end of the roll call, and all the favorite sons were presented for the consideration of the delegates. That woman has become an active factor in political life was apparent in this convention. They participated in the proceedings on the floor of the convention and in committee work. Many of them appeared on the platform to make nominating and seconding speeches.

The balloting was started when the convention reconvened on Monday morning. The first ballot resulted as follows:

Underwood, 42½; Robinson, 21; McAdoo, 431½; Sweet, 12; Brown, 17; Smith, 240½; Saulsbury, 7; Silzer, 38; John W. Davis, 31; Ritchie, 22½; Harrison, 43½; Cox, 59; Bryan, 18; Ralston, 30; Jonathan Davis, 20; Ferris, 30; Glass, 25; Thompson, 1; Kendrick, 6; [illegible]

Famous Beauties Grace Democratic Convention

New York artists who got in the front row at the Democratic convention had to wonder whether the women present were gathered for a beauty show or a political conclave.

For the Democratic party with its southern backbone, boasts innumerable Democratic beauties.

One of the handsomest and cleverest of the leaders of feminine Democrats, Mrs. Leroy Spring, delegate-at-large from South Carolina came to the metropolis as one of the vanguard of Democratic politicians, feminine gender, who thrills the galleries and puts a decisive finger in the Presidential pie.

Another southern beauty known for her smart costumes, who came to New York to take up the reins of her office is Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, committeewoman from Missouri, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, and official leader of the Democratic women. Mrs. Blair hides proven ability beneath a petite and feminine exterior.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, committeewoman from Tennessee, wife of the chairman of the national committee, is another of the truly handsome women who slipped early into the convention city, while Miss Nancy Cook, one of the local lady powers that-be, surprised the delegates from the other states with her charm—and the best bobbed curl this side of the Bronx.

The best hearts are ever the bravest.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Duluth—Two children were killed in motor accidents here, bringing the year's total in automobile crashes to 12.

St. Paul—The Minnesota Potato Growers' exchange launched a campaign to obtain 5,000 new members by August 15.

New Ulm—Rev. C. J. Albrecht, 77 years old, pioneer Lutheran clergyman of Minnesota and pastor for 42 years of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church of New Ulm, died here following a paralytic stroke.

Pipestone—A new automobile trail from Chicago to the Black Hills is now being planned, which will carry the tourists through southern Minnesota and west from here into South Dakota.

Duluth—Tourist camps are no place for a band of gypsies to pitch camp. Three auto loads of them began to make camp among the tourists. A hurry call to the police and a trip to the grounds by officers resulted in the departure of the band.

Oakland—A. A. Sorenson, cashier of the State Bank of Oakland, in a message received from A. J. Veigel, state superintendent of banks, was tendered the appointment of deputy state bank examiner, for the first congressional district east of Albert Lea.

Albert Lea—After administering poison to her 9 year old son, Mrs. Mabel Wallace, residing on a farm southwest of here, near the Iowa border, herself took a dose of the substance, dying within a half hour of her son.

Crookston—Plans already have been started for the production or a three day music festival here this fall with the climax being a gigantic open air presentation of De Koven's "Robin Hood," with several hundred of Crookston music lovers taking part.

Jasper—For the second time in two years burglars entered the public garage in the village of Ihlen six miles north of here. More than $600 worth of tires and automobile accessories were carried away by the robbers on their last visit.

Fergus Falls—One hundred and seventy patients, 90 men and 80 women, were transferred from the Fergus Falls hospital for the insane to the asylum at Willmar. They went in four special cars accompanied by 15 nurses. All of them are chronic cases.

Duluth—A Duluth fleet boat set a record when the steamer William H. Warner of the Tomlinson line made the run from this city to Conneaut, Ohio, in 74 hours. The boat was loaded with ore. The running time included locking at the Soo.

Osseo—For the third time in a week death mocked at love and bitter grief replaced the anticipation of marriage. This was revealed with the identification of a couple killed on the Great Northern railroad crossing near Osseo. The man was Lester Campbell, 20 years old, and the girl was Lillian Castle, 19, both of Minneapolis. They were to have been married this summer.

Minneapolis—Funeral services were conducted for Charles M. Andrist, for 13 years a professor of romance languages at the University of Minnesota, who died at St. Barnabas hospital. Professor Andrist was 56 years old. He was a leader in the councils of the democratic party in Minnesota, serving as secretary to two former governors, J. A. A. Burnquist and the late Governor W. S. Hammond.

Hibbing—Bears have recently been furnishing considerable diversion to farmers, road workers and cottagers about Sturgeon lake. At a camp of road workers the bears have been putting in an appearance about every evening at supper time. They have learned that much waste food is placed in garbage cans and do not seem to mind the presence of men if the latter do not get too close.

St. Paul—John J. O'Connor, famous St. Paul chief of police of bygone days, is dead at Glendale, Calif. Chief O'Connor retired in May, 1920, after 40 years in the St. Paul police department and after acquiring a national reputation as one of the most skilled hunters of criminals in the country. His reputation rested not only upon his record for the solution of several puzzling crimes and bringing to justice of many desperadoes, but upon his unique methods.

Duluth—Twenty-six suits against the United States railroad administration for losses suffered in the October, 1918, forest fires in northern Minnesota, were continued until the January term of court by Federal Judge W. A. Cant here. This action was taken at the call of the calendar on motion of Lafayette French, Jr., United States district attorney, who stated that his client, J. C. Davis, agent designated by the president, was not yet prepared for the trial.

Minneapolis—George C. Jewett, general manager of the American Wheat Growers Associated since its organization in 1920, submitted his resignation to the board of directors.

Camp Clifton T. Smith, Lake City—The 135th infantry, Minnesota's National Guard unit, regularly assigned to the 34th division, now encamped here, was described as "very satisfactory and comparing favorably in its work with all the other infantry regiments in the United States," in a report made by Major General C. S. Farnsworth, chief of infantry of the army.

Fairmont—About 200 delegates from all parts of Minnesota were in attendance at the session of Minnesota camp of the Spanish War Veterans, at their convention here.

Mankato—Two men are dead and two others injured, one perhaps fatally as the result of an automobile wreck 10 miles northeast of here. The car, running at high speed, went off the road and into a ditch.

Hibbing—Confining the activities of the farm to poultry raising, the Hibbing public school experimental farm will raise 1,200 chickens this year. The birds will be used to provide chicken dinners at the school cafeteria.

Crookston—A new national bank to take the place of the Merchants National Bank of Crookston, one of the oldest institutions in northwestern Minnesota, which was forced to close several months ago, will be opened here before the fall harvest, according to the committee in charge.

Lanesboro—Charles Robert Drake, U. S. N., has been selected as honor man of Company O-33 out of 78 men. Drake was born at Lanesboro, on Oct. 16, 1905, where he has made his home since. He enlisted in the navy March 5, 1924.

Moorhead—Negotiations were completed covering the sale of the warehouse building of the Moorhead Storage and Transfer Company, of this place, to the Minnesota Potato Growers' Exchange. Announcement of the sale was made to Leo H. Wright, president of the company.

Pipestone—Plans are being made here for a homecoming and old settlers' picnic to be conducted on Saturday, July 26. The gathering will take place at Court House park. The date for the event marks the 50th anniversary of the completion of the first building erected in Pipestone county.

Cass Lake—Hundreds of Indians from Cass Lake Indian reservation pulled their tent pegs and started home, ending one of the most successful pow-wows ever staged here. This celebration continued three days, the Chippewas joining with the Cass Lake American Legion post in the program. A rodeo show, Indian games and races occupied the first day.

St. Paul—Fifty-four trustees of the newly formed Minnesota Potato Growers exchange ratified the sale of their 1924 crop, estimated at $8,000,000, through the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, Inc., of New York, an organization formed through the American Farm Bureau federation to handle the product of many farmers' co-operatives throughout the country.

Eagle Lake—Eight persons of one family, Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold, the mother, father and six children, were killed, while a son, 19 years old, is in a Mankato hospital with a fractured leg and minor injuries as the result of an automobile train collision. The entire family, with the exception of a son, 17 years old were in the machine when the tragedy occurred.

Duluth—Grover M. Conzet of St. Paul, for 10 years connected with the Minnesota state forestry department, was appointed state forester. The state forestry board, in naming Mr. Conzet to succeed W. T. Cox, set his term of office under this appointment at five years "so that annual appointments will not interfere with his program of fire fighting and reforestation."

Albert Lea—This city won honorable mention in a better homes contest just concluded on a national scale, the national headquarters of Better Homes in America announced. Kalamazoo, Mich., won first prize. No details were given of the house that Albert Lea exhibited in the contest. Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, is president of Better Homes in America, and Dr. James Ford is executive secretary.

Ada—Funeral services were conducted here for David C. Lightbourn, editor of the Norman County Index since 1881 and former deputy state insurance commissioner. Mr. Lightbourn, born at Pine Bend, S. D., in 1858, came to Minnesota when a boy, graduated from the St. Cloud public schools at the age of 15, and worked for a time as carrier, compositor and reporter on the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Later he founded the Norman County Index.

Duluth — Opening of Minnesota trunk highway No. 1 from west Duluth to Esko's Corner in Carlton county, the first paved link at the northern end of the Duluth-Twin City road took place. Paving of the highways from Duluth to Carlston has been under way since last fall, and work on the road from West Duluth over the new grade was completed. The new road gives motorists a new entry to Duluth that is expected to do away with the many complaints formerly received by city and county officials.

Pipestone—Between 25 and 30 persons—virtually the entire population of the town of Airlie, six miles west of Pipestone—escaped death when they packed into three automobiles and "eluded" a small tornado which passed through the little village. Two residences, a warehouse and a garage were wrecked by the storm, which also passed through a nearby cornfield. Noticing the funnel-shaped cloud heading towards the hamlet, residents warned each other of the impending danger.

Duluth—Duluth's $25,000 Salvation Army administration building, work on which was started, will be completed by Nov. 1 of this year, Commandant Hugh Dundas announced. The new home is the result of six years of constant effort on the part of Commandant and Mrs. Dundas.

Virginia—Virginia will be the site of the finals of the Minnesota State bike races, according to word received from the Amateur Bicycle league of America officials. The winners will go to the bike finals for the national title, which will be held in Buffalo, Sept. 5 and 6.

HALVORSON'S LEAD ONLY 670

29,000 Less Votes Cast In Recent Primary Than In 1922 Election

Fargo, N. D.—North Dakota voters cast approximately 29,000 votes less in the 19924 state-wide primary than in the state elections two years ago, according to unofficial figures tabulated at the press election bureau here. The vote, that for Democratic and Republican governor taken as the barometer, 1922 totaled, officially, 190,803, while that in the past election of June 25, unofficially, totaled 161,972, showing a decrease in the Republican vote of about 30,000 and an approximate gain in the Democratic vote of about 1,300.

Featuring the contests, the unofficial tabulation shows, is the close race between Halvor Halvorson of Minot and Dr. L. S. Platou of Fargo for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The Minot candidate's lead, in a careful unofficial recheck of county totals is placed at 670. Unofficial complete figures gave: Halvorson 5,903, Platou 5,233.

In the Republican gubernatorial race, A. G. Sorlie of Grand Forks, Nonpartisan Leaguer, maintained his lead over Governor R. A. Nestos, the complete unofficial county shows, although his lead was cut slightly and his plurality placed at 2,089. Incidentally both the League candidates and the Independents suffered a loss of votes in comparison with 1922. In 1922 Governor Nestos rode to victory with 93,551 votes while his League opponent, B. F. Baker, received but 82,421. The unofficial vote for the 1924 state election gave: Nestos 70,782; Sorlie 72,871; Moe running independently, 6,526.

Another close contest developed in the race for the Republican commissioner of agriculture and labor between Church, Leaguer, and Kitchen, Independent. Kitchen won, on the basis of unofficial returns, receiving 71,758 to his opponent's 70,235.

The results of the other contests were as follows:

Thomas Hall, Independent, defeated Thomas Sherman, Leaguer, and P. Williams, running independently for congressman from the Second North Dakota district. The vote: Hall 25,099; Sherman 21,222; Williams 3,201.

Congressman O. B. Burtness defeated H. H. Aaker, Leaguer, for Republican nomination for congressman from the First North Dakota district. The vote: Aaker 17,394; Burtness 28,555.

Congressman J. H. Sinclair, Leaguer, defeated M. O. Hall, Independent, for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Third North Dakota district, receiving 30,715 votes to Hall's 16,597.

BRAZILIAN REVOLT SPREADS

3,000 Killed in Siege of Rebel Brazilian City.

Santos, Brazil.—Fighting in the city of Sao Pualo, seat of the Brazilian insurrection, has been of the most desperate character during the past few days, according to two employes of an American concern who arrived here Monday after a perilous journey afoot, from the beleaguered metropolis. They estimated that the dead among troops and civilians will reach 3,000.

Some of the federal artillery, stationed south of the suburb of Ypiranga, has been bombarding the city. Most of the fighting which has been taking place between here and Sao Paulo is said to have been between small bands of rebels and federal troops.

Refugees confirm the report that 600 federal troops who started last week from Santos to aid in the relief of Sao Paulo were cut to pieces by the insurrectionists.

U. S. FLIERS REACH PARIS

Reach French Capital in Time to Take Part in National Celebration.

Paris.—Three weary American airmen with bloodshot eyes and wind-burned faces piloted their aeroplanes into Paris Monday, having flown more than two-thirds of the way around the world, and the first thing they wanted to do was to go to bed.

Lieutenants Smith, Nelson and Wade, who flew here from Vienna, appeared nearly exhausted by their efforts. They showed marks of the hardship endured. The burning heat of India and the biting blizzards of the North Pacific had left their impressions.

The Americans had done their bit for France on this country's national holiday—sacrificing some badly needed rest at Vienna in order to arrive here July 14, Bastile day. Their coming was the climax of the holiday.

Davis Western Hopes Boosted

Locust Valley, N. Y.—John W. Davis' hopes of carrying western agricultural states have gone up as a result of week-end conferences with Senator Walsh of Montana, and Carl Vrooman of Bloomington, Ill., here. Mr. Vrooman, who was an assistant secretary of agriculture under President Wilson, saw the Democratic nominee at Matapan. It is understood that Mr. Vrooman urged Mr. Davis to address himself with vigor to agrarian problems and presented proposals for land reforms.

Wonder of Nature

The amoeba is a unicellular animal and is what biologists refer to as the lowest form of animal life. It is visible only by the aid of the most powerful of microscopes and scientists long regarded it as a dummy without will or intelligence. A professor of zoology challenged that theory and published the results of researches in which he maintained the theory that the amoeba didn't like light, electricity, certain chemicals and that it managed to avoid them. Recently he has confirmed his theory. Explaining that an amoeba lacks eyes with which to see, as it lacks all the other organs of more complicated organisms, the professor explains that it moves by a combination of rolling and flowing. It thrusts out from its jellylike body what is called a "pseudopod."

Hurt by Bobbed Hair

The future commercial prosperity of Chefoo, China, a city of 100,000 population, depends largely on whether American women will continue to bob their hair. Chefoo's chief industry is making hair nets and they sell $5,000,000 worth to this country each year, in addition to exporting $3,060,000 worth to France and other countries. In China the price for the nets runs from $1 to $2 a gross and for making them factory workers are paid 7 cents a day.

"MISS DENSLOW."

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman receives a map; with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation. He makes a good impression. Bess meets Carr and tells him her sister's message. She learns from him that "Edith Grant" is his sister. He says he loves Nellie. Mrs. Archman takes Bess and Harry and Caruthers and sails with Captain Bunker on the El Rio to meet her husband. A Miss Denslow, engaged as governess for Bess, and Akin, sail with the party. Captain Bunker has sealed orders.

Bess laughed. "'It is best that I should leave,'" she quoted. "'Best for you and best for me.' Run along, Harry. I think I'll go below myself. It's getting pretty chilly up here." She started to rise from her chair and Lord George leaped to his feet and helped her up. "Will you come below, Miss Denslow?" she finished.

But the governess did not move. "I think I'll stay up a little longer, if you don't mind," she said.

"Oh, not at all!" Bess took a step toward the companionway. Then she clutched at Lord George's arm with a little squeal. "Gracious!" she exclaimed, as the Englishman caught her. "I haven't gotten my sea legs yet."

"It's only a matter of practice," laughed Lord George. "In a day or two you will do it quite well. It's just like riding a wheel, don't you know." Still supporting the girl, he moved toward the companionway and the two vanished down it.

Miss Denslow sat still in her chair. Her eyes did not leave the companionway after the two had vanished. Her whole attitude had taken on a curious tenseness. "He'll come back," she muttered. "Oh, he'll come back."

A moment later when Lord George's head appeared outlined against the glow of light that came up the companionway, she nodded to herself. "I knew it."

Lord George came aft and stood above her. "May I sit down?" he asked.

Miss Denslow laughed. "Oh, of course," she said. "You don't need to put on any ceremony with me. I have been expecting you. I saw that you recognized me."

Lord George sat down. "Yes," he said; "I did. I fancy we would better come to an understanding, what?"

Miss Denslow nodded. "I am in your hands," she said. "It's your move. Are you going to expose me?"

"That depends! It's jolly queer, meeting you this way, you know. It seems to call for an explanation."

"It's very simple. I was tired of things and I wanted a change. So I snatched at this chance. It would do me much harm and do no one else any good for you to say anything."

Lord George nodded. "I fancy you're right," he said slowly. "I'll think about it a bit before I say anything. Perhaps you and I might be useful to each other, don't you know?"

Miss Denslow started. She opened her mouth to speak, then turned suddenly. "Who's that?" she demanded.

"I, madam." The steward had approached noiselessly over the dim deck. As he spoke, he began to gather the cups from the table.

Miss Denslow eyed him [illegible]. "Ah, yes!" she said. "Your name is—?"

"Price, madam."

"You're new on [illegible]"

"Yes, madam. [illegible]

[illegible] the captain and [illegible] madam." He placed the last dish on the tray. "Is there anything more, madam?" he asked.

"Nothing!" Miss Denslow remained silent till the man had gone. Then she turned to Lord George. "Then I may count on your silence for the present?" she asked.

Lord George nodded slowly. "Yes," he said.

CHAPTER VIII

Without Lights.

The morning of the fifth day saw the El Rio approaching latitude 19, longitude 64, the spot at which Captain Bunker was to open the envelope inclosing his instructions and was presumably, to ascertain the exact place where he was to find Mr. Archman. Naturally, all on board were agog to learn what the envelope contained. Bess was especially and admittedly excited.

A little before noon she had a surprise. She had torn herself reluctantly away from the deck and had gone below to get one of her lesson books. She found the book, but she also found, lying on top of it, a folded paper addressed to herself in a handwriting that she did not recognize. It ran as follows:

"Warn Captain Bunker to keep special watch over his instructions. An effort is likely to be made to find them out in advance, probably today."

The note bore no signature. Bess read the words again. Then she sat down and stared at the paper. Was it a hoax? she asked herself. Why should any one want to learn the contents of the instructions in advance of their formal opening? Who could want to do such a thing?

"Warn Captain Bunker," said the note. But should she do it? Would she not make herself ridiculous by doing it? Would the writer be watching to laugh at her? Such a note seemed like Harry's idea of fun.

After a while she decided to go on deck and see if she could find any clew in the expressions of her fellow passengers. As she passed Harry's stateroom the sound of a man's and a woman's voice within it, engaged in earnest though low-pitched discussion, came to her ears. She paid little attention to them, supposing that Harry was giving instructions to the maid about sewing on a button or some such trifle. After a brief pause in her mother's stateroom, she went on deck and met Harry. She made some reference to his visitor. Harry started and stared at her, half angrily, half suspiciously. "What are you trying to start now, Bess?" he asked. "I'll bite. What's the joke?"

"Lord George Nodded. 'I Fancy You're Right,' He Said Slowly. 'I'll Think About It a Bit Before I Say Anything.'"

Bess stared. "No joke," she said. "I certainly heard voices in your stateroom and—"

"Not in mine! You're daffy, Bess."

Bess shrugged her shoulders. "Oh, well! Never mind. Maybe it was somewhere else," she granted. "It's of no importance, anyway. I wonder what Captain Bunker's instructions will say?"

Harry shrugged his shoulders indifferently. "Search me," he replied.

In vain Bess made other remarks both to Harry and to the other passengers attempting to obtain some answer that would help her suspicions to settle. None of them disclosed anything, and it was not until the sun had crossed the meridian and Captain Bunker with his sextant under his arm passed by on his way to work out the noon observation and determine the position of the ship that she got her chance.

"Are we there, captain?" she demanded eagerly.

Captain Bunker shook his head. "Not yet," he said. "But it'll be soon. When I've worked out the observation I'll be able to tell you just how soon."

"Oh, isn't it thrilling, captain! You'll let Lord George and me open the instructions, won't you?" Bess glanced at the Englishman as she spoke.

Captain Bunker shook his head. "Can't do that, Miss Bess," he declared. "I'll have to do it myself, and I'll have to seek the seclusion that my cabin grants before I do it."

Bess turned to the Englishman. "You hear, Lord George?" she exclaimed. "He wants to keep all the mystery to himself."

Lord George nodded comfortably. "He jolly well better had keep it to himself," he declared. "Mr. Archman would court-martial him if he didn't. What!"

Bess drew a long breath. Clearly, she decided, Lord George was not especially interested in the instructions. "Well, I call it mean," she said. "Beware, captain, or when you come to open your instructions you'll find I've got ahead of you and read them first."

"Not you, miss—unless you wheedle the combination of my safe out of me," laughed the captain, as he vanished into the chart house.

Bess said nothing more. She had warned the captain in a way, without betraying the fact that she had received the note, which she more than ever believed was a hoax. A little later, when Captain Bunker announced that he would open the envelope at five o'clock that afternoon, she decided that nobody could possibly manage to steal the instructions out of a locked safe in less than four hours, and that, therefore, she would say nothing.

The tasks of the day had been finished and, the weather being good, there was little for the crew—except those in the engine room—to do. Of all on board, only Lord George was busy; he had borrowed a light rifle from Captain Bunker and was amusing himself by shooting at floating objects.

Eight bells struck. Bess sat up in her steamer chair, throwing back the light rug that covered her feet, and looked about her. As she did so, Lord George raised his rifle and fired at something directly aft. Bess rose and stared curiously across the taffrail.

"Gee! That looks exciting," she remarked casually.

Lord George looked up at her. "It's jolly good practice, you know," he said. "It's the shooting season at home now, and everybody there is popping away. It's lots of fun, it is really. Excuse me." He turned and sent a bullet at a shark's triangular fin that cut the water off the starboard quarter. The fin disappeared and he turned back to Bess. "I'm not much of a shot," he explained. "The best bag I ever made was sixty brace."

"Sixty brace! One hundred and twenty!"

Lord George did not answer. He swung his rifle up. Bess had just time to see that he was aiming at something that looked like a bottle with a small flag stuck into its neck, when the piece exploded and the bottle disappeared. "Good gracious!" she exclaimed. "Where did that bottle come from?"

"Bottle?" Lord George looked surprised. "Where is it?"

"It's at the bottom of the sea now," exclaimed Bess. "You blew it to pieces. Didn't you know what you were aiming at?"

Lord George's expression of surprise was obvious. "Really, you really, Miss Bess," he mumbled. "Are you sure it was a bottle?"

"Of course I'm sure. I've got eyes, haven't I? It looked like a message, too. It had a flag in it. Maybe it was a message from some poor shipwrecked mariner. And you've destroyed it. Good Lord!"

Lord George had fired again and at another bottle, which flew in fragments like the first.

Bess stared at the water. Then she stared at Lord George. But that gentleman kept his eye fixed on the water, either failing or refusing to meet her eyes. "Oh!" she breathed significantly.

The rudder chains leading along the rail began to rattle, and the wake of the El Rio began to change its direction. The sun, which had been on the girl's left, shifted behind her. For a moment Bess did not understand; then she realized that the El Rio had changed its course from south to west.

Now, why was Lord George breaking those bottles? and what will the captain's sealed orders say?

White Cedar in Japan

Japanese white cedar of the highest grade is considered sacred. All of the wood 18 inches and up in diameter is reserved for the building of temples, and the cheaper grades are disposed of like other woods. Especially fine pieces are reserved for the temples of the emperors. Only white cedar grown in Japan is used for building temples.

Most of the white cedar shipped to Japan is used for exposed beams on the inside of dwelling houses, where the wood is prized for its appearance and durability. One instance is known in which a Japanese paid $1,100 gold in this country for a choice beam 18 inches square and 20 feet long, with perfect diagonal grain.

Power Plant on Wheels

Every one thinks he knows all about the steam locomotive because it has been with us so long, but today we have a new locomotive, a power plant on wheels which has achieved an output in some cases of 135 pounds of steam an indicated horse-power hour, a record which puts the steam locomotive in the class of efficient noncondensing power plants. Locomotives are in service with power and flexibility enough to enable them to haul 10,000 tons at 18 miles an hour on level track, or to pull 4,500 tons on a ten-minute clearance ahead of a limited express, scheduled at 45 miles an hour for 90 miles without a stop.

HUSBAND SAID WHY NOT TRY IT
Wife Said She Would. Result, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong
East Hardwick, Vt.—"Last winter I was not able to do any work at all. I had backache, headache, side ache, and was sick all the time for six months. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and my husband said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' So I said I would, and he went and got me a dozen bottles. It has done me more good than I can ever tell, and my friends say, 'What have you done to yourself? You look so well.' I tell them it is the Vegetable Compound that makes me so well and strong. Opening Up Brazil

A new railway line which will open up country in the eastern part of the state of Piauhy, Brazil, which has hitherto been accessible only by primitive means of transportation, is soon to be constructed. This line will connect the town of Petrolina, in Pernambuco, with Therezina, the capital of the state of Piauhy, and when completed will enable travelers to go by rail from Bahia to San Luiz de Maranhao, a distance of more than 500 miles.

Causes of Earthquakes

What produces earthquakes is a problem not yet settled to the satisfaction of the scientist. Tremors of the earth may be caused by explosion of mines, falling in of caves, slipping of rock strata and many other movements of the earth, but these do not explain the great shocks satisfactorily. Earthquakes are likened with volcanic activity, but which of the two is cause and which effect is not known.

Poverty has one advantage over wealth. When a poor man is sick there is no desire on the part of the physician to prolong his illness.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Notice is hereby given, that default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative and the Assignee of the Mortgagee hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Isabelle N. Fitch, a widow, Mortgagor to Holt State Bank, a Minnesota corporation, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated August 24th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, A. D., 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 92 of Mortgages, on page 289;

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Holt State Bank, Holt, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Deposit Trust & Savings Bank of Winona, a Minnesota corporation, by written assignment dated August 31st, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota on the 23rd day of September, 1920, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 98 of Mortgages, on page 407;

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Trust & Savings Bank to H. R. Whomes by written assignment dated the 20th day of September, A. D., 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 21st day of May, 1924, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 286;

That the amount claimed to be due and which is due on said mortgage at the date hereof is $1200.00, with interest thereon from the 24th day of August, 1921, at the rate of six per cent per annum; that the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are situated in the County of Marshall and State of Minnesota and are described as follows, viz:

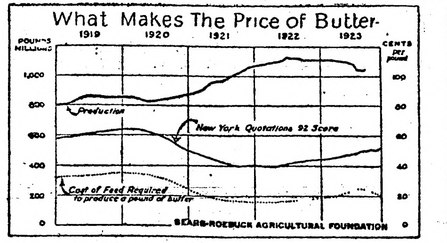
The Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼ SW¼) of Section Thirty-three (33), in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty-three (43) West of the Fifth P. M. less two acres in the Southwest corner of said parcel of land and a Lot 75 feet by 150 feet sold to Elisabet Sandberg.

That by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said described premises at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash by the Sheriff of said County of Marshall at the Front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County, on Tuesday, the 29th day of July, A. D., 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, together with the taxes then due and delinquent upon said described premises, with interest and penalties, and the costs of such foreclosure and Forty Dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage.

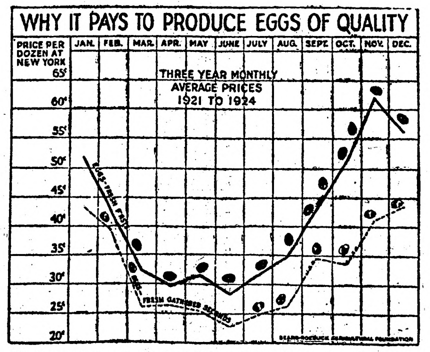
Dated June 7, 1924.

H. R. WHOMES,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

D. E. TAWNEY,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee,
Morgan Block,
Winona, Minnesota.



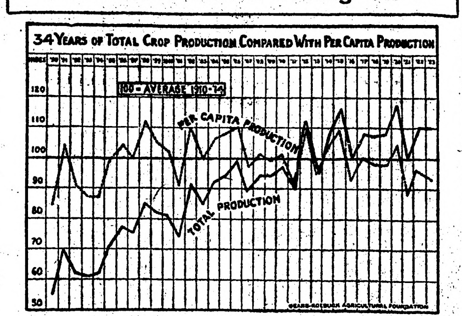
Evidently production, consumption and feed prices, all play an important part in regulating butter prices in a tariff-protected market like the United States. The cost of feed may regulate in the long run, but over periods of a few years it has little to do with the selling price of butter.



That everything with a shell on goes, isn't the rule any longer. On the market today, it still goes, but at a price below a first-class egg. Opportunity for the greatest success in egg production lies in producing an article that is better than the average, then selling it as such. It isn't hard to find a market willing to pay a premium of 6 to 7 cents a dozen over firsts and from 9 to 13 cents a dozen over seconds, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

The premium on fresh-gathered firsts at New York City during a three-year period over fresh-gathered seconds was substantial as shown by the accompanying chart. During February, March and April, when practically all eggs are good, the prices of extra firsts average only from 1 to 4 cents higher than for seconds. In May the spread begins to widen. In August the margin on extra firsts is around 9 cents. It continues to widen until in November, when the high peak is reached, with extras at 62 cents a dozen and seconds at 41 cents. It costs a little more and it takes a lot of extra effort to market high quality eggs. Yet the gain is ample return for the extra expense and labor.

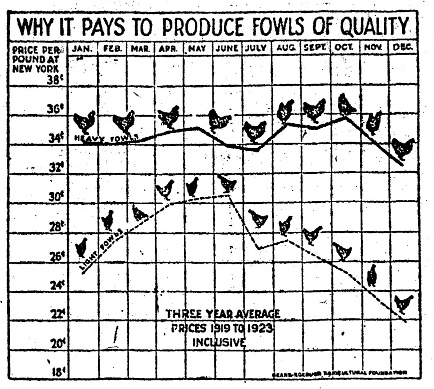
Farm Production Falling Off



Population is gaining on crop production, according to a study made over a period of thirty-four years by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, based on figures of the United States Department of Agriculture. The accompanying chart shows crop production per capita is falling.

Taking the average of 1910 as 100, total crop production in the last three years averaged 106.3. Owing to the growth of population, per capita production has been only 92.3 when 100 represents the 1910-1914 average.

The chart shows index numbers of both total and per capita production of crops from 1890 to 1923. The production record is based on the total yield of 10 crops—corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, potatoes, hay, tobacco and cotton, which include more than 95 per cent of the total acreage of all crops. Since yields are expressed in various units, bushels, bales, tons and pounds, the crops are combined by applying a constant average price to the yearly production of each crop.



It's the extra pound of flesh on the fowl that cheapens production costs and commands a premium price for the poultryman. According to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation the extra pound can be put on for from 5 to 7 cents, which increases the value of each pound to the consumer by making the entire carcass more plump and attractive, so it commands a fancy price over lighter birds. Heavy hens sell from 5 to 11 cents more than light hens. It's true all down the line—turkeys, ducks, capons, hens and young frys—the extra pound brings the extra dollar.

Over a period of three years the New York market shows heavy fresh-killed milk-fed fowls or hens weighing 5 pounds or over to average from 4 to 11 cents higher per pound than the light fowls weighing 3 pounds. The five-year average for the month of September shows the heavy fowls to average 9 cents over the light weight, the margin broadening during October and November, reaching its height in December, when the heavy fowls range to 11 cents a pound over the light weights.

The average weight of the ordinary fowl as it comes from the farm is 3½ to 4 pounds. The poultryman with the eye for business will add an extra pound or so and receive the top prices. The farmer who takes thin, underfleshed poultry to market is beating himself.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First—You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second—Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

Miss Bernice will remain for an extended visit. Their brother and wife left Monday on the return trip via Duluth, Hibbing and the twin cities.

Please send or bring us the news that no one knows but you.

Sad Death of Marius Holl

The sad news was received here Saturday evening of the death of Marius Holl at Devils Lake, N. D. His brother Arnold and Hjalmer Garfve left Sunday morning for Devils Lake and had the body shipped here for burial. They stated that the body had been found Friday night hanging from a railroad bridge near that city. The authorities seemed to think it a case of suicide and others think it a brutal murder. The evidence dont seem te be positive of either case.

Funeral services were held Thursday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Holl, Rev. Myhrer officiating, and the interment was made beside a brother and sister, in the Folden cemetery.

The News extends deepest sympathy to the heartbroken parents sister, brothers and other relatives of the deceased.

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington — Arrests by the police for prohibition law violations in Washington during the last fiscal year totaled 13,955, or 1,207 more than for the previous year, official reports said.

Washington—Appointment of Dr. Joseph H. Ward, Negro, of Indianapolis, as medical officer in charge of the United States Veterans hospital at Tuskegee, Ala., confirmed at the Veterans bureau, places the institution in charge of an entire Negro staff for the first time since its opening. Dr. Ward attained the rank of major, the highest commission gained by a Negro officer in the World war.

Domestic

New York—Erasmus Darwin Beach, 75 years old, intimate friend of Charles A. Dana, editor, poet and author, has died.

New York—Pietro Mascagni, Italian composer, will come to America this fall to direct six operatic performances, after an absence from the United States of 22 years.

New York—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is in no danger of a serious illness, it was said in answer to reports that he was in a critical condition.

Lakehurst, N. J.—Captain Anton Heinen, who piloted the dirigible Shenandoah when it was torn from its mooring mast in a storm, has severed his affiliation with the aeronautical department of the navy.

New York—Harry F. Sinclair put up a $5,000 bond before United States Commissioner Hitchcock to insure his appearance in Washington for trial for alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States government.

Kansas City—The bodies of two firemen and nine Negroes who lost their lives in the explosion and fire that razed a two story store and apartment building in the Negro district here had been recovered.

New York—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has so far recovered from the illness that has confined him to his hotel at Coney Island for a week, that he is able to go out for short walks.

New York—Former Governor Whitman of New York, in an address to the American Bar association, scored as lax and dilatory the trials of criminals in this country and asserted they are increasing at a higher rate than the general population.

New York—The raid by prohibition officers on the Hotel Ritz-Carlton and the seizure of liquor, the first of its kind in an important hotel, will be followed through as a test case, it was indicated by Palmer Canfield, prohibition director for New York.

Chicago—Clarence Darrow, chief of counsel for defense in the trial of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, on charge of having kidnaped and killed Robert Franks, declared that in his opinion three months will be required merely for the selection of a jury to hear the case.

New York—A cable dispatch received at the national headquarters of the Episcopal church announced that the municipal government of Tokio had given 150,000 yen, approximately $75,000, to the emergency fund of St. Luke's hospital, one of the missionary enterprises conducted by the church in the Japanese capital.

Detroit, Mich.—Detroit's municipally owned street railway system earned $40,254.52 in net income in June, a decrease of $21,884.92 compared with the corresponding month of 1923, according to the monthly statement of the department of street railways. Total operating revenue for the month was $1,704,779.68 and operating expense was $1,136,912.74.

Chicago — Several Chicago physicians recently have received letters threatening their lives unless they meet the demands of the writers for money, the police said. Two letters demanded that the physicians place $900 each in tomato cans to be deposited in an alley and were signed "Italy."

Mitchell Field, N. Y.—Flying the 238 miles from Washington in 90 minutes, Lieutenant Russell Maughan, dawn to dusk across continent air trail blazer, brought to Mitchell Field instructions from the secretary of war and the chief of the air service that he proceed at once by rail to Kelly Field, South San Antonio, Texas, to resume "routine duty with the service."

Chicago — Fifty thousand dollars is alleged by government officials to have changed hands to secure the disagreement of a federal jury in the case of Dean O'Bannion and Danny McCarthy, alleged Chicago "beer kings," charged with attempting to "hi-jack" a truck load of liquor being transported from the government warehouse to another.

El Paso, Texas—Adolfo De La Huerta, head of the late revolution in Mexico, was reported to be in the state of Sonora.

San Francisco—Darkness did not stop the air mail fliers, though there were none of the middle west's beacons and searchlights to help the homing pilot find his landing field. Claire K. Vance, who took the first plane east from here in the new day-night service, brought in the mail from Reno, having flown the entire last lap in darkness. His time was 1 hour 59 minutes one minute better than schedule.

Sports

New York—Agreement for a 12-round, no-decision contest between Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Benny Leonard of New York, world's lightweight title holder, to be held in Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on Thursday evening, August 21, were signed by the two principals and Tex Rickard, the promoter.

Paris—Eight new world and 13 new Olympic records were created by the unprecedented attack on time and distance during the Olympic track and field championship which have set a new standard of brilliance for future international stars to aim at. Seven records fell to the Americans, whose all around team strength enabled them to decisively conquer the individual excellence of Finland whose "two man team," the incomparable Nurmi and the iron man Ritola, accounted for four records. Australia and Great Britain gained one each.

Foreign

Rome — Captain Ricciotti Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian patriot, died here.

Amsterdam — Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator who plans to start on a world flight, intends to follow the route of Major Stuart MacLaren.

Adelaide, Australia — Vilhjalmur Steffensson, the Arctic explorer, has started on an expedition into central Australia. He is accompanied by the government geologist, W. K. Ward.

Kharkov, Russia—The entire administrative staff of the Radieyevaky group of mines in the Ukraine was placed on trial on charges of economic espionage.

London—The new American immigration regulations became effective to the distress of 75,000 British subjects who had bought steamship tickets, more than double the 34,000 quota for Great Britain and Ulster.

Copenhagen—Canada is working fast to reap the benefit of the new American immigration law. Several official messengers of the Canadian government have visited Denmark, working to obtain increased immigration to Canadian ports.

Berlin — Beginning in the autumn, German express trains will be equipped with combination radio and wireless telephones, enabling the sending of wireless messages, telephoning and the giving of radio concerts while trains are speeding on their way.

London—A rumor of the impending appointment of the Duke of York as governor of one of the British dominions is revived by the Daily Mail, which traces the report to visits which the duke made to Downing street and the colonial office.

Nome, Alaska — The United States coast guard cutter Bear, which has been held in Bering sea ice fields since early May, has arrived here. Officers of the ship state no suffering was experienced by anyone on board during the long tieup. Work of unloading 20 tons of overdue mail is under way.

London—The police of Singapore have detained the North German Lloyd steamer Schlesien and seized 50 cases of ammunition aboard marked "machinery for Tientsin," according to a Singapore dispatch to the Daily Mail. The police of Colombo confiscated a number of rifles on the Schlesien when the vessel was here recently.

Manila — Continuous rains for the last three days have flooded parts of Manila and the surrounding country. The water has reached a depth of two feet in some portions of this city and boats have been necessary to get to and from both residence and business houses. Street car service has been handicapped. Many roads near the city have been washed out.

Berlin—Without uttering a word, two men fought a duel with knives, resulting in the death of both. The victims were deaf mutes by the names of Herr Schumann and Tischler. The duel was fought in a saloon after the deaf mutes had ordered beer. The quarrel was caused by jealousy over a woman.

London—The insatiable craze of souvenir hunters is playing havoc with the costly exhibitions at the British Empire exhibition at Wembley. Visitors just can't make their hands behave, the police say, and hundreds of small articles most of them without value, are disappearing daily from the various pavilions despite the vigilance of the guards.

Berlin—Bath parties are all the go in Berlin just now. To economize on coal, all apartment house owners have stopped the daily supply of hot water, providing it only twice a month, or, in some of the more expensive houses, one day each week. As a consequence, neighbors have taken to the exchange of bathing privileges and have regular schedules.

Ceuta, Morocco — General Primo Rivera, president of the military directorate of Spain, who is here in connection with the Moroccan revolt, has indicated that he withdrew all of the Spanish peninsula troops from the fighting front, leaving only strong garrisons on the coast and at fortresses such as Melilla, Ceuta and Tecuan. It is said he plans to use volunteer troops as flying columns for the purpose of maintaining order and in punitive expeditions.

Toulouse, France—Mlle Foch, 82 years old, the eldest sister of Marshal Foch, died at the family mansion, Valentine, the department of Haute Garonne, where she had lived all her life.

London—According to present arrangements, the Prince of Wales will start on his Canadian tour Aug 28 sailing for New York on the steamer Berengaria. He will travel under the incognito of Lord Renfrew. It is now regarded here as settled that the prince will attend the polo matches to be conducted on the field of the Meadowbrook club in Long Island

LEOPOLD, LOED PLEAD GUITLY

Seek To Escape Sentence Of Death By Claiming Insanity

Chicago.—The fate of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, indicted for the kidnapping and murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks was rested Monday "in the mercy of the court," when the plea of not guilty was withdrawn and a plea of guilty substituted.

In entering the plea of guilty, Attorney Clarence Darrow said that the defense admitted the correctness of the facts, "substantially as printed in the newspapers."

He asked permisison of the court, however, "to offer evidence as to the mental condition of these young men and their degree of responsibility."

The defense was willing to submit the question of mentality to a joint conference of alienists employed by the state and the defense, but Robert Crowe, state's attorney, objected to this, saying:

"The state is in a position to show that these boys are not only guilty of the facts which they here admit, but that beyond any reasonable doubt they are sane and fully cognizant of the consequences of their acts."

The degree of punishment, which may vary from an indeterminate prison sentence, life sentence in the penitentiary, incarceration in an asylum, or death, will be determined after a hearing which started Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

STORM HITS S. E. CORNER

Most Damage in Sargent County—Wind Swept Northeast.

Fargo.—A wind and electrical storm which passed through Sargent and Richland counties in North Dakota, jumped to Becker county in Minnesota and then apparently went into the iron range country, did several thousand dollars worth of damage shortly after midnight Monday morning.

The most extensive damage in North Dakota was apparently done near Forman, where all lines of communication were broken. Over the one telephone line strung into the town Monday, it became known at Fargo that extensive damage was done in the town and near there.

At least a dozen barns near Forman were totally wrecked, several garages, stores, and residences were damaged to some degree, and the Thompson Yards lumber plant was scattered all over the town. Sargent county garage at Forman was practically demolished, the roof being taken off and carried two blocks by the terrific wind. Several hundred dollars damage was done to the Hurley general store. The Isaacson garage was almost totally wrecked.

Only one injury was reported, that of John Bowser, a farmer, whose arm was broken by flying debris.

Cogswell reported slight damage in that territory and Gwinner reported some wind and rain but not of storm proportions.

The damage to crops was not reported as serious in most sections, farmers at many points believing that much of the grain would come up again.

COMMITTEES PLAN CAMPAIGN

One Will Handle La Follette Campaign—Other in Charge of Finances.

Washington.—Organization of two committees which will play a vital part in the coming presidential campaign is engaging the attention of those who are directing the La Follette-Wheeler candidacies. One committee, to be composed of 11 members, will have general charge of the campaign, while the other will handle finances.

The campaign committee will have Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin as its chairman with headquarters in Chicago, where he now is directing campaign activities. Five members will be selected by Senators La Follette and Wheeler, and the others will represent the conference for progressive political action, which indorsed the candidacies of both.

The finance committee will be made up of two sections—one representing La Follette and Wheeler—the other the conference.

Indications are that Attorney General Ekern of Wisconsin will head the one section and that Alexander Kahn and Henry H. Rosenfelt of New York will be in charge of the other.

Those in charge of the campaign are generally of the opinion that at least $2,000,000 will be needed to finance all of the organization work and campaign activities and that the money should be raised through small voluntary contributions.

Minnesotan Hangs Self at Lake.

Devils Lake, N. D.—William Garfee, a farmer of near here, has identified the man who was found hanging on a wire noose from the Great Northern railroad viaduct here Saturday morning, as his cousin, Maurice Hall, 30, of Holt, Minn. Garfee last saw Hall a week ago when they returned by car from a visit to Holt, but he can give no reason for the suicide. Hall was in excellent spirits when last seen by his cousin. The body was taken to Holt, Minn., by a brother, Oswald Hall.

FAIR ATTENDANBE VERY GRATIFYING

60,000 Visitors to State Fair at Fargo Well Pleased With Exposition

Fargo, N. D.—North Dakota's best balanced fair, with scores of departments which were materially strengthened this year, closed Saturday night with an average attendance for the six days of 10,000 visitors or a total of about 60,000 paid admissions, as shown by a survey of the gate receipts. The crowd which entered the turnstiles on Thursday, or Fargo-Moorhead day, broke the record for the week with a paid attendance of 12,000 persons.

A 20 per cent increase in attendance over last year was the estimate by officials in charge of gate receipts.

Threatening weather decreased the number of visitors somewhat Friday, preventing a record of 50 per cent more attendance for the fair than last year, but officials expressed their satisfaction over results, confident that the aim to make the educational and recreational features a really great exposition had been achieved.

Livestock premiums were paid during the course of the afternoon, following a check up of the records and reports of judges, and other awards will be paid as soon as the books have been carefully surveyed. Rainy, misty weather Saturday morning put the track into good condition for the dirt track races and trials in which Sig Haugdahl, world's champion dirt track racer, broke the fair and North Dakota record.

The revue and other acts in front of the grandstand were performed in accordance with announcements. Exhibitors of livestock and other displays began to remove their entries in the evening, and the midway closed its engagement following a final burst of light and a final appeal by show talkers to the crowds seeking recreation.

AGREE ON GERMAN PLAN

Rights of All Countries Signatory to Versailles Treaty Preserved.

London.—The committee in sanctions of the inter-allied conference agreed unanimously Saturday on two important principles to govern the action of the allies in the event of possible default by Germany under the Dawes reparation, namely, to insure investors in the loan to Germany of priority on all German resources in event of such default, and to preserve the rights of the countries signatory to the Versailles treaty.

With this agreement, in the opinion of the American, British, and French delegates, a long step has been taken toward the success of the conference, upon which such high hopes have been raised for the economic restoration of Europe.

At the opening of the conference Wednesday, it was generally recognized that the proposed loan to Germany was the crux of the Dawes plan, and after only four days' deliberations it was possible for the committee to agree that in any contingency, including default and resultant sanctions, the holders of the loan should have priority claim to the assets of Germany. With this is coupled an agreement that the protocol to make the conference action effective shall reserve all the rights enjoyed at present by those countries which signed the treaty of Versailles.

IMBRIE TOOK LEAD, IS WORD

Every Effort Will Be Made to Track Slayers of American Vice Consul.

Washington.—Instructions were received by the Persian legation from its government Saturday to express to the Washington government its deepest regret over the killing of Vice Consul Robert Imbrie by a native mob at Teheran and to state that the Persian government will do "all in its power to fulfill its duties in this case."

The Persian government, it was added, is seeking "the guilty persons in the case and will take all possible steps to secure their punishment."

At the same time, the cable dispatch to the legation was said to indicate that the attack of Imbrie and his companion, Melin Seymour, was provoked by "their own carelessness in going to a sacred place and persisting in taking pictures."

The police and soldiers who went to their assistance, it was added, were attacked by the mob, three policemen being mortally wounded and a soldier dying a few hours later of injuries received.

Government officials said that while a thorough investigation would be made of the killing of Vice Consul Imbrie, there was as yet no disposition to attempt to fix responsibility for teh murder either on the Persian government or on Teheran authorities.

Greek Cabinet Falls

Athens.—The Greek cabinet, headed by Premier Papanastasion, which was formed in March, has fallen. A government crisis in Greece has been threatening since the early part of June, when General Condylis and M. Tsouderos, respectively minister of war, and finance, resigned. General Condylis accusing the government of encouraging communism. It was believed that other resignations would take place, and every effort was put forth by government leaders to avoid the resignation of the cabinet.

Sheep will be purchased between September 1 and October 15, and placed in the hands of farmers on a mortgaged basis.

Hibbing—Dropping from a car belonging to a summer tourist while the guests were getting "gas" or else chased into town by dogs, a large porcupine invaded the office of the Security garage here, while surprised attendants looked openmouthed. The "porky" was captured and presented to the park zoo. It is one of the largest seen in Hibbing.

St. Paul—Petitions were being circulated asking President Coolidge to pardon H. H. Bigelow, head of Brown & Bigelow. Mr. Bigelow, who pleaded guilty to falsifying income returns and was sentenced to two years at Leavenworth prison, is to begin his term November 1. The petitions declare that the welfare of hundreds of employees depends on his active direction of the company affairs.

Albert Lea—Two men, an airplane pilot and his passenger, escaped death when their machine crashed to earth seven miles south of this city. The plane, flying from Ricahr's Field, Kansas City, Mo., and piloted by George M. Dougherty, was bringing a Mr. Darvey from Kansas City to Minnesota on a hurried business trip. The machine fell in a slough on the Tom McGuire farm and was so damaged that it will require a week to put it in flying order.

Hibbing—Bears have recently been furnishing considerable diversion to farmers, road workers and cottagers about Sturgeon lake. At a camp of road workers the bears have been putting in an appearance about every evening at supper time. They have learned that much waste food is placed in garbage cans and do not seem to mind the presence of men if the latter do not get too close.

Rochester—Within a year, farming conditions in the northwest will be in the best shape since 1913 in spite of the hangover from the deflation period, according to Congressman Sydney Anderson, who is recuperating here from the effects of a goitre operation. Mr. Anderson will leave Rochester for a vacation in northern Minneosta before he commences organization work for the Millers' National Federation, of which he is president. He will commence active duties about Sept 1 with headquarters probably in Washington.

Slayton — According to Secretary Robert B. Forrest, final plans for the annual Murray county fair here, Sept. 4 and 5, are about complete. Among the entertainment features will be a baseball game between the All-Nation team and the Union Giants of Tennessee ranch

Coleraine — Reports have been received from the state club leader at St. Paul by County Agent A. H. Frick of the winning teams in demonstration club work for the northeast district of Minnesota. Itasca county is represented on this list by three winning teams, all from Coleraine.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF MRS. SPINK

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Minn. Junc., Wis.—"I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and I was run-down and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pains in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, thought it must be good, and brought it home to me and advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I was doing my own work, which I hadn't been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and a good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPINK, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 per cent. benefited. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Mormon "Boweries"

The first meeting places of the Mormons in Salt Lake City were called "boweries" and the "Old Bowery" was erected, 1847, on the site of the present temple. It was built of poles and brush 160 by 60 feet. Posts were set and a skeleton frame lashed with rawhide throngs and wooden pegs. Upon this structure willows, sagebrush, evergreens and other shrubs were piled. This served until 1852.

SYNOPSIS.—Thrown from his auto in a New York village, a man is carried unconscious into the home of a Miss Edith Grant. A doctor discovers he has been shot, fatally. Consciousness returning, he babbles of "millions." He begs that Henry Archman, millionaire resident of the vicinity, be sent for, declaring he has important papers for him. Archman cannot be reached by phone, but word is sent that his secretary is on the way. A man announcing himself as Archman's secretary, Akin, arrives, talks with Morbach, and leaves with a package he gives him. Morbach dies. Archman's arrival, with his secretary, reveals that the man posing as Akin is an impostor. Archman denounces Edith Grant as a girl endeavoring to snare his son Harry. Archman, it appears, his millions made in Chicago, has yielded to the importunities of his family—his wife, daughters Nellie and Bessie (seventeen years old), and son Harry—and moved to New York in an endeavor to gain recognition by the Four Hundred. They have not succeeded. Mrs. Archman is bitter over her failure, particularly mourning the fact that she has not been "taken up" by a Mrs. Van Kull. Archman orders Nellie to get ready for a long journey with him. He refuses to reveal their destination to his wife, declaring it is "not his secret." Nellie tells Bess she is in love with James Carr, a youth working on Archman's ship, El Rio. She gives Bess a message for him. Archman and Nellie depart. Harry tells Bess of his determination to marry Edith Grant. Mrs. Archman receives a map, with the explanation that it was among Morbach's papers, and suggesting she forward it to Mr. Archman. Lord George Caruthers, traveling Englishman, arrives at the Archman home, by invitation. He makes a good impression. Bess meets Carr and tells him her sister's message. She learns from him that "Edith Grant" is his sister. He says he loves Nellie. Mrs. Archman takes Bess and Harry and Caruthers and sails with Captain Bunker on the El Rio to meet her husband. A Miss Denslow, engaged as governess for Bess, and Akin, sail with the party. Captain Bunker has sealed orders. Miss Denslow and Caruthers, it appears, have met before. They decide to keep it a secret. Bess finds a note urging her to warn Captain Bunker to guard his instructions. She thinks it a joke, but playfully warns the captain she will see them before he does.

Bess glanced up at the bridge where Captain Bunker's form was outlined against the sunset. Then she turned back to Lord George, as if to speak.

But the Englishman anticipated her. "That really was a bottle now!" he cried. "It was, 'pon my word. Did you see it?"

"Yes; I saw it." Bess spoke shortly. Her vague suspicions suddenly flattened.

"Jolly good shot. What?"

"Yes; it was a good shot. Where do you suppose those bottles came from?"

"Where? Oh, I fancy somebody tossed them overboard up forward somewhere. Er—Captain Bunker must have opened his instructions. What?"

Bess started. Undoubtedly that was the explanation of the change, of course. "I'll go see!" she cried, and raced forward.

Captain Bunker was on the bridge. If he saw Bess ascending the ladder to his perch, he showed no signs of his perception. His broad back and indeed his whole attitude was repellent. Almost Bess hesitated.

Almost, but not quite. Curiosity drove her on. "Captain!" she said timidly.

Captain Bunker turned. His face was forbidding. "Miss Archman," he said coldly, "can I do anything for you?" Suppressed anger thrilled in his tones.

Bess faltered. "No—nothing," she stammered. "I only wanted to ask whether you had opened the instructions yet?" She tried to make her tones light, but failed lamentably. What could be the matter? she wondered.

"Yes; I have opened them." Captain Bunker's face grew grimmer. Abruptly he turned upon the girl. "Miss Archman," he said, "when you threatened to see those instructions before I did, I thought you were joking. I did not dream that you would attempt to carry out so dishonorable a threat, or that you could succeed even if you did attempt it."

"Why! I—I—I Good gracious! I was joking, of course." Bess' face lengthened with dismay. "How dare you speak this way to me?" she burst out.

"I fancy you know why." Bitterness rang in Captain Bunker's tones. "I do not know how you got into my safe, Miss Archman," he said. "True it was old fashioned. But I compliment you on your extraordinary skill in opening it. But I cannot compliment you on your respect for your father's wishes or on your carefulness in hiding your tracks." The captain plunged his hand into his pocket and drew out a bit of cambric. "Permit me to return your handkerchief, Miss Archman," he said. "You left it in the broken drawer in the safe."

Bess took the handkerchief. Her lips had grown quite white. Silently she scanned it, identifying it by the mark in the corner. Then she lifted her eyes to Captain Bunker. "This is my handkerchief, Captain Bunker," she said. She was very young and her heart was beating furiously, but she spoke with dignity. "It is mine," she repeated, "but I have no idea how it got into your safe. Certainly I did not leave it there. I did not open your safe. I didn't even see your safe. I never dreamed of violating my father's wishes. I had reason to believe that some one else might try to get at those instructions and I tried to warn you. I seem to have failed."

"Good heavens!" Captain Bunker stared. "But—but—the handkerchief!" he protested.

"Whoever broke in evidently left it there accidentally or in order to make you suspect me. Plainly, he succeeded."

Captain Bunker ignored the innuendo. "But," he protested again, "you suspected that—What do you mean? Whom did you suspect?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know whom you suspected?"

"No; I don't. Some one—I don't know who—left a note in my stateroom asking me to warn you to be careful, that an attempt might be made to get at the papers. I thought is was a hoax, but I warned you nevertheless. But my warning failed."

"But who wrote the note?"

"I don't know. I found it on the dresser in my stateroom."

"But who left it there? You must have some suspicion."

Bess shook her head. "I haven't an idea," she said. "At first I thought it might be Harry trying to play a joke on me. Now I don't know what to think."

"But you must think! Listen to me. I opened the safe this afternoon. I unlocked the inner drawer and looked at the packet. It was secure, just as it was when I put it there three days ago. I locked it up again. I locked the safe. I will swear to it. Half an hour ago I opened it again. The lock of the inner drawer was broken. The packet had been opened and sealed up again neatly. Your handkerchief lay beneath it. If it had not been for the broken lock, I might not have noticed that the safe had been entered and might not have thought anything of your handkerchief being there. But the lock spoke for itself. I opened the envelope and read the instructions. They were explicit. They ordered me to go to a certain island. They warned me that I should probably be followed by one or more ships. They told me to evade them at all hazards—that it was a matter of life and death. Life and death, you understand. And here—here—I've simply got to find out who's on board spying for them, before it is too late. And you've got to help me. Consider a moment. Who could have gotten into your stateroom? Did you leave it locked?"

"Lord George Has Been Sitting at the Stern All Afternoon, Breaking Them With Rifle Bullets."

"No."

"Then anybody who could have come aft could have gone in. We may take it that it wasn't your or your mother or your brother. How about Miss Denslow?"

"Miss Denslow!" Bess cried out the word. "Oh, it couldn't have been Miss Denslow! We haven't known her very long, but she came to us from Miss Van Kull. Of course, it couldn't have been she."

"Humph!" Captain Bunker seemed only half satisfied. "I'm glad Miss Denslow seems a very pleasant lady and I'd hate to think her guilty of such treachery. How about Lord George? I suppose he is a genuine nobleman?"

"Genuine! Good gracious! Mother would have a duck fit if he wasn't. She met him—Oh, of course. What was I thinking about! The British ambassador introduced him to Mrs. Paxton, and Mrs. Paxton introduced him to mother."

"How about your maid?"

"We've had her for years and years. Besides, I know her writing, and this wasn't a bit like it."

"That settles the passengers." Captain Bunker tugged at his beard. "I've had my officers for years, and can trust them. That leaves only the crew. Only the steward is allowed aft. He's new to me. Have you noticed him?"

Bess nodded. "Yes," she said. "That is, I've noticed him casually. He looks rather above a steward's place. But—"

"I guess he's the thief. I'll attend to him, all right." Captain Bunker's jaws set themselves grimly. "But I'm afraid it's too late to stop him from sending word to his employers!"

"His employers?"

"Yes. Of course, he's not working for himself. He's working for the people who murdered that man Morbach and who stole the map. When they found that it didn't tell where the island was, they sent it to your mother and then managed to follow her. There isn't a doubt of it. And—and—"

Captain Bunker turned on his heel and pointed toward the northern horizon, now dark with the shadows of coming night. "Look," he said. "Probably you can't see it, but that smoke yonder comes from a boat that has been hanging on my heels ever since we left New York. It is swift, amazingly swift, and silent, amazingly silent. It comes without lights. But once in so often a flash of sparks from its funnel betrays its presence. It's following us, trying to find out where we are going. And some scoundrelly spy on board of us is helping it. And—and"—Captain Bunker choked—"no doubt he's sent the information long ago."

Bess' face wrinkled with perplexity. "But how could he send it?" she questioned.

"Probably in a bottle with a flag and with its cork rubbed with phosphorus. If he tossed enough of them overboard his masters would find one."

Bess' face cleared. "Don't worry about bottles, captain," she said consolingly. "Lord George has been sitting at the stern all afternoon, breaking them with rifle bullets."

CHAPTER IX

From the Taffrail.

Dark fore and aft except for the tiny sheltered light that illumined the compass, the El Rio steamed along southward. Captain Bunker was violating the most stringent rules of the sea, and was running no slight risk in his efforts to throw his pursuer off the track.

Until the swift-paced tropic night descended, he had continued his westward course, knowing full well that his change of direction must have been betrayed by the vessel's smoke. Then, when darkness had screened his movements, he put out his lights and sped eight or ten miles southward; then turned and ran eastward for twenty miles or more; then veered to the southeast and ran on through the night.

Whether he had thrown his pursuer off the track, he did not know. Once or twice he stopped his engines and listened, silently and intently, without hearing any measured propeller beat behind him. This, of course, was not conclusive, but it was encouraging.

About midnight he stopped again—this time for longer than before. Orders for silence fore and aft were passed quietly through the ship, and the low hum from fo'castle and from poop died away. For a time the hissing of the water along the sides continued, then it ended as the El Rio lost way. For perhaps five minutes the ship lay quiescent; then, abruptly, the screw began to revolve. The El Rio was off once more.

Captain Bunker had been occupied not only by his efforts to throw the supposed pursuer off the track, but also by an attempt to discover the spy who had robbed the safe. This proved to be extremely difficult. Every one on board who might reasonably have been suspected of committing the robbery seemed to be above suspicion, and were able to prove a perfect alibi, into the bargain.

Very speedily the captain demonstrated to his own dissatisfaction that the steward, James Price, whom he had first suspected, had been forward with the men during the entire time available for the robbery.

Evidently there is a spy on board. Who is it? And what ship is following the El Rio?

First Divorce Court

The first divorce court in England was instituted in 1858. The court consisted of three judges. At the first sitting five marriages were dissolved, and in the first year of the court's operation 38 divorces were granted out of 288 petitions. From the time of the Reformation up to 1858 there had been but 317 divorces in England, granted by acts of parliament. Until the passing of the divorce act in 1858 the theory in English law regarding divorce was the same as that of the Roman Catholic church, although in practice this rule was not strictly adhered to, and wealthy and influential persons, through parliament, secured freedom from galling ties. The divorce act provided that the wronged husband could be released from his obligation to an unfaithful wife, but gave no such recourse to an injured wife, unless the husband's offense in this direction was aggravated by other offenses.

PROFESSIONAL NURSE SAYS TANLAC HAS NO EQUAL

By reason of the fact that she speaks from her long experience as a professional nurse, the statement of Mrs. J. Clark of 415 Walsworth avenue, Oakland, Calif., will be of interest to all who are in need of an upbuilding tonic.

"In all my fifteen years' experience as a trained nurse," says Mrs. Clark's statement, "I never found the equal of Tanlac as a stomach medicine and tonic. Two years ago an attack of influenza left me without appetite and my stomach in such a bad fix that the little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good.

"Stomach pains would make me so weak I would feel right faint. The least exertion would completely exhaust me and six months before taking Tanlac I was so weak I had to hire my housework done. I was in bed most of the time for two months and was getting desperate.

"Tanlac was more than a match for my troubles and eight bottles left me feeling fine. I eat and sleep like a child and have energy and strength that makes life a pleasure. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Reminders of Past Glory

A naval officer staying in the old inn, Lord Nelson, situated on the quay at Poole, England, recently discovered some curious scratchings on the wainscot of his room. Investigation revealed these to be plans of naval battles drawn by Lord Nelson, who stayed in that inn with Lady Hamilton. Other marks and scratchings have been identified as dating back to the days of the seadogs of the Elizabethan age.

The Iron Gate

The Iron gate is near Orsova just below the place where the Danube river crosses the Hungarian boundary into Yugo-Slavia. It is a narrow pass in the Transylvania Alps and formerly obstructed navigation in the Danube. But in 1890 Hungary undertook to remove these obstructions by a long series of great blasting operations. Since this work was completed the stream has been navigable through the Iron gate, but the current is rapid and dangerous. This celebrated gap is about two miles long.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a power of sale, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative, and the assignee of the mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Torger Nilson Borgen, a single man, Mortgagor, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated January 19th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 17,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Carl W. Mason, by written assignment dated February 17, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 303.

And whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of One Hundred Two and 17-100 Dollars ($102.17); and whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars, ($450.00), with accumulated interest from the 10th day of January, 1922, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid as aforesaid; with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 9th day of September, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees stipulated as attorney's fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 18, 1924.

CARL W. MASON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

"LET THEM ALONE!"

POPULARITY OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE

Test Shows Small Country Banks as Well as City Banks Strongly Favorable.

Assertions by some politicians that small banks generally are inimical to the Federal Reserve System were put to the test recently by a committee appointed by John D. Phillips, president of the State Bank Division of the American Bankers' Association by means of a questionnaire sent to 11,000 state banks. The result indicated that an overwhelming majority of them are, in fact, friendly to the System.

Two questions were put to the banks. The first was as follows:

"Do you believe that the Federal Reserve System has been beneficial to the agricultural, commercial and banking interests of the country and that it should be perpetuated?"

To this 4,934 replies were received. Of these 4,024 voted "yes" without qualification, and only 61 voted "no." Further answers still coming in when this tabulation was made indicated the same favorable trend.

The second question asked by Mr. Phillips' committee was:

"If your not being a member should contribute to the destruction of the System, would you join?"

While the great majority of the state banks are not members of the System, largely for technical reasons, the answers showed that the bulk of those non-members who are eligible to join would do so if such action were necessary to save the System. To his second question 2,376 have been recorded as voting "yes" and only 725 as "no." Many refrained from voting on this question because under the present rules they are ineligible for membership.

Some replies voiced certain criticisms of the System, but these universally dealt with details of administration or of the rules and not with the principles of the institution.

RECONSTRUCTION

A man came into a Nebraska bank in the spring of 1922 and asked for financial assistance. His statement prepared in the Service Department showed he was about bankrupt; that he owed $1,200 more than his equipment was worth. He had a farm rented for the year. Further credit had been refused him in his own bank and he was about ready to quit and apply the proceeds from the sale of his equipment to his debts.

The bank's Service Man went with him to his farm and after an examination decided that if the farmer had a half dozen cows and ten brood sows he would probably be able to use his pasture and intended corn crop to advantage. The bank finally loaned him $1,200 for this purpose and took a chattel mortgage on the stock purchased as its security. The bank admitted that ordinarily a loan should not be made like that, but the farm was close to town and the stock could readily be resold.

When the end of the year came around the exact records showed that the family had been well maintained and on half of the cream checks; the other half had been applied on his $660 note at the bank, covering the loan for the cows. Five days before the year was up the principal and interest on the note were entirely paid by crea mchecks. The pigs afforded a net gain of $1,400 after all expenses were paid.

In addition to this financial gain, the farmer was taught the value of a good cow and the necessity of keeping a record of his operations to know which farm operations are profitable. The Farm Service Department of the bank was able to teach this man things he had never dreamed about. It is worth the effort the banks would be called upon to make if each bank could but turn one broken, discouraged farmer into a prosperous one.—Banker-Farmer.

What Do the Bankers Mean, "Eighteen Billion Dollars in the Savings Bank"?

By JOHN OAKWOOD

The bankers keep telling us that the savings accounts of the American people total eighteen billion dollars. I asked a dozen people what that meant to them. Most of them seemed to see visions of endless stacks of coins and bales of currency stowed away in the vaults of fine looking granite bank buildings.

• • •

Now, as a matter of fact, there is less than nine billion dollars' worth of money in the country all told, including gold, silver, nickel and paper money of all kinds. That is less than half the eighteen billion. Therefore there must be something wrong with the vision of eighteen billion dollars in stacks and bales in the bank vaults. More than that, there probably is not more than one dollar for every twenty of that eighteen billion actually in the savings bank.

• • •

But the eighteen billion in savings bank is no myth just the same. Suppose all the savings depositors could demand all their money all at once, and that they insisted on immediate settlement one way or another when they found they could not get it all in cash. What would happen would be that they would come into possession chiefly of bonds—Government, state and municipal bonds and the best railroad, equipment, public utility and other corporation bonds. The savings depositors are really the owners of all this vast real wealth.

• • •

What the bankers really mean, therefore, is that the savings depositors, so far as money is concerned, have deposited eighteen billion dollars more than they have drawn out and therefore have credit for that much in their savings accounts. The dollars, themselves, that they handed in, have flowed right on through the banks—have been sent out to buy the bonds. That is, the money deposits have been used in behalf of the depositors to buy the safest forms of investments. When a man buys a bond, he really rents his money out—puts it to work to earn him more money. The savings banks have done this for their depositors.

• • •

So the picture of idle piles of money is all wrong. Even a picture of piles of bonds is wrong if it stops at that. The bonds represent two things. First, since they are readily saleable for cash, they mean that any individual can get his savings out again in the form of money within a reasonable time. Secondly, and more important, behind those bonds loom up the railroads, factories, businesses and public works that the money invested in them set going for the benefit of everyone, including the depositors themselves. Saving, therefore, is not merely accumulating money—it is accumulating real wealth. The money flows on like water to turn other wheels—the real wealth and savings of the country are the accumulated factories and other enterprises evidenced by the bonds.

• • •

Therefore the true picture of what the bankers mean when they say the savings accounts of the American people total eighteen billion dollars, instead of piles of money in vaults, would be factories, railroads and public works in action.

Stimulating Club Work

The Arizona Bankers Association added a stimulant to boys' and girls' club work when it voted to offer a scholarship of $150 for the year 1924-25 to the high school graduate having the best record. The association annually provides traveling expenses for the club champions to attend Farm and Home Week at the State College of Agriculture.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery
Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

Both candidates for U. S. Senator will speak at the Roseau County Fair next week. Magnus Johnson speaks Tuesday afternoon and Thos. Schall on Wednesday afternoon.

The hay crop is short this year, so we hope the farmers will stack and save every bit of straw and all the corn fodder they possibly can, so as to be able to keep their cows over winter.

S. G. Svenkeson returned Wednesday from Bartin where he has been running a saw mill for several months. He had the misfortune a couple of weeks ago of loosing his shingle mill by fire.

For Sale: the Oscar Hanson farm, consisting of 160 acres, near Holt, for $4000.00, on the amortized payment plan. First instalment of $140.00 cash and a like amount every six months. Inquire at Marshall County State Bank or write direct to Luck Land Company, Waubun, Minn.

We hope our farmer friends will not get discouraged about raising corn on account of this years experience. There will be some fodder anyway, and a good clean corn field this year will be a fine place for any kind of small grain next year. Then too, cultivating corn is just as good, or better, than summer fallowing.

The Minnesota Potato Growers Exchange will pay members for storing potatoes on their farm and make an allowance for shrinkage. The Exchange will allow a member 3 cents a bushel for putting potatoes into storage and taking them out, to which will be added a cent a bushel for each month or fraction thereof the potatoes remain on the farm. It will be possible for a member to get a bonus of 9 cents a bushel if potatoes are stored until the spring.

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Weel: Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington — Arrests by the police for prohibition law violations in Washington during the last fiscal year totaled 13,955, or 1,207 more than for the previous year, official reports said.

Washington—Navy ships designated to safeguard the passage of the army world fliers from Europe to the Labrador coast will be in position by August 1, ready to render assistance in any emergency. The departure of the fliers from England before that date is not expected here, despite reports to the contrary. Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight, has been informed that the ultimate success of the world flight is to be the first and foremost consideration and that speed is a secondary object.

Domestic

Hammond, Ind.—Three men were shot to death here following a quarrel. William Harder, Negro, said to have done the shooting, escaped.

Brawley, Calif.—Slight earthquakes, which have been a daily occurrence here, shook Imperial valley. Both quakes were accompanied by rumblings. No damage was reported.

Evansville, Ind.—Loss caused by fire to the Sterling Products Company warehouse may exceed the $650,000 mark, and first estimates of $1,000,000 may be reached when a final check is made.

Jackson, Tenn.—Two young women, Lou Black and Vesta Morris, were drowned when the automobile in which they were riding with two young men, plunged from a bridge into a canal in a severe electrical and rainstorm.

Albany, Ind.—Trapped in a bedroom by fire resulting from the explosion of a coal oil stove, three children of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Batt, burned to death at their farm house two miles south of here.

Laramie, Wyo.—A forest fire of considerable size is reported at Lake Owen, on the Laramie, North Park & Western railroad, 42 miles west of Laramie. Men are being sent to the scene of the fire.

New York—K. Alexander Miller, a playwright, shot and killed himself in his home here. He was the son of Louis E. Miller, editor of a Jewish newspaper, and Dr. Helen A. Miller, a prominent woman physician.

New York—Former Governor Whitman of New York, in an address to the American Bar association, scored as lax and dilatory the trials of criminals in this country and asserted they are increasing at a higher rate than the general population.

New York—The raid by prohibition officers on the Hotel Ritz-Carlton and the seizure of liquor, the first of its kind in an important hotel, will be followed through as a test case, it was indicated by Palmer Canfield, prohibition director for New York.

Clarion, Pa.—Clarion county assessors usually list men of advanced age as "invalids," but when William Kratzor of St. Petersburg, 101 years old, was granted a fishing license, the assessor decided a change in the man's status was necessary. Kratzor is now listed as a "retired gentleman."

New York—The Leviathan arrived with a large passenger list, including the Duke and Duchess of Richelieu and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks. Doug and Mary returned from a four months tour which took them to most of the countries of Europe, where they were several times received by royalty.

New York—Sir Herbert Ames, financial director of the League of Nations, who has been spending a two months vacation fishing in Canada, has sailed for Europe, announcing that the forthcoming meeting of the league in Geneva in September would perhaps be the most important it has ever conducted. He said Premiers MacDonald, Herriot and Mussolini were expected to attend.

New York—Supreme Court Justice Burr denied a motion of Eamonn de Valera and Stephen O'Mara, as trustees of $2,500,000 received from the sale of Irish republican bonds, for an order enjoining the Irish Free State from proceeding with the trial of a suit for that amount before the high court of justice in Ireland. "This court has no power to restrain the high court of justice in Ireland," Justice Burr said.

New York—Lengthening of the building season in the United States to include the winter months was advocated by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in commenting on the report of the committee on seasonal operations in construction industries, appointed by him as an outgrowth of the president's conference on unemployment in 1921. The secretary said such a move would stabilize employment and lower the costs of construction.

El Paso, Texas—Adolfo De La Huerta, head of the late revolution in Mexico, was reported to be in the state of Sonora.

San Francisco—Darkness did not stop the air mail fliers, though there were none of the middle west's beacons and searchlights to help the homing pilot find his landing field. Claire K. Vance, who took the first plane east from here in the new day-night service, brought in the mail from Reno, having flown the entire last lap in darkness. His time was 1 hour 59 minutes one minute better than schedule.

Chicago—Clarence Darrow, chief of counsel for defense in the trial of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, on charge of having kidnaped and killed Robert Franks, declared that in his opinion three months will be required merely for the selection of a jury to hear the case.

Sports

New York—Agreement for a 12-round, no-decision contest between Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Benny Leonard of New York, world's lightweight title holder, to be held in Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on Thursday evening, August 21, were signed by the two principals and Tex Rickard, the promoter.

Paris—Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, U. S. A., defeated Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet, the French pair, in the finals of the men's doubles on the Olympic courts, insuring the United States a clean sweep in all the Olympic tennis. Brugnon and Cochet won the first set 6-4, and the American pair evened matters by taking the second 6-2. Richards and Hunter then took the third set 6-3, but dropped the fourth 2-6. The final set went to the United States 6-3.

Foreign

Rome — Captain Ricciotti Garibaldi, grandson of the Italian patriot, died here.

Amsterdam — Major Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator who plans to start on a world flight, intends to follow the route of Major Stuart MacLaren.

Adelaide, Australia — Vilhjalmur Steffensson, the Arctic explorer, has started on an expedition into central Australia. He is accompanied by the government geologist, W. K. Ward.

Kharkov, Russia—The entire administrative staff of the Radleyevaky group of mines in the Ukraine was placed on trial on charges of economic espionage.

London—The new American immigration regulations became effective to the distress of 75,000 British subjects who had bought steamship tickets, more than double the 34,000 quota for Great Britain and Ulster.

Tokio—A budget of $24,240,000 has been drawn up for the reconstruction of the Imperial University of Tokio. The buildings were largely destroyed by the earthquake and fire of Sept. 1.

Beirut—Parties of Christians still are being expelled from Turkey. Since Feb. 15, 2,568 Christians have arrived in Syria from the district of Urfa, all of whom were destitute.

Berlin—Martin Luther's handwriting commanded a higher price even than autographs by Goethe and Schiller at an auction of autographs here. A letter addressed to the Elector John of Saxony brought 9,100 marks.

Compeigne, France—Miss Anne Morgan and Mrs. A. M. Dike have concluded the work of the American Committee for Devastated France by handing over the Chateau Blerancourt, which was assigned to them as headquarters.

Honolulu—Lava began flowing in the crater of Halemaumau for the first time since the severe eruptions of May. Lava fountains, including Old Faithful, began shooting their geysers from 50 to 200 feet high over a radius of several acres. Reflections from these displays have been visible for miles.

Nome, Alaska — The United States coast guard cutter Bear, which has been held in Bering sea ice fields since early May, has arrived here. Officers of the ship state no suffering was experienced by anyone on board during the long tieup. Work of unloading 20 tons of overdue mail is under way.

Metz—Ten Catholics were wounded, four of them seriously, when a band of communists broke up a Catholic demonstration directed against Premier Herriot. About 100 Catholics were seated in a cafe where the demonstration was scheduled, when a band of 30 communists entered the hall and started a violent fight.

Paris—William G. McAdoo, finding none of the French political leaders that he wished to see in Paris, said he intends to cut short his stay here, probably motoring to Biarritz with his daughter. He said that he had intended to arrange talks with Premier Herriot, M. Clemental, the financial minister, and others, but all now are in London.

Copenhagen—Civilization is blamed for the increase of cancer by Dr. Mikkel Hindhede, Danish nutrition expert, in a report on the diseases which he has just made public. He points out that the non-cultured races and aborigines do not contract cancer of the digestive organs until they become acquainted with civilization's fleshpots. Dr. Hindhede believes that cancer is due chiefly to overeating of rich food.

London—So seldom is a baby born on one of London's subway trains that the christening recently of Thelma Ursula Beatrice Eleanor (whose initials spell tube, the English equivalent for subway) was an affair which attracted the attention of Lord Ashfield, head of the subway system. Upon learning of the baby's birth on one of the underground trains, Lord Ashfield requested that he be permitted to act as godfather, and at the time of the christening he presented her with a silver cup.

Toulouse, France—Mlle. Foch, 82 years old, the eldest sister of Marshal Foch, died at the family mansion, Valentine, the department of Haute Garonne, where she had lived all her life.

London—According to present arrangements, the Prince of Wales will start on his Canadian tour Aug. 28, sailing for New York on the steamer Berengaria. He will travel under the incognito of Lord Renfrew. It is now regarded here as settled that the prince will attend the polo matches to be conducted on the field of the Meadowbrook club in Long Island

ENDS TESTIMONY AGAINST KILLERS

Leopold and Loeb Ara Taking More Interest In Trial

Chicago. — Beginning the second week of the trial of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for the kidnaping and slaying of 14-year-old Robert Franks, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, called handwriting experts in furtherance of what he has termed his "perfect hanging case."

John Tyrell, of Milwaukee, a handwriting expert, with a record of appearances in that capacity at more than 200 important trials, identified the original ransom letter which demanded $10,000 from Jacob M. Franks, father of the slain boy, and another letter left in a parlor car for Mr. Franks, as having been written on an Underwood portable typewriter, a battered Underwood fished from a Jackson Park lagoon where, according to their confession, Loeb and Leopold had tossed it previously, had been introduced in evidence.

Leopold and Loeb strained forward to catch a sight of the typewriter specimens which had guided Mr. Tyrell in his determinations and which had been passed to defense counsel. They exchanged a few smiling confidences over these.

As Mr. Tyrell waded through the exhibits with his professional explanations and reasons for conclusions reached, Attorney Darrow of defense counsel, to save time informed Judge Caverly that the defense was satisfied with the identifications and Judge Caverly permitted waiving of precise identifications and explanations.

Exhibits in the case reached 114 at this stage.

MERGE TO SAVE DEPOSITORS

Embarrassed Northern National Is Sold to Security Bank.

Fargo.—Sale of the assets of the Northern National bank to the Security National bank, and assumption by the latter institution of the deposit liabilities to the Federal Reserve bank, worked out during a series of almost continuous sessions of the Fargo Clearing House association that began last Friday at 7:30 p. m., has saved what for a time appeared to be a dangerous banking situation in Fargo.

Called in late last Friday by the directors of the Northern National bank, who disclosed to the members of the Fargo Clearing House association an apparent default of approximately $50,000 in their bank's accounts, the Clearing House association effected not only the sale of the Northern National bank's assets to the Security National, but they brought into being also a new banking affiliation under which the Northern Trust company becomes affiliated with the Security National.

The apparent default was taken care of Sunday on the voluntary return to the city of H. P. Beckwith, president of the Northern National bank, the actual amount involved in the settlement being $49,500. Mr. Beckwith had been absent from Fargo since July 17. Early Saturday he advised directors of the Northern National by telephone that he would return to Fargo Sunday, and through conferences he had Sunday with national bank examiners, in which all of the affairs of the Northern National were checked, the amount of the settlement was arrived at and was paid. Louis Beckwith of Mitchell, S. D., father of H. P. Beckwith, who arrived in Fargo Saturday night, was also a party to the settlement, made with a view to insuring depositors in the Northern National against loss.

N. D. GIRL JUMPS FROM TRAIN

Davenport Young Woman Is in Hospital After 17-Hour Search.

Fargo.—Vivian Solberg of Davenport, N. D., is in the hospital ward of the Cass county jail after she jumped from a window of train No. 30, Great Northern, about 10:45 Saturday night, roamed about the fields during an electrical rainstorm and walked into Kelso, seven miles south of Hillsboro, about 3:30 p. m. Sunday.

She was being brought to Fargo from Grand Forks by a deputy from the Cass county sheriff's office to answer to a charge of grand larceny, and jumped from the window of the woman's retiring room while the train was traveling not less than 45 miles an hour, the deputy said.

The girl is about 23 years of age, and when arrested by the police at Grand Forks was employed by the Con T. Kennedy shows, stationed at the Grand Forks fair. She had joined the shows at Valley City the week before the company came to the state fair, according to members of the sheriff's force.

Sao Paulo Falls Before Federals.

Buenos Aires.—The Rio Janeiro correspondent of La Nacion reports that the Brazilian government organ has posted a placard in front of its offices in Rio declaring that the Sao Paulo revolutionists abandoned the city early Monday morning and fled toward the interior, leaving the entire city of Sao Paulo in the hands of the government. The placard declared the revolutionists abandoned the city after strong pressure by the legal forces and fled toward the interior with two reduced columns in special trains.

SALES BODY HAS STARTED WORK

Directing Personnel of Grain Marketing Co. Announced; Operations Cooperative

Chicago.—Millard R. Myers, of Chicago, who represents a number of cooperative farm associations, is chairman of the first board of directors of The Grain Marketing company, the new organization that resulted from the $26,000,000 merger of five large grain companies here last week. The personnel of the board was announced Saturday.

The others on the board are: M. D. Lincoln, Columbus, secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau; J. Coverdale, Ames, Iowa, secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Oscar Ashworth, Mattoon, Ill., farmer; A. L. Middleton, Eagle Grove, Iowa, grain farmer, and with the Iowa Farmers' Elevator association; A. N. Gould, Keywanee, Ill., bank president; R. J. Taber, Columbus, Ohio, Master of National Grange; Gray Silver, Martinsburg, W. Va., Washington representative of the A. F. B. F.; J. F. Reed, Gary, S. D., president of the South Dakota Farm Bureau; G. M. Dyer, Spencer, Iowa, grain farmer; O. F. Bradfute, Kenia, Ohio, president of the A. F. B. F.; W. J. Brown, Thief River Falls, Minn., president of American Wheat Growers; Fred A. Mudge, Peru, Ill., grain farmer and president of Illinois Farmers' Elevator association, and Harry L. Keefe, Walthill, Neb., president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau.

The company formally began operations Monday.

The new organization issued a statement saying:

"The company starts with $4,000,000 paid in, unimpaired capital, no outstanding indebtedness of any kind."

SHIP SINKS, ALL ARE SAVED

Excursion Ship Sinks When It Strikes Sunken Barge.

Norfolk, Va.—The excursion steamer Gratitude, with 288 employes of the Texas Oil company, and members of their families on board, sank off Craney island, in Norfolk harbor, early Saturday night, when she struck a sunken barge. So far as it was possible to check the passenger list, no lives were lost, though three persons, two women and a man, were taken to a hospital badly hurt.

The navy tug Wytomito arrived at the Portsmouth navy yard at 11:30 o'clock that night with 150 of the excursionists rescued from the sunken vessel. The Gratitude was not completely submerged and her passengers were taken off in small boats sent from the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk railroad steamer Pennsylvania, and several harbor vessels and launches which picked up the distress signals from the Gratitude and hastened to the rescue.

Scenes of the wildest confusion were enacted on board the stricken vessel, when her passengers realized she was about to go down.

Many persons, including women and children, jumped overboard, apparently fearing they would be sucked under when the vessel settled in the water. Others were hurled overboard by the force of the impact.

DAY IS NOT WAR MEASURE

President Defends Plan as Mere Testing of Country's Strength.

Washington.—The controversy over the government's proposal for observance of September 12 as "Defense day" was brought to a climax by declaration of President Coolidge that the proposed celebration was designed purely and solely to remind the American people of their relations to and dependence upon the nation's defense establishment.

"What is proposed for September 12 is merely a compliance with the purposes of the national defense law of 1920," the president said in a letter addressed to Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, and made public at the White House. "It is not a mobilization, and the people who first attached to it the term 'Mobilization day' and then proceeded to condemn it have been utterly unfair."

The announcement of the government's plan for the day last April was followed by protests from anti-war organizations, which declared the move was a military gesture. These declarations were denied by the war department, but the criticism continued with the National Council for Prevention of War taking a leading and strong stand against the proposal.

Escaping Convict Near Death.

Columbus, Ohio.—Ralph Fritsch, 22-year-old convict, is dying in an Ohio penitentiary hospital as the result of an unique break for freedom. Fritsch scaled a pole and was climbing hand over hand along high tension wires which run out over the prison wall when the woolen socks he was wearing on his hands as insulators became soaked with perspiration. The dampness completed the circuit and 6,000 volts of electricity passed through his body, hurling him 50 feet into the prison yard.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Owatonna—An address on the value of cow testing by A. F. Hanson of the University Farm resulted in a preliminary organization of a new cow testing association for Steele county and the signing of a number of members.

Duluth—Tourist camps are no place for a band of gypsies to pitch camp. Three auto loads of them began to make camp among the tourists. A hurry call to the police and a trip to the grounds by officers resulted in the departure of the band.

Owatonna—Marie Degner and Aurelia Childs, Steel county club girls, won the Cake Club contest in the southwest division of Minnesota in competition with other counties in the state. They are to receive a free trip to the Minnesota State Fair this fall.

Dexter—Officers and directors of Mower county's nine co-operative livestock shipping associations, at a joint meeting here, voted to reorganize their individual bodies in order to take advantage of provisions of the new co-operative marketing laws.

Minneapolis — Nearly 1,000 head of cattle already have been supplied farmers in one crop sections of northwest states by the $10,000,000 Agricultural Credit Corporation. More than $100,000 already has been expended in beginning a $1,000,000 demonstration to determine the corporation's possibilities in direct aid to farmers.

Sleeply Eye—The fourth annual Brown County Boys and Girls club tour was conducted here with over 100 perosns in 27 automobiles taking part. T. A. Erickson, state club leader, of St. Paul, directed the trip. He expressed himself as highly pleased with the work done in Brown county by the Pig and Calf club members.

Chatfield—Declaring their intention to "walk every step of the way," Misses Anetta Pinkham and Marion Lane have left here for Detroit, Mich. The girls are local school teachers, who will spend August in the Michigan city and return in time for the opening of school.

Minneapolis—Paul Larson, member of a police gun squad, was held in the county jail pending action by a grand jury in connection with the killing of Arthur Nelson, Robbinsdale farmer, as a result of an encounter between the occupants of two cars when the police were returning from a moonshine raid.

Minneapolis—The $10,000,000 Agricultural Credit Corporation began a program of placing sheep on northwest farms, in addition to dairy cattle. Already 1,000 head of cattle have been shipped to North Dakota farmers in one-crop sections. Sheep will be purchased between September 1 and October 15, and placed in the hands of farmers on a mortgaged basis.

Minneapolis — The Hallam-Schall contest over the Republican nomination for United States senator from Minnesota was dismissed by Judge Thomas H. Salmon in Hennepin County District court. Mr. Gardner brought the contest after the state canvassing board had proclaimed Congressman Schall winner over Judge Oscar Hallam by 1,210 votes.

Owatonna—Work on the paving of trunk highway No. 1, south of this city, is to start in the immediate future at Steele Center and will be pushed to connect with the city paving, according to assurances made to Richard G. Brophy, secretary of the Owatonna Chamber of Commerce, by John Mullen, chief engineer for the Minneosta highway department.

Brainerd—The Minnesota state highway department has officially taken over the new road between Belle Prairie and this city, and is opening it as detour for Trunk Highway No. 27. The regular Highway No. 27 from the end of the paving at Belle Prairie to Brainerd has never been graded or surfaced, and the heavy travel to which it has been subjected this season has made it all but impassable.

St. Cloud—At a meeting of former stockholders of the Pan Motor Company here, a resolution was passed asking the department of justice to give favorable consideration to the application of Samuel C. Pandolfo for pardon. Mr. Pandolfo, former president of the Pan Motor Company, is now serving a term at Leavenworth and the resolution expresses the hope that "his application may be unconditionally granted."

Cloquet—Mr. and Mrs. R. Childers, the former known as the "Cherokee oil king," has returned home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Riley Thompson of the Indian reservation, west of the city. Mr. Childers and his wife, who are Cherokee Indians, own a farm in the Oklahoma oil belt. A gusher was struck on their land and they now have a daily income which runs into three figures. They made the trip in a large automobile. They plan to visit in Yellowstone before returning home.

Crookston — Recommendations will be made to the Crookston Association of Public Affairs that a canning factory be established here as the result of a survey made in towns having such plants.

St. Paul — Plans for enlargement of Concordia College, involving the expenditure of more than $500,000 in the next three years, were approved by the Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, owners of Concordia College. Work will begin at once preparing plans for the new campus and for a new dormitory to cost $125,000, to be erected this fall.

Minneapolis—Drowning accidents in which five small boys lost their lives within 24 hours were recorded by the Minneapolis police.

Baudette—The progress of this town in municipal improvements is indicated by a move now on foot to install a "white way" which will extend over several blocks.

Owatonna—A schedule of 12 poultry culling demonstrations, planned to develop better poultry production in Steele county, has been announced by County Agent Russell Seath. The first will be on August 1.

Slayton—At a mass meeting here to organize a county law enforcement league, Otto A. Lee of Hadley was named chairman of the organization and Dr. G. G. Balson of Lake Wilson, secretary.

Tracy—County auditors in Minnesota were called upon by Governor J. A. O. Preus to communicate with county boards with a view to arranging funds through appropriation or solicitation for relief of farmers suffering from effects of the tornado in the Balaton-Tracy district recently.

Lakefield—The Southern Minnesota Managers Association had their annual convention here, at which 60 managers of Farmers' Co-operative elevators attended. The convention was addressed by H. L. Mikelson, president, who discussed the rapid growth of the organization.

International Falls — Four members of the family of Anton Swenson, one of them a baby, are dead, and Anton and a 5-year-old son are in a hospital here as the result of a fire which destroyed their farm house in Little Rock county. Only the son may survive.

Granite Falls—Indians of this section have started on their annual trip to the north in the quest of ginseng. The roots are said to be plentiful this year and the price of $15 a pound is appealing to the Indians, many of whom will go to White Earth and Redby in search for the herb.

Waseca—Members of the St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran congregation laid the cornerstone of their new church edifice. The ceremony was featured by addresses by Rev. H. F. Soeldner, local pastor; Rev. William Moenkenmoeller of St. Paul and Rev. M. Winter of Janesville.

Faribault—T. E. Cunningham, local No. 539 Minneapolis Steamfitters, was the unanimous choice for president of the Minnesota State Association of Journeyman Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steamfitters, Sprinklerfitters and Helpers of the United association, of the delegates to the fourth annual convention of that organization held here.

Windom—Denial that the Farmers National Grain Dealers' association has any connection with the recent big elevator merger at Chicago was made in a statement by John Gustafson, president of the association. Mr. Gustafson declared his association was never consulted in regard to the merger.

Slayton—Murray county will continue to have a county agent with financial assistance from the county. This was decided when the county commissioners laid on the table, a petition signed by more than 500 persons, asking that the usual appropriation of $1,800 be not made because it was a burden upon the taxpayers.

Plainview—O. Ditton, manager of the Lakeside Packing company here, has announced the plant will probably break all records this year, with an output of more than 1,000,000 cans of peas and corn. At present the plant is packing from 2,500 to 3,000 cases of peas a day from the 400 acres under that crop. This means more than 60,000 cans a day.

Stillwater—"Play Sunday," as the opening day of the Third District American Legion is called, was marked by the successful program which included everything from water sports to a band contest and a baseball game. With approximately 10,000 people here for the occasion, Stillwater, elaborately decorated, had adequate entertainment for all.

Faribault—Sheriff Charles M. Livingston, of Rice county, has asked for an order from District Judge Fred W. Senn authorizing him to sell 11 automobiles seized in recent months for alleged used in conveying contraband whisky. It is believed this is the largest number of cars seized by any law officer in this section of Minnesota for offending against the prohibition law.

St. Paul—Petitions were being circulated asking President Coolidge to pardon H. H. Bigelow, head of Brown & Bigelow. Mr. Bigelow, who pleaded guilty to falsifying income returns and was sentenced to two years at Leavenworth prison, is to begin his term November 1. The petitions declare that the welfare of hundreds of employees depends on his active direction of the company affairs.

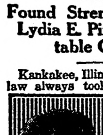
Duluth—The Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association will establish a branch in Duluth, according to the announcement made here by A. J. McGuire, president of the organization. The association, which markets the Land o' Lakes butter, is made up of 475 creameries in the state, and cares for the products of more than 80,000 farmers. The association manufactures 100,000,000 pounds of butter a year.

Slayton — According to Secretary Robert B. Forrest, final plans for the annual Murray county fair here, Sept. 4 and 5, are about complete. Among the entertainment features will be a baseball game between the All-Nation team and the Union Giants of Tennessee ranch.

Coleraine — Reports have been received from the state club leader at St. Paul by County Agent A. H. Frick of the winning teams in demonstration club work for the northeast district of Minnesota. Itasca county is represented on this list by three winning teams, all from Coleraine.

RECOMMENDED BY HER DOCTOR

Found Strength by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Kankakee, Illinois.—"My mother-in-law always took your medicine for weakness, and then in the Change of Life it did her so much good that she induced me to take it for a weakness I had for a year and a half. It has strengthened me and now I have a nice baby boy. I do all my own housework now, and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I have the opportunity. I am taking it again for weakness, as my family doctor has recommended it for this purpose."—Mrs. HARRY COULOM, 984 N. Harrison Ave., Kankakee, Illinois.

Real Evidence of Merit

For the relief of female weakness, pains and backache, nervousness and irregularities, with other troubles common to women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine.

Its worth is thoroughly established by such letters as the above. There are women everywhere, who, having received benefit, gladly tell other women about it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Swamps Put to New Use

Furs have become so popular in America that a new industry has sprung up in swampy districts. Muskrat farming, for years carried on as a pastime only, now is a thriving industry in some sections of the United States. It is found that captive muskrats become tame easily though they are prey for many enemies. They require no feedings as they live on the vegetation of marshes and ponds. Twenty years ago the muskrat was considered a pest. Some swamps where they are bred and raised now are worth more than the arable land nearby.

BACK ACHY?

Lame and achy in the morning? Tortured with backache all day long? No wonder you feel worn out and discouraged! But have you given any thought to your kidneys? Weak kidneys cause just such troubles; and you are likely to have headaches, too, with dizziness, stabbing pains and other kidney irregularities. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

Harder to Read Character

Those who undertake to read the character of persons with whom they come in contact can no longer rely on what the eyebrow says to them. The plucking of eyebrows has become so general that they cannot be made to tell anything of the makeup of their owners. Character readers must fall back on the contour of the nose, curves of the mouth and the "crow's feet" about the eyes to form their conclusions and must remove the eyebrows entirely from their observations.

Next the captain turned to Lord George. Captain Bunker had his own opinion about so-called noblemen; he distrusted them and their credentials on principle, and set little store by the fact that Lord George had been introduced by another nobleman. Only the fact that Lord George had been indubitably popping away with his rifle from the quarter-deck all afternoon prevented Captain Bunker from taking him to task directly. He did question him shrewdly as to the bottles at which he had been firing. But he got no results; though apparently open and frank to the limit, Lord George gave no information of the slightest value; and Captain Bunker was unable to decide whether this was because he was exceptionally shrewd or entirely ignorant.

Last, the captain sought out Miss Denslow, and inquired into her whereabouts during the afternoon, and found that she was fully accounted for.

There remained only Mrs. Archman's maid, in the family employ for twenty years, who had been with her mistress nearly all afternoon, and who seemed entirely incapable of carrying through such a desperate enterprise as safe robbery.

Mrs. Archman, Harry and Bess seemed above suspicion; and any lingering doubts that Captain Bunker may have entertained as to the complicity of any one of them, or of the maid, were dissipated as he reflected that they really could not possess the technical skill necessary to open a safe by fingering the tumblers of the lock. Only a person of unusual skill and of long training could possibly have done this.

Captain Bunker was forced to conclude that some member of the crew had taken desperate chances and ventured aft, where he had no business, and had succeeded in reaching the cabin and getting into the safe. Investigation, however, cast no slightest shadow on any one of the men.

Bess knew how busy Captain Bunker had been and she tried to hold herself in leash away from him, so as not to add to his annoyance. All the early part of the evening she lay in her chair, listening to the chat of the others, especially to that of Lord George.

When the steamship started again Bess rose from her chair. "I'm going to the bridge," she announced.

Harry looked up. "Captain Bunker won't want you," he began. Then, noting that his sister had waited for no comment, he turned to Lord George with a laugh. "We men will have to get up an association in America to regain our rights," he said.

Lord George did not answer for a moment. Then he started. "Oh! Ah! Yes! Quite so, old chap," he answered, heartily but vaguely.

Harry stared at him, but the Englishman said no more, and after a moment Harry got up and wandered away forward.

Meanwhile Bess had ascended to the bridge and had gone to Captain Bunker's side. "I couldn't stay away any longer, captain," she murmured. "I was too anxious. Have we dodged them?"

Captain Bunker turned a dim face to the girl. "I think so," he said. "At all events we're going in."

"Going in?"

"Yes. We've just passed Lobos island. Yonder it lies." He pointed to the east, but Bess could see no trace of the blacker shadow of the land. "Our destination is just ten miles due south. It's the island shown in that map your mother brought me."

"Oh!" In the stress of the greater emotion that had arisen out of the violation of the instructions, Bess had forgotten the map. "Is it the right map?" she asked. "I have forgotten to ask."

"Yes; it's the right map." Captain Bunker looked about him long and steadily. Then he turned to his first officer. "Keep her as she is, Mr. Collins," he instructed. "I'm going to the chart house." He glanced at Bess. "Will you come, Miss Archman?" he invited. "I want to talk with you."

Bess went very willingly. Captain Bunker led the way to the chart house, and held open the door for her. That young woman stared into the blackness, then stepped in and waited while Captain Bunker closed the door, shutting out the faint light that leaked from the clouded stars. She heard the captain moving about in the darkness, apparently blanketing the windows, then she heard a faint click and saw a closely shaded electric bulb glow out throwing a cone of light upon the table in the center of the room. By its aid he made his way to a [illegible] beside the table and sat down.

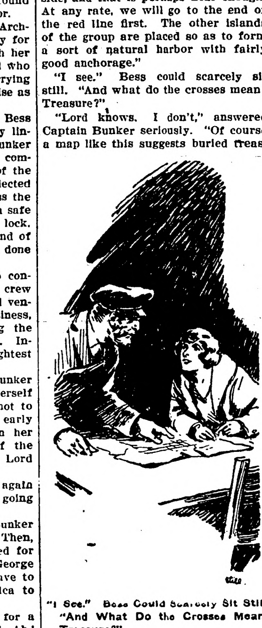
Captain Bunker [illegible] her. "Here is your map," he said, laying the muddy, bloodstained square of parchment on the table. "And here is the chart of Moro island, the spot where my instructions bid me meet your father. As you see, they are the same, except that the government chart shows no red lines."

Bess stared at the chart in feverish excitement. Undoubtedly Captain Bunker was right. The outlines of the island on the map and chart were plainly the same. The parchment map, however, was on a much larger scale; when Bess laid it on top of the government chart it hid a whole group of islands of which it formed a part.

With sparkling eyes, she looked up as Captain Bunker spoke. "There is nothing on your map to show whether the island is one mile or fifty miles in length," he said. "But the government chart shows it to be about five miles long and three miles wide, and to consist chiefly of an extinct volcano. This red line"—he pointed it out with a stubby forefinger—"comes down to the water on the east side. My instructions say the northeast side, and that is perhaps near enough. At any rate, we will go to the end of the red line first. The other islands of the group are placed so as to form a sort of natural harbor with fairly good anchorage."

"I see." Bess could scarcely sit still. "And what do the crosses mean? Treasure?"

"Lord knows. I don't," answered Captain Bunker seriously. "Of course a map like this suggests buried treasure and other accompaniments. But of course, Mr. Archman isn't the man to take his daughter on a chase after treasure, so we can leave that out."



"I See." Bess Could Scarcely Sit Still. "And What Do the Crosses Mean? Treasure?"

"Oh!"

"Yes; we can leave that out." Captain Bunker spoke severely. "And thank God for it! I went treasure hunting once in my young days and I had my fill of it. It isn't the romantic child's play you young people think. This isn't treasure hunting, but I'm afraid it's worse. It seems very plain to me now that somebody committed murder to get this map. They failed at first, but they succeeded later. Then finding that it did not give complete information, they sent it to your mother, hoping that she would do exactly what she did do—send it to your father by someone whom they could follow. That they have followed is proved by the fact that my safe was robbed, and the fact, if it is a fact, as I strongly suspect, that they are trailing us in another ship. This thing is mighty serious. I only hope we'll find your father and sister alive!"

Bess' face had grown paler and paler. "Alive?" she gasped. "You don't think that—"

"No; I don't; after all." Captain Bunker caught himself up in swift contrition. "No; I don't. They're probably all right. If these scoundrels knew where to find them, they wouldn't be following us. But the situation is certainly alarming. If I could only find the spy—but I can't. What I particularly wanted is to ask you to notify me of the smallest suspicious thing that you may notice. Don't stop because you think it may be a hoax."

Suddenly Bess remembered the man's and woman's voices she had heard apparently proceeding from Harry's cabin and his denial of having been one of the talkers. It had seemed a very trifling thing at the time, but in view of what had happened since it perhaps became important. "There's just one thing, captain," she said. "It's like this," and she went on and told of the event.

Captain Bunker brought his fist down with a crash. "There isn't but one woman it could have been," he rasped, "and she—"

A tap at the door made him break off and lift his hand to the electric bulb overhead. The light snapped out. "Come in," he called.

The door opened and a man's head appeared against the dim sky. "Mr. Collins says will you please come on the bridge, sir," said a voice.

"All right." Captain Bunker turned to Bess. "I'll look into the matter, Miss Archman," he said, as he rose and hurried out of the room, followed more slowly by Bess.

The El Rio was approaching the land, whose loom Collins had made out. Captain Bunker rang his engines off and on and kept the engine-room telegraph spinning like mad. A rift in the clouds ahead was growing momomentarily brighter; the captain watched it and swore softly to himself.

Brighter grew the rift and brighter, changing from a rift to a gash, and widening, till abruptly a fat, yellow moon gleamed out for an instant, then slipped away again. It had stayed just long enough to show a black island, with a mountain peak thrusting high above it.

Captain Bunker rasped an order and the wheel spun madly. The El Rio turned on her heel and darted westward for a little way, then headed south into the mouth of an invisible channel.

Steadily the steamship went on, till even Bess could see the peak of the mountain a little off the port bow and could make out a lower lump of land that ended with a smother of white foam to starboard. She looked aft and saw that the two lines of foam had arisen apparently out of the sea and seemed to be closing in behind the vessel. Then suddenly they began to move swiftly to starboard. Bess started, looked around and saw that the peak of the mountain had swung far to port, and she realized that the El Rio had passed into a harbor and was turning, probably to seek some anchorage screened from the outside view.

Involuntarily she spoke. "Good! Good!" she exulted. "We've dodged them. We're safe."

But even as she spoke a sudden glare filled the night, sending its brilliant gleam over miles of heaving waters, lighting up the quarterdeck, the breaking waves, and the tall cliffs that rose on three sides.

Someone had set fire to a red flare placed upon the taffrail.

CHAPTER X

Behind the Island

Bess was up early the next morning. El Rio lay nearly quiescent on a silver and gold flecked sea that rocked to the base of the bounding mountain peaks. To right, to left, behind, before, rose islands. Bess knew by the chart that there were many of them, but where one began and another ended, she could not see; their outlines melted indistinguishably into each other.

To the west lay the island of the chart, bathed in sunlight and easily recognizable by its shape, a tall, apparently flat-topped peak which rose with amazing steepness out of a hump of tree-clad rounded hills that sloped downward gently to twenty or thirty feet above the water and then broke away abruptly to the sea as if cut by a gigantic knife. There seemed to be no beach, the shores rising sheer from the water's edge. No sign of a dwelling place, not even the smoke from a fugitive fire, rose to tell that the island had any inhabitants at all.

Disappointed, Bess once more scanned the waters of the bay, but detected no sign of life. The broad bay seemed utterly deserted.

Bess glanced up at the bridge and saw there the tall figure of the first officer, Mr. Collins, instead of the bulky frame of Captain Bunker, with whom she might discuss the situation.

The events of the afternoon and evening before were still unexplained, so far as the discovery of the spy was concerned. As to his object, there could no longer be any doubt. The red flare on the taffrail, following the secret examination of the sealed instructions, could have no other object than to give information to a pursuer.

When the red flare broke on the night, the quarterdeck was deserted both by passengers and sailors. Collins, springing from the bridge and rushing aft to hurl the treacherous light into the waves, had seen no one. All the passengers, except Mrs. Archman, who was in her stateroom, seemed to have been collected far forward, straining their eyes to penetrate the darkness into which the ship was heading. Captain Bunker's most strenuous inquiries failed to cast suspicion on anyone. And other inquiries, addressed to the crew, had, so far as Bess knew, met similar failure.

And there was no sign of any pursuer! Bess could only hope that, after all, neither floating bottle nor red flare had succeeded in carrying the spy's information to his patrons.

Place at the Top

Andrew Carnegie said: "I don't give a fig for the young man in business who does not already see himself a partner or the head of the firm." Do not rest for a moment in your thought of yourself as a head clerk, foreman or manager in any concern, no matter how big it is. Say to yourself each day "My place is at the top." Be king in your dreams. Vow that you will reach the position you long to attain with untarnished reputation and make no other vow to distract your attention. No matter what business you may be in, your prime ambition should be to attain high water marks. The love of excellence is the star that leads the world onward.—Inspiration.

Clock of Death Seems to Deserve Its Name

By the stopping of the famous astronomical clock of Henry VIII at Hampton court palace, London, and the death within a few hours of one of the palace inmates the ancient legend surrounding the "clock of death" has once more been fulfilled.

Tradition runs that the stopping of the clock portends the imminent death of a palace resident.

These days, for the first time for many years, the clock stopped, and the same night an elderly woman—Miss Jane Cuppage, daughter of Gen. Sir Burke Cuppage, who fought at Waterloo—was found dead in her apartments, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

An official of the palace said that twice within his personal knowledge some one had died a few hours after the clock stopped.

Made in 1540, the clock registers the hour of the day, day of the month, position of the sun, number of days since the beginning of the year and high-water mark at London bridge.

ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER A GUARANTEED RELIEF

S., that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever, Bronchial Asthma or difficult breathing can try my treatment entirely at my risk," Dr. R. Schiffmann announces. He says: "Buy a package of my Asthmador, or cigarettes, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best remedy you have ever used, take it back to your druggist and he will return your money cheerfully, and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. Certainly more positive proof can thus be demonstrated than a 'free sample' could possibly prove. Also sent on same guarantee, per parcel post, C. O. Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a power of sale, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative, and the assignee of the mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Torger Nilson Borgen, a single man, Mortgagor, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated January 19th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 17,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Carl W. Mason, by written assignment dated February 17, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 303,

And whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of One Hundred Two and 17-100 Dollars ($102.17); and whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars, ($450.00), with accumulated interest from the 19th day of January, 1922, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 9th day of September, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees stipulated as attorney's fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 18, 1924.

Labor —that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end,

DISLIKED GAME OF "PLAYMATES"

By DOROTHY N. DONAHUE

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

APRIL wasn't the only one that possessed such gorgeous desires. But she was distinctive in that she stuck to them. April wanted a young giant with tender eyes and a strong chin, a scarlet roadster, a drawing room with pearl chandeliers, a great deal of money and a heart of gold; in short, a perfect young gladiator with advantages and a steadfast religion.

She told Colin about her ambitions. Colin was twenty and lived across the street from April. He had played with her all his life; for 15 years in fun, for three in dead seriousness.

He stood with one foot on the threshold of the door, his cap in his hand, the stray look in his eyes, and glowered.

"All right. I hope you find him the very pink of perfection. But he won't be any good. A guy with all that and as good looking as you've disgustingly put him just can't be true-blue. In acquiring the riches and cultivating his beauty he loses all sense of real value and turns cad. You'll find that out."

And Colin was gone.

"Don't be stupid," April called after him, but he didn't hear.

A week later April met the shining knight of her dreams. He came straight from New York.

Gaylord Marchmount liked the shy smile and the dark blue eyes, the softness of the blond hair and the tiny, childish figure.

"Will you ride with me?"

April blushed and rode.

There were many rides. Gaylord was staying on a week or so to straighten things out with Steve Wainwright. He called for April every evening and on the fourth, as April stepped into the car, she looked over and caught Colin peeking out at them. Her eyes shone and her heart sang, "I've found him, Colin. I have found him."

Colin debated whether it would be more sensational to lick Gaylord before a crowd or in private, and let the news leak out afterwards. He decided on the crowd and then went to call on Daisy, whom he hated.

Out in the country with the car spinning along a moonlight illumined road, April lived in a dream.

Gaylord Marchmount removed one hand from the wheel and placed it over April's two white ones.

"Life turns me a crooked deal, little one. Just because I have a name and position that some one covets and because that some one has the money that I covet, I must marry her—Glenna Landford. Ever hear of her? We nearly despise each other, I think, but what must be, must be. I'd be happy as a clam to have you—I wonder if you know I'm going tomorrow and that I think you're the sweetest playmate in the world."

April closed her eyes and relaxed a little and came out of her dream. She wanted to grab his arm and tell him, tearfully, that she didn't know he was only playing a game and that she didn't want to be playmate.

But April was a wise little girl and had just found it out.

"My dear Gay—how silly. Life isn't to blame. It's tradition and a loss of the ability to realize true values. Don't blame the poor old world. It's being—cad. (Oh, if Colin could hear), but I won't preach. We've both been just playing. Let it go at that."

April surprised herself.

They drew up to the door an hour later and Gaylord Marchmount looked at April quizzically.

"Tell me, little playmate, what it is in life you really like."

"Me? Like? Why—I guess sunsets and rainbows, violin music—and, why, just living."

"That's just like you. Do you know, do you want to know what Glenna Langford likes—in life? It's amusing."

"I think I know, Gay. She likes long, slender drawing rooms with pearl chandeliers, scarlet roadsters, lap dogs, bon-bons and men like you."

"Men like me, April? Are you being nice—or not?"

"Not! Men that let an army of ancestors with musty ideas and family traditions push them into a marriage that they hate—men that don't know themselves or what they want, how to get it or how to think straight. Why, you aren't even square enough to play your own game straight. You have a little fun on the side, a bit of amusement with some little light-headed country girl you call 'Playmate' for conscience's sake. That's what she likes and what she's getting. Good-night, Mr. Marchmount."

After she had gone, Gaylord Marchmount huddled down into his seat, turned up his coat collar and shivered.

"Forty below, and the mercury still dropping. So this is Alaska!"

The next night Colin came over.

"He's gone, is he?"

"Yes."

"If you think I'm going to get down on my knees and murmur that I've been waiting for you, I'm not. I'm going to start all over again. We've been playmates too long. We start as strangers. I'll win you, but I'll do it in my own way, and I'll make you say, 'My dear Colin, you're wonderful,' instead of 'Don't be stupid, Colin.' So be prepared for a stormy and tempestuous wooing. I'm out for victory. Laugh that off! Good-night."

April sank down into a chair and laughed and cried at intervals.

"So that's to be my punishment. It's rather too bad for Colin, but I'm going to love it."

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Combined Treatment, both local and internal, and has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years.

BANKERS' VIEW ON CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

The attitude of the American Bankers Association on co-operative marketing favors proper organization to facilitate the orderly movement of farm products, but holds that the co-operatives are as amenable to economic laws as any form of business and cannot be used to gain special benefits for the farmer contrary to the influences of supply and demand and other normal factors. This view was formulated recently by Frank W. Simmonds of the Association before the National Council of Farmers Co-operative and Marketing Associations at Washington.

"It would be unfortunate for the farmer if he becomes imbued with the idea that co-operative marketing in itself is a panacea for all agricultural ills," Mr. Simmonds said. "Co-operative marketing, well organized and wisely managed, can be most helpful in solving market problems. It may prevent untimely dumping, it may secure better credit facilities, it may extend existing markets, it may even create new markets, but obviously its operations will be as amenable to economic law as those of other business enterprises.

What It Cannot Do

"Co-operative marketing cannot prevent other countries with cheaper land and labor from selling in foreign marts at a price unattractive to us. It cannot successfully over-ride the law of supply and demand or maintain for any length of time an artificially high price by withholding a product from market or unduly limiting production. Sane, orderly marketing must be accompanied by sane, orderly thinking.

"We may wisely take a leaf from Danish experience and emphasize efficient, economical, maximum production of standard grade products, for however important co-operative marketing may be in solving the exigencies of the present time, it is only one link in the chain of agricultural problems."

The American Bankers Association, Mr. Simmonds said, believes that solutions of farm problems "should be sought through private enterprise and not through government aid," and approves the endeavors of farmers for orderly marketing.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over Forty Years.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second—Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

The Holt base ball team defeated Middle River's team on their own grounds last Sunday in a hitting bee by a score of 18 to 10.

The outstanding features of the game was the heavy hitting by the Holt team, including a home run by Lund and one by Herron, and the exceptional fielding by Risberg. The credit for winning the game however cannot be given to any one or two men as the entire team performed well. The Middle River boys put up as hard a fight as possible but lack of practice in team work and hitting proved their defeat. Holt plays Radium next Sunday in Holt. Radium has a reputation as a hard hitting bunch. Holt has won five games straight. Will they make it six? Come out and see, Sunday, August 10th.

The girl, however, had not much time for solitary reflections. Though the first on deck, she did not long remain so. Very soon the other passengers began to straggle up. First came Lord George, then Harry and Akin, Miss Denslow, and last of all, Mrs. Archman, whom the comparative quiet of the bay had partly restored to health. All gathered in a group and chattered excitedly, without getting anywhere, until Captain Bunker came up and gave direction to the conversation.

"My orders directed me to come to this bay," he said, in reply to numerous questions as to what he was going to do, "to the northeast corner of that island yonder. As you can see, we are not yet at the northeast corner, but are about the middle of the east side. I anchored here last night partly because the red line on your map came down to the sea about here, and partly because I did not want to move about these waters in the dark any more than I had to. I don't see any landing place, but I'll send a boat in to see whether it is possible to land. Then I will run north about a mile to the corner of the island and see what I can find there. Meanwhile, perhaps we had all better go to breakfast."

All went, still chattering excitedly. When they came up again, a boat was approaching the ship. Bess screamed out at sight of it, and then cried out again in disappointment as she recognized Collins on board and realized that it was one of the El Rio's boats that had been reconnoitering the shore.

Collins, however, brought news. "There's a sort of cleft in the rocks," he reported. "You don't see it from here, but it goes in deep and ends with a fair landing place. "There's no sign of a path up the rocks, but the ascent seems to be fairly easy."

The news caused fresh excitement. The discovery of the entrance seemed to be proof of the accuracy of the chart, and both Bess and Mrs. Archman were agog to go ashore at once. Captain Bunker, however, demurred. "Possibly this cleft will lead you where you want to go," he said. "But my instructions say nothing about landing. They merely tell me to go to the northeast corner. Presumably Mr. Archman will be watching for us and will communicate. Certainly he won't be watching for anybody on this path, because he doesn't know that you have recovered the map. It seems to me best to obey instructions and run to the place Mr. Archman specified, staying there long enough to give him a chance to see us and to communicate. If he doesn't, we can come back."

Mrs. Archman listened with evident disapproval. Her anxiety for her husband and for Nellie had grown enormously since she had heard of the robbery of the safe and the attempt to signal.

"We ought to land right away," she protested. "Right away. It's perfectly dreadful to wait. Those people who are following will get ahead of us if we don't. Where are they, anyway? Where have they gone? They'll get ahead of us and m-murder Henry."

Bess tried to calm the excited lady. "Now, mother—" she began.

But Mrs. Archman would not stop. "I know more about them than any of you," she burst out. "I don't know much, but I know that Henry has been afraid of them for years and years. He wouldn't tell me anything. He said it wasn't his secret.

"But when he brought Nellie to us—"

She broke off as she noticed the distinct sensation that her words produced. "I mean," she cried. "I mean when Nellie was born and—and—oh! Oh, I don't know what I mean. But I'm afraid! I'm afraid!"

"Never mind, Mrs. Archman." Miss Denslow came to Bess' rescue. "It's all right. We've thrown whoever was following us completely off the track. Captain Bunker must obey orders and go to the place designated. You can't tell what might happen if he didn't. Later he can come back." She led the half-hysterical woman to a seat.

A moment later the boat was hoisted in and the El Rio started on her short run to the northeast corner of the island. As she went, those on board scanned the mountain closely, with field glasses and with naked eyes, trying to discover the path indicated by the red line of the chart. But this proved impossible, even with the starting point afforded by the cleft that Collins had discovered. The mountainside was covered with trees and brush that hid even the inequalities of the surface. All that could be ascertained was that the path, if accurately delineated by the red line, went straight upward to the top of the gentler slopes and then curled southward about the base of the peak to a position screened from view by the peak itself.

The aspect of the northeast corner of the island proved not to differ materially from that of the eastern side. The shores rose as abruptly and seemed as unbroken, and signs of human habitation were equally lacking. Further, though the El Rio lay off the shores all morning, no trace of life appeared on the cliffs. Boats sent to reconnoiter reported several good landing places, but found nothing to show that any of them had been used.

Meanwhile, the impatience of the passengers, especially that of Mrs. Archman, steadily mounted. The crew seemed to catch the infection of the excitement. The whole ship was feverish, as if all on board felt they were on the verge of some thrilling event. Captain Bunker yielded at last to the apparently unanimous feeling and ran back to the first anchorage.

Once there the impatience of the passengers could no longer be controlled. A boat was dropped overboard, a gangway was let down, and they all prepared to disembark.

Captain Bunker regarded the movement with very apparent dissatisfaction. Vainly he endeavored to dissuade Mrs. Archman, at least, from going ashore.

"Madam," he said, "you don't know what you are going up against. You're weak and you can't possibly climb those rocks, and you're apt to get drenched, too. There are always squalls and showers wandering about these islands. Let the young ones go if they must, but you stay here."

"Stay here! Stay here! When my husband may be dying! I won't do it!"

"Dying nothing!" Captain Bunker's irritation got the best of him. "He's safe and sound, if he's here at all. There's no sense in your killing yourself." He talked on, but Mrs. Archman turned a deaf ear, and at last he was obliged to give up.

The landing party, as finally made up, included Mrs. Archman, Miss Denslow, Bess, Lord George, Harry and Collins. As they climbed into the boat, the steward, Price, appeared with two huge baskets of provisions, which he placed under the thwart.

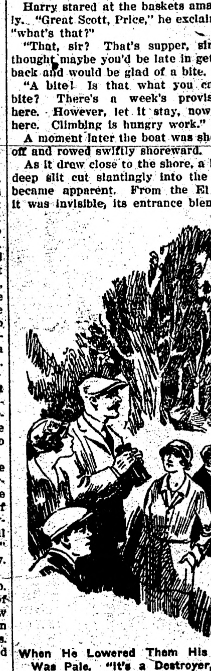
Harry stared at the baskets amazedly. "Great Scott, Price," he exclaimed, "what's that?"

"That, sir? That's supper, sir. I thought maybe you'd be late in getting back and would be glad of a bite, sir."

"A bite! Is that what you call a bite? There's a week's provisions here. However, let it stay, now it's here. Climbing is hungry work."

A moment later the boat was shoved off and rowed swiftly shoreward.

As it drew close to the shore, a long, deep slit cut slantingly into the cliff became apparent. From the El Rio it was invisible, its entrance blending into the rocks on either side. From a boat, closer in, it was still invisible except from a narrow zone directly opposite the opening. Fifty feet to right or to left, its headlands melted so smoothly into the background that even the closest scrutiny had difficulty making out the line of juncture.



When He Lowered Them His Face Was Pale. "It's a Destroyer," He Said.

Inside its mouth, even at the outer verge, the water was almost lakelike in its stillness, and a little farther in it became glassy. It was beautifully transparent, showing myriads of fish darting through it like black shadows weaving in and out of a carpet of waving feathery sea growths.

At its base, a hundred yards inward, lay a strip of sandy beach, across which trickled a tiny stream to whose incessant action the cleft was clearly due. Behind the beach the gorge rose steeply, though not precipitously, plainly grading into the ridged surface of the mountain within no very great distance.

The five adventurers disembarked and stood looking about them, taking in the surroundings. When they turned back to the boat the lunch baskets had been landed and Collins was instructing the coxswain to go back to the ship and to come ashore again at six o'clock.

When the boat had gone, Harry bent to pick up one of the lunch baskets. An expression of surprise came over his face. "Great Cæsar's ghost!" he exclaimed. "What on earth has Price put in this thing?" He turned back the cloth that covered the contents and peered in. "Will you look at this?" he demanded. "Cans! Cans! Cans! Why, the fellow's put in a ton of corn beef. And half a ton of hardtack. Holy Moses! What does he think we are? A North pole relief expedition?"

Collins gazed at the contents of the baskets blankly. Then he turned quickly and shouted down the cleft after the boat, which had just disappeared around the curve. Again he shouted, but the boat did not come back. When he again faced his surprised companions, his face was lined with anxiety or anger. Nevertheless he forced a laugh.

"I wanted to get a man to help carry the basket," he explained. "But I guess they were out of earshot. We can leave the things here or we can divide them up and carry them. I guess we'd better leave them. There really wasn't much use in bringing them."

Lord George and Bess, who had started up the ravine, turned back to see what was the matter. At Collins' words, Lord George spoke up. "Why not put them in the cave, old chap?" he demanded.

"What cave?"

"Don't you know? It's a dainty little cave, it is really. Miss Archman found it a bit up the gully. It's just the place where one would store things, you know."

"Cave goes!" Collins bent to the baskets. "Lend a hand, Mr. Archman," he directed, as he straightened up.

With some difficulty, the two carried the baskets for the hundred feet or so up the gorge and deposited them well back in the cave, which proved to be a mere hollow in the cliff, overhanging a projecting ledge of rock. "If it rains, the hardtack won't get drenched here," observed Collins, as he put down his load.

The way up the ravine was steep but climbable, even for Mrs. Archman, who, assisted by Collins, followed Bess and Lord George, who led the way. Harry and Miss Denslow came last.

About ten minutes' climbing brought them to a break in the right-hand wall of the cleft, through which something that might have been considered to be a path led off to the north. No one paid much attention to it, however, as the red line on the map went straight upward, past it.

Not far beyond this the six reached the top of the ravine and came out on the slope that as seen from the El Rio ran up to the abruptly rising face of the peak. The trees, however, were too dense to permit a view of the bay and the ship, and they went on, following as well as they could, the bowldery course of the creek, which seemed to coincide pretty well with the position indicated by the red line on the map. Denser and denser grew the trees, and more and more imperceptible the track, till poor Mrs. Archman dropped down despairingly. "This can't be the path," she wailed. "You've gotten off it somewhere. And I can't climb another foot. I can't!"

The others looked at her and then at each other. She had merely voiced the belief that had been growing in all their minds. "I guess we'd better turn back after we've rested a while," suggested Harry.

But Miss Denslow objected. "It seems to me that the woods are a little thinner off yonder," she said, pointing ahead and to the right. "We might get a view from there."

"Let's find out." Harry was off, breaking a way through the undergrowth, and after a moment's hesitation Collins followed him. An instant later Harry's voice was heard, calling excitedly: "Come up here, you people, for the love of Mike!" he shouted.

Bess and Lord George raced off, and Mrs. Archman followed more slowly, aided by Miss Denslow. The two seemed to have taken a great fancy to each other.

Harry was standing on a lump of rock that shouldered through the leafy cover of the mountain till it stood almost as high as the tops of the trees that surrounded it. Behind it rose the peak of the mountain, but before it stretched a wonderful panorama of the bay, ringed islands and far-stretching sunlit sea. The long shadows of the land shot eastward over the waters. Afar, trails of smoke or gleams of white showed where steamers and sailing ships crossed the seas.

Below, close to the island, the El Rio swayed smoothly on the waves that rolled in from the outer sea. On her decks tiny, almost imperceptible, figures came and went. The whole scene was exquisite, a miniature set in sparkling diamonds. The six watched it almost breathlessly.

Abruptly Collins cried out. He had his field glasses at his eyes and was scanning the bay and the El Rio. "Look!" he cried, in a voice that thrilled the others. "Look! Behind that island just west of the El Rio! What is that? Lord George, you've got glasses and you're a naval man. What is that?"

In the middle of the bay, a quarter of a mile, perhaps, west of the El Rio, stretched a low wooded island. Beyond it, close to the shore, lay something long and narrow and deadly-looking. Invisible from the El Rio or from the lower shore, it was in plain view from the mountain. Collins was pointing to it with shaking fingers.

Lord George's glasses were already at his eyes. When he lowered them his face was pale. "It's a destroyer," he said. "A torpedo-boat destroyer. That's the fellow who followed us in last night. He's hiding behind the island and watching us."

Our Constitution

The most successful organizations are the ones with the fewest general orders. The most successful country the world has ever seen and the republic that has stood the test the longest is this country of the United States, which has the shortest constitution, or general orders, of any government.—Forbes.

MEXICANS SHOOT BRITISH SUBJECT

Assassination Of Woman Believed Result of Attempt To Seize Estate

Mexico City.—Federal forces are searching for the slayers of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, who was shot dead from ambush near Texmelucan, Puebla, Saturday night.

The widow of a British subject, a former president of the Bank of London in Mexico, Mrs. Evans was one of the central figures in the recent international affair between Great Britain and Mexico culminating in the withdrawal of the British charge des archives, Herbert Cummings. Mr. Cummings was accused by the Mexicans of undue harshness in his communications concerning Mrs. Evans' dispute with the Mexican government over attempts to divide her estate under the agrarian program.

Accompanied by John Strauss the German manager of her estate, Mrs. Evans was driving homeward when shots came and she fell from the wagon. Her hair became entangled in the wheels and the body was dragged some distance, mutilating the face. Strauss made a desperate effort to defend his employer, but was wounded in the arm and forced to abandon the fight. He managed, however, to release her body from the wheels and summon help before collapsing. Representatives of the British consulate general have gone to Texmelucan to bring the body to Mexico City.

Schoenfield Takes Up Case.

American Charge Schoenfield, at Mexico City, reported Monday to the state department that he had taken up with the Mexican government the case of Mrs. Evans, and that the Mexican authorities had given assurance that every effort would be made to apprehend and punish the murderers.

SLAYERS WOULD KILL AGAIN

Alienist Tells of "Absurd Childish" Compact of Leopold and Loeb.

Chicago.—Dr. William Healy, Boston psychiatrist, testifying as a defense alienist Monday, at the hearing to determine the punishment for Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., for the kidnaping and murder of Robert Franks, asserted "an incredibly absurd childish compact" bound the boys together and "had a bearing on the ultimate acts of the youths."

Dr. Healy testified both boys had told him they would again go through with the Franks murder if their associations and the conditions were the same. He said Loeb told him he "found nothing to deter him," and that Leopold had said he would commit the crime again "if it gave him pleasure."

As to the conditions of the "childish compact" which had influenced the later lives of Leopold and Loeb, nothing was said in open court, Judge John R. Caverly ruling that the matter was unprintable and having Dr. Healy recite it to the court stenographers for the record.

Dr. Healy was the second alienist to testify for the defense and his testimony went in over state objection, Judge Caverly again ruling that the court had a right to listen to evidence in mitigation of punishment, as he had ruled Friday when the testimony of Dr. William A. White was premitted, marking a new departure in Illinois jurisprudence.

COOLIDGE HAS HEAVY TASKS

Government Problems to Be Disposed of Before Keynote Address.

Washington.—President Coolidge faces a busy 10 days before he delivers his campaign keynote speech at the formal notification ceremonies here August 14, with some knotty government problems vieing with politics on his calendar. The reports of the tariff commission on the sugar tariff, in which opposite views are set forth and over which considerable controversy has waged for more than a year, are on his desk, and he expects also to make an early selection of an ambassador to Mexico to succeed Charles B. Warren, who retired Monday.

Meanwhile, Mr. Coolidge plans to conclude his speech of acceptance this week and go over it with Mr. Warren, who was chairman of the national convention resolutions committee, and with Chairman Butler of the national committee. Mr. Warren has been a guest at the White House for several days.

The sugar reports are quite voluminous, three members of the commission recommending a reduction in the sugar rates, it is understood, while two oppose any change. The president has let it be known he will carefully study the reports and may submit them to the treasury department for analysis before he acts.

4 Killed in Plane Crash.

Los Angeles—Four persons were killed when the new cabin monoplane California crashed to the ground at a commercial airport here after beginning an exhibition flight in the presence of hundreds of spectators.

The dead are Osmond Belcher, designer and builder of the plane; his wife, their eight-year-old-son, and Burgess Creeth, who was pilot. All were riding in the plane.

Mrs. Belcher had but a few moments before the accident christened the monoplane.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Worthington—Giving birth to her third set of twins cost the life of the mother, Mrs. Thomas Thompson, a resident of Ransonn township.

Mankato — Andrew J. Rush, former state oil inspector, prominent as a democratic politician, banker and real estate man, died at St. Joseph's hospital here.

Mankato—The first load of winter wheat was brought to the Hubbard Milling company by Fred O. Trus of Mankato. His 14 acre tract will yield 50 bushels to the acre.

Willmar — Despite the general belief that "money is tight" there is more money on deposit in Willmar's three banks at the present time than ever before. The total deposits have reached a mark of $4,280,912.

Clinton—The farm residence of James Fitzharris, south of Barry, was burned to the ground by fire which started from an explosion of an oil stove. Mr. Fitzharris was seriously burned and is at the hospital at Graceville.

Ivanhoe — George Graff, one of the founders of the First National Bank of Ivanhoe in the summer of 1900 and the institution's first cashier, has been elected cashier again after having been engaged in other pursuits the last 16 years.

Stephen—F. A. Green, of Stephen, is one of the 10 men in the state named to supervise warehousing and all affairs of administration by the Minnesota Potato Growers Exchange. Mr. Green has 47 shipping points under his direction in this district.

Minneapolis — Indicted by the Hennepin county grand jury on a charge of first degree manslaughter as the outgrowth of the fatal shooting of Arthur Nelson of Robbinsdale, Patrolman Paul Larson entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before District Judge Montgomery. He was released on bond of $5,000.

Austin—To strike a bridge with his automobile with such force that the impact moved the bridge 6 inches, hurled a flooring plank 20 feet and wrecked the car, and yet escape with a few minor bruises and cuts, was the experience of Stanley Florek of Austin. The car crashed into the bridge, when it struck some loose gravel.

Aitkin—Significant of the changing conditions in this section of Minnesota were shipments made by the Lake Region Co-operative Association. The first carload of poultry ever shipped from Aitkin was sent out, with the second carload of eggs and the first full carload of butter. A second carload of poultry will probably go out soon.

Dover — Bank bandits, two of them believed women, who held this town of 300 in a state of seige for more than an hour, while they exploded six shots of nitroglycerin in an attempt to enter the vault of the First State Bank of Dover, wrecked the interior of the institution, but, according to E. E. Rank, president, failed to obtain anything of value.

Tyler—A survey of the path of the recent hailstorm in southern Lincoln and northern Pipestone counties verified first reports that about 150 farmers suffered loss. Many of them seem to think they should receive assistance from the state calamity fund as well as those who suffered through the recent tornado, and a movement is on foot here to bring the matter to the attention of the state relief board.

Dover—Bandits who blasted their way into the vault of the First State Bank of Dover failed to get as much as one cent, it was disclosed, when a safe expert succeeded in opening the money compartment of the bank's safe. The six charges of explosives which the bandit gang set off wrecked the vault and blew the outer door of the safe off, but failed to open the inner door. When this compartment was opened, approximately $10,000 in cash was found to be intact.

St. Paul—The announcement of a cash balance of $2,694,868 in the state revenue fund at the end of the fiscal year 30, as compared to an overdraft of $497,183 at the beginning of the year, July 1, 1923, makes it certain that the pledges of economy and reduced taxation made in 1920 can be literally redeemed. Governor Preus said in discussing the accomplishments of the state during the past year or two.

St. Cloud—J. C. Crever, St. Cloud banker who has been raising alfalfa on farms owned by him for the last 22 years, reports his alfalfa has averaged him $100 an acre except in the first few years, when he was experimenting with the plant. Mr. Crever at this time has 85 tons of alfalfa stored in one barn, the first cutting from a 28 acre plot. As a pound of alfalfa is rated the equivalent of a pound of bran in animal food value, the 85 tons are held to be worth approximately $2,550.

Lake City — Pearl hunting in Lake Pepin clams received an added impetus when Fred Frost of this city found a pearl appraised at about $1,500. Mr. Frost made his find when he chanced to look through a few clams brought up by a fish net.

Crookston — Plant breeders and pure seed specialists from all counties on the Minnesota side of the Red River valley gathered at the University of Minnesota Northwest Experiment Station. Crookston, to inspect the new grain, corn and soybeans varieties at the station and to discuss pure seed problems.

Faribault—The Minnesota Association of Stationery Engineers opened its fifteenth annual convention here with approximately 300 members and a large number of visitors present.

St. Peter—Pioneers of Nicollet county and grainmen here are unanimous in their verdicts that the 1924 crop now being harvested in this community is the heaviest and finest in 64 years.

Hibbing—Making an ironclad rule and to prevent any misunderstanding the St. Louis County Agricultural Society has gone on record as objecting to any political talks during the county fair in Hibbing.

Windom—"Dodder," a parasitic plant which is among the weeds being fought by the state weed inspectors, has been discovered in several flax fields in Cottonwood county. It is said that in some fields half of the crop will be lost.

Fergus Falls—Hog cholera is reported in this locality and a number of serious losses have been sustained. The Fergus Packing Company ordered serum to vaccinate all of its feeding hogs and numerous farmers will also vaccinate their herds.

Fergus Falls—The organization of an Ottertail County Taxpayers League has been perfected here, with committees named for each of the 63 townships and all villages of the county. Nearly 300 leading citizens are on the committees.

Pine Island—Pine Island will have a new bank with a capital stock of $20,000 and a paid up surplus of $4,000. The following officers and directors were elected: J. A. Bringgold, president; D. C. Sheldon and E. F. Reiter, vicepresidents; Arthur A. Raddatz, cashier; Sam Closner, Edward Walter and C. A. Mellinger, directors.

Duluth—A new railroad company, the Duluth and Port Arthur railroad, is being organized by Robert Waldron of Duluth. This railroad will join the United States and Canadian Twin Ports at the Head of the Great Lakes. Twin City capitalists as well as Duluthians are said to be interested in the new project.

Minneapolis—A. B. Gilbert resigned as state manager of the Nonpartisan League, because, he said, communism has a part in its political activity. Mr. Gilbert announced his resignation following a meeting of the Minnesota Nonpartisan League executive committee, called to indorse candidates in the forthcoming campaign.

Bemidji—Two brothers were killed and a third brother was perhaps fatally hurt when lightning struck them as they were weeding their garden, eight miles east of here. Lloyd Nelson, 12 years old, and his 6 year old brother, Elmer, were killed and Clifford, 13 years old, is in a critical condition at a hospital.

Tracy—Motor caravans, railway trains and horse drawn buggies brought 10,000 citizens to southwestern Minnesota to Tracy to replace 10,000 other visitors who had left behind them $6,000 spent on the first day of the mammoth benefit festival staged by 42 co-operating communities to raise money for the relief of tornado victims.

Austin—Two sets of tentative plans have been offered trustees for the Shaw Memorial Gymnasium for boys, a gift made to the youth of Austin this summer. Construction of the gymnasium, which will also contain club and reading rooms for boys, is to begin by September 1 at a site facing on both Main street and the Horace Austin State park.

Rochester—Traveling in Packards and other cars of the most expensive makes, a party of 35 gipsies stopped and pitched their tents on a piece of land they claimed to have rented. The officers who went to the camp to investigate and then warned the gipsies to move on were met with defiance and were told the unwelcome visitors had brought one of their women here for treatment at the clinic.

Little Falls—Probably the youngest globe trotter that has ever appeared in this city, was here when Betty Rose, 6 years old and her mother, Mrs. Blanche Rose of Pittsburgh, reached Little Falls en route to Seattle. They left Pittsburgh July 13 and although they have been given rides here and there, they have also "done a lot of walking." Little Betty, despite the strenuous daily exercise, is "getting fat" on the trip.

St. Cloud—Tobacco growers of Stearns and adjoining counties are to have a booth this year, for the first time at the Benton county fair, and probably at other fairs. This decision to exhibit followed a conference here at which the growers were assured by J. H. Blattner, who has returned from a trip in Kentucky, that in this section of Minnesota tobacco can be grown even more profitably than in that state.

Minneapolis—Manifesting a desire for first hand information upon every phase of diversified farming including dairy cows, livestock generally and crops of all sorts in order that they may assist the community's new program of balanced agriculture, 700 farmers and business men from the Red River valley will come to the Northwest Dairy Exposition at the Minnesota State Fair in a carvan of 150 cars on August 31 and September 1.

Minneapolis — The cornerstone of the new $460,000 administration building of the University of Minnesota, which is part of the $10,000,000 comprehensive building program, was laid at formal exercises. The structure will house the executive, administrative and business departments of the institution. In a message received from Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University, who was unable to be present for the ceremony, attention was called to the position the new structure will have in providing proper physical facilities for the administrative department of the University.

Half-Pound Sapphires

The largest find of sapphires ever made in Ceylon is reported from Pelmadulla, by way of Colombo. The gems, which were found on a field about two acres in extent, at a depth of from four to fifteen feet, include yellow, gold, purple and blue stones of 20 to 700 carats, some of them weighing as much as half a pound. The owners of the field received five or six rupees for the stones found.

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington — The coast guard cutter Haida has located the American steamer West Jena, disabled and drifting in the waters of the far northern Pacific and advised headquarters that all passengers and the crew were safe. The vessel was in a perilous position when found and is being towed into Dutch Harbor, Alaska.

Washington—Attorney General H. F. Stone has ordered a further inquiry into the gasoline price situation. The report of the federal trade commission on the subject, made at the request of the president, contains the information, Mr. Stone said which warrants a further investigation of the several phases of the problem.

Domestic

Waltonville, Ill.—Bandits robbed the First National Bank here of Liberty Bonds and other securities valued at $30,000 and $37 in cash, and escaped.

Boston—Plans were made for a reception to greet the return to home soil of the world circling fliers, due at Boston two weeks hence.

San Jose, Calif.—A. L. Mulford of Hollywood, automobile race pilot, was injured fatally when his car crashed through the fence in a race here, rolled into the ditch and burst into flames. Mulford died an hour later.

Norfolk, Va.—A checkup of the list of excursionists aboard the steamer Gratitude when she foundered off Craney Island in Norfolk harbor, confirmed early reports that no lives were lost.

Philadelphia—Two women, a man and a boy, were killed, and six persons were injured, five seriously, when a Reading train crashed into an automobile at a crossing at Willow Grove park on the outskirts of the city.

Lapeer, Mich. — Sheriff's posses led by E. F. Hackman of Dowagiac, are searching for the man believed to be responsible for the murder of his daughter, Mrs. Blanche Burke, 28-year-old widow, whose body was found here.

Cotuit, Mass. — William Lowell Putnam of Boston, brother-in-law of A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard university, died on a raft while a guest at the latter's summer home. He had been bathing alone. Mr. Putnam, an attorney, was 73 years old.

Crawfordsville, Ark.—Two men and a woman were killed when the airplane in which they were making an exhibition flight over this village fell 1,500 feet to earth. The dead: Barney Schull, 26, Laurel, Miss., pilot; Charles Hedrick, 26, Lulu, Miss.; Miss Audrey Cates, 19, Vincent, Ark.

New York—Baron Adelbert Von Gontard, grandson of Adolphus Busch, millionaire St. Louis brewer, was married her to Baroness Suzanne Von Schilling after he had been prevented by a United States law from marrying his financee on board the steamship George Washington at quarantine.

Chicago—A murder a day was committed in Chicago in June and July, according to a report of the Chicago crime commission, which is making arrangements for a conference for the formation of an "anticrime council." There have been 205 murders here in the first 213 days of the year, the report said.

New York—A memorial tablet to Captain John Ericsson, inventor of the ironclad Monitor, which revolutionized naval warfare, was unveiled at the site of Ericsson's home. The tablet also commemorated Cornelius S. Bushnell John A. Griswold and J. F. Winslow, whose financial and technical aid helped carry out Captain Ericsson's plans.

Philadelphia—Twelve persons, including a navy lieutenant, three enlisted men and eight civilian workmen, were scalded by steam and boiling water when a feed line burst in the evaporating room of the destroyer-tender Dobbin at the Philadelphia navy yard. Lieutenant L. E. Austin, engineer officer of the Dobbin, proved himself a hero, receiving burns on the hands and arms as he groped his way through the scalding mist and shut off the steam.

Detroit, Mich.—Henry Ford may enter the race for the republican nomination for United States senator from Michigan, according to a report received from Washington in a semi-official way by a high state official, says a special dispatch from Lansing to the Detroit Free Press. The Free Press correspondent assigns as a reason why the automobile manufacturer may run for the nomination that President Coolidge and national leaders of the republican party are dissatisfied with the present line up in the senatorial race in Michigan. In 1918 Henry Ford was the candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator and was defeated by Truman H. Newberry.

Providence, R. I.—Details of the Rhode Island senate bomb plot on June 19 last, when a chlorine gas bomb was exploded in the senate chamber in an effort to break up a filibuster against the bill calling for a constitutional referendum, are to be brought out before a special grand jury.

New York—One of the functions which will mark the retirement to private life of General J. J. Pershing this fall will be a banquet in his honor by the Government club. Mrs. George E. Owens, president of the club, stated that 1,200 reservations had been made for the banquet.

New York—Edward Henry Peple, playwright, author of "The Littlest Rebel," "A Pair of Sixes" and other successful plays, is dead here of heart disease.

Sports

New York—Luis Angel Firpo and Harry Wills have been insured by Lloyds for $50,000 each, with Tex Rickard, promoter of their coming match, the beneficiary. The policies will protect Rickard against loss in case the bout scheduled for September fails to come off. Firpo plans to leave for his training camp at Saratoga.

Paris—The American Olympic team which sailed for home carried with it one-third of all the medals and trophies given in the various events of the big event. American athletes, winner of the combined Olympic events with 94 points, won 98 of the 361 medals given out to the first three places in all events. France finished second with 64 points, making a strong finish to nose out Great Britain, Sweden and Finland. The United States won eight champions, all in major events such as track and field, rowing, swimming, tennis, boxing, wrestling, target shooting and rugby.

Boston — Johnny Wilson of Boston, former middleweight champion, knocked out Jock Malone of St. Paul in the sixth round of a 10-round fight at Brave's field, before a crowd of more than 20,000, by far the largest crowd that ever attended a bout in this city. The sudden, unsatisfactory finish came in the middle of the sixth round, when Malone's knees sagged and he sank to the floor and claimed a foul, which Referee Joe O'Connor would not allow. Wilson's final shot was a left hook to the pit of the stomach.

Foreign

Berlin—The Russo-German dispute which has been hanging fire since Russian trade headquarters were raided by German police several months ago has been amicably adjusted.

Vienna—All Vienna turned out Sunday to march in or witness an anti-war demonstration. The parade was most imposing, with 300,000 persons in line.

Berlin—The Shubert theatre agent announces that the Shuberts have cancelled their plans to produce revues and buy or build theatres in Germany, owing to attacks in the press.

Her Neighbor's Advice Helped Mrs. Frick

MRS. ADA FRICK
PERRYSBURG, OHIO

"YOU can be just as healthy, strong and happy as I am,' said one woman to her neighbor after listening to the description of her ailments,—'if you will take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My condition was very similar to yours, I suffered from those awful bearing down pains, weakness, backache, nervousness and headaches until I could hardly drag around. Today I am strong, well and happy because I followed the advice of a friend who had been greatly benefited by this old-fashioned root and herb medicine."

Nearly fifty years ago Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass. prepared from medicinal roots and herbs Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Its fame has spread from shore to shore. You will now find in every community or neighborhood some woman who has been restored to health by its use, or has some friend who has. Therefore ask your neighbor.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials such as the following are on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., and prove the merit of this medicine. Therefore no woman should continue to suffer from such ailments:

Mrs. Frick Tells of Her Experience

PERRYSBURG, OHIO—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a neighbor and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles and she took the Vegetable Compound and it helped her. So then I went and got some and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see a woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ADA FRICK, R. Many Feet of Lumber in This Forest King

The Pacific slope is noted the world over for its magnificent forests. These consist for the most part of conifers —pine, cedar, hemlock, spruce and other species—of which many attain enormous size and tower aloft for hundreds of feet.

Not long ago a giant yellow fir was found in Oregon by loggers working at Bling slough. This venerable king of the forest was felled and the butt section placed on an iron platform car. The tree was perfectly sound throughout.

The log was 28 feet long, 110 inches in diameter at the butt and 95 inches in diameter at the upper end. It weighed more than 23 tons, and contained 12,000 feet of lumber, board measure. The tree from which it was cut was 431 years old, and rose to a height of 200 feet without a limb. Seven sections of this tree which were logged yielded together 40,000 feet of lumber. The log was cut into first-class flooring and sold at a good price.

Did Seem Peculiar

Girl friend bought a slip-on, which, as cognoscenti know, is the filmy thing a lady gets into first. Then she went to a theater and lost the package. Called up the manager.

"Was anything found in Box A after the matinee?" she asked.

"Don't know," said the manager. "I'll inquire. What was it?"

Girl friend blushed unseen at the other end of the wire. Then she stammered:

"It—it was a slip-on."

"I'll ask," said the manager. "But how in the name of Mike did you manage to lose it?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Snake and Ape Pals

The Damon and Pythias of a traveling show are a 20-foot constrictor and a 20-pound ape. The two spend hours together in the same cage, and although it would be easy for the snake to crush and swallow the little simian, they always are on the most amiable terms. The ape pulls the snake's tail, beats the monster's head and tries to catch the red, needle-like tongue as it darts in and out—all in fun, of course.

Citation for Hearing on Final Account and for Distribution.

Estate of E. Beverly Walden.

State of Minnesota, County of Marshall, in Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of E. Beverly Walden, Decedent:

The State of Minnesota to Madeleine K. Walden and to all persons interested in the final account and distribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this Court his final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent together with his petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled;

Therefore, You, and Each of You, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this Court at the Probate Court Rooms in the City of Warren, in the County of Marshall, State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of September, 1924, at 2 o'clock P. M., why said petition should not be granted.

Witness, the Judge of said Court, and the Seal of said Court, this 5th day of August, 1924.

(Court Seal) PETER H. HOLM, Probate Judge.

THEO. QUALE, Attorney for Petitioner.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a power of sale, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative, and the assignee of the mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Torger Nilson Borgen, a single man, Mortgagor, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated January 19th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 17,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Carl W. Mason, by written assignment dated February 17, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 303,

And, whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of One Hundred Two and 17-100 Dollars ($102.17); and whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars, ($450.00), with accumulated interest from the 19th day of January, 1922, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

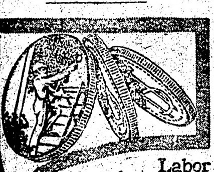
The Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 9th day of September, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees stipulated as attorney's fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 18, 1924.

CARL W. MASON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

W. J. SMITH,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee,
Morgan Block, Winona, Minn.



Labor —that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

Let us tell you more about this cut-cost paint.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On Investing in Mortgages

"Aunt Emmy, what do you think of mortgages as investments?" asked Ethel.

"First mortgages, generally speaking, are sound investments, but not all first mortgages are good," Aunt Emmy replied. "You must exercise care and discretion. If you know all about the property, or if you are dealing with a financial concern that has a reputation for success and honesty, you should be safe. But it is well to seek advice before investing. Go to your bank, talk the whole thing over and be guided by their advice. Real estate transactions are tricky. Better be safe than sorry. If there is any question as to party walls or if the building on property should be even a few inches over the lot line, you would undoubtedly have trouble.

"Even guaranteed mortgages should not be bought on faith. Never buy a mortgage without knowing the value of the real estate it covers and of the property in the vicinity. Be sure a good lawyer looks out for your interest. With your small capital there is too much risk in buying without every safeguard.

"Remember that taxes and insurance must be paid regularly when they are due. You must know that they are paid, and remember, too, that the property you lend money on should be worth considerably more than you are lending."

"What about second mortgages, Aunty, don't they earn more than first mortgages?" inquired Ethel.

"Sometimes they do. Second mortgages are good investments under certain conditions. But it is not advisable for an investor of limited means to buy them. In case the first mortgage should be foreclosed, the holder of the second mortgage should be in a position to protect his interests by being able to buy the first mortgage. That means you would have to have money on hand."

"Oh, Aunty," exclaimed Ethel, "you rather frighten me about mortgages."

"No, my dear, don't feel that way," said Aunt Emmy. "It's all a matter of care and knowledge of conditions. Even if you don't know about them yourself, you can protect yourself by taking the advice of your bankers. Don't trust too much to your own judgment."—ANNE B. AYMES.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

Is your DeLaval separator in good running order?

IF it isn't, then you may be losing butter-fat and shortening the life of the machine; and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it isn't the fault of the machine but due to the fact that it needs attention, adjustment, cleaning, or the replacement of some part.

Bring in your De Laval Separator to us and we will put it in first-class running order. Bring in the complete machine, and in order to save expense clean out the oil chamber and gears with kerosene or boiling water. You can do this just as well as we can.

Mrs. Sam Mickelson

God in His infinite wisdom has called from this life unto the life eternal, one of the good women of Holt, Mrs. Marit Mickelson, the beloved wife of Sam Mickelson, passed away at 4:50 o'clock, P. M., Aug. 9th, 1924, at her home in Holt, at the age of 56 years, 3 months and 5 days.

Marit Storholm was born in Romsdahlen, Norway, May 4, 1868, where she was baptized and confirmed in the Norwegian Lutheran church. She emigrated to America, and came to Crookston, Minnesota, where she was married to Sam Mickelson, on Sept. 11th. 1897, by Rev. Hilmen.

They lived in Crookston, Minn., six years, after which they moved to Randen, Marshall County, Minn., and lived on a homestead there for six years. They then moved to Middle River where they kept a hotel for one year, joining the Lutheran Congregation at that place.

They moved to Holt, Minn., in 1910 where they have since resided. Here they also joined the Lutheran Congregation.

Mrs. Mickelson was a woman who was loved and esteemed by all who knew her. It was in her own family circle and in the rearings of her children that she took the greatest interest, and there also she will be missed the most, but it is not for us to question the ways of God, who doeth all things for the best. Mrs. Mickelson has made the great gain, she kept the faith and won the crown.

The bereaved husband and daughters, also two sisters and a brother were at the bedside when she passed away.

She leaves to mourn her death the husband, Sam Mickelson, three daughters, Amanda and Olive Mickelson, and Mrs. Stella Burtness, all of Holt, Minn., three sisters, Mrs. Robt. Mulhollend and Mrs. M. T. Olson, of Crookston, Minn., Mrs. J. I. Longley of Colorado Springs, Colo., two brothers, O. G. Storholm of Thief River Falls, Minn., and Hans Storholm of Crookston, Minn, also two grand children, Marcella and Raymond Olson, of Holt, Minn.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 12th. from the Holt Lutheran Church, and was conducted by Rev. Ordahl and Rev. Raaum, and was largely attended. She will be greatly missed by all who mourn her, by her many friends and by the Lutheran Church and Ladies Aid, where she took an active part as long as she had strength to work. Many beautiful floral offerings were sent as tributes of esteem by loving friends. The remains of Mrs. Mickelson were laid away to rest in the Holt Cemetery, until the morn of resurrection. Peace to her memory.

Relatives and friends from out of town who attended the funeral were; Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Mulhollend, Mrs. M. T. Olson, Hans and Elery Storholm and Mr. and Mrs. Gunder Mickelson of Crookston, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Sorholm and family, Mrs. H. Safford, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Rolland, Mr. and Mrs. O. Erickson of Thief River Falls.

The News extends sincere sympathy to the family and relatives of the deceased.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who so kindly assisted us during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother, for the beautiful floral offerings, the music rendered by the quartette, and the comforting words of Rev. Ordahl and Rev. Raaum.

Lansing, Mich.—Appointment of Dr. C. M. Carson, as acting president of the Michigan College of Mines, Houghton, Mich., was approved by the state administrative board. He will be in office until a successor to Dr. F. W. McNair is named.

Danville, Ill.—Eight labor union locals, some of their officials and other individuals were named as defendants in a $100,000 damage suit filed in the federal court here by Miss Isabel Russell, Cape Girardeau, Mo., as an aftermath of the Herrin trials.

Cleveland—Harold A. Kullberg, 28 years old, one of the best known airplane pilots in the country and who during the World war, as a lieutenant in the British Royal Flying corps, bagged 14 German planes, and Henry Dunker, 34 years old, Hudson, Ohio, were killed when a commercial airplane in which they were flying went into a nose dive and crashed 2,000 feet.

Fort Worth—Although an application for a writ of habeas corpus was denied Dr. Frederick A. Cook by Federal District Judge James C. Wilson here, attorneys for the former explorer and oil promoter, said they would not abandon their efforts to obtain his release on bail bond pending final action on his appeal from a prison sentence of 14 years and nine months.

New York—Twenty-five thousand dollars were appropriated at the preconvention meeting of the supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus, to the disabled American veterans of the World war. The money is to be used by the veterans' organization in maintaining its compensation liaison service. The convention proper opened with a solemn high mass at St. Patrick's cathedral.

Chicago—The twenty-fourth arrest in the $1,500,000 Union station mail robbery of 1921, was announced here, when a postal inspector left for Detroit, Mich., where Samuel H. Dodson, former Chicago bond salesman, is being held for the robbery. Only one more person is wanted in connection with the theft, and trial of the 25 suspects will be started in Federal Court here in September or October, federal officers said.

New Orleans—Four men are dead as a result of being overcome here by gas in a sewer and four other persons, engaged in rescue work, were prostrated by heat.

Detroit, Mich.—An unidentified man believed by police to have been one of a quartet of bandits who robbed a branch of the Continental Bank here and shot and killed Patrolman William G. Ashworth, was found in a vacant building in one of the residential districts. The man's body was found about half a mile from where the police found abandoned the automobile used by the bandits.

Philadelphia—Dr. George Arthur Pierson, professor emeritus of anatomy, histology and embryology at the University of Pennsylvania, and a leading authority on anatomy and diseases of the spine and brain, died at his home here.

Sports

East Bourne, Eng.—The Oxford-Cambridge lawn tennis team defeated the Harvard-Yale team, 15 matches to 6, in the annual meeting of the British and American universities concluded here. The English university men swept to victory by taking eight of the nine double matches.

Chicago—The action of the Chicago White Sox club in suspending Pitcher Ted Blankenship was sustained by Baseball Commissioner Landis, to whom the player brought his case. He was advised to make amends to Manager Evers. Blankenship was indefinitely suspended because of his lack of discipline, the latter part of June.

Stamford Bridge, England—Great Britain scored a decisive victory, with 56 points, in the Women's International athletic meeting held here. More than 20,000 persons watched the competitions, which were participated in by women athletes from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland and Czecho-Slovakia. France won second place with 24 points and Belgium third with 15.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—Luis Firpo has crashed into another peck of trouble, but this time his row happens to be with a flock of Yankee fighters, and the war is on for fair. Seems that Firpo, who is to fight Harry Wills in Jersey City September 11, blew into Tom Luther's White Sulphur Springs place the other day to do some training stunts for the Wills fuss has announced that if there were any gate receipts in sight he was to get the whole works.

Rome—To satisfy public opinion which was convinced that Deputy Matteotti was buried secretly in a Rome public cemetery, four graves were opened in the presence of authorities and journalists. The bodies were examined, but all present were convinced that none was Signor Matteotti. A regular pilgrimage of working people has been taking place in the last few days to one of these graves, and flowers laid.

FIRE DESTROYS U. S. ARSENAL

45,000,000 Pounds Of Powder Lost In Disaster At Nashville

Nashville, Tenn.—Forty-five million pounds of powder were destroyed by fire at the old Hickory powder plant near here Monday.

The loss, estimated by government officials, is more than $2,000,000 present valuation, or $28,000,000 war-time value.

The powder was manufactured for the federal government during the war at a cost of more than $5,000,000 were destroyed by the flames, which swept over an area of 40 acres in the heart of the plant, the total war-time cost of the property and powder destroyed was estimated to be more than $28,000,000.

50 Buildings Destroyed

Fifty factory buildings, owned by the Nashville Industrial corporation, most of which were rented by the government for storage of powder, were consumed in the conflagration. The factory machinery was the property of the government.

The fire was declared to be the greatest single loss suffered by the government since the World war, and was rated as one of the most destructive incidents in the history of government munitions plants.

Records Destroyed.

The government office and all surveillance records of powder and inventories were destroyed. Although great importance was attached to the inventories, it is believed that duplicates are on file in the war department at Washington.

No dangerous explosions occurred. Several thousand rounds of small arms ammunition were ignited, but the bullets spent their force against the brick walls.

ATTACKS HULBERT'S THEORY

Alienist in Hearing Put Through Stiff Examination.

Chicago.—The state Monday attacked the theory of functional disorders of the endocrine glands set up Saturday by the defense in its plea for mitigation of punishment of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., for kidnaping and murdering Bobby Franks.

The idea of functional disorders of the endocrine glands was built up by direct testimony of Dr. H. S. Hulbert, of Chicago, fourth of the defense alienists, who used X-ray pictures to illustrate what he termed various glandular disorders, noting the thyroid, pineal, pituitary and adrenals.

Mr. Crowe sought to impeach the testimony of Dr. Hulbert by bringing out that the mental pathologist had been "too busy" to make some of his numerous tests and had relied on the words of others. The witness testified that he never had in "many" murder cases made such extensive examinations and tests as in the present case.

Mr. Crowe's delving into the endocrine gland theory were cut short by the noon recess. It was indicated that the defense would rest its case soon after completing of the testimony of Dr. Hulbert and that the state would begin presentation of its long list of rebuttal witnesses, including four alienists.

FLIGHT OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

Flier's Supply Ship Breaks Loose From Ice Pack.

Reykjavik, Iceland.—The supply ship Gertrud Rask, whose imprisonment in an ice pack off Angmaksalik, on the east coast of Greenland, has been an important factor in delaying continuation of the round the world flight of the American army officers, broke free from the ice Monday, Major Clarence E. Crumrine reported to the aviators.

The Gertrud Rask was unable to resume its attempt to reach Angmagsalik to prepare at that place a base for the next lap of the round the world flight.

In a statement Admiral Magruder said it was doubtful if Angmagsalik could be used as a base by the scout planes which are being carried by the cruisers Raleigh and Richmond to explore the coast.

No Intention to End Flight.

There is no question of calling off the American army world flight because of ice conditions around the shore of Greenland, according to a statement issued on board the cruiser Richmond, flagship of the convoying squadron. In the opinion of Rear Admiral Magruder, commander of the squadron, the flight will be completed successfully, barring possible accidents or unforeseen adverse weather.

Exhibits Will Be Shown.

Fargo, N. D.—About 15 exhibits of grain and other agricultural products grown in all parts of the state will be taken to the American Legion convention in St. Paul, September 15 to 19, by several project trainees of the United States Veterans' bureau in North Dakota, C. T. Hoverson, manager of the Fargo district office, has announced. The bureau lacks funds for the purpose of financing the trip and will rely on local enthusiasm in the various communities to supply the necessary funds, Mr. Hoverson said.

PARIS O. K.'S PARLEY ACT

Collegues' Approval Of Herriot Action Is Unanimous Following Night Session

Paris.—Unanimous approval has been given by the cabinet to the action of Premier Herriot and his colleagues at the London reparations conference.

This was announced at the conclusion of the special cabinet council at 1:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

A communique issued shortly after the cabinet council adourned says:

"The ministerial council was acquainted with what was done at the London conference and agreed unanimously to give its full approbation. Consequently M. Herriot, Clementel, and General Nolett will leave Paris for London Sunday."

Despite the communique stating that the cabinet fully approved the course pursued in the London negotiations and the plans that M. Herriot, M. Clementel, and General Nollet will follow upon their return to the conference, newspaper editorials were somewhat less optinistic.

The Echo De Paris predicts stormy days ahead and reproaches Premier Herriot for having totally ignored his predecessor's program.

L'Eclair holds that M. Herriot is responsible for the present quandry.

Le Rappel says that the Anglo Saxons are combining against the Latins and France.

The Figaro declares that Marshal Foch undoubtedly expressed his views on the question of the Ruhr and that whoever disregards these assumes a grave responsibility.

It is expected that the London conference will close its work by the end of the coming week.

DEATH RAY NOT SO DEADLY

Colleague of Inventor Says It Is Little More Than Trick.

Berlin.—Grindell Matthews' "death rays" aren't deadly at all, according to A. Roberts, alleged colleague of the British inventor.

Roberts, speaking before a technical organization in Hamburg, revealed in part the workings of the death ray machine, showing that it was little more than "trick" appratus.

A series of lights, with quartz lenses, produced the death rays, according to Roberts, but these rays are no more serious than any physicist could produce in any laboratory. And he indicated that the apparatus would not suffice to bring down airplanes.

In connection with his demonstration Roberts showed other apparatuses, which at first sight, appeared to exert almost supernatural forces. For instance, Roberts whistled and an automobile moved toward him. He whistled again and the machine turned to the right. Then he whistled a third time and the machine turned to the left.

The phenmenon was, however, quite simple. The sound waves struck a membrane which caused a break in the current and caused the automobile to start. Then a sharper whistle generated a different current which directed the steering gear.

STANDARD CUTS DIVIDENDS

Overproduction and Large Storage Is Reason.

Neodesha, Kan.—No further dividends will be paid on the common stock of the Standard Oil Company of Kansas during the remainder of this year, officials of the company announced here Saturday.

Reasons given for the action were that there had been an over production of crude oil and gasoline, resulting in a large amount of storage. As a result, officials of the company declared, panic-stricken mid-continent refiners were throwing their gasoline on the market at prices below the cost of manufacture.

Directors of the company assert that the middleman and ultimate consumer have profited by these conditions at the expense of the refiners.

Mexico Favors U. S. Oil Men.

New York.—Assurances that his administration would not be hostile to American oil companies and other interests operating in Mexico were given by General Plutarco Elias Calles, president-elect of Mexico, upon his departure for Europe on the Deutschland. "I am absolutely in favor of oil companies owning property in Mexico," General Calles said, "and there will be no disposition on the part of my administration when it takes office to take over the property of any American oil company. We welcome American capital as well as other capital in the development of Mexico."

Ford Will Not Accept.

South Sudbury, Mass.—Henry Ford, resting at his wayside inn here, Saturday declared he would not become a candidate for the United States senate, even in the face of reports from Lansing, Mich., that he had become an involuntary candidate for the Republican nomination when petitions containing sufficient signatures to place his name on the primary ballot September 9, were filed with the secretary of state. Mr. Ford was emphatic in his declaration, "I am not a candidate and will not be one."

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Chatfield—J. J. Schrader, of Orion township, has a white woodchuck which he trapped on his farm last week. The animal is all white except for two black spots.

Duluth—Dr. E. L. Tuohy, of Duluth, was elected president of the Northern Minnesota Medical Association at the closing session here of the two day annual conference.

Windom—While drilling a well near Okabena, two veins of coal were encountered. One vein two feet thick was struck at a depth of 60 feet from the surface and another vein was struck at a depth of 68 feet.

Faribault—Old St. Mary's hall, the main building at St. Mary's Episcopal School for Girls here, was destroyed by fire after lightning had struck the room of the structure. School authorities said the loss would approximate $150,000 with insurance of $100,000 It is expected that the structure will be rebuilt.

Hokah—Ed Selke has revived navigation on the Root river between Hokah and the Mississippi river. A steamboat has not made a trip from La Crosse to Hokah for many years, but Selke is running a powerboat on this old creek with all the assurance and safety that marked the passage of the steamers.

St. Paul—Overturning of a Minneapolis-St. Paul bus resulted in the injury of four persons and 15 others being shaken and bruised when the bus was struck by a street car. The accident was one of a series of week-end accidents reported to the police of the Twin Cities in which two children were killed and a total of 17 persons injured.

Park Rapids—The Minnesota Power and Light Company has purchased the electric power plant will opearte it as by L. Z. Rice and will operate it as part of the Little Falls and Cuyuna division. The plant is partly hydroelectric, developing 200 horsepower and generating both alternating and direct current.

Duluth—A resolution protesting against the closing of the partridge and deer season in Minnesota, was unanimously adopted at the monthly meeting of the Northwestern Gun Club. A committee of three was appointed to telegraph Governor J. A. O. Preus protesting against the closed season.

Austin—Two sets of tentative plans have been offered trustees for the Shaw Memorial Gymnasium for boys, a gift made to the youth of Austin this summer. Construction of the gymnasium, which will also contain club and reading rooms for boys, is to begin by September 1 at a site facing on both Main street and the Horace Austin State park.

Duluth—Stipulations for judgments in 12 fire cases brought by residents of Carlton county against the government for losses sustained in the forest fires of October, 1918, were signed here by Federal Judge W. A. Cant. By obtaining the final settlement of the cases, only 12 cases of more than 250 originally on the federal court docket remain for trial.

Mankato—Blue Earth County Cow Testing Associations No. 2 and No. 1, topped the 80 associations of the state for the month of June, according to returns received by L. E. McMillen, county agent. Blue Earth County Association No. 2 led the field in June. Three hundred and fifteen cows were tested, the average milk production being 920 pounds per cow and the average butter fat 35.7 pounds.

Minneapolis—The identity of Arthur Frazier, Indian World war veteran, was further confused when the Veterans' bureau received a report from University of Minnesota experts, showing that the measurements of the body at Niobrara, Neb., compare favorably with War department records and that they differ from the measurements of the living man, who has been accepted by the Frazier parents as their son.

Zumbra Heights—Out of 75,000 trials, the University of Minnesota fruit breeding experiment station at Zumbra Heights, Lake Minnetonka, is hoping to make the one success that will double the strawberry production of Minnesota. In 1911, 75,000 seedlings were grown from crosses of June bearing strawberries with the everbearing kind. By scores, by dozens, and singly, year by year, since, these seedlings have been discarded until only a few remain.

Mankato—As the result of recent threshing on various Blue Earth county farms, leaders in farm bureau work are claiming it is the champion wheat raising county of Minnesota. Latest and best of the returns so far made is that of Edward Tarjeson, a farmer eight miles south of Mankato. He asserts, and his neighbors back his assertion, that on a fraction over eight acres of wheat he got 70 bushels to the acre of the finest and heaviest grain seen this season.

Hibbing — Drastic cuts are to be made at once in the number of employees on the payrolls of the village and the school board, in order to keep within the per capita limitation.

St. James—Mrs. Bertha Johnson was the guest of honor on her 90th birthday at a family reunion. All her surviving children and their families were present to the number of 84.

Willmar—The dancing pavilion at Kandiyohi Beach will be closed Sunday hereafter as the result of action taken by Sheriff Peter Bonde. Sheriff Bonde has also placed a ban on girls smoking cigarets at the hall.

Tracy—Improvement which it is estimated will cost $10,000 has been commenced on the First Presbyterian church building here.

Faribault—The Minneost Association of Stationery Engineers opened its fifteenth annual convention here with approximately 300 members and a large number of visitors present.

Austin—Members of the Austin Boy Scout band are preparing for the trip to the state fair, where the band will play from Sept. 1 to 4. The band will carry 41 musicians and will be directed by James Prevratil, local scout executive.

Austin—Miss Mary Lacock of Spring Valley was appointed home agent for Mower county at a meeting of county club leaders here.

Hibbing — Fred Gorham, Virginia, was awarded the contract to erect the Memorial Recretational building here at a meeting of the village council. The bid, which was $233,732, includes the cost for the painting of the building.

Ortonville—Farmers and business men from the counties of Big Stone, Traverse, Stevens and Grant will motor to the Minnesota State Fair and its Northwest Dairy Exposition in an automobile caravan that is expected to outnumber any other being organized over the state.

Garden City—"Those fellows could make better wages at honest work," said the agent of an elevator company here when he found that burglars had broken into the office and got nothing for their trouble. The agent at the Omaha depot agreed with him, when he found that the burglars had also entered his office and after breaking the money drawer got just $4.25.

St. Cloud—Edwin Leonard Lindell, of Minneapolis, bearer of the Croix de Guerre, was elected commander of the American Legion, Minnesota department, at the closing session here. Mrs. Milton E. Spencer of Winona, was elected department president of the auxiliary, which like the legion, has been in session here.

Case Lake—Two men are dead and a third is probably fatally injured as a result of a demented man's murderous expedition in this vicinity. The dead are Charles Richards of this city and N. J. Lindberg, the maniac, of Portland, Ore. The injured man is Roy Jondahl, also of this city, who has bullet wounds in his groin and his abdomen.

St. Cloud—A coroner's jury investigating the killing of Jake Dimler by City Detective Berg exonerated Berg of all blame. In the testimony it was revealed that Berg found Dimler trying to force an entrance into a residence and when called upon to stop, tried to get away. The bullet which actually killed Dimler is thought to have first hit the ground and then glanced upwards striking Dimler.

St. Paul—A program to double the originally contemplated output at the new Twin City plant of the Ford Motor company and increase the number of workmen from 3,500 to 7,000, will be taken up at conferences. The enlarged program is to be carried out early next year in the main manufacturing plant, under construction at the high dam as the first unit in a $10,000,000 Twin City Ford enterprise.

Dover—Bandits who blasted their way into the vault of the First State Bank of Dover failed to get as much as one cent, it was disclosed, when a safe expert succeeded in opening the money compartment of the bank's safe. The six charges of explosives which the bandit gang set off wrecked the vault and blew the outer door of the safe off, but failed to open the inner door. When this compartment was opened, approximately $10,000 in cash was found to be intact.

Hibbing—"Yes, we have some bananas," is the revised version of the popular song sung by members of the local park board. Among the greatest attractions here at this time are the Hibbing village greenhouses, where the banana trees hold the attention of visitors. One of the trees is in bloom, while another has ripe fruit on it. Tourists are especially interested in the tropical trees and about all of them make it a point to visit the greenhouses.

Moorhead—Expenditure of several million dollars to extend the beet sugar industry into this section as a means of helping the farmers work out their financial difficulties, is assured, providing the government retains it present policy. A. E. Carlton of Colorado Springs, president of the Holly Sugar Corporation, third largest beet sugar company in the United States with factories in California, Idaho, Wyoming, and Colorado, announces this development will be handled by a new corporation with a capital of several million dollars.

St. Cloud—Practically all of the equipment and furniture for the new veterans hospital is now stored in the basement of the buildings, and it will be installed as soon as Dr. Hans Hansen of Logan, Iowa, the medical officer, arrives. Dr. George Rice, who has been appointed executive officer, and who is here awaiting orders to assume his duties, expressed himself as highly pleased with the buildings and the equipment, which he declared is the latest and best to be had. Announcement was also made that the hospital would be opened about September 15.

Crookston—Nels T. Wold, Polk county soldier who won the congressional medal of honor and for whom the American Legion post is named, is to have his memory perpetuated in a memorial to be erected at Winger, in Polk county, where he was born. A committee is now busy gathering funds for the monument.

Red Lake Falls—Lightning struck the Red Lake Falls Milling company elevator here causing a fire which destroyed the building, with $12,000 loss, fully covered by insurance. Prompt work kept the blaze from spreading to oil tanks of the Standard Oil

HOW THIS WOMAN GOT STRENGTH

Put Up 300 Quarts Fruit, 500 Glasses Jelly and Took Care of Four Children

Norwalk, Iowa.—"I have been meaning for some time to write and tell you how much good your medicine has done me. When I started to take it I was almost bed fast and would have been in bed all the time if I had had any one to care for my children. There was so much swelling and pain that I could hardly take a step. I took seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and found that so healing. I am not entirely well yet for I was in bad shape when I started your medicine, but I am so much better that I am not afraid to recommend it, and I think if I keep on taking it, it will cure me. I have done my work all alone this summer, caring for four children, and I canned 300 quarts of fruit and made 500 glasses of jelly, so you see I must be better. I feel pretty good all the time and I am glad to tell others about the medicine."—Mrs. C. J. WENNERMARK, Box 141, Norwalk, Iowa.

Women can depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve them from female troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Sightseeing Not Mr. Jones' Real Incentive

Doctor Brougher was speaking on the Christian spirit. "In many ways," he argued, "it has improved. On the whole, the human race is living more as I believe Christ would have us. Our hospitals and other charitable institutions attest to an ever-increasing thought for the unfortunate.

"Yet there is another class, in the minority, I trust, which has become what the boys call 'hard-boiled,' like Mr. Jones.

"'I bought a car the other day,' Jones proudly told a friend.

"'Ah,' exclaimed the other, you couldn't resist the lure of Bear valley and Santa Barbara and all the other great attractions of southern California.'

"'That's not why I bought a car,' denied Jones. 'You can always go to those places on a stage. The real reason I bought it was to have the pleasure of not inviting the Smiths to ride with me when I see them.'"—Los Angeles Times.

Commands Clashed

Little Billy was visiting his grandmother and she was doing her best to give the small boy a good time.

The morning after his arrival she called one of the neighbor's children over to play with him.

"There, now," remarked grandma, in her kindliest tone. "You two can have a good time together."

But the two boys merely stared at each other across the room and grandma could not quite understand it.

"Come, now, children," she said, "Go on out into the garden, Billy, and strike an acquaintance."

"But, grandma," complained the little boy, "mother told me just before I came away not to fight."

Society in Caveland

Stonehammer—I saw Mrs. Bonechisel goin' home from the afternoon tea with hardly any clothes on her. Is that a new style she's settin'?

His Wife—No. She merely had bad luck at bridge.

Those who praise themselves always blame others.

Summer Find You Miserable?

It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, throbbing backache, and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness and kidney irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A North Dakota Case

Elisha Stockwell, R. F. D. 3, Beach, N. Dak., says: "I was taken with kidney trouble and my back became very painful. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Hearing about Doan's Pills being such a good kidney medicine, I decided to try them. My kidneys became regular and the backache has never troubled me since."

"But what in thunder does it mean? Why should a destroyer follow us? What nationality is she?"

Lord George shook his head doubtfully. "She looks Danish built," he said. "We don't build that model in England."

"But—but—"

"We'll find out soon enough. Don't worry!" returned the Englishman grimly. His affected mode of speech had almost disappeared. He reached out and tore a long branch from a nearby tree. "Got anything that will do for a flag?" he asked.

No one answered. The others had listened in silence, uncomprehending, and apparently not knowing what to do or say. Even Lord George's transformation did not move them to speech. His lordship did not wait for an answer. He snapped a handkerchief from his pocket and deftly bound it to the branch, which he had stripped of twigs and leaves. Then slipping well forward, he began to wave it to and fro.

With bated breath the others watched. All understood that he was trying to signal. The question was whether he could attract the attention of those on the El Rio.

He did. Obviously they were keeping good watch. Scarcely had he begun to wave when an answering gleam of white began to move on the El Rio's deck.

"Good!" Lord George's tone showed intense satisfaction. He began to wave his flag to right and left, spelling out the message he wished to send. "A destroyer is lying behind—" he began. Then he dropped the flag and caught up his glasses. "Good Lord!" he cried.

He did not need the glasses. Even with the naked eye, all had seen the flash and puff on the deck of the El Rio and had seen the holder of the flag drop it and topple from the bridge to the deck. All saw the flashes and puffs that followed and saw the dozen dark figures that raced along the El Rio's deck. And all heard the faint, far-off reports that rose from the vessel to the mountainside.

"What is it What is it?" In uncontrollable excitement Bess cried out. "What are they attacking us for?"

Collins spun around. "The destroyer isn't attacking us," he rasped. "It's a mutiny. Our men have mutinied. They've been preparing for it. That's why they marooned us today. That's why that scoundrel Price gave us all those canned goods."

CHAPTER XI

Springing a Trap

Captain Bunker strode up and down on the bridge of the El Rio till the boat with the adventurers disappeared into the cleft on the line of cliffs. As it passed out of sight he heaved a sigh of relief.

Captain Bunker was a freighter captain and he did not take kindly to passengers. He would not have taken kindly to them even under the most favorable conditions; and he certainly did not do so under the conditions of this voyage, which were anything but favorable.

Here he was on an errand that he had been specifically warned was one of considerable danger. He believed that he had been followed by at least one vessel, and though he seemed to have temporarily thrown his pursuer off the track, he was by no means certain that he had done so permanently. Moreover, he knew that he had at least one traitor on board his ship—and he could not find him. Under such circumstances passengers were more than an annoyance—they were a plague, and Captain Bunker welcomed their departure. He promised himself that before they got back he would catch the traitor if he were among the crew, or would get information that would point to him unmistakably if he were among the passengers. As to which group he belonged, Captain Bunker was by no means satisfied.

He watched till he saw the boat, minus Collins and the passengers, pop her bow out of the cleft and start back to the ship. Then he turned to the second mate.

"I'm going below, Mr. Franks," he said. "I want to examine my safe more carefully, and then I want to interview every man on board. If I want any particular man at any time I'll let you know. Otherwise, send them in one after another."

"Very good, sir."

Captain Bunker turned to descend from the bridge, but stopped as Akin came toward him, evidently desirous of speaking.

The usual inflations of a voyage had not altered the secretary's reserve. Rather they had increased it. He had spent practically all his time shut up in his stateroom clacking away on his typewriter. He emerged at meals, which he ate almost in silence, and then vanished again. Seldom or never did he come on deck. He remained, in short, to all appearance the same smooth-running piece of office machinery that he had been in New York—so unobtrusive that no one really noticed him at all.

This morning, however, such evident intention spoke in his manner that Captain Bunker noticed it. "Anything you want to say, Mr. Akin?" he questioned.

The secretary nodded. "Yes, captain," he said. "I take it you are still disturbed by the burning of the flare last night. I have been thinking that perhaps I may be able to help—"

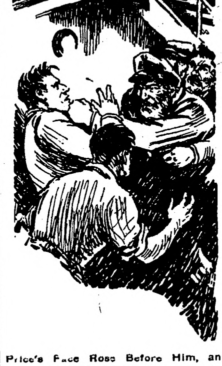
"Come to my cabin, Mr. Akin," the captain interrupted. "We can talk better there."

A moment later, seated at the cabin table, the captain nodded. "Now, Mr. Akin," he invited.

Akin had evidently mapped out what he was to say, for he spoke at once. "I learned for the first time last night—or perhaps, I should say this morning," he began, "that you suspected that someone was following us. I now understand, at least partly, the meaning of some questions you asked me yesterday. They were not very—er—clear?"

"No!" Captain Bunker spoke a little sharply. "Mr. Archman told me that you knew nothing of his plans as regards this voyage, and that he preferred that I should not discuss them with you or with anyone. Consequently—"

"Mr. Archman was right, of course. He left New York at almost a moment's notice on what seems to have been strictly private business. He told me nothing of it, and I, of course, wish to know nothing. For this reason I have kept more than usually aloof from those on board and have avoided listening to the various surmises that have been passed so freely. However, I have not been able to make myself wholly deaf; and I have gathered that you believe that we have a spy on board who is trying to signal our route to some following vessel. Am I right?"



Price's Face Rose Before Him, and He Struck Out With His Fists and Saw the Steward Go Reeling Back.

"You are!"

"I thought so. Well, captain, in that case, I think I can throw some light on the matter. Yesterday afternoon I happened to be looking out of my porthole when I saw a bottle tossed out of the port just aft. I caught a glimpse of it—just enough to let me see that it had a small flag sticking from its neck. Then it flew to pieces and disappeared. I thought this was very peculiar and waited and watched until I had seen three similar bottles appear and promptly undergo the same fate. I did not hear any report, but when I went on deck I saw Lord George was sitting at the stern shooting at things with a rifle, and I suppose he broke them."

"I know he broke them," remarked Captain Bunker. "What I don't know and want to find out is, who threw them into the water."

"Oh! You knew of the bottles?" Akin's tones expressed surprise. "I am sorry. I thought I might be able to help you." The secretary rose.

But Captain Bunker checked him. "Sit down, Mr. Akin," he commanded. "You have helped me already. There are only two staterooms aft of yours. If the bottles came from aft of you, they must have come from the stateroom of Miss Denslow or from that of Mrs. Archman."

"Or from this cabin, Captain Bunker." The secretary's tones were peculiar.

Bunker looked at him keenly. "This cabin was kept locked all afternoon," he said, "except while I was in it."

"Then the bottles must have come from Miss Denslow's room, for of course they could not have come from Mrs. Archman's."

Captain Bunker hesitated. "It would seem so," he said. "But Miss Archman seems very sure of Miss Denslow."

"Miss Archman is a girl and is apt to be enthusiastic," commented Akin dryly. "She met Miss Denslow only a few days before we sailed. Mrs. Archman engaged her on recommendation of Miss Van Kull. No doubt she is a lady and an able governess, as Miss Van Kull certified, but she may be a spy, too. However, I do not insist that it was she who threw the bottles overboard. I merely mention the matter for your information. I think it was someone else."

"Who?"

"Price! The steward! Did you know that he had a passkey to the door of this cabin?"

"No!"

"He has. I saw him use it yesterday afternoon—about three o'clock, I should say."

"Humph!" Captain Bunker nodded slowly. Akin's accusation of Price did not seem to surprise him. Moreover, he seemed to be pondering deeply. "It's quite possible," he said. "I didn't know it, but after all the lock is simple and pass-keys are easy to get. No doubt the spy, whoever he was, brought many keys on board with him. I don't mind telling you, Mr. Akin, that somebody did enter this cabin yesterday afternoon, and opened the safe yonder"—Captain Bunker pointed—"and read the sealed instructions that Mr. Archman left with me. Whoever did it probably prepared the bottles and threw them overboard in an effort to inform his employers of our destination."

Akin did not speak, but his little eyes narrowed, and he drew a long breath.

"I thought it might be Price," went on Captain Bunker, "but he seemed to prove an alibi, and I said little, hoping he would betray himself if not alarmed. But now I'll interview him and—that's all, Mr. Akin. I'll see Price and call you, if necessary. If I catch the fellow"—Captain Bunker's jaws hardened ominously—"if I catch him—by the Lord Harry, Mr. Akin, if I catch him, no matter who he is, I'll make him sweat for it."

Akin went out, and Captain Bunker reached over and touched the bell for Price.

Instantly, almost as if the sound had been a signal, a rush of feet sounded on deck overhead, and a chorus of voices rose in excitement. For a moment the captain hesitated, half rising; then, as the noise seemed subsiding, he dropped back in his chair and touched his bell once more.

Almost instantly he heard the crack of a revolver, a cry and a fall.

Bunker sprang across the cabin to his dresser and jerked open the drawer, disclosing a long, blue-barreled revolver. He snatched it up and rushed to the door and through the wardroom to the deck.

But he was too late. As he emerged from the outer door, a dozen men flung themselves upon him. With a yell, he hurled the weapon into the face of the nearest man. Price's face rose before him, and he struck out with his fists and saw the steward go reeling back. Before he could strike again the men were on him and he went down in a whirling mass of legs and arms and straining bodies, from which came the soft, crashing sound of drumming fists. For a moment he struggled desperately; then someone got home upon his head with something far harder than flesh and bone, and his senses fled.

When he came to himself he was back in his cabin, sitting in his own chair. He felt weak and dizzy and half blinded by something that was trickling into his eyes. When he tried to put up his hands to wipe it away he found that his wrists were tightly bound together and that he was lashed to the chair.

A moment later he heard the cabin door open and someone come in. "Wait a minute, captain," said a voice, which he at once knew to be Price's. "Wait a minute and I'll wipe that blood out of your eyes."

A dripping sponge mopped his eyes and forehead, then plopped into a basin, and a towel was pressed to his face.

The next second Price came from behind him and sat down on the other side of the table. He had taken off his steward's apron and had strapped his waist with a belt, in which hung a pistol that Captain Bunker recognized as his own.

"There, captain, that's better," he said smilingly. "I was getting worried about you. You've been dead to the world for an hour. Sorry I had to knock you in the head. Gee! You made a pretty fight of it."

All She Wanted

She was apparently a French woman who spoke Russian or vice versa, and when she visited the home office she produced her passport over and over again in the course of her conversation with several porters and messengers.

Eventually they found a man who in 1919 had been transferred from the French to the north Russian front. After a long conversation intelligence came to this man. Stopping the woman's conversation with one hand, he beckoned to his colleagues with the other.

"Lady wants a house or a small flat," he said.

SUFFERED TWELVE YEARS WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"My recovery has been a surprise to myself and all my friends," recently declared Jacob Ferdinand, R. F. D. 2, Fond Du Lac, Wis., a prominent citizen of this city, in relating his remarkable experience with Tanlac.

"The suffering I went through from stomach trouble for 12 or 13 years simply can't be described. In my efforts to find relief I spent over one thousand dollars, but kept getting worse instead of better. A large part of two years I was laid up in bed and for four months of that time I couldn't get up at all.

"Finally I sent my daughter for a bottle of Tanlac with the result that I found immediate relief, and seven bottles made a well and happy man of me. I will gladly talk to anyone personally and answer all letters regarding my experience with Tanlac. It proved a godsend to me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Utility of Yucca Tree

The yucca tree, which is indigenous to the deserts of Arizona and New Mexico, is very useful to man. It bears no leaves, but each one of its branches terminates in a knob from which springs a huge bunch of long, bristle-like spines. One of the most delightful of toilet soaps is made from the spinous bunches, which are boiled to extract saponaceous substances. This species of yucca has long been known to Indians as the "soap tree." When they want to wash themselves, or their garments, they simply take a piece of the yucca to the nearest convenient water and rub it with their hands, thus obtaining an immediate and profuse lather. The bristly bunches make a very superior cattle food.

Lucky Fisherman Got This

Taken from the waters of Lake Minnewanka, at Banff, a trout that weighed 37 pounds is now being mounted by local taxidermists and will be placed in the Banff museum. It is 42 inches long and 24 inches in circumference. Many good trout have been caught in the lake this year, but none so large as this. These lake trout in the Minnewanka waters are one of the mysteries of the Rockies. It is said to be the only lake in the mountains harboring this variety of fish.

No Romance in Trombone

Search as you will in love's fair record, you will never find trombones in triumph at a moonlit casement. Theirs is the bitter ecstasy of abrupt dismissal.

Had Paolo blown a trombone at his mistress in the soft Italian night, the chapter of their passion would have been broken short. And why, therefore, should a man of conquering heart, whose eager sinews throb with youth, spend on the trombone the unwrinkled years of his majority?—Charles S. Brooks in the Century Magazine.

Methodist Prelates

Methodist bishops are the highest prelates in the Methodist church of America. It is their duty to preside over the Methodist conferences, held once a year, in the different districts. One layman from each district and the minister of each Methodist church in that district attend these conferences. There are 45 Methodist bishops in the United States.

This remark was overheard in the New York aquarium. In these city institutions they always try to instruct the public.

An attendant immediately approached, bowed politely to the lady, and said: "They do not mind being in the tanks. There they are well fed and also protected from their natural enemies. It is doubtful if they know their liberty is in any way restricted. So you need not feel sorry for the fish."

But the lady was addressing her remarks to her husband.

THEO. QUALE, Attorney for Petitioner.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a power of sale, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative, and the assignee of the mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Torger Nilson Borgen, a single man, Mortgagor, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated January 19th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 17.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Carl W. Mason, by written assignment dated February 17, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 303.

And whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of One Hundred Two and 17-100 Dollars ($102.17); and whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars, ($450.00), with accumulated interest from the 19th day of January, 1922, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter, (SW¼SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 9th day of September, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees stipulated as attorney's fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 18, 1924.

CARL W. MASON, Assignee of Mortgagee.

W. J. SMITH, Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee, Morgan Block, Winona, Minn.

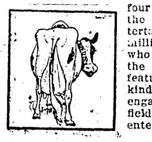
STATE FAIR TO THRILL 500,000

World's Greatest Features Engaged for World's Greatest Fair, Aug. 30-Sept. 6.

Zip! Bish! Bang!

These three words symbolize the great $100,000.00 entertainment program of the coming Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6, more effectively than any three other words in the dictionary.

Never in the history of the Northwest has such a stupendous amusement bill been assembled from the four corners of the globe to entertain the half-million persons who are to attend the fair. New features of every kind have been engaged, in every field of out-door entertainment.



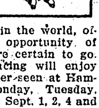
Thrilling Program.

Exciting horse races; thrilling auto races; auto push ball, America's newest sport; a gorgeous fireworks spectacle; auto polo by world-famous auto poloists; a score of spectacular open-air circus acts; two dozen small circuses within a circus on the midway; a dozen great bands and orchestras; pigeon racing; horseshoe pitching—these, and many other attractions, will be presented.

Auto racing, featuring twenty of the world's greatest dirt track drivers, will be staged opening and closing Saturdays, and Wednesday, Sept. 3. Sig. Haugdahl, premier auto racer of the world, in a new creation of his own make, the "Miller Special," faster even than the "White Streak," in which he has broken so many world's records, will be the head-liner of the program.

Wants Faster Records.

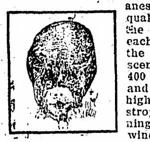
Haugdahl is the holder of many world's records, but he still yearns to break them all over again. His new car, propelled by the most powerful auto racing motor ever made, bids fair to carry him thru space at a faster clip than man has ever traveled on a dirt track, from one to 25 or 50 miles. The Minnesota State Fair track, faster than any other mile dirt track in the world, offers him his golden opportunity of the year. Records are certain to go.



Lovers of horse racing will enjoy the finest program ever seen at Hamline, four days, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, Sept. 1, 2, 4 and 5. The management is offering $24,500 in added money, which means that horsemen will carry away more than $30,000, including returned entry money. This is more money than will be won in purses at any other meet in America this year, even on the Grand Circuit.

Earthquake Depicted.

The gorgeous fireworks spectacle, "Tokio," depicting in thrilling fashion the horror and destruction of the Japanese earthquake, will hold the center stage each evening of the fair. A scenic setting, 400 feet long, and fifty feet high, will be destroyed each evening in a whirlwind of fire. Tons of fireworks will be blown up at the climax.



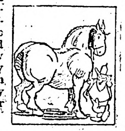
A score of open-air circus acts, assembled from all parts of the New and Old World, will play each afternoon and evening on great stages before the Grandstand. Auto push ball and auto polo, two exciting American sports, will be played daily. The Morris and Castle Shows will play the midway. A dozen bands and orchestras from all parts of the state will play.

$3,000,000 FAIR PROGRAM READY

Greatest Exposition in History, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6—$144,716.50 in Prizes

The Minnesota State Fair, Twin cities, August 30 to September 6, will present the greatest program in its 65 years history. It will be a $3,000,000.00 Exposition. It will be educational, recreational and inspirational.

The "world's greatest State fair"—the Northwest's biggest show window—comprising 260 acres of exhibits—will reflect all the progress, growth and development which has been made in agriculture and livestock the past twelve months.



Fair Leads in Premiums.

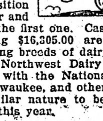
Premiums and special prizes totaling $144,716.50 are offered by the management. This is more money than is being offered by any other fair or exposition in America, and clinches Minnesota's claim to being the "world's greatest Fair."

One hundred times bigger than the biggest circus, this year's Fair will bring together the finest exhibits of agriculture, livestock, boys' and girls' club work, women's work and machinery ever assembled anywhere in the world.

So many big, startling educational exhibits have been booked that to single out any one or two departments as outstanding features would be like trying to find the proverbial needle in the haystack.

Agriculture Comes Back.

That Agriculture is staging a comeback in the Northwest is best proved by the large number of county exhibits this year. Forty-two counties already have entered in the county competition, and several more are expected to be added to the list in the next few days. This is nearly three times as many county exhibits as were entered in 1922.



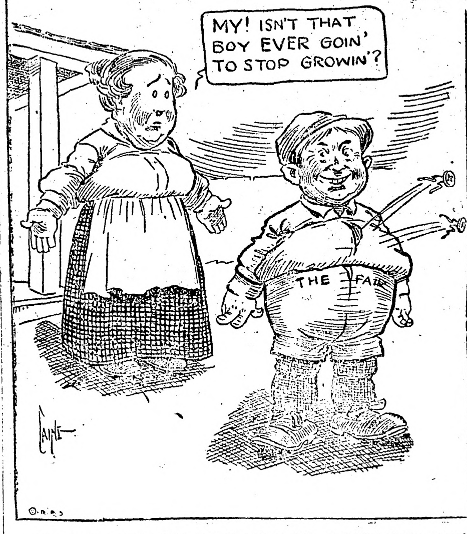
The second annual Northwest Dairy Exposition will be larger and better than the first one. Cash premiums totaling $16,305.00 are offered for the leading breeds of dairy cattle, putting the Northwest Dairy Exposition on par with the National Dairy Show, at Milwaukee, and other expositions of similar nature to be staged in America this year.

Plums To Be Featured.

"The Story of the Plum," one of the most dramatic tales of progress in fruit breeding ever chronicled in the world, will be the big feature of the horticultural show. New varieties of plums that have been evolved by the State Fruit Breeding Farm, that are destined to drive the California plum off the northwest market and make Minnesota one of the greatest plum-producing states of the Union, will be shown.

One thousand boys and girls from every part of the state, enrolled in boys' and girls' club work, will compete for the $22,652.50 in prizes offered by the fair. These children are the winners in the preliminary contests throughout the state in which more than 20,000 competed. A boys' and girls' parade in front of the grandstand will be one of the high spots on the program.

In addition to this most wonderful educational program, a stupendous entertainment bill has been arranged which will feature horse racing, auto racing, fireworks, vaudeville, horse shoe pitching, auto push ball, and other spectacular attractions.



MY! ISN'T THAT BOY EVER GOIN' TO STOP GROWIN'?
THE FAIR

The Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6, has established new records in every department by its offer of $145,000 in premiums for educational exhibits. The next leading state fair in the world is giving away $12,000 less premiums than the Minnesota State Fair this year.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery
Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery
Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington — Changes in consular assignments announced at the state department included the transfer of Claude I. Dawson at Mexico City to Stockholm, to be succeeded in the Mexican capital by Alexander W. Weddell now at Calcutta.

Washington — Director F. T. Hines of the Veterans Bureau approved an order establishing approximately 50 claims and rating boards for veterans in the subdistrict offices. The action is part of the director's decentralization plan to bring compensation or other relief into closer contact with the board.

Washington — Forty-one thousand criminal cases involving violation of the national prohibition act were instituted and 35,000 convictions were obtained in the first 10 months of the fiscal year just ended, according to figures made public by Commissioner Roy Haynes. Fines for the 10 months totaled $7,000,000, and jail sentences aggregated 2,148 years.

Washington—Praise of the Jewish people in this country for their cooperation in the common interest is contained in a letter written by President Coolidge to the Jewish Forum in reply to Isaac Rosengarten, the editor, who asked for an expression on the occasion of preparations for Rosh Ha-Shanah, the Jewish new year, which begins on September 28.

Washington—Chairman William M. Butler of the republican national committee intends to guard against excessive use of the radio in the campaign. He announced that only speakers of national prominence should be allowed to broadcast addresses, that their remarks should be made as brief as possible and there should be no interference with bedtime stories, jazz music and other features of radio entertainment. "If we ever reach a point where every time the family tunes in for music or similar entertainment it finds a political speech in the receivers, there will be a reacation," said Mr. Butler.

Domestic

Dadeville, Ala.—One man is dead, another believed dying and four others injured as a result of a boiler explosion near here.

Lakehurst, N. J.—The dirigible Shenandoah will proceed 500 miles to sea to participate in maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet off New England.

Chicago — Mayor William E. Dever opened a drive against professional gambling that, he said, "will rival the beer drive of last fall for quick and decisive action."

Flagler, Colo.—The 10th victim of the tornado which destroyed the ranch home of Henry Kuhns, three miles east of here is dead.

Lakehurst, N. J.—Commander Zachary Lansdowne of the dirigible Shenandoah, announced that the air cruiser this week will take part in maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet off the coast of New England.

Cleveland—Indianapolis was chosen as the convention city for next year by delegates of the Ancient United Knights and Daughters of Africa, at the closing session of their five day convention here.

Salt Lake City — Chipetta, believed to be about 80 years old, said to be the oldest Ute Indian squaw and known to the earliest white residents, is dead at the Indian agency at Ouray.

Cincinnati — Adam Huebner, 50 years old, general secretary-treasurer of the International Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal and Soft Drink Workers of America, is dead here after an illness of seven months.

Moosejaw, Sask.—Twelve persons were injured, two seriously, and damage estimated at $50,000 resulted from a fire which started in the basement of the Woolworth block and spread to business premises adjoining, here.

New York—National committee women from every state attended the formal notification of President Coolidge in Washington, it was announced by Mrs. Alvin T. Hart, vice chairman of the republican national committee.

New York—Frank D. Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, has announced that he would not be a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor this year to succeed Alfred E. Smith.

New York — Frederick W. Vanderbilt's yacht, Bedette, built in Copenhagen at a cost of $450,000 and with fittings valued at $550,000 and described in yachting circles as the finest ship of its type ever to enter New York harbor, arrived here and was placed under American registry. houses, including a hotel and a motion picture theater, were destroyed by a fire which swept the business section of Stamps, Ark., near here.

Nahville, Tenn.—Origin of the fire which destroyed buildings, machinery and 45,000,000 pounds of smokeless powder at the Old Hickory powder plant at Jacksonville, Tenn., near here, Sunday, has not been determined, according to Major Oscar Krupp, army ordnance officer in charge of the government property there. A thorough investigation has been ordered by the war departm

Hoquiam, Wash.—Sparks from a dry kiln plant of the National Lumber and Planing Mill Company started a fire which destroyed the mill and 8,000,000 feet of lumber, causing an estimated damage of $1,000,000 and throwing 500 men out of work.

Sports

New York—Postponement of the Mickey Walker-Benny Leonard welterweight championship fight, scheduled for Aug. 20, will not be considered until a definite report on the injury suffered by Leonard in his fight with Pal Moran in Cleveland is obtained, Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the fight, said.

New York—Jack Oenault, Canadian heavyweight champion, may be given a bout with the winner of the Firpo-Wills contest or with Tommy Gibbons as a result of his decisive 15-round victory over Bartley Madden here last night. They say that Bartley Madden, has a jaw of granite and iron ribs. Let it be added also that he has the heart of a lion. He has taken many a cuffing during the last 12 years of his honorable fighting career but it is doubtful if he ever absorbed as much punishment in any other of his many battles as Jack Renault the Canadian title holder, inflicted on him in a one-sided 15 round fight at the open air stadium.

Foreign

Hanava—President Zayas was nominated for re-election by the popular party, which he formed several years ago.

Manila—Explosives on Talim island blew up, killing two members of the Philippine constabulary and wounding a number of children.

Paris—The French air pilot, Burri, at Bonnieres established a world record for a seaplane when he covered 500 Kilometers at the speed of 123 kilometers, 946 meters an hour.

Abbazia, Italy—The mixed Italo-Jugoslav commission has completed its task of delimiting the frontier between Italy and Jugoslavia. The work of erecting customs houses along the new front will begin immediately.

Madrid—The Spanish army has been reorganized. It now consists of 34 infantry brigades, two brigades of mountain infantry, 16 artillery brigrades, a section charged with the mobilization of industries in case of war, and an aernautical section. Reserve regiments to the number of 76 have been created.

Shanghai—News of a considerable quantity of munitions having been stolen from an American government base in the Philippines became known here with the receipt of cabled instructions from Governor General Wood, asking for the arrest of suspects. American naval officers here refuse to discuss the affair.

Buenos Aires — Advices to La Nacion from Santos state that the Brazilian federal government has decreed a state of siege for the states of Sergipe, Bahia, Amazonas and Para. It is stated that the government also has extended the existing state of siege at the federal capital and in the states of Rio Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

Geneva—The Dutch government has followed the example of the United States, Great Britain and Germany in rejecting the League of Nations proposed treaty of mutual guarantees, it was made known when the secretariat of the league published in full the letter in which Holland rejected the treaty as the basis for disarmament.

Paris—A hotelkeeper in the old Temple quarter in Paris was robbed by a new trick of squirting ether into the air in the rooms where the manager and servants slept. The job was done so neatly that the household awoke with headaches and discovered several thousand dollars worth of jewels, currency and furniture gone. When the police were called, they found the air faintly impregnated with ether.

Tokio—A break in the present Russo-Japanese conference here is predicted within a few days owing to the reported unyielding attitude of Karakhan, the soviet representative, who has been negotiating with the Japanese government in an effort to have Japan recognize the soviet regime in Moscow. Karakhan steadfastly has refused to agree to any terms involving surrender by Russia of the Chinese Eastern railway.

Copenhagen—The Spanish philosopher and statesman, Unanumo, republican politician who recently was exiled to the Canary islands by the facist government of Spain, in an interview with the Politiken, declared that King Alfonso's and Dictator Primo De Rivero's "unpopularity does not come from the war events in Morocco but was born during the World war, when King Alfonso hoped for a German victory, in which case he intended to annex Portugal." The Spanish envoy here publishes openly his appreciation of Senor Unanumo as a great politician, but denies the sensational revelations as to the king's purpose to annex Portugal. The affair may result in diplomatic complications.

Paris—The Poincarist and reactionary press frankly accuses Premier Herriot's partisans of organizing paid bands for the demonstrations which greeted the premier on his arrival and his departure for London. The size and noisiness of these demonstrations gave Premier Herriot a chance to say in London that he found "a vast majority" of the people for him.

Riga—Soviet Russia shortly will make representations to the French socialist government for treaty conference similar to the Anglo-Russian conference just concluded in London, according to word from Moscow

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Winona—Ground was broken for the erection of a $50,000 gymnasium and auditorium for the Cotter Catholic high school for boys which is to be ready for occupancy late in the fall.

Sandstone—The bars have been lowered to permit the traveling public to glide over the newly finished five mile stretch of paved roads on Highway No. 1 between Sandstone and Friesland.

Minneapolis—With nearly 200 members from all parts of the state attending, the twenty-sixth semi-annual meeting of the Minnesota State Veterinary Medical association was held at the University farm in conjunction with the farm school's short course in veterinary work.

Owatonna—A government crew is working in Steele county to eliminate the common barberry bush from the county. This drive is the result of the discovery of the black stem rust spread over a large area in Medford township, which was traced to a number of barberry bushes in that vicinity.

Winona—Winona conducted its first annual water carnival here under the auspices of the Winona Playground Association. A 90 foot dive from the bridge here over the Mississippi river by Kenneth Nitzkowski, 16-year-old Austin high school sophomore, was the feature of the carnival. More than 5,000 persons turned out for the carnival.

St. Paul—Minnesota's 1,056 banks and 23 trust companies have a $50,000,000 reserve funds, nearly twice the legal minimum, and $25,275,600 capital and more than $10,000,000 surplus. This is according to a summary issued by banks, of conditions June 30. Total banks, of conditoins June 30.

Beaudette — S. W. Moorhead, of Northwest Angle, was here completing the details for the sale of his island to an agent representing a number of Chicago people who intend starting a summer colony. Joe Gibbons also disposed of his island, as did four others and negotiations are on for the purchase of several more.

Cass Lake—The United States Indian field service of the Department of the Interior, has issued a bulletin for the Indians of Cass Lake agency, informing them that they have been granted citizenship by Congress and are eligible to vote in the coming general election. The bulletin urges the newly made citizens to familiarize themselves with the election laws and exercise their right of franchise in November.

St. Cloud—At a meeting of Stearns county cattle breeders a general campaign to introduce better sires into the county was launched and given enthusiastic indorsement by the big cattle owners of the county. This is in line with a general program being carried out by the Minnesota Holstein Breeders Association, which has successfully put over campaigns in 11 counties in the state.

Albert Lea—Leo Ingeman Highby of Albert Lea, member of the present graduating class of Luther College, has been granted a scholarship for one year's study by the University of Michigan in the department of ancient languages. This recognition comes because of the unusual record established by Highby during his collegiate course. Highby maintained an average for his four-year course of more than 95.

Bahl—The first open pit iron ore mine in the United States to use electricity as its sole power is in operation here, following an official demonstration for a party of 60 mining engineers and electrical experts. Electrification of the Wabigon mine of the Hanna Ore Mining Company started July 7, and has just been completed. The complete process of getting out ore is done by electricity. Electric shovels remove the ore into cars drawn by electric locomotives.

Minneapolis—Crippled children who are residents of Minnesota may enter the Michael Dowling School for Crippled Children without the payment of tuition, according to an opinion of the state department of education. The question arose over the admission of a crippled child from Fergus Falls and an opinion was sought by the board as to the advisability of charging a fee to cover the cost of maintaining the school over and above the state allowance of $200 for each child.

St. Paul—Minnesota is due, by all indications, for one of its biggest immigration movements. That is the opinion of Oscar H. Smith, state immigration commissioner, contained in a review of northwest economic conditions. His survey showed railroads not only preparing for a heavy car demand for the bumper crop movement but closely investigating immigration prospects, while the crop car demand alone is such that the state railroad and warehouse commission is joining in the plea to "buy your car early."

Fergus Falls — Raynold Schroeder, three years old, living in Leaf Lake township, died from swallowing a kernel of corn. The boy had some corn in his mouth and was frightened by a bee. He gasped and a kernel went down and lodged in his windpipe.

Red Wing—Main street, from Plum street to the high bridge, will be paved this year. The board of public works voted to award the contract for the job at a bid of $2.20 per square yard for 7½ inches reinforced concrete, $1 per cubic yard for dirt excavation and $1.50 per cubic yard for rock excavation.

Crookston—Mr. and Mrs. Jules Boucher, who are numbered among the earliest pioneers of this city, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at their home here.

Duluth—Charles Rantilla of Duluth, 42 years old, was drowned when the car he was driving went off the road into a ditch containing four feet of water near Eveleth on the Miller trunk road.

Mankato—Bonds in the amount of $100,000 have been issued by the board of county commissioners for the improvement of state highways in Blue Earth county.

Garden City—This town boasts that it is the location of the only district country fair that has never changed its site. The fair conducted here was the 63rd of the association.

St. Cloud—Mrs. E. F. Moore, who has been assistant on the health board and the secretary of the board of charities, has resigned and will become police matron for the city.

Jackson—This city has now a full fledged Kiwanis club of 37 members. It was organized by L. J. Selfert, Kiwanis lieutenant governor for southern Minnesota, and Walter Hampton, Kiwanis field worker.

Rochester—Olmsted county fair officials plans to make a test case of the operations of what is termed a "game of chance" at the Olmsted fair which closed down following the arrest of two concessionaries.

Luverne — Eleven contractors bid on a job of graveling 15 miles of state aid roads in Rock county. The county commissioners gave the work to Charles Byers of Jackson, on his bid of $17,860.30.

Winona—Barney Carson, southern Minnesota professional golf champion who recently resigned as professional of the Winona Public Golf Course Association, has accepted a similar position at the Albert Lea Country Club, he announced here.

St. Cloud—Plans for opening the Farmers State bank of St. Cloud are being worked out. Since the bank closed this spring, the institution has been under the direction of Al Stroble, deputy bank examiner of the state bank superintendent's department.

Brainerd—Dr. W. L. Beebe, since 1878 a practicing physician in St. Cloud, died at the Northern Pacific Railway hospital here after a lengthy illness. Dr. Beebe was 76 years old, and was well known in Minnesota medical circles.

Hibbing — The Hibbing National bank has begun business with ample capital and surplus, and backed by the notable association of business men of Hibbing. The bank succeeds and takes over the business of the Hibbing State bank.

Crookston—Mrs. J. H. Jackson of Sioux City, Iowa, is in Crookston making preparations for organization of a chapter of the national Delphian sorority, an organization for women designed to carry out civic and education work.

St. Paul—A patrolman knocked down in a fight with a former deputy sheriff, over the question of whether he had broken a traffic rule, died at Ancker hospital. The patrolman was Frank Milanoski.

Le Sueur Center—Carl Whipps, a farmer who lost a gold watch charm while shocking wheat in Scott county 40 years ago, has had it returned to him. Recently the wife of the man who now owns the farm where the charm was lost found it and, remembering to whom it belonged, returned it to Mr. Whipps.

Duluth — Duluth was a maze of color for the state convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Three boat trips, a boxing card, motor tours of the city and adjacent territory; a contest in ritualistic work; an additional boat trip to Port Arthur, Canada, and a grand ball were among many entertainment features planned for the visitors.

St. Cloud—A coroner's jury investigating the killing of Jake Dimler by City Detective Berg exonerated Berg of all blame. In the testimony it was revealed that Berg found Dimler trying to force an entrance into a residence and when called upon to stop, tried to get away. The bullet which actually killed Dimler is thought to have first hit the ground and then glanced upwards striking Dimler.

Hibbing—"Yes, we have some bananas," is the revised version of the popular song sung by members of the local park board. Among the greatest attractions here at this time are the Hibbing village greenhouses, where the banana trees hold the attention of visitors. One of the trees is in bloom, while another has ripe fruit on it. Tourists are especially interested in the tropical trees and about all of them make it a point to visit the greenhouses.

Duluth—Steaming into port with its hull coal laded, the Benson Ford, the first Ford built boat to steam up from the Great Lakes, swept through the piers on the ship canal here, went up to the harbor and docked at the newly leased Ford dock—the first vessel to dock there since the Ford lease was signed. Aboard the Benson Ford was W. B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Company, who formally took possession of the dock on behalf of the Ford concern, and a number of lesser officials and friends.

Albert Lea—Owing to the possibility of an early frost doing great damage to the corn crop, County Agent E. G. Cort has joined with other county in the state urging farmers to save all the good ears of last year's left over seed.

Hibbing—Probably the worst effect of the fire which forced the closing down of the Laura mine is that it throws 250 miners out of work for several weeks. Miners always have taken a pride in the name gained by the Laura of "Old Reliable." Year in and year out, it was the first mine to start and the last to quit.

MUCH HAPPENS IN STATE'S POLITICS

Recall Of 3 Judges Projected—Nonparty To Have Paid Manager

Bismarck, N. D.—Increased tension in national politics in the state, renewed pressure on A. G. Sorlie, Nonpartisan league candidate for governor, by LaFollette forces, and the prospect of a recall election at the time of the November general election of three judges of the supreme court, evolved from week end political meetings in Bismarck.

The meetings failed to clarify the situation with respect to Republican presidential electors, although action taken is likely to make it advantageous to La Follette forces to have the four Republican electoral candidates who are La Follette men, resign from the Republican column. The La Follette group, however, failed to take any action which would clarify the situation which confronted the Independent Republicans in their conference at Fargo last week.

Outstanding features of the week-end conferences are:

Movement initiated by Association of Depositors of Closed Banks to recall Justices Sveinbjorn Johnson, W. L. Nuessle, and L. E. Birdzell, of the supreme court.

Naming of F. A. Vogel of Coleharbor, as La Follette campaign manager, and appointment of a committee with representatives of various factions on it.

Further linking of Nonpartisan league with La Follette movement, in spite of the attitude of A. G. Sorlie, league candidate for governor.

Decision of the Nonpartisan league executive committee to revert to its old basis, with a salaried campaign manager, the result of continued differences in the league executive committee.

Postponement of efforts of La Follette group to establish new political party with name satisfactory to him, but different from Farmer-Labor or Nonpartisan league party, until calling of convention, probably on Labor day. La Follette electors to be named at the same time.

USE ALARMS IN DEFENCES

Whistle at Larimore, Bell at Gwinner, Call Guards.

Fargo, N. D.—Ingenious alarms and prearranged signals are to figure in the defense plans now being formulated by North Dakota towns in preparing to repel possible invasions of yeggs gangs or other disturbers, it is indicated as reports continue to come in of methods adopted at various points.

At Larimore an agreed upon number of blasts from the whistle at the electric light plant will call into action several special officers who will have their headquarters at the plant. The blasts will be sounded when the proper alarm is turned into the plant. At a special meeting a police force of 12 men was arranged who will be on duty during the fall months.

The ringing of a huge bell at Gwinner will be the signal for the quick mobilization of 50 designated men, two of whom will be on duty each night, taking turns. All autos and vehicles will be kept under strict surveillance.

The village of Balfour has added a night watchman and electric street lights will be kept on all night during the fall.

DIRIGIBLE ACTS AS SCOUT

Travels Out to Bermudas as Part of Naval Maneuvers.

Lakehurst, N. J.—The naval dirigible, Shenandoah, which left here Friday morning to join the Atlantic fleet in maneuvers off the coast, returned to her station Friday and was moored to her mast at 4:55 a. m. The vessel was in command of Commander Lansdowne.

The Shenandoah, acting as scout for a flotilla of destroyers, was assigned to the extreme southern field of the maneuvers, which brought her to a point 150 miles north of Bermuda, according to her commander.

Throughout Friday night and all day Saturday the Shenandoah cruised over a wide area, 300 to 500 miles off the coast, in search of the "enemy," the "enemy" being four battleships carrying the midshipmen on their summer cruise. It was not until 8:30 p. m., however, that the "enemy" was sighted, 75 miles off the Delaware breakwater. Word was flashed to the destroyers which succeeded in theoretically destroying one battleship.

Better Crop Than 1918.

Fargo, N. D.—First returns from the threshing machine coming to Fargo in the past two or three days tell an amazing story, and there are many farmers and others who are now predicting that this year's crop will surpass the wheat crop of 1918 in both quality and yield and will be second only to the crop of 1915. The surprising thing which the threshing machine is telling is the extremely heavy test weights for rye and wheat in addition to remarkable yields of oats, barley, rye and wheat

NATIONS AGREE TO DAWES PLAN

Government Representatives Sign Protocol, To End Reparations Problem

London.—Peace between France and Germany came one step nearer Saturday when the representatives of the allied powers and Germany assembled in Premier MacDonald's room in the foreign office and signed or initialed a protocol providing the means for putting into effect the Dawes plan, designed to settle the perplexing reparations problem.

The London conference after 30 trying days has thus been brought to a successful conclusion. All eyes now turn to Berlin and Paris, anxiously watching to see if the German reichstag and the French parliament will support Chancellor Marx and Premier Herriot in the bold step they have taken.

Both these premiers belong to minority governments which are none too stable, and the reaction of the German and French peoples will be watched with some apprehension until their executive bodies approve and make it possible for German and French representatives to meet with their representatives of the other interested powers at Paris on August 30 and attach their formal signatures to the documents.

Neither the Germans nor the French were fully satisfied with the compromise agreement on the Ruhr evacuation, but both delegations scored many points which they believe will appeal to their publics and ease the way in obtaining ratification.

The specific promise of the French to evacuate the Ruhr absolutely within one year from August 15 and to evacuate Dortmund immediately are great prizes for the German delegates, although they had hoped that the period would be narrowed to six months.

START MOVE TO RECALL THREE

Association of Depositors Will Put Petitions Into Circulation.

Bismarck, N. D.—A committee of three men was named by the meeting of members of the Association of Depositors of Closed Banks in North Dakota here Saturday afternoon to prepare recall petitions and bills of particulars directed against Justices W. L. Nuessle, Sveinbjorn Johnson, and L. E. Birdzell of the North Dakota supreme court.

Appointment of the committee, composed of Roy Frazier of Crosby, Charles Hoover of Kidder county, and C. E. Joyce of Bowman county, was made after the resolutions committee's report had been adopted.

Resolutions berated the supreme court, particularly on account of its decision upholding Secretary of State Hall in denying sufficiency of the petitions presented asking for a vote on the constitutional amendment providing for a bond issue of $6,000,000 to aid depositors in closed banks. Gerald P. Nye of Cooperstown, named a member of this committee, withdrew from it, and R. W. Frazier of Crosby was named in his stead.

An amendment to include the name of Judge A. Christianson in the recall was withdrawn after members of the committee explained that Judge Christianson's term would expire in two years and that they thought it bad political tactics to include him. Judge H. A. Bronson, fifth member of the court, goes out of office next January 1.

WILL PAY CASH FOR BONUS

State Industrial Body May Start Purchasing by October 1.

Bismarck, N. D.—Negotiations which have covered a period of two years culminated Saturday in a tentative arrangement under which former service men of the World war in North Dakota may sell their claims for bonus to the state industrial commission, it was announced by members of the commission.

Legal action through a test case will be rushed as rapidly as possible, and if it is satisfactory, it is possible that purchase may begin by October 1, it was stated by Governor R. A. Nestos. No service man would be required to sell his bonus claim. Two offers were laid before the industrial commission by financial houses, and the bid of R. M. Grant & Co. of New York and Chicago was accepted.

The procedure by which the bonus claims would be purchased is through a system of discounts, based upon the probable time bonus claims would be paid through tax receipts. The schedule of discounts will be worked out based upon the bid accepted.

Armored Cars for Mail Service.

New York.—In an effort to prevent railway mail robberies the United States postoffice department, it was learned Saturday, has contracted for the building of 3,000 specially designed cars, armored so heavily and equipped with such protective devices as to defeat attacks by armed desparadoes. A spokesman of the department said one of the cars has already been delivered to the railroad yards at Melrose, N. Y., and if it meets the tests to which it will be subjected the others will be rushed to completion.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, N.Y.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I can not praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N.Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs. Isn't it reasonable to expect the same results?

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

Charity in Judgment

Those who themselves need the charitable judgment of other people should above all things be lenient in their own judgments. For my part, I consider the best and most finished type of man to be the person who is always ready to make allowances for others, on the ground that never a day passes without his being in fault himself, yet who keeps as clear of faults as if he never pardoned them in others.—Pliny the Younger.

The veins in Bunker's forehead swelled. "You infernal scoundrel," he gritted. "I'll—"

"Now, captain!" The ex-steward's voice was wheedling. Evidently he desired, for purposes of his own, to cajole the captain. But his tones rang false. "Don't get excited. You gave me an awful wallop in the eye, but I'm not excited. It's all over. Franks has been wounded and disarmed, and that shrimp Akin has been locked up in his stateroom. Everybody else on board is with us and against you. So, you see, there's no use in making trouble. Keep cool and let's talk things over."

Captain Bunker did not answer. But his eyes burned hot.

Price read them and nodded. "Easy, cap'n, easy!" he counseled. "Easy! Of course you're angry. I'd be angry, too, if I was in your place. Let's take all that for granted and talk sensibly." The man's voice was all that could be desired. But his eyes betrayed his falseness.

"I'll see you hanged for this!" panted the captain.

"Maybe. But not yet a while. I repeat, captain, that you're practically alone on the ship. You notice we're in motion."

Undoubtedly the ship was under way. Bunker had recognized that fact from the first.

"You see," went on the steward, "we're in control. The chief engineer is locked up and the second engineer is with us. You haven't a friend on board."

"It's mutiny, is it?" Captain Bunker's voice had become cold and deadly. The rage that had gripped him seemed to be passing.

"Oh, no, captain. Nothing so crude as mutiny," answered Price reproachfully. "This is piracy—Twentieth-century piracy, polite, courteous and thoughtful. It was all planned out before we left New York, and so far it has worked out beautifully."

"Beautifully? What do you expect to gain?"

"A good many million dollars, captain. We're off to get them now. Your friends ashore precipitated our action a little by trying to signal you. But it was only a question of a few minutes longer, at most. We're bound for the landing place on this island—the right one, you understand. We'll be there in ten minutes, and before we get there I want you to surrender my map."

"Your map?"

"Yes! You've got it, of course. It isn't really important"—in spite of himself the ex-steward's voice quavered—"but I'd like to have it. My whole scheme has worked out so prettily that I hate to slip up even on a minor detail. I'm proud of the thing, you see. It's my first job at sea. I'm a landsman, you know. Banks are my specialty."

"Ah!" Captain Bunker glanced at his safe. "That explains how you got into it so easily."

Price seemed perplexed. "I don't know what you mean!" he said. "But it doesn't matter. What I want is my map!"

"What map?"

"My map of the island—that one you stole from me." Price's voice hardened. "Give it up and I'll land you with the other guys. I sent plenty of grub ashore with them this morning—enough to last a month; and you're sure to be taken off long before it's all gone. Refuse and—well, I'm apt to turn unpleasant." Price did not raise his voice, but he tapped the revolver in his belt.

Captain Bunker recognized the tone and realized what it meant. Nevertheless he shrugged his shoulders. "Price," he said, quietly enough, "you're an infernal scoundrel. No doubt you're a clever one, and know your way about on land. But you're up against a new game now. The sea will beat you. No amateur can buck it. If you go on, you'll be hanged, as sure as you're alive. Return to your duty and—"

"My map, please. Quick! We're stopping."

The propeller had ceased to revolve and the sullen plunge from forward told that the anchor had been dropped. Captain Bunker listened; then he shrugged his shoulders. "I haven't any map of yours," he said. "I haven't any map of the island at all except that on the ship's chart. I haven't seen any except the one that Mrs. Archman took ashore with her—"

"I don't want that one. I want my own; you understand, my own." Price's tones were vicious.

"I haven't got it, and I wouldn't give it to you if I had. You wouldn't keep faith with me. You couldn't keep faith. It would be suicide for you to keep faith. Your pals know this, if you don't. I'll hold no truck with you. And, by G—d! I'll see you hanged for this. There now, go ahead and shoot me if you like, and be done with it. But I'll advise you to load your gun first. If that's my pistol, and I guess it is, it's out of order—or you wouldn't be here."

Price grinned. "Oh, no; it's not out of order. It was the cartridges that were wrong. I took yours out yesterday and put in some others that didn't have any powder in them. But I've real ones in the thing now. Don't make me prove it."

The door opened and a man popped in. "There's a girl just come aboard, cap'n," he cried excitedly. "She says she's the owner's daughter and wants to see Captain Bunker."

Price's eyes widened. "The devil she does! How'd she come here?" he demanded.

"In a rowboat. By herself."

"Did you see where she left the land?" Price's tones were anxious.

"Sure! Just where you said we'd find—"

"Good!" Price slapped his knee jubilantly. "Don't it beat h—l?" he questioned. "The Lord sure does help those that help themselves. She'll be Miss Nellie, of course. Show her in, Jim! Show her in. She's a fine girl, captain."

Bunker tried to struggle to his feet. "You infernal hound!" he roared. "If you hurt a hair of that girl's head—"

"Who's going to hurt her? Keep your shirt on, captain. Keep your shirt on. Didn't I tell you we were nice, ladylike pirates? I'm not going to hurt the lady or let anybody else hurt her—unless she makes me. But I don't think she'll make me. We'll see, anyhow. Show her in, Jim! Show her in. You ought to be glad she turned up, captain. I'm pretty sure she saved your life—for the moment. However—"

He broke off as Nellie Archman opened the door and stood hesitating on the threshold.

CHAPTER XII

Cross and Double Cross

For a full minute Nellie stood in the doorway of the cabin, staring with round eyes at the scene before her—at Captain Bunker's bound form and bloodstreaked face and at the form of the ex-steward as he stood leering by. Then she started forward. "Captain Bunker!" she gasped. "Oh! Oh! What has happened? What does it mean? The sailors acted so strangely and—and now—"

Bunker's face grew grimmer than ever. "It means that this hound here"—he glared at Price—"has led a mutiny and that the scoundrels are in control of the ship. Come in! I'm sorry to see you here, but I think you're safer than you are on deck."

"But—but—you're hurt! You're bleeding!" Nellie ran forward. "Why! You're bound! Oh, how cruel, how wicked!" She swung around on Price. "Cut these ropes at once," she ordered. "At once—do you hear!"

Price shook his head. "I'm sorry, miss," he said; "but I can't. We had a devil of a time before we could tie the captain up and we don't want to have to do it over again. He ain't much hurt, you know."

Nellie stamped her foot. "Then I'll untie him myself," she flashed, and bent to the fastenings.

"Hold on!" A note of sternness crept into Price's voice. "Let those knots alone, lady," he ordered. "If you let the captain loose I'll shoot him. Understand? I was going to do it anyway when you came on board. Just you sit down." The man gestured toward one of the vacant chairs at the table. "I don't want to hurt you or any of your friends; but I'm going through with this thing now, no matter what it costs. Sit down and let's talk things over."

But Nellie shook her head. "No!" she said. "I won't sit down. I'm going to dress Captain Bunker's head. You can talk while I'm working."

"Oh! All right. Just as you like. I did what I could for him, but it wasn't much. I'll be only too glad to have you go ahead. Captain Bunker isn't much hurt, really. His head's too hard."

Price laughed smoothly and easily. His voice had again become obsequious. "I've been trying to persuade the captain here to see sense," he went on, "but he won't do it. Perhaps you will. Anyhow, I'll try. I always try persuasion before I try—er—stronger measures. I want to know all about things ashore here. First, I want to know how many men your father has."

Nellie raised her eyes from the captain's head. "I'll tell you nothing," she said flatly.

"Oh, yes, you will! You'll tell sooner or later, and you'd better tell sooner." For an instant cold ferocity spoke in the man's tone; then he slipped back into his old smooth manner. But a child could have told that it was mocking.

"Maybe you think this is just a sudden flash-in-the-pan mutiny," he said. "It ain't. As I've just been telling the captain, it ain't, rightly speaking, a mutiny at all. It's piracy, planned weeks ago. You remember the night that Morbach was killed?"

"Morbach?" Nellie sought in her memory. "No! Yes! You don't mean that—"

"Yes, I do. I'm the man who carried him into the Grant cottage. No! I didn't kill him. Quite the contrary. He ran me down and came near killing me. He was crazy to see your father and he talked about millions of dollars and all that, you know. Well! That interested me. I was just getting away from New York with my share of the loot of the Steenth National bank and I was ready for a fresh layout. So, to cut the story short, I went out to my buggy and put on another hat and coat and came back and said I was Mr. Akin. Gee! I insulted myself some when I did it. Before I'd be a shrimp like Akin!—However, I got the packet and cleared out. The doctor and the Grant girl were pretty excited, and I got away with the stunt. They'd seen me only a few minutes, and the dim light helped. That was a mighty interesting packet. It held a map, a description of a route, and a good big package of I guess you know what, and a statement that there was about forty million dollars more where it came from. That interested me still more. See! I wanted that forty million dollars. The map was of an island, but it didn't say where the island was. But I guessed your mother knew. So I sent her a copy of the map, with—er—some changes, and watched. Sure nuff she piked straight down to the docks and interviewed our friend the captain here and took passage for the whole family and an extra lot of assorted freaks—"

"My mother? Is she here?" Nellie's eyes grew big.

"Well! Here or hereabouts. No! She ain't aboard, but she ain't far off. She and her friends all came down here with the ship. And I and my friends came along, too. This morning your mother's friends all went ashore, following the map I sent 'em. I sent a lot of grub along, so's they wouldn't suffer while they was waitin' for a ship. Then just as I thought I had everything lovely, I found cut somebody'd swiped my map—my own map, y' understand. Course losing it don't do me any real harm, because I reckon I could draw it over again just from memory, but I hate to be stung that way. Besides, it's just possible that I might need it. So I starts to ask the cap'n what he knows about it, when all of a sudden somebody with your crowd begins to wigwag from the mountain top; and the mate starts to answer him; and so—not knowing what he's saying—I tells the boys to take possession and I comes in here and—er—takes possession, too. The captain says he don't know nothing about any map of mine—"

"I don't!" Captain Bunker cut in sharply.

"Well, who in thunder does, then? Those people that went ashore didn't have it, or they'd have gone to the right place instead of the wrong one. If you ain't got it, who has?" Very evidently Price was trying to make his auditors think that he set very little store by the map. But he was not succeeding.

Captain Bunker shrugged his shoulders. "If I'd had it you'd have been in irons now, and my passengers would be safe on board. And while I'm talking, I'll just warn Miss Archman that you're a treacherous hound, and not to be believed on oath. I don't know what your game is, but you're not fooling me one ounce. You haven't told more than half the truth. You haven't told of robbing my safe and opening my sealed orders or of throwing bottles over the side with messages for your consort, or of burning that flare on the taffrail last night."

Price was listening curiously. "Not me," he said finally, entirely disregarding the captain's excoriation. "Not me. I didn't know your papers has been swiped, and I never heard about any bottles. As for the flare—well, 'twa'n't me or mine that burned it. That's straight. But I'll give you a tip: If I was guessin', I'd charge all those things up to one or two of those passengers of yours. A steward gets lots of chances to hear things, and I've been hearing of 'em. Maybe me and my friends have double-crossed you, but unless I miss my guess, the alleged Britisher and that governess have been getting ready to triple-cross you. However, that's all over now. The map never was of much importance, and I don't give a whoop for it now, except to make a clean job. I've got Miss Archman instead, and she's better than a dozen maps."

"I!" Nellie had finished with the sponge and was binding up the captain's head.

"Sure! I've explained things so's you'd understand—that all I want is the money, that I don't want to hurt you, see? Nobody's going to hurt you, if you act proper, and I know you're a-going to."

Cause of Echo

An echo is the repetition of a sound due to its reflection from some distant surface, such as from a building, cliff, cloud or body of water. It must be remembered that sound is transmitted by means of waves through the air. Sound travels very slowly in comparison with light or radio waves. In ordinary air sound waves travel at the rate of about 1,000 feet a second. Now suppose a person is standing 1,000 feet from a reflecting surface such as a hill or cliff. It will take the sound waves set in motion by his voice one second to reach the cliff and it will require the same length of time for the reflecting sound waves to return to the human ear. Therefore two seconds will elapse between the time he shouts and the time he hears the echo of his voice. Repeated echoes are due either to independent deflections of sound from bodies at different distances or to successive reflections.

Billions of Buttons

There are 20,000,000,000 buttons manufactured in this country annually, and the industry has grown to such proportions that it equals, in dollars invested, and value of products, the cutlery industry or the manufacture of oilcloths and linoleum. America has almost a monopoly on the manufacture of vegetable ivory buttons, which are made in enormous quantities from the togua nut. This nut grows plentifully in the northern part of South America and in Panama, and provides the greater part of the buttons used in men's clothing. If all the buttons made in a year in the United States were distributed equally among the population each man, woman and child would receive 182, with a few thousand left over for good measure.

Odd Superstitions of Head Hunters

L. H. Hutton, who spent some time with the Angami and Sema Nagas tribes of head hunters, tells in Pathfinder Magazine of the method in which the heads of the victims are decorated and divided. In addition to complete skulls adorned with mithan or buffalo horns, or with wooden imitations of these, many huts have trophies in which the skull is only partly human, the head hunter having only salvaged part of the head. In such cases the rest of the head is fashioned of wood or the skull of some animal, generally a pig, while in other cases the missing parts are ingeniously fabricated from skulls of the black gibbon.

The object in decorating the skull with horns is to prevent the dead warrior from hearing the call of his friends searching for him, as, if his soul were to go to them, it woud instigate them to revenge, whereas if it remains with its captor it lures its late relatives to put themselves within reach of the possessor of the head and lose their own to him as well. Some Ao villages string the skull of one of their dogs above the skull of the enemy. The soul of the dog is believed to bark and thus lure relatives of the victim to the scene to be slain.

Paper-Box Industry

In 1800 the manufacture of paper boxes was a staple industry and 50 years later there were 82 factories in the United States, says the International Confectioner. In 1860 machinery began to be developed, but up to that time everything was done by hand. In 1869 the total sales were slightly more than $1,000,000, manufactured in 249 plants, employing about 4,700 people. In 1870 the product had advanced to $7,500,000, and in 1910 the output was valued at $55,000,000. In 1919, which was the last survey made of the industry, it showed a remarkable growth. The capital invested was $57,000,000 and the value of the product $125,000,000; people employed, 57,000. These figures are for the set-up box industry only.

Extravagance

Old Hen Roddy, from Hogskin Hollow, is fond of boasting of his amazing thriftiness by virtue of which he has accumulated a fairly substantial bank account.

"You're very careful about your expenditures, aren't you, Uncle Hen?" the village schoolmaster asked one day.

"Yes, perfesser, I'm right smart thataway. Fact, I don't recollec' that I ever spent but one quarter fer jist dern foolishness. That was when I let a storekeeper talk me into buyin' a pair o' socks."—Everybody's Magazine.

Don't chuckle if you put over a substitute when an advertised product is called for. Maybe your customer will never come back.

Ben Mulford, Jr.

Entrenched Prejudice

Most nations, like most men, are docile only in youth; they become incorrigible as they grow old. When customs are once established and prejudices rooted, it is a dangerous and useless enterprise to try to reform them, the people will not permit their misfortunes to be touched upon, even for their instruction—like the stupid and cowardly sick who shudder at sight of a physician.—Jean Jacques Rousseau.

Through the Needle's Eye

It is a fact that there is in the wall of Jerusalem a small gateway built for the use of pedestrians and known by a name which is translated as "The Needle's Eye." Through this gate it is quite possible for a small undernourished camel, divested of all its equipment, harness, etc., by kneeling, to work its way, though not without difficulty. The gate is still in existence.

For the first time since the Thirteenth century a woman has been appointed glazier of Exeter cathedral in England.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON XI

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman
Public Education Commission, American Bankers Association.

To be favorably known at a bank is a business advantage. Banks aim to deal with honest people only. How does one become known at a bank for purposes of doing business with it? "One must be identified," says the banker.

J. H. Puelicher

IDENTIFICATION—More than presenting oneself at a bank and saying "I am John Smith." Some one known to the banker must say, for instance, "This is John Smith. He is honest and dependable." Then the bank will do business with him.

Why cannot a bank do business with an unidentified person? Because, if an unknown man gets money from a banker on a check payable to "John Smith" and he be not the particular "John Smith" entitled to cash that check, the bank would probably lose the money. To be known at a bank is a business necessity.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON INVESTING THE LEGACY

"I really wish I could understand investments, Aunt Emmy," said Jane. "Since we received that legacy I have tried to get some money sense into my head. The financial pages in the papers are just a jumble of words to me. I can't make out the difference between stocks and bonds nor for the life of me see what makes one thing an investment and another a speculation."

Aunt Emmy laughed. "Lots of people puzzle over those things, my dear. But your first problem is simple enough," she said. "Suppose you buy a bond, a $100 Liberty Bond. What you really do is to lend Uncle Sam $100 on his promise to pay that money back on a given date and to pay you a specified sum each year—that is, interest—for the use of your money. If your $100 bond pays four and a quarter per cent you get four dollars and a quarter every year you hold it until it reaches maturity—that is, the date when the time of your loan is up and Uncle Sam returns your money.

"When a bond reaches maturity it should be turned over to your bank for collection, because after maturity you will get no more interest on the money invested. Therefore when a bond matures take it to your bank, have the money placed to your account, and consult your banker about reinvesting it.

"Of course all bonds are not good securities. If you buy the bonds of a sound government or of a sound corporation you are safe. Bonds vary in price, even good ones, according to conditions. Unless you really know about the condition of the concern or government offering bonds do not buy them without consulting your bankers.

"When you buy stocks you buy a share of a business. Corporations issue stocks as well as notes and bonds, but governments only issue bonds or notes. You do not get any promise that your money will be paid back when you buy stock. To get your money back you have to find a buyer for your stock. If the business prospers you participate in the profits according to the amount of stock you hold. If the business suffers losses you share the loss with the rest of the stockholders. So again it is not wise to buy stock in a company you do not know all about unless you first get your banker's advice."

"Thanks, Aunt Emmy. I think I know the difference between stocks and bonds now," Jane said. "If you buy stock you buy a share of a business and take your chances with that business for success or loss. If you buy a bond you really don't buy at all, only get a sort of receipt for your money and promise that you will get it back at a given time and receive interest meanwhile."

"Yes—but remember the promise behind a bond is good only if the government or the corporation issuing the bond is good," said Aunt Emmy. "Next time you come I'll tell you more about money and finance."—ANNE B. AYMES.

AUTO PUSH BALL AT STATE FAIR

Auto push ball, America's latest daring game, will be presented to the Northwest on classic scale for the first time at the Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6.

Played with a gigantic push ball, driven about by stripped automobiles on the race track in front of the grandstand, it is fully on par for thrills with the great game of auto polo, engaged again as a feature of the 1924 fair.

Auto races, horse races, fireworks, a midway circus, two stages of great open-air circus acts; and many other features will entertain the 500,000 persons who attend the "World's Greatest State Fair."

An educational program far superior to any ever presented, and involving the awarding of prizes totaling $145,000, completes the offering.

WE USE
DE LAVAL

MANY of your neighbors are using De Laval Cream Separators.

Why not make a few inquiries and find out how they like their machines?

You'll find that the De Laval is giving them more cream and better cream; that it is easiest to turn, to clean and to care for; very seldom gets out of order and never seems to wear out.

Your neighbors will back up what we have been telling you about the De Laval Separator.

You can buy a De Laval on easy terms. Come in, examine the machine and talk it over

Sooner or later you will buy a
DE LAVAL

Poultry Wanted

We need a lot of live poultry the balance of this fall to take care of our increased orders, thereby you are insured of more money if you bring your live poultry to us at Thief River Falls. We pay you cash for every pound of poultry you bring in, so why sell where you have to take it out in trade. We will loan you coops, either to ship to us, or bring them in yourself. A trial shipment will be appreciated.

Thanking you for any shipment you might send us and assuring you of our appreciation of it, we remain

Yours very truly,
Peterson-Biddick Co.,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Minnesota State Fair and
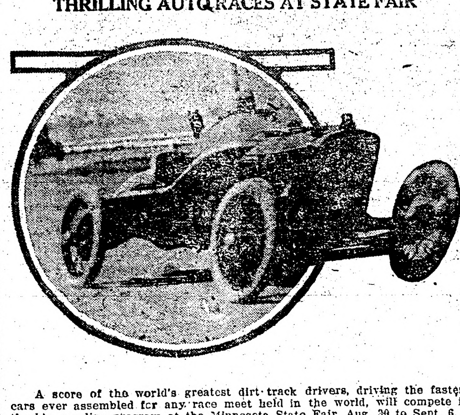
Northwest Dairy Exposition

THE MOST STUPENDOUS ENTERTAINMENT program ever put on by any fair or exposition in the world has been booked. Among its leading features are three days of auto racing, four days of harness and running horse racing; auto polo and auto push ball; seventeen big open-air circus acts; the spectacular fireworks production "Tokio"; Morris and Castle Shows; ten big bands and orchestras; and others too numerable to mention.

Aug. 30 to Sept. 6

Fare and Third Round Trip Rate on all Roads

THRILLING AUTO RACES AT STATE FAIR



A score of the world's greatest dirt-track drivers, driving the fastest cars ever assembled for any race meet held in the world, will compete in the big gasoline program at the Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 30 to Sept. 6.

Auto races will be staged the opening and closing Saturdays, and Wednesday, Sept. 3. Sig Haugdahl, world's greatest dirt track race driver, will pilot his new racing creation, the "Miller Special," faster even than his famous "White Streak," holder of so many world's records.

Other entertainment events include "Tokyo," dramatic fireworks spectacle; four days of horse racing; two stages of open-air circus acts, afternoon and evening; the Morris and Castle Shows; auto push ball and auto polo; and many other features of like value.

Maternity Clinic

The Division of Child Hygiene of the State Board of Health will hold a clinic for expectant mothers and mothers of young babies in Holt on Saturday Aug. 23rd. The clinic will be held in the school building from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Miss Agnes Alexander, a nurse from the Division of Child Hygene will be in Holt this week to assist Mrs. Racine Olson with the necessary preliminary work for the clinic

An exhibit of the projects of the Division of Child Hygene will be displayed . After the clinic the doctor will give a short talk. All women are invited to come and see the exhibit and to hear the talk.

Noxious Weeds Must be cut now

Notice is here by given to all lot and land owners within the Corporate limits of the village of Holt, that they must, in compliance with the state law, cut all noxious weeds before the same shall seed.

The law provides that in cases of neglect or refusal of property owners to promptly comply with notice, duly issued by Village or town officials, they shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and any expenses incurred by reason of such neglect or refusal, shall be entered by the county auditor on his tax books.

I therefore call upon every property owner to act promptly in this matter, thus saving themselves from incurring unnecessary costs, and assisting the state to carry out the laudable purpose of noxious weeds extermination.

Dated, Holt, Minn. Aug. 12th., 2924.

Robert J. Lund, President.
Village of Holt, Minn.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a power of sale, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative, and the assignee of the mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Torger Nilson Borgen, a single man, Mortgagor, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated January 10th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 17.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Carl W. Mason, by written assignment dated February 17, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 303.

And whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of One Hundred Two and 17-100 Dollars ($102.17); and whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars, ($450.00), with accumulated interest from the 10th day of January, 1922, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz.:

The Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 9th day of September, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees stipulated as attorney's fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 18, 1924.

CARL W. MASON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
W. J. SMITH,
Attorney for Assignee of Mortgagee,
Morgan Block, Winona, Minn.

Labor
—that's the Big
Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S
Sun-Proof
PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

Let us tell you more about this cut-cost paint.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington—Ratifications of the liquor treaty between Sweden and the United States were formally exchanged at the state department.

Washington—Desirability of amendments to the present coinage laws to permit the use of token money in place of silver dollars was suggested by treasury officials in discussing the campaign just launched to popularize the old silver dollar.

Washington—Reduction of rediscount rates was authorized for the intermediate Credit banks by the Federal Farm Loan board. The new rate to financial institutions is 5 per cent and to co-operative marketing associations 4½ per cent. The rates heretofore have ranged up to 6 per cent on some classes of paper and to 5½ per cent on others.

Washington — A juniper tree not less than 3,000 years old has been found in the Cache national forest in northern Utah, near the Logan Canyon highway, and is being protected by U. S. forest service. Scientists say it probably is the oldest juniper tree in the world. It is 42 feet high and measures 7 feet 6 inches in diameter near the ground.

Domestic

Chattanooga, Tenn. — Chattanooga traffic officers are no respectors of persons. Governor Austin Peavy of Tennessee was ordered to report in police court for improperly parking his automobile.

Madison, Ill.—Seven bandits held up the Union Trust Company here, forced A. Z. Andross, cashier, to lie on the floor, and escaped in a motorcar with between $4,000 and $5,000, all the cash on hand.

New York—Police are trying to determine how two robbers, after binding two men with picture wire and gagging them, escaped with diamonds valued at $100,000 from the ninth floor of the building at 170 Broadway, at Maiden Lane, during a noon hour.

Shreveport, La.—Sheriff E. M. Rentz of Jackson parish was murdered at Ansley, La., by three Negroes whom he had arrested in a raid on a moonshine still. The Negroes after overpowering the sheriff shot him with his own gun and made their escape. Posses are searching for the slayers.

New York—Harry K. Thaw may be examined in the $500,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Madeline Helen Modica against the Countess De Pirigny, Thaw's sister, unless the countess admits that she visited Thaw in company with Emanuel Victor Modica, Mrs. Modica's husband, according to a ruling by Justice Mahoney.

New York—Mayor John F. Hylan, announced that he would not be a candidate for governor of New York state. He said he would support the candidacy of "a progressive democrat," naming Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn, former Governor Martin H. Glynn and Attorney General Carl Sherman as possibilities.

Chicago—The plan of the National Association of Credit Men to raise $5,000,000 to be spent in fighting commercial crime and fraud has been approved by the central division, the administrative committee and the advisory council. The central division embraces the territory from the Appalachian to the Rocky mountains.

St. Louis, Mo.—The nation's last prisoner convicted of violation of the war time espionage act, a St. Louis saloonkeeper, whose prison sentence was recently commuted by President Coolidge, will be deported to his native land, Lithuania, as son as a passport can be obtained, it was announced from the immigration inspection office here.

Richmond, Va. — Senator Carter Glass of this state informed the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, it was announced, that he was retiring to his country home, near Lynchburg, for a rest upon the advice of his physician. Senator Glass had been mentioned as one of the Democratic speakers to be heard in different sections of the country during the presidential campaign.

Plymouth, Vt.—In the simple surroundings of the modest little farmhouse of his father where the most of his youthful life was spent, and where a year ago he took the oath of office as President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge received three of the world's wizards of industry and invention. They were Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Harvey Firestone, all of whom arrived wearing Coolidge badges which they had obtained at Ludlow, Vermont, where they were initiated during the early hours of the morning into the Coolidge home town club. President Coolidge presented.

Scranton, Pa.—Closing of small independent anthracite operations due to slack demand has made 15,000 miners idle, mine workers union officials said.

Reno, Nev.—Charging desertion, Dustin Farnum, screen star, was granted divorce in the district court here from Mary Elizabeth Farnum, to whom he was married in November, 1904, in Chicago. Mrs. Farnum did not contest the decree except to answer the complaint and make a general denial of the charges. The Farnums have been separated 12 years, the actor testified.

New York—A special investigating committee of the "Scientific American" pronounced unfounded the electronic reactions theory of the late Dr. Abrams, of San Francisco.

Sports

Minneapolis—A scientifically constructed cinder track, one-quarter mile in length and 30 feet wide, running around the inside wall of the new University of Minnesota stadium and encircling the football playing field, is receiving major attention now by the builders of the structure. First work was begun last week and the track is expected to be in shape for field events about the first of October.

New York—Within the next few weeks the United States faces the greatest international challenge for sports supremacy that it has ever had on its own soil within a similar period. America will meet the charge of foreign competitors in boxing, thoroughbred horse racing, lawn tennis, golf and polo—a program that promises some of the kneenest thrills of a year which already has set new records for international activity.

Newton, Kan.—The man who introduced the padded mitt is still active in professional baseball, John J. McCloskey, now owner and manager of the Newton (Kan.) club of the Southwestern league. The "grand old man of the minors" has been in the game since 1887 and it keeps him young, though he's past 55. He was born in Louisville in 1869 and won prominence as the "father of the Texas league," which he organized in 1888.

Foreign

Mexico City—Striking employees of the Huastaca Petroleum Company have submitted additional demands to the company. The strike continues in the Tampico district. The new demands include double pay on Sundays and holidays.

Vienna—In the international automobile circuit near Neunkirchen an American competitor named Inman, driving a motorcycle, had a crash and later died in a hospital. Two American motorcycle riders also fell and were severely injured.

Helsingfors — The Finnish trade union headquarters has addressed a communication to the International Labor bureau to take measures to put an end to the Finnish government's restrictions of trade unions in Finland. The government authorities charged that the unions were dominated by the communists and were being misguided by the reds to spread revolutionary propaganda.

Copenhagen—The Cinema, an English publication devoted to the movies, has invited European movie producers to a conference in London in October to devise plans for co-operation to shut out American film trusts. The Stinnes Corporation has already built up a big continental bloc to combat American picture interests in Europe, and Scandinavia at present is contemplating joining the Stinnes group. Scandinavia last year spent $5,000,000 importing American films.

London—Serious riots broke out at Mandalay, Upper Burma, according to a Rangoon dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph. Two priests and two policemen were reported killed and many police and civilians injured. The rioting occurred during the course of Burmese procession through the main streets in connection with a political demonstration led by a Buddhist priest named Okama, a well known home ruler, the dispatch declared.

Berlin—Frank Tinney, the American comedian, has spent three days in Berlin trying to hide his identity. He disclaimed all relationship with the Frank Tinney of Imogene Wilson fame. He even refused to drink in order to strengthen the impression that he was not the blackface comedian, but passengers on the Columbus saw him land at Bremen and when a German theatrical agent made him a big offer for a single performance in Berlin his eagerness left no doubt as to his identity.

Paris—Joseph Caillaux former premier of France, emerged from his long retirement to deliver a political address at Lemans, in which the radicals see the beginning of his return to an active share in the government. Supporting Premier Herriot in long passages of oratorical fireworks the former premier said that "in the liquidation of M. Poincare's policy, of which it is enough to say it was not worthy of France." Premier Herriot had employed liberal views and exalted courage which drew upon him most violent attacks in reaction.

Tokio—The anti-American boycott here is signally failing to check the foreign style of hair dressing. The hair dressers convention of 300 has referred the matter to the Japanese gods. The convention met in the famous Gengen shrine in the suburbs, where it addressed prayers to induce the Japanese to return to the old style. The prayers invoked divine intervention to force women to return to paths of patriotism, while the speeches largely abused women for adopting modern coiffures, especially bobs.

Madrid—Guerrilla warfare is being carried on by the rebellious Moroccan tribesmen on two fronts of the Spanish zone, official statements said.

Paris—The Prince of Wales, who spent the week end at Le Touquet, on the Normandy coast, motored to Deauville because he found Le Touquet too dead for his royal tastes. When he arrived at Deauville he was almost unable to enter the casino because he had no passport. He argued a quarter of an hour with the attendants and was able to enter finally when well known English patrons identified him.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Worthington—Thomas Heige of St. Paul won the gold medal oratorical contest at the Women's Christian Temperance Union convention here Mr. Heige's subject was: "Shall We End War?"

Crookston—C. E. Mickel, agricultural entomologist from University Farm, St. Paul, was called to the Red River valley counties to help quell an outbreak of the sugar beet web worm, one of the most destructive leaf eating insects attacking the sugar beet.

Appleton—In the worst thunderstorm of the season the grain elevator of John J. Hagen & Son at this place, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground with its contents, about 2,000 bushels of grain.

Lake City—It is claimed for three local residents that they are probably the oldest citizens of Minnesota located in one city. Their total ages approximate 285 years. They are O. P. Francisco, Patrick H. Rahilly and P. Carroll. All are healthy and vigorous men, considering their years.

Austin—A survey of houses under construction in Austin since the first of the year and of contracts already made for construction to be started this fall reveals that by November 1 200 houses will have been started in Austin since January 1.

Winona—Barney Carson, southern Minnesota professional golf champion who recently resigned as professional of the Winona Public Golf Course Association, has accepted a similar position at the Albert Lea Country Club, he announced here.

St. Cloud—Alfalfa crops can be made to pay as high as $80 an acre and in some cases higher than that, Charles R. Hutchinson, alfalfa expert, told the members of the Stearns County Bankers Association at a special meeting at Greenwald.

Minneapolis—Minneapolis provided the second largest number of recruits for the U. S. Navy during the fiscal year which ended June 30, according to figures issued by the Navy department at Washington. Kansas City led the country with a total of 5,449 men.

Faribault—Paul A. Johnson, county agent, is warning farmers to save seed from their 1923 bins for planting next year. "Our corn is far behind time," Mr. Johnson said, "and if it is to mature for seed we will have to have at least three or four weeks of hot weather."

St. Cloud—Dr. Hans Hansen, of Logan, Ia., who was chief surgeon of the 88th division during the World war, and newly appointed medical officer in charge of the Veterans' hospital about to be opened here, is now in St. Cloud. He has been for some time acting executive officer of one of the large hospitals for veterans in New York.

Preston—Finding a power wire down, a Preston farmer touched it with a match to see if it was "hot" and then picked it up and tied it around a fence post. Linemen coming along later declared the farmer must have handled the wire in a moment of temporary failure of power, for the whole wire was found charged with 13,000 volts.

Northfield—Debaters from Oxford University of England will meet Carleton College in Skinner chapel, November 11, it is announced by Dr. E. B. Dean, chairman of the board of deans of Carleton. Among the Oxford debaters is N. J. MacDonald, son of the prime minister, of Queen's college. Last year Carleton defeated Cornell University, which has also met the British team.

Hibbing—The woods are full of bears, not only north of Hibbing, but south as well, according to farmers coming into town this week. In the Lynwood section scouts at the Boy Scout camp have seen several cub bears in the woods. The woods north of Hibbing contain more bears than at any time in the last five years, it is reported.

St. Cloud—At a meeting of Stearns county cattle breeders a general campaign to introduce better sires into the county was launched and given enthusiastic indorsement by the big cattle owners of the county. This is in line with a general program being carried out by the Minnesota Holstein Breeders Association, which has successfully put over campaigns in 11 counties in the state.

Minneapolis—Three yachts out of the entire fleet of Class C yachts which started in the first race of the championship series of the Inland Lakes Yachting Association at Deephaven, Lake Minnetonka, were left sailing when the race neared completion there. The boats, starting in the rain, ran into a severe storm which capsized boat after boat and made the task of rescuing the crews most difficult.

Duluth—District Judge E. J. Kenny took under advisement the claims for $2,500,000 back pay made by Leonard Swanson, iron ore prospector for services in discovering mines on the Mesaba range for Marshall H. Alworth, Duluth mining man.

Wells—September 25 has been set by M. W. Brewster president of the Southwestern Firemen's Association as the date for that body to convene in Wells. Members of the Civic and Commerce association, co-operating with local firemen, will hold a field day on that date. The association has 40 towns in its membership.

Duluth—Discontinuance of the night train over the Soo Line to Thief River Falls, giving a through sleeper service daily from here to Winnipeg, was announced here by H. M. Lewis, general passenger agent of the road.

Mankato—Miss Harriet Pugh, music composer, died of heart disease here. She was the daughter of Mrs. J. E. Pugh, and a sister-in-law of Charles K. Mayer, president of the Mankato Chamber of Commerce.

Slayton—Work on the foundation for the monument to mark the graves of the settlers at Lake Shetek who were killed by the Indians in the massacre of 1861 is about completed and it is expected the monument will be set up by October 1. Thirteen Shetek pioneers were massacred.

St. Paul—Bishop Charles Bayard Mitchell took formal leave of the St. Paul area of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he has been head for eight years. His address of farewell was largely a story of his relations with Bishop Charles Edward Locke, retiring head of the Manila, P. I., area, with whom he is exchanging posts.

Mankato—The butter entry of Marvin Fredrickson of the Cambria Co-operative Creamery, was given the highest award of any butter submitted from the 18 co-operative creameries in this section at the exhibits of the Minnesota Co-operative Creamery Association at the Mankato fair. The Cambria entry score 94¼ points.

Thief River Falls—The offices of the Minnesota Wheat Growers' Association which have been located in this city since its inception, will be moved to Minneapolis occupying quarters there in connection with the American Wheat Growers' Association, of which William J. Brown of this city, has been president for the last year.

Duluth—District Judge H. J. Granals refused to grant a third trial to the Model Woodland fire case, which involved the settlement of several millions dollars losses in the Woodland district of Duluth in the October 1918 forest fires. Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. McCool were awarded a verdict of $5,985 for losses suffered in the fire.

Albany—A six week's intensive campaign has been started in Stearns county to place a pure-bred sire at the head of every herd. Although sponsored by the Minnesota Holstein Breeders' association, the effort is not being put forward to place any specific breed of cattle, but rather to get purebred sires to head the cattle herds.

Red Lake Falls—Seventy farmers and business men attending a meeting at the court house here to discuss the sugar beet situation in this locality and to ascertain sentiments towards building a new sugar refinery at East Grand Forks. A committee will be appointed to canvass the community and see how much stock can be subscribed.

Ortonville—Chinese ringneck pheasants within the county of Big Stone, will be protected from hunters this season, if Governor Preus acts favorably upon a petition being circulated among the sportsmen of this county. The petition asks that a closed season be ordered, as the pheasants have not increased sufficiently in numbers and cites the effect of the severe winter of 1922, when hundreds of the birds were frozen to death.

Albert Lea—Following the example of the Sumner Valley Creamery, at Sigsbee, the Moscow Creamery is the second in Freeborn county to refuse to receive milk or cream from any herd that has not been tested for tuberculosis. The good result of what was then considered a drastic step by the Sumner Valley Creamery was shown by the fact that all the herds supplying it with milk and cream became 100 per cent free of tuberculosis by test.

Anoka—Minnesota farmers set in motion the machinery of their newest co-operative marketing enterprise, when they opened the first of nearly 200 warehouses to the first load of potatoes of the 15,000,000 bushel crop they expect to handle this year through their own agency. The Minnesota Potato Growers Exchange, made up of 12,800 farmers received the first shipment of the 1924 crop at its Anoka warehouse, with more than a dozen other warehouses opening the same day.

Minneapolis—F. A. Ludwig, cashier of the First National bank of Minnesota Lake, who disappeared on August 6, following an examination of the bank's books which showed shortages said to total between $40,000 and $45,000, was found living in an abandoned barn on a farm in Belgrade township, 10 miles south of St. Peter. He apparently was a victim of aphasia, failing to recall anything of the past or to recognize his wife and sister during an examination by police who arrested him.

Hibbing—Hibbing's paving program, now in progress, is the greatest undertaken by any city in Minnesota this year, not even excepting the cities of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth. Approximately 40 blocks will be put in here, all of the thickness required by the state highway department in order to receive reimbursement from the state, according to the engineer in charge. The village expects to be reimbursed to the extent of about $40,000.

Glencoe—Two huge transformers were destroyed and eight miles of tension line owned by the Northern States Power company were blown down by a storm which swept this section.

Duluth—Chippewa Indians of the Fond du Lac band, headed by their aged chief Peter Lemieux, have opened their fight in Federal Court for land allotments which they claim the government took away from them in 1888. A long legal battle between the Indians and the United States government is indicated by the developments at the opening session.

ITALIAN AIRMEN FOUND ININJURED

Aviator And Three Comrades Spend Three Days On Icy Waters

Washington.—American world fliers are preparing at Ivigtut for another hazardous lap in their journey, a 500-mile jump across water to Indian Harbor, Labrador.

Meager reports received at the navy department told of the flight of Lieutenants Smith and Nelson from Frederiksdal to Ivigtut, presumably Sunday, in 2 hours and 19 minutes. It was assumed here that they took advantage of improved weather conditions to get to the Ivigtut base because it offered more complete equipment than was provided at Frederiksdal for changing their engine and overhauling their planes.

On Board U. S. Cruiser Richmond, East of Cape Farewell, Greenland.—The Richmond rescued Lieutenant Locatelli, missing Italian airman, Sunday. He was picked up 125 miles east of Cape Farewell.

The Italian flier and his companions were uninjured, although worn out by fatigue.

Motor trouble had forced Locatelli to come down on the water during the flight Thursday from Reykjavik, Iceland. He was unable to bring his plane into the air again and drifted for 100 miles.

Locatelli requested that his airplane be destroyed and his wish was complied with.

The last heard of the Italian aviator during the flight gave his position as 40 minutes ahead of the Americans, but when the latter reached Frederiksdal, their objective, he was not there and he was thought for a time to have overshot the goal.

American naval officers and aviators, with the aid of Danish officials and natives familiar with the torturous coast along the southeastern tip of Greenland, have conducted an intensive search for him since it became known he was lost, but few details have been obtained by the official naval wireless here despite continuous efforts. It was known, however, that the searchers were facing great handicaps of fog and heavy weather.

HAS CAR TO CHASE YEGGS

Inkster Employs High-Powered Car as Bandit Chaser.

Inkster, N. D.—Equipment of a high-powered auto for instant use in pursuing bandits who might enter the city or try to leave it hastily, is the innovation Inkster citizens have adopted in their defense system against possible yegg invasions. They have also organized a defense committee of 35 night watchmen who serve in pairs.

Volunteer organizations have just been formed in Reynolds and Thompson, two other small Grand Forks county towns.

Charges of buckshot from sawed-off shotguns in the hands of a regularly organized force, await any yeggs who may want to try out the defenses of Michigan, Nelson county.

Van Hook, to supplement a night watchman who has been on duty for some time, has formed a guard of 42 men, who will take turns in patrolling the city at night. They are well armed. A deputy sheriff may be appointed there also.

Fifty men, composing the Bowman Volunteer Protective association, have signed up to patrol the streets of Bowman nightly in relays. They are heavily armed and have been sworn in as regular deputy peace officers.

KILLS FORMER WIFE, SELF

Crookston Man Fires Three Shots and Then Kills Self.

Minneapolis.—Erick Hagen, 45, an attorney of Crookston, Minn., shot and killed Agnes Hagen, 36, his divorced wife, and then committed suicide at Mrs. Hagen's apartment here Monday.

According to detectives investigating the case, Hagen had been in Minneapolis about a week trying to effect a reconciliation with his wife. Their daughter, Beret, 18, who made her home with her father at Crookston, had been visiting her mother and was to have returned with her father Monday.

The girl told the police she had packed her grip and was waiting to start when Hagen suddenly drew a revolver and fired three shots at her mother. Mrs Hagen fell in the hallway of her apartment and died almost instantly.

Hagen then ran to a bedroom and turned the gun on himself. He died in an ambulance from two bullet wounds in the head.

Confesses to Bank Robberies.

Fargo, N. D. One of the band of six men held at Minot has confessed to having helped rob several banks in the state, according to a telegram received by W. C. Macfadden, of Fargo, secretary of the North Dakota Bankers association. The alleged robber said he had participated in the burglaries at the Munich, Sanger, Krem, Wing, Makoti, Hartland, and other banks the telegram said. A shotgun used by the authorities at Minot is believed to have been the one taken from the Hartland bank.

3 HURT IN OIL STATION BLAZE

Jamestown Suffers $50,000 Loss As Result Of Gasoline Tank Explosion

Jamestown, N. D.—Three persons are in the local hospital, one probably fatally injured, and property estimated at $50,000 has been burned, as the result of an explosion in the local yards of the Sinclair Oil company Saturday afternoon. For a time the large storage tanks of the Dacotah Oil company and the yards of the Murphy Lumber company were in danger but heroic work of the fire department and citizens stopped the further spread of the flames.

Those injured are:

H. P. Lenten, manager of the Sinclair oil plant here, who was burned painfully about the head. His condition is not considered serious.

Neil Colgar, struck in the head by flying timbers. He may be fatally hurt.

Julius Olund, less seriously injured by flying debris.

The Sinclair Oil company plant is a total loss. Five residences were also consumed by the flames. The owners of the burned homes are Jacob Lang, George Wilhelm, George Stangler, August Clemens, and Christian Schwader.

The explosion was caused by a spark from an electric pumping motor in the warehouse while a delivery tank was being filled. Manager Lenten saw the spark and jumped for the door, but was caught by the explosion and hurled through the door. His head, face, arms, and legs were badly burned, but his recovery is declared certain.

The blast put fire to the two large storage tanks and these exploded, hurling the burning gasoline for blocks around, as well as pieces of timber and other parts of the plant. The burning oil flowed in the gutters and attempts to extinguish the flames were futile.

MAJORITY BELIEVED CERTAIN

Industrialists Urge Immediate Acceptance of Dawes Plan.

Paris.—The chamber of deputies early Sunday morning voted confidence in the Herriot government by 336 to 204, following the long debate in the chamber on the government's action at the London conference.

Berlin.—Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann, and Finance Minister Luther, the three German delegates to the London international conference, Saturday gave the reichstag a formal accounting of their stewardship of Germany's interests in the settlement of the reparations problem. That the government made out a strong case for itself was the concurring opinion of the ranks of the middle parties and the Socialists, while the official declaration is believed to have had a decisively sobering effect upon the nationalists.

Meeanwhile, scores of protesting telegrams from the occupied areas and delegations from the Ruhr, representing political, civic, social, industrial, and labor organizations, regardless of partisan affiliation, are bombarding the reichstag with petitions demanding an unequivocal ratification of the agreement on the Dawes plan reached in London.

The industrialists and "big business" generally also are impressing upon the nationalists the imperative necessity of accepting the government's drafts on the Dawes bills, and the London protocol.

FLAYS KLAN, LABOR LEADERS

Maine Audience Astonished at Stand of Charles G. Dawes.

Augusta, Me.—Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president, opened his speaking campaign Saturday here with a declaration on the Ku Klux Klan and a denunciation of attempts by labor leaders to influence "patriotic, law-abiding union men into a political combination with Socialists."

Mr. Dawes had announced he would "shoot straight from the shoulder, politicians or no politicians," and the audience which gathered at a Republican state rally at Island park, near here, was prepared for some hot shots. It was taken aback somewhat, however, when the vice-presidential nominee mentioned the Klan by name in his first sentence, discussed that question at some length, and then turned his fire on "politicians cringing before the whip of a few bluffing labor leaders."

The audience stood astonished for a moment, for Maine is counted by Klan leaders as one of the states where the organization is strongest; then there was scattering applause.

Murdered Man Found in Boxcar

Mandan, N. D.—A man believed to be John Thomas of Spokane, Wash., was found dead in a box car at Elgin, 75 miles south of here, Saturday morning. Bullet holes in his body indicated murder. Just before daylight three young men driving by the rail road yards saw two men emerging from the box car. The two drove away in an automobile. Two men of descriptions similar to those seen by the young men, had previously held up and robbed campers near Leith of $300

AFRAID SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Operation Advised, But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made It Unnecessary

Glasgow, Kentucky. — "I was rundown, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer without an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dressmaker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again, so I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and everybody tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel stronger in every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."—Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Ky.

Odd Use for Auto Bodies

For temporary protection of a river bank being undermined by floods and strong currents, approximately 2,000 discarded automobile bodies were sunk in depths of from 20 to 40 feet. Placed in a barrier along the shore line, the cast-off vehicle hulks formed a "mattress" to hold the land from slipping into the stream. Many that did not readily submerge were filled with rock. It is said that the plan checked erosion of the bank, until permanent dikes could be installed.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Price lay back in his chair. "You know the way to the place where the mazoosalum—otherwise the forty millions—are waiting. I know the road starts near here. I'd picked the place from what the map said, and the boys tell me you came out right there. An' I think I know the rest of the way. But I ain't taking any chances. I want to know just what I've got to go against, and you've got to tell me. If you do, and if I find out you've told me the truth, I'll put you and the captain ashore. See! If you refuse, I'll make you wish you hadn't. And if you lie to me I'll—well, I've got you and your friends in the hollow of my hand. It'll be easy enough to find that mother and sister of yours and—well, we'll find 'em, all right. So you better speak up and speak quick."

The girl's face was colorless and her breath came in gasps. "I won't trust you," she gasped. "You wouldn't keep your word."

"Yes! I will! I swear it!"

Nellie's lips tightened. "I don't believe you. I won't trust you. If you have robbed and murdered, you'll lie, too. I'll tell you nothing."

Price sprang to his feet. The mask dropped from his face. "You little cat!" he yelled. "I'll—" He paused, holding himself in restraint by a mighty effort. "All right," he went on. "I won't crowd you. We don't start till daylight, and I'll give you till then to come to your senses. Sleep on it. I guess you'll come around. I've got ways of persuading people—especially girls—who play ugly. However, sleep on it. Now, I'll just lock you up in your mother's stateroom for the night. If you'll come along—" Price got up and waved his hand toward the door.

But the girl stood still. "I'm not going to leave this room," she declared. "I'm going to stay with Captain Bunker. I want to talk with him, and I'm going to do it. If you're afraid to leave a wounded man and a girl alone to conspire, you can stay and watch us."

Price shrugged his shoulders. The girl's defiance seemed to amuse him. "Oh, no! I'm not afraid," he chuckled. "But there's no use in taking chances. Besides, as I told you before, we don't want another fight with Captain Bunker. He's no cripple with his fists. Witness my eye." Price pointed to his damaged optic. "If you want to stay and consult with him you may, but you'll stay tied in your chair; see? Take your choice." The man picked up a piece of rope that lay on the floor and stood, waiting.

Nellie hesitated. She hated being tied, of course, but she hated still more being forced away from her only friend, helpless though the latter might be. "I'll stay," she decided.

"All right! Sit down."

Nellie sat down hesitatingly enough; and Price bound her firmly in her chair.

"Now we're all right," he said. "And I can tear myself away without feeling that you'll miss me. I'm treating you both as fair as I can. And I'm going to keep on treating you both as fair as you'll let me. But I'll just remind you that I've got some mighty bad characters among my men. I'll protect you if I can. But if we lost that forty millions by any chance I'm afraid it would be tolerably rough on you. See!"

Price walked to the door. "I'll be back later," he said, and crossed and locked it behind him.

Half an hour later he came back bearing a loaded tray. "I guess you'll be ready for some supper," he began cheerily, as he crossed the threshold. "I don't want to starve you, and—Damn!"

With [illegible] curses the man broke off. The room was empty. Captain Bunker and Nellie had disappeared.

CHAPTER XIII

The Robe of Mystery.

The swift falling tropic night [illegible] like a pall as the six adventurers descended the mountain stumbling over rocks unseen in the darkness, tripping over vines, crashing against trees that seemed to rise maliciously in the way, and shrinking from the back lash of branches pushed aside. Roundabout, among the trees, great ghost blossoms, white blooms of night loving plants, nodding in slender stems, filled the air with cloying perfumes. Above them fluttered myriads of night moths. Over all, through the interstices of the trees, stretched the black sky across which unfamiliar constellations swung so splendidly that one could almost hear them rumble as they moved.

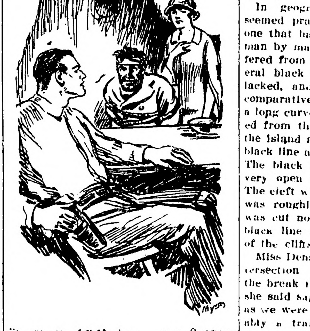
The adventurers were going back to the landing place because they had nowhere else to go. At the landing they would at least find water and food and there, perhaps, they would find boat waiting to take them back to the ship. Collins and Lord George might say what they would, the rest could not wholly believe that the apparently obedient and mild-mannered crew of the El Rio could suddenly have turned into mutineers and pirates. Some other explanation, they believed, would be found for all they had witnessed.

Nevertheless, when they had descended the last foot of the perilous pathway and came out on the few square yards of sandy beach and saw no boat, the hearts of the women failed them, and the men seemed unable to find adequate words of cheer. Had not Miss Denslow, mastering or putting behind her own fears, taken the situation resolutely in hand, the other women would have become hysterical.

Miss Denslow, however, took command. "When in doubt, eat," she said. "There are two ships lying out in the bay and one or the other of them will be sure to send in for us sooner or later. I don't know what that destroyer was watching us for, and just now I don't care. If they really were watching, they'll know we have come ashore and they can hardly help but know that something's gone wrong on the El Rio. Even if they are a lot of spies, they're human beings, and I suppose they represent a civilized government, so they'll come for us sooner or later. Meanwhile, it's up to us women to make the men comfortable. Men are brutes when they are hungry. Therefore, let's feed the brutes."

Bess caught fire at Miss Denslow's laughing words. "Yes! Come on," she cried. "Let's go back to the cave and light a fire, and be happy." Turning, she started back up the ascent, hurrying as fast as she could in the darkness. The others followed, Miss Denslow as usual assisting poor Mrs. Archman, who was nearly exhausted.

The short climb was made without disaster other than a few raps on exposed shins. Harry pressed the button of his electric torch and surveyed the scene. He was just exclaiming disgustedly over the absence of a fire, when Lord George and Collins stumbled up the path, each carrying several strips of driftwood. A fire was quickly kindled, and by its light aided by Harry's torch, Bess investigated the contents of the lunch baskets.



"I Won't Trust You," She Gasped. "You Wouldn't Keep Your Word."

As the six already knew, the baskets contained chiefly canned goods. Bess, however, discovered a package of sandwiches and a large thermos bottle containing coffee that was still hot. Lastly she found, far down in one of the baskets, a thin packet, scarcely larger than a letter, at which she gazed in wonder.

Then she laughed. "Price certainly is good to you men," she said. "He's put in cigars for you." As she spoke, she tore open the wrappings. Then her tone changed. "It isn't cigars," she cried. "It's our map—or—or—" she unfolded the parchment—"it's not our map; it's another one and—good gracious! It's the same as ours, only different."

"What do you mean?" Lord George's tones were sharp. "Let me see." Unceremoniously he took the parchment from the girl's fingers and scanned it. "You're right," he declared. "It's different! This is the original. The one you had first was an altered copy. The thief sent it to you so that you might lead him to the island; and he altered it so that he and he only might find the spot on it that you both were seeing. It's that scoundrel Price. And he and his friends have taken possession of the El Rio, and have gone to the spot."

"How do you know that it's the original? It may be the copy," objected Harry.

"The other is obviously wrong. We've found that out. The chances are that this one is right."

"But—but why does the thief give it back to us now?" demanded Bess wonderingly.

Miss Denslow answered. She had picked up the wrappings of the packet and had extracted from them a half sheet of paper. She bent forward to the firelight and glanced at the few lines that had been scrawled hurriedly across it. Then she started. "It's—" Abruptly she broke off. "I'll read it," she gasped.

"I'm afraid trouble is brewing, but if it is, you're well out of it ashore. I stole this map from the first thief last night. I have never seen yours, but I suspect it is different."

When she began Miss Denslow's voice showed extreme agitation, but it grew steadier as she went on and was nearly normal when she ended. While she read, Lord George scanned her features as narrowly as he could by the firelight, as if suspecting some secret reason for her excitement. The others either noticed nothing or ascribed what they did notice to the words of the message.

When she finished, the six looked at each other, stricken momentarily dumb. Each and every one of them seemed to be groping mentally for some explanation of the truly amazing contretemps.

Bess was the first to speak. "Oh! What does it all mean?" she wailed.

"It means that somebody on board is in league with the mutineers, but is secretly friendly to us. Maybe it's Price—"

"No, it isn't!" Miss Denslow interrupted. "It isn't Price. It's some one very different. Price was the first thief and—"

"How do you know?" Lord George's eyes bored into Miss Denslow's.

"I—I—I don't know, after all." The woman's eyes dropped and her answer came falteringly. "I—I'm just sure."

"You do know!" Lord George spoke fiercely. "You do know. You're playing a double part and—"

But Harry stepped forward. "Hold on!" he exclaimed, with a sudden access of dignity. "Stop right there. I won't have it. You be civil to Miss Denslow or you'll answer to me."

Lord George stared at the boy in amazement. Before he could answer Bess struck in. "Oh! For goodness' sake, don't quarrel," she begged. "We're in a bad enough fix without that. Lord George didn't mean anything, I'm sure." She looked at the Englishman appealingly.

His lordship gulped. "I beg your pardon, Miss Denslow," he said, with a resumption of his characteristic manner. "I jolly well forgot myself. I fancy I'm a good deal excited. What?"

Miss Denslow nodded. "I don't blame you—under the circumstances," she said. "But suppose we look at that map and see—"

It was not necessary to finish. In another instant Lord George had spread out the parchment and as many heads as could get near were bent over it.

In geographic features the map seemed practically identical with the one that had been sent to Mrs. Archman by mail ten days before. It differed from it, however, in having several black lines which the first one lacked, and in having only a single comparatively short red line instead of a long curved one. The red line started from the sea at the north end of the island and followed an underlying black line almost straight up the peak. The black lines formed a rough and very open network over the island. The cleft wherein the six were camped was roughly shown on the map and was cut not far from the shore by a black line that paralleled the course of the cliffs.

Miss Denslow put a finger on the intersection. "That black line marks the break in the walls of the ravine," she said sagely. "The one we noticed as we were going up this noon. Probably a trail leads through it. All these black lines are probably trails. If we follow this one north it will bring us to the path marked by the red line—the line we should have followed in the first place. And if we start as soon as we have eaten something, we'll get to our destination before those mutineers get there."

Nobody spoke for a moment. Miss Denslow's explanation seemed very reasonable and in fact convincing. But they felt reluctant to leave the spot where they were encamped. Desolate as it was, it was yet the place where they had last seen other human beings and where, if anywhere, other human beings would seek them. Moreover, few of the party relished a further tramp through the darkness. Mrs. Archman, indeed, broke down entirely. "I can't," she sobbed; "I can't walk another step."

"Oh, yes, you can! We'll help you," Miss Denslow spoke cheerfully. "We've got to go. If we don't get there by morning, the mutineers will get ahead of us, and if they take Mr. Archman unawares we can't [illegible]"

"Not to mention the [illegible] that torpedo boat," struck in Lord George. "Miss Denslow is right. By morning at the latest they'll be [illegible] us. Unless we want to be [illegible] Mr. Archman's aiding [illegible] we've got to get there before daylight."

Laws of Divorce

[illegible] divorces have [illegible] sanctioned and they are [illegible] ever heard of in modern Greece. In Tibet they are not allowed except by consent of both parties and then remarriage is forbidden. On the other hand, in China the parties desiring a divorce break a pair of chopsticks in the presence of witnesses and the thing is done.

BROUGHT HOME FROM MEXICO ON STRETCHER

But Mrs. Herman Is Now in Good Health, Thanks to Tanlac.

A few years ago Mrs. M. E. Herman, 215 Hitchings St., San Antonio, Texas, "returned to the states from Monterey, Mexico," she says, "in such a low state of health that she had to be carried to her home on a stretcher."

As time went on and she still lingered in the throes of "Nerve exhaustion, stomach disorders and bodily weakness," she determined, "on the advice of her druggist," to try Tanlac, which she declares "brought back my health and strength after I had almost despaired of ever getting well."

The results of Tanlac in the case of Mrs. Herman, while indeed remarkable, are by no means unusual for Tanlac, as many hundreds of people everywhere have testified to having taken the famous medicine with no less wonderful results.

"I returned from Mexico," said Mrs. Herman, "so thin and weak that I feared my life was going to be cut short. I could neither eat or sleep in a natural way and it seemed at times that heart palpitation and nerve exhaustion would take me away.

"The makers of Tanlac will always have my heartfelt thanks, for it is to Tanlac that I attribute my recovery and present good health. Tanlac is like a blessing from heaven to me, that is the way I think about it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation, made and recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

Can't Hock the Cow

If you ever run short of funds in Paris and happen to have a cow handy, it won't help you much. The French government has ruled that cows cannot be hocked in pawnshops.

A farmer at Boulogne attempted it. The secretary general of the government pawnshop system ruled against him.

"Cows are not acceptable," the secretary general said, "because they come under the head of perishable goods. A cow hocked by its owner is liable to die in its sad surroundings."—From Collier's.

Cuticura Soap for the Complexion. Nothing better than Cuticura Soap daily and Ointment now and then as needed to make the complexion clear, scalp clean and hands soft and white. Add to this the fascinating, fragrant Cuticura Talcum, and you have the Cuticura Toilet Trio.—Advertisement.

Useless Logic

A ruse is a blind, a blind is a shade, a shade is a shadow, a shadow's a ghost, a ghost is a shade, a shade is a color, a color is paint and paint is rouge. Therefore, by Euclid, axiom one, rouge must be a ruse. And, curiously enough, it is true.—Yale Record.

The Way of Life

This brief sermon by the wayside is from the Tifton Gazette: "Some men seem to make money without effort, while some women seem to annex more husbands than the law allows without any more effort. It's the other way round with some men, who can't make money no matter how hard they try, while some women find it utterly impossible to even annex the one husband allowed by law. But then, that's the way of life."

Don't chuckle if you put over a substitute when an advertised product is called for. Maybe your customer will never come back.

Ben Mulford, Jr.

Triangular Trade Route

The name "Triangular Trade route" was applied to the route from the United States to the West Indies; from the West Indies to Europe, and from Europe to the United States. The mainland shipped food and lumber to the West Indies; the West Indies shipped sugar products to Europe; and Europe shipped manufactures to the American mainland, thus closing the transaction.

Applicants for Sheep-Attention

Those who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity of securing some sheep thru the Agricultural Credit Corporation, will please make application for same at the at the Marshall County State Bank before the 10th of September. All applications have to be forwarded complete to the Corporation before Sept. 20th and we must have a few days in which to make any necessary corrections in the applications.

You will make application for either white face or black face sheep.

To every fifty ewes ordered, resquisition must be made for one buck. It is expected that these sheep can be purchased at prices ranging from $7.00 to $9.00 F. O. B. point of shipment in Montana.

To this will be added transportation charges and purchasing department expense amounting to approximately 65 cents to 90 cents on each head. A rumor has gained ground to the effect that the bank was making a large commission on the sheep and cattle so ordered. We wish to correct this erroneous rumor by stating that all the work done by this bank is offered gratus. Banks performing this service for the benefit of the farmer who is taking steps to better himself are not charging anything for the work. We offer our clerical work and time to help you. REMEMBER, there are no charges added to the price of your sheep by this bank.

Further information as to payment plan or method of securing sheep can be had by calling at the bank.

Robert J. Lund, Cashier.
Secy. of Local Agr. Com.

P.S. Farmers have still a chance to secure Graded dairy milch cows thru the Agricultural Credit Corporation on the four year payment plan drawing 6 per cent interest, but please let us know about your wants.

Send in your items early in the week.

Mrs. John Hagglund and family visited friends west of Newfolden Sunday.

The Marshall County State Bank announce that after Sept. 1, the interest rates on time and savings deposits will be 4 per cent per annum.

You can make more money with three cows and a De Laval cream separator —than you can with four cows and an inferior separator or gravity skimming

This is possible because the De Laval Cream Separator gets at least twenty-five per cent more cream, and cream sells for more money this season than ever before.

Call at our store the next time you are in town and let us talk it over

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

Poultry Wanted

We need a lot of live poultry the balance of this fall to take care of our increased orders, thereby you are insured of more money if you bring your live poultry to us at Thief River Falls. We pay you cash for every pound of poultry you bring in, so why sell where you have to take it out in trade. We will loan you coops, either to ship to us, or bring them in yourself. A trial shipment will be appreciated.

Thanking you for any shipment you might send us and assuring you of our appreciation of it, we remain

Yours very truly,

Cut your weeds now, if you don't want some one else to do it, and have it charged to you in taxes.

The clinic for expentant mothers and mothers of young babies which was held by the Division of Child Hygiene in Holt on Aug. 23rd. was well attended. Many women availed themselves of the opportunity to see the exhibit and hear the talk given by Dr. C. O. Maland of Minneapolis. The motion picture, Well-Born, was shown in the evening. Other clinits will be held in Grygla Sept. 5th. in Gatzke Sept. 6th.

Noxious Weeds Must be cut now

Notice is here by given to all lot and land owners within the Corporate limits of the village of Holt, that they must, in compliance with the state law, cut all moxious weeds before the some shall seed.

The law provides that in cases of neglect or refusal of property owners to promply comply with notice, duly issued by Village or town officials, they shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and any expenses, incurred by reason of such neglect or refusal, shall be entered by the county auditor on his tax books.

I therefore call upon every property owner to act promptly in this matter, thus saving themselves from incurring unnecessary costs, and assisting the state to carry out the laudable purpose of noxious weeds extermination.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a power of sale, by reason of which default said power of sale has become operative, and the assignee of the mortgagee, hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Torger Nilson Borgen, a single man; Mortgagor, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, dated January 19th, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 29th day of March, A. D. 1920, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 17.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, Mortgagee, to Carl W. Mason, by written assignment dated February 17, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 14th day of July, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 303.

And whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has paid delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged property hereinafter described in the sum of One Hundred Two and 17-100 Dollars ($102.17); and whereas, the said Carl W. Mason, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and power of sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars, ($450.00), with accumulated interest from the 19th day of January, 1922, at the rate of six per cent per annum, and also the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid as aforesaid, with interest thereon from the date of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum; and, whereas, the said power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Seven (7) in Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 9th day of September, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M. of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and the sum of $102.17 for taxes paid on said described premises with interest thereon from date of payment, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Twenty-five Dollars attorney's fees stipulated as attorney's fees in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Dated July 18, 1924.

Labor —that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

Let us tell you more about this cut-cost paint.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington—Replacement of all embassies in Constantinople by legations has been tentatively suggested by Great Britain in notes to all powers concerned.

Washington—The navy department was advised that the trans-Atlantic flight of the giant dirigible ZR-3, now being completed at Friedrichshafen, Germany, might be started September 10.

Washington—The Federal Council of Churches designated Armistice day as "Mobilization day for world justice and World peace" and called on all churches to launch then "a constructive drive toward a warless world."

Washington—John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, unreservedly supports National Defense test day September 12, and calls on Legionnaires everywhere to volunteer their services to the authorities in charge.

Washington — Lieutenant Antonio Locatelli, the Italian aviator, has been found. He was picked up 125 miles east of Cape Farewell. The Italian flier and his companions were uninjured, although worn out by fatigue. Motor trouble had forced Locatelli to come down on the water during the flight from Reykjavik, Iceland. He was unable to bring his plane into the air again and drifted for 100 miles.

Domestic

Tecumseh, Neb.—Every member of the family of Christ Hoehne, comprising the father, mother and four children, were killed near Sterling, Neb., when their automobile was struck by a train.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Adequate preparedness for war by America would be "the greatest move for peace America ever has made," General J. J. Pershing declared here in an address before the Cheyenne Chamber of Commerce.

Denver—"Lightnin'," the play by the late Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith, which made a record run of three years in New York and two years in Chicago, with Bacon in the title role, closed its sixth year here. The company will rest next year.

New York—Police are trying to determine how two robbers, after binding two men with picture wire and gagging them, escaped with diamonds valued at $100,000 from the ninth floor of the building at 170 Broadway, at Maiden Lane, during a noon hour.

Pelham Manor, N. Y.—Former United States Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia and his former secretary, Miss Mazie Crawford, were married here at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Livingston Leeds. Mr. Smith is 69 years old and his bride 28.

Memphis—Diversification of crops "is the salvation of a south tyrannically ruled by bug laden cotton," W. F. Schilling, of Northfield, Minn., told delegates at the eleventh annual convention of the Cotton States Merchants Association in session here. Mr. Schilling urged the extension of dairying throughout the south.

Detroit—In an explosion and fire in the Vinewood avenue police station, two Negro prisoners were burned to death and eleven prisoners were injured, seven seriously. The explosion, followed by a fire, occurred while patrolmen were pouring confiscated alcohol from containers into drains which lead from the floor of the cell block.

Woburn, Mass.—President Coolidge is taking no part in local contests in Massachusetts or any other state, according to a letter from the White House, made public by Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger. Congressman Dallinger is opposing Speaker Frederick H. Gillette of the House of Representatives and Louis A. Coolidge in the primary contest for republican nomination for United States Senator.

Idaho Falls, Idaho—United States Senator William E. Borah and Representatives Addison T. Smith and Burton L. French were renominated by acclamation as party candidates for those offices by republicans of Idaho meeting in state convention here. The convention renominated all present republican state officers including Governor C. N. Moore, and selected Raymond L. Giving of Boise for Supreme Court.

Kittintelbe, Calif.—A grove of giant redwood trees here was dedicated to the memory of the late Franklin K. Lane, former secretary of the interior and an advocate of forest conservation. A bronze tablet was unveiled by Mrs. [illegible] Lane Kaufman, daughter of Franklin K. Lane. It was inscribed to Mr. Lane as "well beloved son of California—creative statesman in a democracy." Mr. Lane was first president of the Save-the-Redwoods League.

New York—Negotiation of another loan to the French government may follow the expiration of the $100,000,000 credit granted last March by J. P. Morgan & Co., to the Bank of France for the purpose of stabilizing the franc, bankers indicated.

Newark, N. J.—Eugene Stack, youthful East Orange mail clerk, who a few weeks ago shot and killed an armed bandit who was attempting to steal a mail pouch in his custody, was the guest of honor at a luncheon arranged by several insurance companies. The concerns presented Stack with a check for $1,000.

New York—Lieutenant William Manning, 90 years old, last survivor of Perry's expedition to Japan, is dead here after a brief illness. Lieutenant Manning, who had been retired from the navy for several years, fought in the Civil war under Farragut, taking part in the battle of Mobile bay.

Herrin, Ill.—Three cases were nolled possed in the Herrin city court against Harry Walker and Carl Neilson, codefendants of S. Glenn Young, Ku Klux Klan liquor raider, on charge growing out of the rioting here February 8, last, and the bonds of Young in the three cases totaling $5,000, declared forfeited because of his failure to appear in court. Young is now in an Atlanta, Ga., hospital for treatment.

Sports

Washington—Years may come and years may go, but Walter Johnson, pitching ace of the Washington Senators, goes right on pitching the brand of ball that made him famous. Johnson holds the distinction of having pitched his second no-hit game in major league baseball, his sixth scoreless game of the season and the 107th shutout victory of his career.

New York—Another bout between George Berlenbach of New York and Young Stribling of Macon, Ga., was predicted in boxing circles following the decision of a draw in their contest at the Velodrome. Stribling outboxed Berlenbach, but there was no serious damage done on either side in the six rounds so the judges considerately gave the draw. It was a great scene and as pretty a fight as has been pulled off in New York in years.

Foreign

London—Discovery of an unexpected storing place in the liner Laurentic which was sunk in 1917 by a German submarine, has enabled divers to recover $1,250,000 worth of gold bars.

Lisbon—Former Premier Cunha Leal fought a duel with Colonel F. Valex, wounding him. The fight resulted from a speech in which Leal charged the officer with stirring up an uprising.

Honolulu—Menacing conditions are reported in the Kalihi district, where soldiers recently rioted. The police dispersed a civilian mob which was threatening to attack soldiers. The military investigation continues.

Paris—The government has decided not to exclude grain from export in this year's economic program. It has fixed 75,000,000 poods as the possible amount for sending abroad. (A pood is 36.113 pounds.)

Honolulu—Eight soldiers were injured in target practice by the bursting of an antiaircraft shell from Battery D. Coast Artillery, at Waignae beach. Corporal William Hinton and Privates Ernest Kenny and Thomas Nelson were the most seriously hurt.

Shanghai—One hundred eighteen Chinese young men and women have just sailed for America aboard the steamship President Jefferson of the Admiral Line to begin studies this fall in various colleges and universities of the United States.

London—William Marconi, in a radio message, said he did not consider that the present attempts to communicate with Mars by radio had any better chance for success than experiments conducted when the two planets were farther apart.

London—Egypt's reply to Great Britain's note again blames the British officials for the Sudan incidents and demands participation by Egyptians in the tribunals which the Sudan government is setting up to inquire into the disturbances.

Copenhagen—A plea for relief and assistance on account of the failure of the Russian crop has been received here from Scandinavians residing in Russia. The petition was sent out from the Ukrane and was not censored.

Madrid—The Spanish cabinet has ordered its consuls at Bayonne and Hendaye, France, to grant without charge to American tourists visas valuable for 48 hours of sojourn in Spain, it was announced. The order was issued following efforts which had been made in this direction by American Ambassador Moore.

Dundalk, Ireland—A large crowd gathered in Market square here to listen to a speech by Eamon De Valera. Mr. De Valera was escorted to Dundalk by volunteer soldiers. In his speech De Valera declared that one of the greatest honors he had ever received was in being chosen with Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, to represent County Down in the northern parliament. He was a member of both the Irish parliaments, but he never attended the sessions of either of them because he has opposed them.

Paris—Workers in the vineyards of Narbonne went on strike and picketed the entrances to the great wine estates to prevent nonunion workers from entering. It is important to get the grapes picked and tramped out by bare feet of the peasants of the countryside immediately or the crop will be ruined, and therefore it is believed the proprietors will yield to the demands. A majority have given in and it is expected the peasants will be tramping grapes within a day.

London—A new Gloster-Napier machine capable of a speed of 220 miles an hour will be entered by Great Britain in the international seaplane race for the Schneider cup at Bay Shore park, Maryland, in October.

Sydney—Sir Keith Smith, noted Australian aviator, who has arrived here from England to undertake the supervision of the Australian activities of Vickers, Limited, the big steel and engineering firm, says he intends to investigate the possibilities of an air service between England and Australia, with a view to laying the foundations for such service.

U.S. FLIERS REACH NORTH AMERICA

History Making Flight Passes Last Hazard In Ocean Journey

Ice Tickle, Labrador.—The first circumnavigation of the globe by air was virtually completed with the arrival on the Labrador coast late Sunday of the American army world fliers.

Hopping from Ivigtut, Greenland, at 6:29 a. m., eastern standard time, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and his companions drove their powerful seaplanes over the 527 mile stretch of water without mishap and alighted at Ice Tickle at 1:18 p. m., thus completing the hop in 6 hours, 49 minutes.

The arm of the Atlantic separating Greenland and Labrador is notorious for its ice and fogs but conditions were almost ideal for the flight. A slight mist along the Labrador coast early in the morning cleared away later and the planes were helped on their way by a wind out of the northwest which at times brought their speed to as high as 126 miles per hour.

The four men—Lieutenant Smith and his mechanician, Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, in plane No. 2, and Lieutenant Erik H. Nelson, in No. 4, with Lieutenant John Harding, Jr., as his assistant—showed the physical strain of the journey and the suspense of the long days since they left Kirkwall, in the Orkneys, early in August, but expressed keen joy at arriving on North American soil, declaring their world journey practically ended.

Coolidge Congratulates Them

Washington.—President Coolidge in a congratulatory message to the American world fliers, delivered to them Sunday at Ice Tickle, Labrador, said their "return to North American soil following circumnavigation of the world by air, is an inspiration to the whole nation."

"Your history making flight," continued the president, "has been followed with absorbing interest by the people everywhere and you will be welcomed back to the United States with an eagerness and enthusiasm that I am sure will compensate for the hardship you have undergone. Your countrymen are proud of you. Your branch of the service realizes the honor you have won for it. My congratulations and heartiest good wishes to you at this hour of your landing."

Although the world flight will not end officially until the aviators reach Seattle, their return to the North American continent is generally regarded as setting the seal of success upon what until recently was an incredible undertaking.

Terse wireless messages received by the army air service told of the hopoff from Ivigtut, Greenland, and the arrival of the fliers at Ice Tickle. Tension here during the flight was relieved somewhat by a radio message from the cruiser Richmond that the planes had been sighted across the stretch of water between Greenland and Labrador and that conditions were favorable.

After three days delay at Ivigtut because of unfavorable weather, the conditions Sunday were almost ideal for a flight across the strait, which is fog haunted 60 percent of the time. Early in the morning a slight mist prevailed along the Labrador coast but it cleared later. The wind from the northwest favored the planes, speeding them toward America.

The last 139 miles to their destination was covered in 1 hour and 54 minutes, the wind falling toward the end of the flight to 20 knots. There was a cloudless sky and a temperature of 44 degrees.

The plan to have a scout plane from the Richmond meet the fliers outside the harbor and escort them in, was abandoned when Lieutenant Harold Sallada, piloting the escorter, was unable to take off because of rough water drowning the engine.

Five Months, Fourteen Days

Just 5 months and 14 days after beginning their world-girdling tour, the American fliers landed in the waters of continental North America.

Despite the desolate aspect of the barren Labrador coast, empty of people except for the few fishermen and traders, the fliers met with a warm welcome on returning to the American mainland. When the planes appeared above the rocky islets outside the harbor, the Richmond, belching black smoke, as a guide to the pilots, greeted them with ear splitting blasts of her siren.

Rear Admiral Magruder and Captain Colton went ashore to welcome the men home. All four, wearied with the physical strain of the journey and the suspense of long days since they left Kirkwall early in August, expressed keenest joy. They declared that their world journey was virtually ended.

Stutsman County Is Arming.

Jamestown, N. D.—Several Stutsman county towns have been organized in the last few days for protection against yeggs, organization work having been urged by State's Attorney Russell Chase and Sheriff J. H. Ross. They report that Buchanan, Pingree, Edmunds, Kensal, Courtenay, Cleveland, and Medina have already organized and have engaged night watchmen. Sheriff Ross obtained rifles from Company H of Jamestown for towns desiring them.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

St. Peter—A reunion of First Lutheran church confirmation classes was conducted with more than 300 confirmants present. Confirmation classes dating back to 1862 were in attendance.

Fergus Falls—The John Lauritzen Company of this city has been awarded the contract for the erection of a new building for the state girls school at Sauk Center. The contract price is $25,000.

Willmar—Driving all residents to cover with warning shots as they entered the place, six bandits took possession of the little inland town of Svea, 10 miles south of here and robbed the postoffice and bank of approximately $600.

Hibbing—Facing the necessity of making drastic cuts in the village payrolls, the board of trustees has reduced the list of employes to about 450 at present. The trustees have set $72,000 a month as the limit of the payroll until the close of the year.

Thief River Falls—A broken rail caused the tender, combination baggage and mail car, three coaches and the front truck of the Soo Line Flyer running from Winnipeg and Minneapolis to be derailed near Orleans, north of here.

Stillwater—Minnesota and Wisconsin joined to celebrate the building of a new link in the affairs of the two states, when the breaking of a bottle, containing water taken from an ocean, a river and a lake, signalized the opening of 20 miles of pavement between the Twin Cities and Stillwater.

Worthington—Six automobile bandits broke into the Farmers' State bank of Round Lake, 11 miles southeast of here, after cutting all wires leading out of town, and escaped with $1,650. Nine hundred dollars was in cash and $750 in unregistered Liberty bonds.

Kenyon—Kenyon residents have purchased the entire $30,000 issue of certificates of indebtedness put up for sale by the village council to pay for the laying of Kenyon's first three blocks of paving. More bids for the certificates were made than had been issued by the council.

St. Cloud—Halmann hall of St. Benedict's academy at St. Joseph was destroyed by fire. Fire Chief Louis Mossbrugger of St. Cloud, took a detachment to the sister city to aid the St. Joseph firemen, but a high wind had full play on the burning structure and it could not be saved.

Hibbing—It is learned here that Shriners of Duluth and the iron range towns are planning the erection of clubhouses for the use of Shrine members at three lakes. The bodies of water selected for the location of the clubhouses are said to be Esquagama, Pokegama and Mille Lacs, located respectively at Gilbert, Grand Rapids and on the highway to Minneapolis.

Minneapolis—Shippers and receivers of freight in the Northwest are called upon to expedite the movement of grain and other commodities in a statement issued by Donald D. Conn, manager of the public relations section of the car service division, American Railway association. Mr. Conn has arrived in the Northwest to be on the ground during the heavy traffic movement of carriers serving the grain territory.

Minneapolis—Shippers and receivers of freight in the Northwest are called upon to expedite the movement of grain and other commodities in a statement issued by Donald D. Conn, manager of the public relations section of the car service division, American Railway association. Mr. Conn has arrived in the Northwest to be on the ground during the heavy traffic movement of carriers serving the grain territory.

Two Harbors—With the killing of two more black bears at a road camp near Beaver Bay, which brings the total number of bears killed in this locality within the last two weeks up to 12, Game Warden August Tabor has begun to look upon the whole matter with more or less suspicion. Inasmuch as the bears are protected, he has issued a warning to the effect that he will arrest the next person who kills a bear. He advises that if a bear becomes a pest in any locality he must be notified.

Bemidji—Men of a once mighty race crowded a Beltrami county courtroom here. They charged that the white man had not kept faith. And the wampum they asked for amounted at its largest figure to $50,000,000. The Objibway, once the largest and mightiest race of Indians north of Mexico, better known in Minnesota as Chippewas, pleaded through their attorneys here for a settlement of their affairs, before a special subcommittee of the United States senate. Their side was presented first.

Mankato—Thomas Dunning, one of the pioneer residents of this county, is dead. It was while working on a farm, that he had a thrilling experience. One morning immediately after the robbing of the Northfield bank by the James and the Younger gang, Dunning was searching for his cows when he was suddenly accosted by six heavily armed men. He was seized and his arms pinioned behind his back. One of the men, Jesse James, flashed a knife on him. Cole Younger came to him and made him promise he would say nothing, and turned him loose.

Windom—Three barns were burned on farms southeast of here in a severe electrical storm.

Waseca—The Waseca county board has appropriated a fund of 1,500 to the County Farm Bureau for agricultural extension work within the county.

St. Paul—David M. Clough, former governor of Minnesota and one of the pioneer lumbermen of the state, died at his home in Everett, Wash. He was 77 years old.

Red Wing—With the Red Wing Chamber of Commerce taking the lead, a movement is under way here to raise funds by voluntary subscription for the sufferers by the hail.

Ortonville—The most important farm sale to be made in the Ortonville territory since the boom of a few years back, occurred when F. A. Zehringer disposed of his quarter section. The consideration was $17,200.

Melrose—The state is paying for an 18 foot wide pavement on State Highway No. 3, which runs through Melrose, but Melrose citizens have made an additional contract with Ostrand and Hallett to pave the entire width of the main business thoroughfare.

Minneapolis—The resignation of M. L. Harney, group prohibition enforcement chief, to become an inspector in the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue department at Chicago, was announced by S. B. Qvale, state prohibition director.

Red Wing—After touching off a charge of nitroglycerin, which blew the safe in the district branch office of the Standard Oil Company to bits, bandits hurriedly left the scene without taking $1,000 in cash from the cashbox.

Little Falls—Oscar Rydquist, buttermaker for the Farmers' Co-operative creamery in this city, won second place in the butter exhibits at the Morrison county fair, with a score of 49¼. Albert West, of Motley, scored first with 94½.

Minneapolis—The Northern Pacific railway company has taken out a group insurance policy on 30,000 employes, it was disclosed. This is said to be the largest group policy ever written in the Northwest and the third largest written in the United States. The policy is for approximately $50,000,000 of insurance.

Slayton—Work on the foundation for the monument to mark the graves of the settlers at Lake Shetek who were killed by the Indians in the massacre of 1861 is about completed and it is expected the monument will be set up by October 1. Thirteen Shetek pioneers were massacred.

St. Paul—Bishop Charles Bayard Mitchell took formal leave of the St. Paul area of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which he has been head for eight years. His address of farewell was largely a story of his relations with Bishop Charles Edward Locke, retiring head of the Manila, P. I., area, with whom he is exchanging posts.

St. Paul—Bumper crops in Minnesota enabled bankers of the state to lay plans for the re-opening of 25 banks that failed during the serious depression period of the past several years. A. J. Veigel, state superintendent of banks, announced. Losses to depositors will be paid back on an installment plan.

Fergus Falls—Frog catching is becoming a real business in the neighborhood of Underwood, and is even more profitable than threshing wheat at $1.25 a bushel. With frogs selling at 28 and 30 cents a pound, people are putting in their spare time catching them and some citizens are reported to have made as high as $20 to $30 a day.

Albany—A six week's intensive campaign has been started in Stearns county to place a pure-bred sire at the head of every herd. Although sponsored by the Minnesota Holstein Breeders' association, the effort is not being put forward to place any specific breed of cattle, but rather to get purebred sires to head the cattle herds.

Worthington—War on Sunday dancing throughout Minnesota will be conducted by the Minnesota Women's Christian Temperance Union from now until the next legislative session, when the union will ask a law permanently barring Sunday dances, officers announced at the close of their annual state convention.

Red Lake Falls—Seventy farmers and business men attending a meeting at the court house here to discuss the sugar beet situation in this locality and to ascertain sentiments towards building a new sugar refinery at East Grand Forks. A committee will be appointed to canvass the community and see how much stock can be subscribed.

Ortonville—Chinese ringneck pheasants within the county of Big Stone will be protected from hunters this season, if Governor Preus acts favorably upon a petition being circulated among the sportsmen of this county. The petition asks that a closed season be ordered, as the pheasants have not increased sufficiently in numbers and cites the effect of the severe winter of 1922, when hundreds of the birds were frozen to death.

Red Wing—Farmers in some parts of southern Minnesota have found a novel use for old automobile license tags. They fasten them to young calves who refuse to be weaned. When the cow feels the sharp edges of the tag dinner is over with and supper won't be ready at all.

Worthington—Six automobile bandits broke into the Farmers' State bank of Round Lake, 11 miles southeast of here, after cutting all wires leading out of town, and escaped with $1,650. Nine hundred dollars was in cash and $750 in unregistered Liberty bonds.

"I forgot," Mrs. Archman struggled up heroically. "Come on. I'll go."

"No hurry!" Miss Denslow pressed the older lady back. "We'll make better time if we rest a while and eat something. Besides, the moon will be up soon and walking will be easier."

Bess laughed. It was a rather weak laugh, but it was a laugh. "We'd better get at our sumptuous repast," she said, "unless we want to eat in the dark. Here goes the last piece of firewood, and the men say they can't find any more. And an electric torch, though useful, will not illuminate a whole dinner table. Besides, we'll need it later."

Bess was right. The fire was dying, and long before the supper, simple as it was, could be finished, darkness had again descended upon the scene. When the last red ember winked out, several of the party drew long breaths. But nobody said anything. Their feelings were too deep for words. Each, however, undoubtedly took some comfort from hearing the others munching away at their hardtack in the darkness.

At last Lord George got up. "The moon is up," he said, pointing to the top of the canyon, where the tree tops had begun to silver against the sky. It's time to move."

"Wait!" Miss Denslow's voice came hissing in the gloom. "Listen!"

Out on the water of the inlet sounded the steady beat of oars, coming nearer and nearer. Mrs. Archman started up thankfully. "They've come for us. Oh! They've come for us," she murmured. "I knew they couldn't desert us. Call to them, Bess. Call to them."

"Wait!" Miss Denslow and Lord George spoke together. "Wait and see who they are first."

"But—"

"For God's sake be still!" breathed Lord George. "Silence! Keep well back under the ledge, for your life's sake."

Awed by his tones, all shrank back, flattening themselves against the rocks, and waited, listening.

The sound of the oars against the oarlocks had ceased. Another instant and a low order, followed by a concerted rattling, showed that the crew of the boat had shipped oars with man-of-war regularity. Other orders followed, and other movements. The trained ears of Lord George and Collins made out that most of the men had landed, but that one or more had put off in the boat to lie away from the shore. A shuffling of feet and a low click of metal on metal showed that those on land had formed into a rough column and that they carried rifles. As they moved up the cleft, more than one of them growled out a curse as he barked his shins on an unseen rock. Only one of the listeners recognized the language. "Danish!" breathed Lord George, as the steps of the last one died away.

The next moment Lord George stepped out. "Follow me, quickly and silently," he breathed. "Don't lose an instant." He waited while the others emerged from beneath the ledge, and then he set off up the path, following hard on the trail of the mysterious column.

Ten minutes later he paused by the side of the break in the wall, which was plainly perceptible in the greater light that had come from the shallowing of the gully. Silently he deflected each of his companions up it. When the last one had passed he drew a deep breath. "Checkmate," he murmured, as he followed.

The trail around the mountain proved to be easy to follow despite the difficulties of night travel. It was, in fact, a real trail and not, like the first they had followed, merely the rock-strewn bed of a torrent, which had happened to coincide more or less closely with a fanciful red line that Price had drawn upon the forged map. The party made excellent time along it and would have done even better had it not been for Mrs. Archman, who was utterly exhausted and positively refused to consider even a suggestion from Collins that he and Lord George should push ahead on a reconnoitering expedition and leave the others to rest and follow later.

As it turned out, however, the party did not have very far to go. About midnight, just as the men figured out that they must be very near the intersecting red line that ran up the mountain, the trail began to slant steeply downward, so steeply that Lord George, who was leading, stopped and peered doubtfully downward into the pool of blackness that yawned before him. The moon, though probably above the horizon, was behind the mountain and threw only a reflected light over the spot where the party had halted.

"Stop here till we can find out where we are going," directed his lordship authoritatively, but in a low tone, when the others came up. "This path seems to go far down, and I've got to reconnoiter before I take you along it." He peered to the right, whence came the murmur of the sea. "We're near the water," he added. "Maybe the path goes down to it. We're only guessing that the map is right, you know. Mr. Collins, you'd better go inland, I fancy, and see whether you can get around the head of the ravine. Maybe the red-line trail comes out at its head and you can find it. Mr. Archman, you'll stay here with the ladies till we come back or call to you."

No one seemed to resent Lord George's direction. The others seemed to have instinctively recognized that he was the best fitted of the party to lead. Even Collins, who might have claimed the right to control, made no objection. With a nod of comprehension he turned off to the left and tramped away; while Lord George almost as quickly took the road downward and disappeared.

Despondently the four who had been left behind waited. Mrs. Archman sat down on the bare ground and went to sleep almost instantly, with her head pillowed on Bess' lap. Miss Denslow walked to the very edge of the ravine and tried to peer down; and after a moment Harry joined her.

Suddenly a low call sounded from dead ahead. "Hello! Hello! Mr. Archman," it came cautiously.

Harry straightened up. "Hello!" he called. "Who's that?"

"It's me—Collins," came the answer. "I thought I saw you."

Simultaneously Miss Denslow clutched Harry's arms. "There he is," she murmured. "On the other side of the ravine, a little higher than we are. He's gotten completely around it. Yes, Mr. Collins?"

"Nothing doing over here! No path! Have you heard from Lord George?"

"Not yet."

"All right. I'm coming back." The almost invisible figure rustled into the deeper shadows that lay behind it.

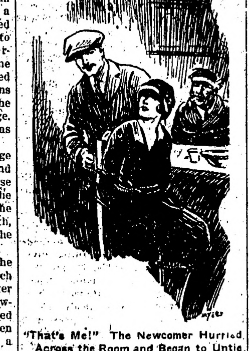
It was growing decidedly lighter. The moon was climbing behind the mountain and its rays were pulsing overhead, making the sky faintly luminous. Suddenly a confused noise from seaward broke on the night and the two turned to look. But the edge of the cliffs cut off all view of the sea.

"I'll go—" began Harry.

But Miss Denslow stopped him. "No!" she said. "Stay here. We must be ready if Lord George calls. Listen. Don't you hear oars?"

"Yes! I—"

Below in the darkness of the ravine a stone rattled downward, followed by another and another. Someone was climbing the rocks recklessly.



"That's Me!" The Newcomer Hurried Across the Room and Began to Untie the Cords That Bound Nellie to Her Chair.

While the two waited, a form sprang into view and Lord George's voice, cautious yet vibrant with excitement, rang out. "Quick!" he called. "Come quick, all of you! Danger! Come quick!"

CHAPTER XIV

A Little Surprise

As the door closed behind [illegible], Nellie turned to Captain Bunker with a sob. "What shall we do?" she cried. "What shall we do?"

Bunker shrugged his mighty shoulders. "Don't you fret," he said cheerily. "I've been in tougher places than this and I'm here to tell it. It's mighty hard on you, but—"

"Oh!" Nellie uttered a cry. "Can we trust him?" she quavered.

Captain Bunker sniffed. "You can trust him just as far as you can trust a rattlesnake, and no farther," he grunted. "He needs that map bad and he's trying to get it. I guess he doesn't remember it as well as he makes out. And he's worried about what he's got to face and wants to find out; and he'll promise anything to get you to tell. But you were right in what you said. Once he gets what he wants, it's all up with you and me—and with your mother and the rest, too. He can't let us go to set the dogs on him later. He just can't. And his men wouldn't let him if he wanted to. By the way, I don't want to be inquisitive, but how about those forty millions he's talking about. Are they there?"

The girl shook her head. "I don't know," she answered hesitatingly. "Father—Mr. Archman—spoke once or twice of a lot of money, but I didn't pay much attention. Forty millions is a lot."

Bunker nodded. "Rather!" he agreed. "By the way, where is Mr. Archman? How did you happen to come on board alone?"

"Because I was a fool. When word came that you were lying off the shore father was busy with—with some one. So I sent him word that I would come out to welcome you. I sent the man with me back to tell father and I jumped into my boat and rowed out. I was going back for father almost at once—as soon as I got the mail."

"But why didn't he follow?"

"There's only the one boat. That is, there's but one available until the tide goes out. So he can't come out for hours and he—look!"

A section of the paneling between two of the dead eyes that lighted the cabin was swinging outward and a man's foot was appearing beneath it. The next moment it was followed by the rest of his body.

"Don't be afraid," he said. "It's only me."

"Mr. Carr!" The words sprang from Nellie's lips, mingled with something suspiciously like a profane exclamation from Captain Bunker.

"That's me!" The newcomer hurried across the room and began to untie the cords that bound Nellie to her chair. "Gee! I thought that fellow never would go," he declared, "and I wasn't sure he had gone at first. It was close quarters, waiting. Still—" He broke off, for Nellie had dropped her head and was sobbing as if her heart would break.

Carr dropped the cords and bent over her. "Nellie! Nellie!" he cried. "Please don't. Oh, please don't! Oh, I'm such a flat-footed idiot! I was talking like a fool because I thought it would startle you less; and here I've frightened you so! What is it, dear?"

The girl was muttering something through her tears. The young man bent down to listen, and she spoke again. This time the words came clearer.

"I'm n-not startled or frightened nor—nor anything," she sobbed. "I'm crying because I—I'm so glad to see you again."

Carr jumped. Then he dropped on his knee beside the girl and threw his arms around her—and the chair.

Captain Bunker was watching the scene in profound disgust. "Belay there!" he roared. "This isn't any pink-tea party. Break away and cut me loose quick. D—n it all, do you know that h—l is likely to pop around here any minute?"

Carr jumped up. "Right-o, captain!" he cried. "Right-o! I'll be with you in just a minute."

Nellie's loosened bonds fell at her feet; and Carr turned to the captain and quickly set him at liberty. Then he turned back to Nellie and held out his arms.

The girl walked into them and had her weeping face on his shoulder. It was a very dusty and unromantic shoulder, too, but neither of them thought of that.

Captain Bunker thought of it, however. He was stretching his limbs and feeling his cramped muscles, meanwhile contemplating the proceedings with profound disfavor.

Carr caught his expression and laughed happily. "Captain Bunker," he cried. "If this pains you, kindly turn your back and scrutinize the second porthole on the starboard quarter. We'll call you later."

But it was Nellie and not Bunker who acted. Half laughing and half sobbing, she pushed Carr from her and turned a rosy face toward the captain. "Never mind, captain," she said. "You may look all you like."

"Never mind!" roared the captain. "But I do mind, miss. Where do you think you are? Stand back, Carr, or I'll put you in irons. What the devil are you doing on my ship, anyhow?"

Carr laughed. "That's a long story, captain," he said. "And I'm afraid I haven't time to tell it now. Your friend Price may be back any minute. I'll just say that when I found out that you were coming to meet Nellie and her father I determined to come along—the more especially as I wasn't altogether satisfied with some of your prospective passengers. So I came—"

"But how the devil did you come? And—and who made that opening into my cabin?"

"I did, captain—I and my men. A dozen men can do a lot in seven days when they work overtime, even if they have to dodge a sharp-eyed captain and mate who never seem to want to go ashore. But come. We're taking chances."

The young man drew Nellie toward the slit in the bulkhead. "Come along, captain," he called over his shoulder.

Nellie went willingly. She seemed almost gay again. "Show me!" she ordered. "Oh-h-h! I'm so glad you came. I was so frightened. But now—"

"Now it's all right. Good Lord! If you knew how hard it was for me to keep still while that blackguard was talking— But here we are! Peek in!" He stood aside, and pointed through an aperture.

Must Cultivate Food

The common impression that the food of Samoa Islanders "falls in their laps" is quite wrong, says Prof. W. A. Setchell of the University of California. There are few edible plant products obtained there without regular attention. Every native village has its plantation where the famous bread fruit, bananas and coconuts are raised. The plantations are generally in forest clearings and are allowed to grow up in all sorts of weeds.

AFTER BABY ARRIVES

Many Mothers Weak, Nervous

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps to Restore Health

A great many letters similar to the following recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the new mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by a nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

Now Well Again

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"After I had my second child I felt sick and nervous and could not do much. Then after the other baby came I was worse than ever. I suffered this way for a long time and did not know what to do. I was looking over my cook books, and found one of your little books and I sat down and read every page. Then I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it before I stopped, and now I am well again. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends." —Mrs. JOHN MITZKE, 773 8th Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"My health got worse after my little girl's birth, and my mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had done her so much good. I had headaches and tired feelings, with no ambition, also pains at times so it hurt me to walk. With the Vegetable Compound I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I have been greatly helped. I do hope you will use my letter as a testimonial as it will help other women."—Mrs. GEORGE SHOEMAKER, 349 Emslie St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Followed Friend's Advice

Vienna, South Dakota.—"After my second child was born I was completely run-down and didn't care for anything. I had sharp pains in my sides and a white discharge and was nervous and weak. I didn't seem to care how I neglected my work. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it for two months the first time and one month the last time. It has helped me in a great many ways and the pains have left me entirely. I certainly wish you to know how much benefit I have received."—Mrs. G. W. FREEMAN, Vienna, South Dakota.

Such letters and a successful record of fifty years should convince every ailing woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine she needs. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Odd Things That Happen

A London paper draws attention to two odd things that have recently happened at sea which must make an appeal even to a dull imagination.

One was a collision between an airplane and a steamer; the other was a curious case of damage to an airplane rising over the Dorset coast. The damage was first seen from land and was notified to the pilot in the sky by a wireless message. The pilot was instructed to make for the sea and land in shallow water, which he did, being picked up by a rowing boat.

COOLIDGE ACCEPTS WITH CONFIDENCE

Has Abiding Faith in Judgment of People on Accomplishments and Purposes.

SEEKS PEACE AND THRIFT

Wants Opportunity for All, No Government Monopolies, Independent But Helpful Foreign Policy.

Washington, Aug. 14.—No single question vital to the people of the United States was dodged by President Coolidge in the first great speech of the political campaign—his speech accepting the nomination as President offered him by the Republican party, and delivered in Washington the evening of August 14.

After outlining the sound foundation of the party system of government, the President said: "Party means political co-operation, not as an end in itself, but a means, an instrument of government. If founded upon a great moral principle and directed with scrupulous regard for its integrity, it cannot fail to sweep onward and upward, advancing always steadily and surely, a mighty constructive force, a glorious bearer of progress.

"That is what the Republican party always has been and is today. In full faith that such it will continue to be, deeply conscious of the high honor it confers and the responsibility it imposes, I accept its nomination for President of the United States.

"In the history of our country is recorded the public services rendered by our party for more than the three-score years. That is secure. I pass on to the recent past and the present."

Progress of Four Years.

The President pointed out the condition of the nation in March, 1921, when the Republicans resumed the reins of government after a lapse of eight years. Though more than two years had passed since the armistice, the nation was still technically in a state of war. No diplomatic relations existed with Turkey, Greece, Russia, Colombia or Mexico, the Far East situation caused "grave apprehensions." Because of the war, "a reckless extravagance had come to characterize the administration of public affairs and was all too prevalent in private life." The national debt had risen to the staggering total of $24,000,000,000, more than $7,000,000,000 of it in short-time obligations without provision for payment. Government bonds were below par. High war taxes burdened the people. Demobilization and liquidation were incomplete. Huge railroad accounts remained unsettled. Transportation was crippled. Unliquidated foreign debts amounted to $11,000,000,000. Banks were filled with frozen assets. Interest was high, capital scarce, and financial distress acute. About 5,000,000 were without employment. No adequate provision had been made for relieving disabled veterans and their dependents. The great powers continued to burden their peoples by building competitive armaments. An avalanche of war-worn people and cheapened merchandise impended upon America from foreign lands, the President pointed out.

Turning to the settlement of these vast problems since the start of the Republican regime, the President pointed out that treaties of world-wide importance have been ratified with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Colombia and Mexico, that 42 other treaties have met with the approval of the senate, while 6 still await action. Friendly intercourse with Greece and Turkey has been resumed. Peace and American rights have been assured in the Far East and the Pacific.

Turning to finance, the President called attention to the enactment of the budget system, and the resultant tremendous savings.

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921," President Coolidge said, "our expenditures were $5,538,000,000 and our surplus was $86,000,000. For the year just closed our expenditures were $3,497,000,000, and our surplus exceeded $500,000,000. This was a reduction in the annual cost of government of $[illegible],041,000,000. The public debt now stands at about $21,250,000,000, which is a reduction in three years of about $2,750,000,000 and means an annual saving in interest of more than $120,000,000. The $7,000,000,000 of short-time obligations have all been quietly refunded or paid. The internal revenue taxes have been reduced twice, and many of them repealed, so that during the present fiscal year the tax receipts show a saving to the people of approximately $[illegible],000,000 a day compared with 1921. One government bond has sold well over 105."

The President pointed out that more than 40 per cent of the debt due us from foreign nations has been liquidated, providing funds for liquidating about $13,000,000,000 of the national debt during a 62-year term.

"The finances of this nation have been managed with a genius and a success unmatched since the days of Hamilton," Mr. Coolidge declared.

"A great revival of industry took place, which is spreading to agriculture. Complaint of unemployment has ceased, wages have increased. Capital has become plentiful at a low rate of interest," Mr. Coolidge declared, "and the banks of our country, as a whole, show a high percentage of liquid assets."

Speaking of the generous laws passed to relieve disabled veterans, the President said that more than 71,000 have been rehabilitated, 38,000 of whom are earning more than they did before the war. Compensation is being paid at the rate of about $100,000,000 a year, soon to be increased by $30,000,000 more, $40,000,000 have been provided for hospital facilities, which are open to veterans of all American wars.

"No government," the President declared, "ever provided so generously for those disabled by service in time of war."

Touching the exclusion law and restricted immigration generally, the President said: "Restricted immigration is not an offensive but a purely defensive action. It is not adopted in criticism of others in the slightest degree, but solely for the purpose of protecting ourselves. We cast no aspersions on any race or creed, but we must remember that every object of our institutions of society and government will fail unless America be kept American."

Next the President dealt with the tariff. "By means of a protective tariff," he said, "we have saved American agriculture, labor, and industry from the menace of having their great home market destroyed through the dumping upon it of a flood of foreign products. Under this wise policy we saw an economic revival, and our people as a whole, in marked distinction from the sufferers from the financial distress and depression of other lands, have come into an era of prosperity and plenty. As a source of revenue the tariff surpassed all expectations in producing an annual return of the unprecedented sum of about $550,000,000. A fiscal policy which places a large and much needed revenue in the public treasury, while stimulating business to a condition of abounding prosperity, defends itself against any criticism. Its merits are demonstrated by its results. We have protected our own inhabitants from the economic disaster of an invasion of too many foreign people or too much foreign merchandise."

The Washington Conference.

Next the acceptance speech dealt with the Washington conference whereby an end was put to the ruinous competitive naval armaments of world powers, the importance of which has never been fully realized by the people in general, Mr. Coolidge declared.

Turning to the "honest government" issue, President Coolidge pointed out bluntly that in all his studies of political history he could not recall an adminisration which was desirous of a dishonest government that, to check extravagance, introduced a budget system, cut taxes, purged pay rolls, made enormous reductions in the public debt and laid firmer foundations for the peace of the world.

President Coolidge declared he favored the system of private American enterprise and was opposed to the extension of government ownership and control; that he believed in economy in public expenditures and the practical application of the tehory; that he believed in tax reduction and tax reform; that he favored protection.

Favors Permanent Court.

"I favor the permanent court and further limitation of armaments," the President said. "I am opposed to aggressive war. I shall avoid involving ourselves in the political controversies of Europe, but I shall do what I can to encourage American citizens and resources to assist in restoring Europe, with the sympathetic support of our government. I want agriculture and industry on a sound basis of prosperity and equality. I shall continue to strive for the economic, moral and spiritual welfare of my country. American citizens will decide in the coming election whether these principles shall have their approval and support.

"The domestic affairs of our country appear to me to be by far the chief concern. From this source comes our strength. The home market consumes nearly all our production. Within our own boundaries will be determined to a very large degree the economic welfare and the moral worth of the American people. These are plain facts, but there are others equally plain."

Reaffirming his opposition to entrance into the League of Nations as a surrender of independence, the Presidena favored becoming a member of the permanent Court of International Justice, "as peace means fundamentally a reign of law." Entrance into the so-called World court "would do much to indicate our determination to restrain the rule of force and solidify and sustain the rule of reason among nations," Mr. Coolidge said.

America Helps Europe.

The President reviewed the difficulties of Europe and the unavailing efforts to find a way out until the American plan, proposed in 1922, was finally adopted, under which the reparations commission appointed a committee of experts, whose three American members included Gen. Charles G. Dawes, the President's running mate on the Republican ticket. The appointment of General Dawes as chairman and the report which has met world-wide approbation were pointed out.

When the reparations plan is in operation, the President said, he would consider it time to approach the great powers with the proposal for another conference to limit armaments still further and devise plans for the codification of international law.

"I trust that never again will the women of this nation be called on to sacrifice their loved ones to the terrible scourge of war," President Coolidge said.

Touching Latin America, the President said that we have constantly striven to come to more complete understandings with those nations. He recited the help given Mexico to avert domestic violence there, and the indication of a policy of making it worth while for a government to conduct itself so as to merit recognition. He pointed to the written agreement with Mexico to negotiate a treaty of amity and commerce such as has not been in existence since 1881.

Equal Opportunities for All.

Of discrimination of all kinds, President Coolidge said: "This is one country; we are one people united by common interests. There should be no favorites and no outcasts; no race or religious prejudices in the government. America opposes special privilege for anybody, and favors equal opportunity for everybody. It has adopted these conclusions because they are the logical conclusions of our ideals of freedom. Moreover, we believe they contribute to our material welfare. We oppose the artificial supports of privilege and monopoly because they are both unjust and uneconomic. They are not right. They do not work."

The Farm Situation.

Reviewing the situation of the farmer, the President said that one of the first thoughts in 1921 was for the relief and revival of agriculture as a fundamental industry, and touched upon the credits of between three and four hundred million dollars extended through the War Finance corporation, an additional $50,000,000 provided for the relief of the cattle industry, and the formation of a $10,000,000 corporation in the spring which, it was estimated, can furnish $100,000,000 for diversification and relief in the Northwest. He told of the activities of the intermediate credit banks, directly and indirectly assisting 500,000 farmers.

The President commented on the present upturn of prices for agricultural products.

"The government rendered a great deal of assistance," he said, "and private enterprise co-operated, but the fundamental remedy was provided, as it always must be provided, not so much through the enactment of legislative laws as through the working out of economic laws. Because the farmers have thoroughly realized this, they have on the whole opposed price fixing by legislation. While maintaining that sound position, they have seen a partial relief come in a natural way, as it was bound to come.

"We now need in agriculture more organization, co-operation, and diversification. The farmer should have the benefit of legislation providing for flood control and development of inland waterways, better navigation east and south from the Great Lakes, reclamation, and especially relief for those who cannot meet their payments on irrigation projects. But the main problem is marketing. Co-operative effort, reorganization of the freight-rate structure, good business, and good wages in manufacturing, and the settlement of European affairs will all help to provide better market conditions.

"The Republican platform recognizes that agriculture should be on a basis of economic equality with other industries. This is easy to say, but the farmers themselves and their advisers have never been able to agree on a plan to provide it by law. Now that nature and economic law have given some temporary relief, I propose, therefore, to appoint a committee to investigate and report measures to the congress in December that may help secure this result which we all desire. I want profitable agriculture established permanently. I want to see the dollar of the farmer always purchase as much as any other dollar.

"Under the policy of protection and restrictive immigration," he asserted, "no deflation of wages has occurred. While the cost of living has gone down, wages have advanced. The 12-hour day and the seven-day week have practically been abolished. The uninterrupted operation of public utilities with mutually satisfactory and legally established methods of adjusting labor questions have been sought. Collective bargaining and voluntary arbitration have been encouraged. Republican rule has raised the wage earner to a higher standard than he ever occupied before anywhere in the world."

Reduction of Expenses.

President Coolidge then pointed out that the people of the country, because of the war have had to recreate nearly one-fifth of our national resources. We can make up the loss, he said, only by saving part of what we produce each day.

"It is for that reason," he continued, "that the present administration has made every possible effort to cut down the expenses of government. The expenses of the government reach everybody. Taxes take from everyone a part of his earnings, and force everyone to work for a certain part of his time for the government.

"When we come to realize that the yearly expenses of all the governments in this country have reached the stupendous sum of about $7,500,000,000, we get some idea of what this means. Of this amount about $3,500,000,000 is needed by the national government, and the remainder by local governments. Such a sum is difficult to comprehend. It represents all the pay of 5,000,000 wage earners receiving $5 a day, working 300 days in the year. If the government should add on $100,000,000 of expense, it would represent four days more work of these wage earners. These are some of the reasons why I want to cut down public expense.

"Because of my belief in these principles, I favor economy that the taxes of everybody may be reduced. Much has already been done. The bill which I signed will save the people about $1,000,000 each day. I want further tax reduction and more tax reform. The raising of the revenue required to conduct our government is intimately connected with our economic welfare. If it is done by wise and just laws, the burden will be most easily borne. But if the method of taxation is not sound disaster will follow, reaching even to financial panic. Our first thought should be to maintain unimpaired the activity of agriculture and industry. That tax is theoretically best which interferes least with business.

Asks Just Taxation.

"Only about 3,500,000 people pay direct income taxes. The remainder pay, but pay indirectly, in the cost of all purchases, from a pair of shoes to a railroad ticket. This country has at least 107,000,000 of these indirect taxpayers. I am not disturbed about the effect on a few thousand people with large incomes because they have to pay high surtaxes. They can take care of themselves, whatever happens, as the rich always can. What concerns me is the indirect effect of high surtaxes on all the rest of the poeple. Let us always remember the poor. Whatever cry the demagogue may make about his ability to tax the rich, at the end of the year it will always be found that the people as a whole have paid the taxes. We should, therefore, have a system of taxation under which the people as a whole are most likely to be prosperous. Our country will be better off if, disregarding those who appeal to jealousy and envy, it follows in taxation and all else the straight path of justice.

For Economical Campaign.

"Economy should be practiced scrupulously in the conduct of a national campaign. I know it is difficult to distinguish between real service to the people and mere wastefulness. Costs have increased by doubling of the electorate, rendering close calculation impossible.

"Nevertheless, I can perceive no reason why the budget system should not be beneficial in a campaign, as it has proved to be in government. It is to be tested by our committee.

"I would make clearly and definitely one other requirement, that no individual, or group of individuals, may expect any governmental favors in return for party assistance. Whatever anyone gives must be given for the common good, or not at all. Contributions can be received on no other basis.

"For the first time after having opportunity fully to organize, the women of the nation are bringing the new force which they represent directly to bear on our political affairs. I know that the influence of womanhood will guard the home, which is the citadel of the nation. I know it will be a protector of childhood. I know it will be on the side of humanity. I welcome it as a great instrument of mercy and a mighty agency of peace. I want every woman to vote.

"The Constitution is the sole source and guaranty of national freedom. We believe that the safest place to declare and interpret the Constitution which the people have made is in the Supreme court of the United States.

"Under our institutions there is no limitation on the aspirations a mother may have for her children. That system I pray to continue. This country would not be a land of opportunity, America would not be America, if the people were shackled with government monopolies.

"Our country has adopted prohibition and provided by legislation for its enforcement. It is the duty of the citizen to observe the law, and the duty of the Executive to enforce. I propose to do my duty as best I can.

For Child Labor Amendment.

"Our different states have had different standards, or no standards at all, for child labor. The congress should have authority to provide a uniform law applicable to the whole nation which will protect childhood. Our country cannot afford to let anyone live off the earnings of its youth of tender years. Their places are not in the factory, but in the school, that the men and women of tomorrow may reach a higher state of existence and the nation a higher standard of citizenship.

"I am in favor of national defense, not merely as an abstract state of mind, but as a concrete mode of action. I favor not merely talking about it, but doing something about it. I do not want the safety of my country to be imperiled in its domestic or foreign relations by any failure to be ready to preserve order or repel attack. But I propose to work for voluntary observance of law and mutual covenants of peace.

Common Sense Greatest Asset.

"We are likely to hear a great deal of discussion about liberal thought and progressive action. It is well for the country to have liberality in thought and progress in action, but its greatest asset is common sense. In the commonplace things of life lies the strength of the nation. It is not in brilliant conceptions and strokes of genius that we shall find the chief reliance of our country, but in the home, in the school, and in religion. America will continue to defend these shrines. Every evil force that seeks to desecrate or destroy them will find that a Higher Power has endowed the people with an inherent spirit of resistance. The people know the difference between pretense and reality. They want to be told the truth. They want to be trusted. They want a chance to work out their own material and spiritual salvation. The people want a goverament of common sense.

"These, Mr. Chairman, are some of the beliefs which I hold, some of the principles which I propose to support. Because I am convinced that they are true, because I am satisfied that they are sound, I submit them with abiding faith to the judgment of the American people."

Miss Amanda Mickelson went to Crookston Thursday to visit relatives for a few days.

Mrs. Alfred Sollom and children, recently of Bagley, visited a few days the past week with relatives here.

The new crop of grain has commenced to come into the elevators. Both quality and yield is good this year, but the prices have not materially changed. Some writers have tried to figure out that prices for farm produce have increased, and that commodities the farmer buys have decreased in price, thereby farmers have made fortunes. We have'nt seen any of those fortunes flying around here.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Ludvig Klinge, a single man, Mortgagor, to the Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, dated July 1, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Marshall, Minnesota, on the 10th day of November, 1920, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 213.

That on the 26th day of November, 1920, said mortgage was assigned by the said Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, to Albertus Hinrichs, and the Deed of Assignment recorded on July 13, 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M., in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 59 thereof.

That thereafter, to-wit: on the 29th day of June, 1922, the said Albertus Hinrichs assigned said mortgage by assignment in writing dated on that day, and which Assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 13th day of July, 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 103 of Mortgages, on page 389 thereof.

That such default consists in the nonpayment, when due, of the principal and interest which said mortgage was given to secure; that the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, is the sum of One Thousand Seventy Dollars ($1070.00).

That the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are described as follows: The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Thirteen (13), Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North, of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, and situated in Marshall County, Minnesota.

That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Marshall County, Minnesota, at the West front door of the Marshall County Court House in the City of Warren, in Marshall County, Minnesota, on Monday, the 20th day of October, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, together with the costs of such sale, and Fifty Dollars ($50.00), Attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated September 2nd, 1924.

Labor—that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

Let us tell you more about this cut-cost paint.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington — Announcement was made of the death at Georgetown University of Francis C. Shroen, a lay member of the Jesuit order for the last 25 years whose plastic decorations and paintings adorn many of the Catholic churches and colleges of the country.

Washington—The National Aeronautic association announced that a cross country race for civilian owned light airplanes would start at Wilbur Wright field, Dayton, Ohio, October 6. A trophy and $1,000 in prizes will be given by Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, American ace, to encourage the development of the light airplane in the United States.

Washington — President Coolidge was asked by a committee representing the Universal Negro Improvement Association to sanction the movement for the founding of an independent Negro nation in Africa as a means of lessening "The friction between the races in this country that may eventually threaten American civilization."

Domestic

Chicago—After two days and nights adrift on Lake Michigan, the power boat Gem was towed into Lincoln Park harbor with its owner, H. D. Moreland, his two sons, H. D., Jr., and Lester, and their cook, Miss Nellie Parson, aboard.

New York—Arrangements are being made for burial at Lithopolis, Ohio, of Adam Willis Wagnalls, one of the founders and president of the publishing firm of Funk & Wagnalls, who died at the Northport, N. Y., home of his daughter, Mrs. Mabel Wagnalls Jones.

Yale, Okla.—Two unmasked bandits entering the Farmers National Bank here forced the president, cashier, one of the directors and a customer to turn their faces to the wall, scooped up between $2,500 and $3,000 in cash and escaped after locking the occupants in a vault.

Springfield, Ill.—Four masked bank robbers looted the Jefferson State Bank, at the edge of Springfield. They drove all employees into the vault and escaped with an amount estimated at between $25,000 and $50,000. No shots were fired, but Vicepresident Warren Lewis was beaten over the head when he offered resistance.

White Rock, S. D.—Three residents of White Rock were shot and painfully wounded when they interrupted five bandits raiding the Citizens' State Bank. Numerous shots were fired by the bandits, who used sawedoff shotguns with telling effects. When they fled from town they carried with them as loot $20 in pennies and a few bonds of undetermined value.

New York—Lieutenant William Manning, 90 years old, last survivor of Perry's expedition to Japan, is dead here after a brief illness. Lieutenant Manning, who had been retired from the navy for several years, fought in the Civil war under Farragut, taking part in the battle of Mobile bay.

Philadelphia—In tests here preliminary to defending the Schneider cup, international seaplane trophy, a United States naval airplane, piloted by Lieutenant Ralph A. Ofstie, registered an unofficial speed of 190 miles an hour, 10 miles faster than the seaplane record for this country. The navy carried off the trophy last year at Cowes, England, and will defend it at Baltimore this year.

Los Angeles—Cancellation of another Doheny lease in the Elk Hills naval reserve in Kern county is sought in a suit filed in federal court here on behalf of the United States government against the Pan-American Petroleum Company. The plaintiffs ask that a lease on Sections 1 and 2 in the naval reserve be declared null and void on the ground that it was illegally and corruptly obtained.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett, in co-operation with a local independent dealer, began a gasoline price war here with a reduction of 1 cent a gallon in the filling station price. The attorney general obtained the co-operation of Arthur Heisiner, an independent dealer, and the cut in price from 19.2 cents to 18.2 cents was announced.

Herrin, Ill.—Thirty-two warrants charging murder in the first degree were issued against alleged participants in the pistol battle between alleged Ku Klux Klansman and anti-klansmen. With state militia on guard following the bloody riot between klansmen and anti-klansmen, in which six were killed and seven injured, one perhaps fatally, Herrin wore a "business as usual" look.

Pasadena, Calif. — Three hundred million dollars is spent annually on funeral expenses for the 1,300,000 persons a year who die in this country, according to figures given out by J. N. Slotten, executive secretary of the National Organization of Funeral Directors.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The house of delegates of the American Pharmaceutical Association, in session here, voted down the recommendation of President H. V. Varny that the organization favor the establishment of government agencies to dispense alcoholic liquors.

New York—Gloria Swanson, movie actress, has filed suit in the county clerk's office here through her attorneys to recover $2,383 she claims is due her from J. M. Schenck, moving picture producer, as rebate on the rent of a house she leased from him.

Chicago—Weymouth Kirkland, Chicago attorney, was designated by the United States department of justice to represent the railroad labor board in its intended litigation for the recognition of its alleged right to compel attendance and testimony of certain witnesses.

Chicago—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, independent candidate for vice-president, announced he will speak in Manhattan, upstate New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Chicago this month if his trial does not interfere.

Sports

Forest Hills, N. Y.—William T. Tilden II, is still king of American tennis. The Philadelphia racquet wizard removed any doubts on this score when he swept to victory over his veteran California rival, William M. Johnston and won the national singles championship for the fifth successive year.

Altoona, Pa.—Joe Boyer, wealthy racing driver of Detroit, died from injuries received in the 250 mile race at Altoona Speedway. Both of Boyer's legs were broken and crushed and he suffered internal injuries when his Duesenburg ripped through the guard rail on the 191st lap at a speed of more than 120 miles an hour.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Edward F. "Pop" Geers, veteran of the race track, died here from injuries suffered in a race at the Wheeling state fair grounds. Geers was injured when his horse, Miladi Guy, fell. Dislodged from the overturned sulky, Geers was thrown over 15 feet ahead of the horse. Before track officials could reach him the horse stepped on his chest. He was taken to the Ohio Valley hospital unconscious. Geers was in second place when the accident occured. The day had been set aside as "Geers day" at the state fair and a great crowd had turned out to honor the premier reinsman who for 50 years had been making history on the American trotting turf.

Foreign

Paris—An honest taxicab driver, in whose machine the Paris millionaire, Vincent Vicario, left a portfolio containing 500,000 francs, appeared at the prefecture of police to deliver the money.

Paris—Countess Hermine de Toulouse-Lautrec, the only survivor of one of the oldest families in Europe, was condemned to four months in jail by the court of Nice for stealing sheets from a hotel.

Rome—It is reported here that Italy shortly will proclaim the annexation of the Dodecanese islands, now that the treaty of Lausanne is being ratified by the governments and coming before the League of Nations.

London—According to the Daily Telegraph's correspondent in Riga, Moscow reports that the soviet government has decided to proclaim a general mobilization, which is expected daily. The reason is the tense relations between Poland and Rumania.

Sydney, Australia—An echo of the Leopold-Loeb case was heard here when Archie Mouat, 9 years old, was found at Weir Sandown, near Melbourne, his body mutilated. After many false clues, Ivan Mouat, 16 year old brother of the murdered boy, confessed the crime.

Madrid—King Alfonso has not yet given any indication of his attitude toward the invitation to visit America for the polo matches, if an invitation has been received, but the king often has told Ambassador Alexander P. Moore and others that he intends to visit the United States when an opportunity offers.

Tokio—The government is taking the first step to seek a broad fundamental emigration policy with the appointment by the cabinet council of a special emigration commission, of which the foreign minister is head. The commission is ordered to study the problem basically, in view of the annual increase in population in excess of 500,000.

Amapala, Honduras—The United States government has established neutral zones in Atlantic and Pacific ports of Honduras, and it is reported will not permit fighting between the rebels and the government forces in these ports. It also has forbidden the landing of armed forces of the government or the rebels. All the ports which have been declared neutral zones have warships anchored in their harbors.

Allenstein, East Prussia—The tenth anniversary of the battle of Tannenberg was observed by 20,000 German veterans in the presence of Field Marshal Hindenburg, who led the army in the German victory, General Ludendorff and Field Marshal Mackenzen. The government was represented by Major General Seeckt, commander in chief of the reichswehr. The unveiling of a monument as a memorial of the battle was the chief feature of the ceremonies.

Honolulu, T. H.—Miss Frances Farrington, daughter of Governor and Mrs. John R. Farrington, was married here to John R. Whittemore, Jr., of Santa Barbara, Calif., at Washington Place, official residence of the governor.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands — At least 80 persons were killed and many injured and numerous houses were destroyed and other material damage done by the hurricane which struck the islands in this vicinity the night of August 28 and raged the following day, according to reports received here.

HALF OF CHINA PLUNGED IN WAR

Manchurian War Lord Takes Up Arms Against Peking Governor

London.—Half of China was plunged technically into civil war Monday as the result of the action of Chang Tsa-Lin, Manchurian war lord, in declaring war against Peking, according to advices from Mukden. Chang accused Tso Kun, the Peking president, of financially supporting General Chi Hsieh Yuan.

This followed Tso Kun's proclamation that Lu Chung Hsiang opposing Chi is a rebel. At the same time word arrived from the Shanghai battle front that General Lu's forces had been augmented by the arrival of 8,000 Hontez troops which disembarked at Nanking.

Thirty thousand troops are now engaged on the Shanghai front. Chekiang forces are advancing toward Ihsing which they are expected to capture today.

Foreign consuls at Shanghai once more have entered a protest to insure safety of their nationalists in the Chinese war zone, the Morning Telegraph stated Monday. Official circles have been advised that the British consul had protested to the commander of the Chili (Peking) fleet against his "attempt to prevent passage of foreign vessels through certain waters."

Chekiang Troops Advancing.

Shanghai.—Advances on all fronts, but particularly west of Taihu (Lake) and near Kiating, in the Liuho sector, were claimed at the Lungwha headquarters of the Chekiang troops holding back the Kiangsu advance on Shanghai.

The second army, under command of General Chen Yao-San, including the fourth division and part of the 10th division of the Chekiang troops, as well as some forces from Fukien province, south of Chekiang, has been fighting on the west side of Taihu, attacking northward from Changhing, about 15 miles south of the provincial border.

The objective of this attack is the City of Changchow, on the Shanghai-Nanking railway and the grand canal.

If this move can be carried out, the Chekiang generals plan to attack the Kiangsu troops simultaneously on two sides—on the west from Changchow, and on the east from Hwangtu, a present point of battle contact on the railway.

FARMER INCOME INCREASED

Chicago Statistical Concern's Forecast Shows Big Gain in N. D.

North Dakota's cash income for the year July, 1924, to July, 1925, is forecast at $208,000,000, a gain of 68 per cent over the past year, according to a compilation made by a Chicago statistical corporation with a national reputation, in a bulletin entitled "Prosperity Returns to the Dakotas."

They report that the $208,000,000 income which the farmers of the state will have this year, is compared to $123,500,000 in the past year, and $176,000,000 in the crop year of 1922-23.

"This is really the first really good year for North Dakota since 1920," says this report. Improvement is very generally distributed over the state. In South Dakota the northern districts show the most improvement, the southern least."

"South Dakota has been on the whole in fair shape the past year," the report says. "We estimate an increase of 12 per cent in cash income for that state—$210,000,000 against $187,000,000 last year. Gains on wheat run to about 70 per cent, in South Dakota, but corn, hogs, and cattle, which return over half the cash receipts, will bring in just about the same as last year, due to the smaller corn crop."

BOARD RESUMES HEARING

Wage Dispute Between Engine Men and Managers Reopened.

Chicago.—The continued case of the engine service brotherhoods versus the western managers conference committee, the latter authorized to represent nearly all railroads west of Chicago, was to be heard Monday by the United States railroad labor board. Out of this case grew the situation by reason of which counsel designated by the department of justice to represent the board is preparing action to test in a federal court the authority of the board to require testimony.

Some 90 general chairmen and two grand officers of the brotherhood refused to appear and testify denying the jurisdiction of the board. The chairman of the board has indicated that in the absence of representatives of the brotherhood, the board itself, by research and cross examination, developed the employes' side of the case.

Drys Prepare for Meeting

Minneapolis.—Fifty federal prohibition agents coming from different points in Minnesota and other northwest states gathered here Monday for an avowed "clean up" of bootleggers before the opening of the national American Legion convention in St. Paul next week. A. C. Townsend, divisional prohibition chief, will direct the enforcement activities of the general prohibition agents and John Kruse, group enforcement chef, will be in charge of the Minnesota agents.

News Briefs from All the State

Condensed Stories of Happenings of the Week in Minnesota

Chisholm—Frank Steck, age 55, was killed in a cave-in at the Glen underground mine, where he had been employed for a month.

Rochester—Alfred Kuiper, 5, son of Peter Kuiper, 3 miles from Stewartville, was recovering from burns caused by a bolt of lightning.

Windom—Suit has been filed in district court here against W. L. Johnson, De Witt Lawhead and others, for $95,000 damages as a result of an automobile accident here last spring.

Mankato—Robbers entered the office of the Mankato Co-operative Creamery company blew the safe and secured about $75 in cash which it contained.

Hibbing—Eight persons were severely injured when a racing automobile overturned and crashed into the crowd overflowing the Hibbing Fair racecourse.

Lake City—The new Mary McCahill institute opened for work in all departments, eight grades, four years of high school and department of musical instruction.

Ortonville—Twenty-one churches of the Minnesota conference, represented by their pastors, gathered at Ortonville to assist in the dedication of the new constructed Zion Lutheran church edifice of this city.

Red Wing—The commissioners of Goodhue county slashed $44,000 off the budget for the coming year from the figures of the tax levy for last year. The levy is set at $252,000 as compared with $296,000 in 1923.

Moorhead—More than 100 stitches were required to close a gaping wound in Joe Storm's face when he was slashed by broken glass of a windshield in a smashup near Moorhead.

St. Cloud—Otto Johnson, 30 years old, a thresher, was crushed to death six miles east of Rice when he was knocked down in trying to couple a tractor operated by his partner to the separator. The wheel of the tractor passed over his head.

Minneapolis—John R. Mitchell, St. Paul banker, will assume his new duties as Federal Reserve agent for the Ninth Federal Reserve Bank in Minneapolis. Mr. Mitchell was appointed by the federal reserve board at Washington to succeed the late John H. Rich.

Minneapolis—The Ford Motor company entered the coal business in the Northwest, announcing that a large stock of soft coal is ready for delivery at its dock in Duluth and will be sold at wholesale prices in car lots to authorized Ford dealers and agents in this territory.

Luverne—First title to grain on a farm rests in the landlord, according to a decision by Judge L. S. Nelson in the district court, reversing the verdict of a jury in Rock county district court. The claim to grain, raised for rentals, is given preference over a bank's mortgage.

Wheaton—What is believed to be a record yield of flax was threshed on the farm of Earl Drinkwitz, eight miles south of Wheaton. The crop averaged 32 bushels to the acre. The yield was measured by Fred Seidenstitker, president of the Aravers county farm bureau.

Sleepy Eye—Under an ordinance recently adopted by the city council, no dogs are to run at large in the city of Sleepy Eye. By the passage of the new ordinance the old measure providing for the licensing of canine is revoked and persons who have already paid their dog tax will have their money refunded.

Browntown—Five bandits who forced their way into the First State Bank were engaged in a gun fight by a resident of the town and they fled without obtaining any loot. H. E. Seeland, a restaurant keeper living across the street from the bank, discovered the bandits at work, and using an automatic shotgun, he drove them from the town. No one was hurt.

St. Cloud—At a meeting of a committee headed by Mayor J. Arthur Bensen, a decision was reached to have the opening of the United States Veterans hospital here set either September 17, 18 or 19 and make it a feature of the National Legion convention. A special train will be chartered from St. Paul for those who can possibly make the trip.

Hastings—An automobile jaunt of 100 miles or so over to Northfield and a round of calls on friends here were the preliminaries indulged in by Mrs. Lany Truax, who celebrated her 103rd birthday anniversary. Mrs. Truax, probably the oldest living woman in Minnesota, will start upon the fourth year of her second century of life, happy in the thought that her health is still good, that she is capable of doing her own housework and that she can number her friends, like her age, by the hundreds.

Faribault — There is $45,154,315 worth of tax-free property in Rice county, according to the annual report of County Auditor Frank M. Kaisersatt to the Minnesota Tax commission.

Rochester — Whitlock Sonnenberg post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars—the name honoring the memory of two Olmsted county soldiers who were killed in action on foreign soil—was formally installed at a ceremony at the armory, when 50 charter members of the organization took the oath read by George Ferguson, of Minneapolis, state commander.

Hibbing—Robbery of the Itasca Bazaar store of $4,000 worth of furs and several hundred dollars in cash was discovered when it was re-opened.

Graceville—Gust Bergman, fireman at the Baldwin Mills was scalded to death when a steam valve he was repairing blew out.

Worthington—Glen Tripp, of this place and Walter Ritz of Truman were injured when their plane went into a nose-dive and fell to the ground.

Hinckley—The thirtieth anniversary of the big Hinckley fire, in which the town was destroyed and 418 persons lost their lives, was observed in all local churches.

Montevideo—Winter wheat proved a profitable crop on the farm of Peter Westgaard of Baxter township. The grain from a 10-acre tract threshed 540 bushels.

Stillwater—Washington county reported 15 acres of land adjoining Lake Elmo yielding 566 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat. The property is owned by the John Marty estate.

Willmar—Members of the Hardanger Laget, consisting of natives of Hardanger, Norway, who are now citizens of the northwest, gathered here for their annual reunion.

Mankato—Lyman A. Pickett of Astoria, Ore., was elected to the position of secretary of the Y. M. C. A. here at a meeting of the board of directors.

Owatonna—The Owatonna Chamber of Commerce is planning an industrial survey of the city. Data gained is expected to be used with material setting forth Owatonna industry advantages in an effort to bring new industries to the city.

Fergus Falls—The schools at Vergas, a village in the extreme northern part of this county, were to have opened, but the opening has been postponed on account of an epidemic of infantile paralysis. It is reported there are 30 cases and that 13 homes are quarantined.

Hendricks—This place now claims the distinction of having the youngest newspaper editor and publisher in Minnesota in the person of Harvey Swenson. The boy is but 17 years of age and graduated from the Ivanhoe high school last spring.

Duluth—Ore shipments for the month of August were 3,606,474 tons less than for the corresponding month last year, while the shipments for the season to date are 8,096,064 tons less than for the same period a year ago, according to figures made public.

Browntown—H. E. Seeland, restaurant owner, was the town hero, after driving off five bank bandits who attempted to loot the First State bank here. Seeland routed the band singlehanded, keeping up a steady fire on the robbers from his place of business across from the bank, with an automatic shotgun.

Meridan—Adolph Schmidt, farmer is hoping for a mild winter in order that he may harvest his second apple crop of the year. Two trees in the Schmidt orchard have burst into full bloom in spite of rather vigorous recent weather and are, as a result, the mecca of scores of curious visitors.

Sleepy Eye—Marvel Schultz was declared grand champion junior corn grower of the state, when 10 ears of white dent corn exhibited by him at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy exposition won first place in the southern zone boys' exhibit, and then was accorded the sweepstakes.

Sauk Center—An organization has been formed here, with Elbridge Cass as president, which has adopted as its slogan, "Ten thousand acres of alfalfa on our farms." The growing of alfalfa in the vicinity of this city recently has taken a decided jump and the promoters of the new organization will boost for a steadily increasing acreage.

Ely—Classes were begun in the new $800,000 high school building, although the structure is not fully completed. Superintendent of Schools England announced that the building, known as Memorial high school, will be dedicated formally by the Frank Lozer Post, American Legion, with elaborate ceremonies to be participated in by state officials and high officers of the Legion.

Faribault—School board officials in school districts No. 128 and No. 3, Rice county, acting jointly, must buy a site and erect a school for the children of the district. District Judge Fred W. Senn ruled in a decision upholding a law passed in the 1923 session of the legislature providing that the will of parents having 55 per cent of the children in a district shall prevail in settling such school matters.

Fairmont—When a number of high school pupils quit work at a canning factory in order to attend school, leaving the company short handed at a critical time, the crisis was averted by another industrial concern. The Fairmont Railway Motors company offered to furnish the required number of men to run the canning factory while it is packing corn. The corn packing will require about five weeks more of work, and in that time approximately 600,000 bushels of corn will be put into tins that will fill 500,000 cases.

Austin—A call has been sent out for the redemption at once of $500,000 worth of the George A. Hormel & Co first mortgage 6½ per cent bonds. These bonds were issued following the theft of "Cy" Thomson, and the calling in of its bonds is taken as an indication of the strong financial condition of the Austin packing plant.

Butternut—Burglars who apparently thought it was payday broke into the Butternut Mercantile company store, blew open the safe and damaged the building, but got only $25. A little earlier they would have gotten as much as $4,000.

Theatrical Folk All Believers in Omens

Every trade or profession has its own superstitions, but I think the stage is the worst of all. I remember when I was quite a novice on the stage endeavoring to clean out my make-up box, as it certainly looked very dirty and untidy, when to my horror I heard about six voices in the tiny dressing room yelling at me: "What are you doing? You mustn't clean your make-up box until the run of the piece is over," says London Tit-Bits.

"It's very unlucky," added another girl. "It might get us all the sack." I couldn't help thinking that if the show had a very long run my make-up box would be past cleaning.

Another time I had to walk upstairs onto a balcony affair to make my exit when I stumbled and fell. Feeling a most awful fool, I picked myself up and made as dignified exit as possible. But when I got off one of the girls remarked: "Well, you are lucky. A new contract for you, dear." This was welcome intelligence, as our piece was coming to a close.

Then, if you should leave a piece of soap behind in the dressing room while on tour, it means that you will make a return visit to that theater. Dropping a brush in the dressing room is supposed to mean fresh work. Of course, it must be dropped by accident.

Once our dresser was missing when we had a quick change to do, and one girl was fastening another girl's frock. I hastened to help the former to fasten her dress. "No, no!" they both cried, "not there. It's awfully unlucky."

Of course, every one knows the prejudice against whistling in the dressing room. It is supposed to mean that the one nearest the door will receive her notice. Oddly enough, I have witnessed this come true on more than one occasion.

Between Friends

At a Red Cross hog sale held down in Arkansas, generously disposed people donated porkers for the occasion. Pink Jackson brought along his favorite pig, and remarked to Green Reeves, a man of jokes, that his swine must bring at least $10. Otherwise he would take it home. Green agreed to bid up and see that the animal brought the required amount.

Accordingly, when the animal was put on the block, Jackson bid first, offering $5; Reeves raised it to $6, and then in turn Jackson to $7, Reeves to $8 and Jackson to $9, and finally Reeves to $9.50. Jackson, knowing that the 50-cent bid was Reeves' limit, said, "Let him have the pig!" Reeves nearly fell into a faint, but came across all right, remarking as he took the pig:

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Back Weak and Painful. Mrs. Miller Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rotan, Texas.—"I am writing to let you know how I have been benefited by taking your medicine. After my second baby was born my back was weak and hurt me continually, so I thought I'd try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I had read so much about where it had helped so many women. I had been bothered with my back for over a year, and it would hurt me until I could not do my work, which is keeping house for three and cooking and washing dishes. I tell all my friends if they have any kind of female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. You may use this testimonial if it will help any one."—Mrs. C. R. Miller, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 76, Rotan, Texas.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over 121,000 replies were received, and 98 out of every 100 reported they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

British Navy Older Than Its Land Force

The British navy is always spoken of as the "senior branch of the service," and correctly so, because as a national means of state-controlled defense, it antedates the army by many centuries. The armies of Englishmen that fought on the Continent during the Middle ages were raised, not by the country, but by separate lords. Under the old feudal system, each landowner held his estates on the condition that in case of need, he should furnish so many men and lead them to the king's aid. So that an English army of those days was made up of many privately owned contingents. It was not till the middle of the Sixteen Hundreds that an English national army came into existence and it did not develop its modern form till fifty years later. Against this, England as a nation possessed her own navy centuries earlier. In one sense it was founded by Alfred the Great in the times of the Saxons, and thenceforth all through history can be traced the national fleet. The admiralty and some of the royal dockyards were in existence a good century before the first appearance of a regular army.

Derivation of Yankee

Farington gives an etymology which will be new to Connecticut readers. "The name of Yankee is derived from the Yankow Indians formerly settled in Connecticut. That race now scarcely exists. To put an end to the wars that subsisted between those natives and the European settlers, laws were ordained which served to incorporate them, marriages being allowed." Reader, have you perchance inherited some drops of Yankow blood, along with the Yankow name?—Henry A. Beers, in the July Yale Review.

Famed Horse Had Tomb

Celer was the name of the famous horse of the Roman emperor, Verus. It was fed on almonds and raisins and housed in the imperial palace in robes of purple. When it died a mausoleum was erected in its honor and elaborate funeral ceremonies held.

Nellie looked. Beyond the door opening there was no standing space—only a black hole that went straight down. Beyond was the iron hull of the ship, and to right and left the iron framework of the ribs. The door itself was cut with exquisite neatness in the wooden sheathing that framed the cabin walls. The space was not more than a foot deep, and probably not more than a yard wide. Down the outer face ran a sort of iron ladder—really little more than a succession of narrow cleats.

"That ladder leads down into the hold," explained Carr. "I've got a snug little room down there, with half a dozen runways leading fore and aft and cross ship."

Carr turned. "Captain! If you'll go down first, Miss Archman can follow, and I'll come last and close the door."

Captain Bunker hesitated. He had been in command of ships too long to relish taking orders from a mere lad. Besides, he was a large man and the space looked very narrow. "What's your idea?" he demanded doubtfully. "We can hold the cabin—"

"No! We can't, captain. They're twenty to one; and they're armed and we're not. Besides, we've got to think of Miss Archman. We can't fight, but I think we can escape. If you'll trust me—"

"Oh, all right!" Captain Bunker spoke sulkily, but he stepped into the chute. Nellie followed quickly.

Carr came last. As he reached the bottom he clicked an electric button and a bulb flashed out, showing a room a dozen feet square, plainly one of the disused spare rooms of the ship.

Nellie cried out in delight, but Bunker looked disgusted. Also he was hot and breathless and was suffering from his wounded head. "I don't like this, Carr," he rasped. "I don't like it a bit. You've betrayed the trust I put in you. I never thought you'd be a stowaway. Of course, it's for the best, I suppose, but I'm disappointed all the same. I'm disappointed."

Carr looked a little downcast. "I don't think you will be, captain," he protested hastily; "not when I've had time to explain everything. Just now—"

Nellie was listening eagerly. "It doesn't need any explanation!" she cried. "Mr. Carr did just right; I think it was perfectly splendid of him and the bravest thing I ever heard of. Oh! I don't see how he dared shut himself up down here."

Carr laughed, but he did not move from the foot of the chute. He seemed to be listening for something. "I didn't shut myself up altogether," he protested. "I was in and out all the time. For instance, left a note in Miss Bess' stateroom, telling her to warn Captain Bunker that somebody was going to try to steal his orders."

"Good Lord! Was that you? Why didn't you leave it in my room?"

"Because—Hark!" Carr strained his ear up the chute. "False alarm!" he said a moment later. "I didn't leave it there because Price was in and out too much, and was prying into things too closely. I didn't suspect him of anything serious—I suspected somebody else then—but I knew he was prying. So I asked Miss Bess to tell you."

"And it was Price that got the papers, after all," grunted Bunker.

"Was it? I'm not sure. Of course I don't know much, you know—only what I could pick up by listening. But, I'm inclined to think Price told you the truth about himself. I got that map of his, by the way."

"You did?"

"Sure thing. I got it and I packed it in the lunch basket he was fixing to send ashore with Mrs. Archman and her party. I guess they've found it all right by now. But we're wasting time. Listen, captain. You know the ship! The passage outside the door yonder—" Carr pointed—"leads to the forward cargo port. Miss Archman's boat is probably still lying close alongside. When our absence is discovered and the alarm is given every body is sure to rush to the cabin. When they're all there we've got to run forward and drop into the boat and pull like thunder. See? Hark!" Once more Carr listened.

Then he turned and nodded. "Just a moment," he cautioned and ran up the ladder.

At the top he stopped and peered through the peephole.

Price stood in the middle of the cabin, revolver in hand, looking dazedly from the empty chairs and the loosened ropes to the vacant room. Ever, instantly he changed position, as some creak of the ship's structure seemed to threaten a creeping attack. Furtively he moistened his lips. But he gave no alarm.

Carr, watching, guessed that he feared to confess to his fellows that his prisoners had spirited themselves away. If the mutineers learned that Captain Bunker and Miss Archman had vanished out of a locked cabin they might set it down to 'ghosts'; they might suspect their leader of treachery. In either case his authority would suffer—and he himself might suffer, too.. It would be better simply to lock the cabin up and say nothing except, perhaps, to a chosen few; and to search the ship quietly. Carr, watching, read his thoughts like a book and felt his heart sink. It sank still lower as he saw Price sidle toward the door. If he gave no alarm, the men would not rush aft, and the fugitives' chance of escape would be gone.

Slowly Price retreated toward the door. In another moment he would be gone. Carr writhed in impotence. He was unarmed, and Price held a cocked revolver in his hand. While he hesitated the man backed through the door and shut it behind him.

Then Carr saw his chance—a desperate one, but still a chance, better than waiting to be hunted down like a rat in the hold. Before the door had fairly closed he sprang out of his hiding place and ran toward it. As he passed the table he caught the cloth over it and jerked it and all upon it to the floor. The tin basin clanged as it struck. Before the echoes died away Carr was at the doorway, behind the leaf, waiting.

None too soon. As he faced round, back to the wall, Price burst in, revolver raised. Beyond the edge of the swinging door he rushed, and, as he did so, Carr flung himself upon him, grasping his wrist with a grip that twisted the pistol from his hand.

The pistol exploded as it fell. The bullet went harmlessly, but the damage was done. The alarm was given. No time for half measures now. With all his strength Carr tripped the exsteward and drove his head against the floor.

The crack rang through the room and Carr felt the man's muscles relax and grow flaccid in his grip. He sprang to his feet and jumped across the room, snatching up the pistol as he went. Into the slit he scrambled and drew the panel shut, hearing behind him, in the wardroom, the rush of scurrying feet as it closed.

He did not delay to watch the scene. He heard the uproar as the men burst in, and that was enough. He had no time to lose. It was now or never. Scarcely touching the narrow cleats he shot downward to the storeroom.

"Quick!" he ordered. "Follow me!" The glow of an electric torch clove the gloom and showed him beside the door. It opened; he caught Nellie's hand; and the torch went out. "The way is clear," he panted. "I don't dare to use a light. Follow me!" Through the pitchy darkness he dragged the girl on. Behind followed Captain Bunker.

Overhead, as the three ran forward, they heard the stamping of racing feet and guessed that their plan was succeeding well.

Abruptly Carr stopped. Overhead showed the glimmer of stars, brilliant against a background of velvety blackness. "Stairs! Careful," he muttered, and took a step upward, drawing Nellie after him.

Quickly but cautiously the three mounted to the deck. The moon was shining just above the top of the mountain. By its light he saw that the deck was deserted. But from aft rose an uproar that was music in the ears of the fugitives.

An oblong of glimmering ocean showed where the cargo port at the black bulwarks, and to this the three hurried. From it the lowered gangway ran down to the tapping water. Carr sprang to it and stood aside. "Quick, Nellie," he commanded, and the girl ran lightly down. "Now, captain," and Bunker followed more ponderously.

Carr turned for a last look along the deck. Just in time, for with a yell a man precipitated himself out of nowhere and hurled himself forward. Carr dropped; then, as the man, unable to stop, hurtled over him he caught the fellow's legs and added his own strength to the impetus.

Not waiting to look for the [illegible] of the man's head against the bulwarks had told him all he needed to know. Carr leaped down the gangway, just as a yell from aft told that the mutineers had seen and guessed. Into the boat he leaped, driving it from the side by the impact of his landing. Then he dropped on the vacant thwart behind Captain Bunker and snatched up the idle oars. "Pull, captain! Pull!" he cried, in uncontrollable excitement. Simultaneously the sharp crack of a rifle sounded and a bullet whistled overhead.

CHAPTER XV

An Unexpected Challenge

The shadow of the mountain reached early to the El Rio, and once away from the side the boat swiftly passed the line of the shadow and melted into the night. Nellie sat at the stern with the tiller ropes clutched in her soft palms. From the deck of the El Rio came the roar of tumult. Men shouted and swore and pistols and rifles cracked. The balls whistled perilously close to the fugitives.

A new sound arose and Bunker swore aloud. "They're getting the boats out," he gritted. "We've got to hurry. Do you know where to go, Miss Archman?"

Nellie was leaning forward, striving desperately to pierce the darkness. "No!" she gasped. "I—I—everything is so dark—"

"Lucky for us it is! They'd run us down in no time if they could see us." The captain looked behind him. "Port your helm," he cried. "Hard aport! Quick!"

Nellie did not understand, but she obeyed the order instinctively and the boat swung round at a right angle—just in time, for as it veered its side grated against a point of rock, and Nellie saw with a shudder that what she supposed was a bank of clouds was a line of low, overhanging cliffs that edged the shore.

"Steady!" ordered the captain. "Now, Carr, two strong strokes and then lie on your oars and keep quiet."

The boat shot forward with renewed impetus; then slowed somewhat as the oars ceased to drive it on. But it did not stop. Carr, watching the stars above the line of cliffs, saw that it was still moving quietly. "We seem to be in a current," he muttered, almost inaudibly, in the captain's ear.

"We are. There's a six-mile current along here, taking us right along. It'll take us to the place where our party landed today. If we can get there before the moon gets over the top of the mountain we'll probably get away. Watch for the break in the sky line; you won't be able to find it any other way. And now we'd better keep quiet."

The moon shone vividly on the El Rio, but the pursuing boats had passed into the heavy shadow of the island and the mountain and were invisible.

The fugitive boat drifted silently, guided by the rudder and now and then by a cautious, almost inaudible movement of Captain Bunker's oars.

Abruptly Nellie moved uneasily and looked behind. "They're coming this way," she murmured.

The confused noises of the pursuers' oars had separated themselves. One set had grown louder. Between the strokes the sound of the others could be heard more and more faintly. Undoubtedly the boats had separated and one was seeking for the fugitives in the right direction. And it was fast coming nearer.

Cautiously Captain Bunker urged the skiff on, moving his oars so silently that the others could scarcely hear them. Even the drops from the blades on the return stroke fell so short a distance they made no sound.

"We've got to keep silent," he whispered. "If they hear us they'll catch us quicker'n lightning. Watch for that gash in the cliff. We ought to be mighty near it now."

The pursuing boat was very near. Feverishly the three in the skiff scanned the ragged line of cliff that was beginning to show more plainly against the sky as the moon still rising behind the mountain, cast its sheen over the sky.

Suddenly Carr moved. "[illegible]," he muttered.

A gash, rapidly widening, showed in the sky line. With a swift but cautious stroke Bunker headed the boat inward.

But Nellie leaned forward with a gasp. "Suppose they are going in, too," she panted. "Suppose they think we are trying to join mother?"

"Then they'll catch us, unless we get ashore and hide," said Captain Bunker, as he lay back on the oars and heaved mightily.

Inward the boat shot into blacker gloom. Floating silently between the rocky walls the three dimly saw the pursuing boat dash across the mouth of the gash and heard, above the rattle of the oars, the voice of the coxswain inciting the men to greater efforts.

Quickly the sound died as the boat shot past the edge of the gash. Then Bunker drew a long breath. "Touch and go!" he said, plunging his oars in the water. "Come on, Carr. They can't hear us now. Careful, Miss Nellie, watch the sky line and try to keep us in the middle of the channel."

Nellie obeyed. She detected the beginning of the curve in the course of the deflection of the sky line and steered the boat around the curve and into the straight way to the beach. Then she uttered a cry. "They're here," she breathed. "[illegible] here!"

Skulls as Scarecrows

The word "scarecrow" usually conjures up the vision of tattered clothing on a rude framework standing in the middle of a field but far stranger bird scarers have sometimes been used, says London Tit Bits.

For example one [illegible] farmer guards his vegetables from bird pests by displaying two skulls on poles. One is that of a woman and the other of a buffalo.

One of the most curious [illegible] used was made by a Belgian farmer. He set up a number of poles in the corn fields and conducted a wire from one to the other. A bell was hung from the top of each pole and connected with the wire. The end of the wire was then fastened to a small water wheel, and as this went round the bells tinkled, frightening all birds away.

FEELS IT HIS DUTY TO TELL THE FACTS

"Tanlac has meant so much to me in the way of improved health that I feel it a duty, as well as a pleasure, to recommend it," is the appreciative statement of J. M. Freeman, well-known resident of 307 Camden St., San Antonio, Texas.

"About a year ago my stomach and digestion got all out of fix and I soon became badly run-down. My appetite went back on me and the little I did eat failed to nourish me. Constipation troubled me nearly all the time and I also had bilious spells and attacks of dizziness.

"My sleep was unsound and I got up mornings with a mean, sickening taste in my mouth and a dull headache that lasted me almost through the day. I lost considerable weight and that tired, draggy feeling was on me all the time.

"After a few days' use of Tanlac I noticed a marked improvement in my appetite, digestion and general condition. So I took four bottles and by that time I was eating as heartily as I ever did and digesting everything fine.

"My liver went to work right, my headaches stopped and I was able to sleep like a log. I had gone down to only 143 pounds, but I am now a strong man of 215 pounds, and my health is the best it has been in years. A friend of mine took four bottles of Tanlac at the same time I did and got fine results, too. As a builder of health and strength Tanlac is certainly without an equal."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

What's Wrong Here?

The Saturday Evening Post says: "It was that hour of a rather sultry early summer afternoon when the merchants along the west side of Main street in a certain western town are wont to emerge from their stores, one after another, and lower their awnings against the glare of the afternoon sun."

The west side of the street would be in the shade in the afternoon and it would be the east side where the merchants would be lowering their awnings to keep out the glare—unless the Saturday Evening Post had in mind some novel sort of sun which sets in the east.—The Pathfinder.

Had the Better of Hippo

Two small boys were at the zoo gazing at the hippopotamus with round, startled eyes. "I don't like it," said the younger one, a bit scared. "Let's go away." "You needn't be frightened," said the elder brother. "Since we started zoology at school we know ever so much more about the ugly brute than he knows about himself."

Difficult to Please

A Lancashire man was taken by his friend, who owned horses, to the races for the first time.

The friend had a "certainty" running in the first race, and encouraged his companion to back it. He did so, and after an exciting finish the horse won by a short head.

The owner did not meet his friend again until the starters were out for the last race, when he whispered confidentially that he had a good tip.

"Nowt doing," came the quick reply. "T'other only just won."—London Tit-Bits.

HE DECIDED TO GIVE UP "GINNY"

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

LEANING against the tree trunk while the breeze ruffled his wavy hair, and troubled thought brought a frown to his handsome forehead, Armsdale decided to give up "Ginny." It really must be done before the Lorrimers should come with their guest to make a camping party in the mountain, which for months had been Armsdale's stopping place.

At first the appalling silence had worn wearily, the days filled in with sketching had not banished his boredom—then Armsdale came upon "Ginny"—"Ginny" in a dark blue cotton frock, golden lights flecking her coal black eyes as she glanced gravely up at him.

The winsome and brooding feminine "Ginny" had a sphinx-like quality of sitting, half-absent to conversation, absorbedly unconscious of the glowing world about her, her fathomless black eyes deep in reverie, the golden lights Armsdale so admired flashing suddenly as she glanced at one in awakening. Armsdale often brought about this swift awakening by an abrupt remark. "'Ginny'," he would accuse, "what is your mystery? Where are you in your absorbed silence?" She gave no returning smile to his banter. "Ginny's" rare smile piqued his interest; she would answer gravely:

"My thoughts were not with you, 'Artist'." Her title, amused and pleased Armsdale—always he was just—"Artist."

He had first found "Ginny" seated on a fallen tree in an upper opening of the forest. Her face had been raised to the song of a bird, and he had noted at once the smallness of her brown hands, the neatness of the small feet, too, in their Indian moccasins.

Though "Ginny's" frock was of dark cotton, she wore about her throat a long string of red beads made from shining mountain berries.

He knew that he would make love to her, and he wondered if always she would dart away as she did when he first began to talk to her. He endeavored to hold her in conversation which he made an interesting lure with books of travel and adventure.

He was permitted to know little of her—the very name of "Ginny" came to him through the chance call of a woman. They had lingered in the woodland shade until the noon hour, then had come the sharp call: "'Ginny'! 'Ginny'!"

"Time for dinner," his wood nymph had said, and darted off.

He asked Harris that evening to make inquiry regarding the woman who had called from the clearing, and to find out, if possible, who might be this girl whose unsmiling face seemed, as time passed, to hypnotize his senses. Certain it was that the thoughtful gaze of "Ginny" haunted him long after he had left her presence.

Harris learned only that a man and his wife occupied a neatly fashioned log cabin on the upper opening. The house was often long closed and vacant, and the young woman also stopped there—whose name was "Ginny."

Armsdale ventured gentle questioning concerning "Ginny," and her life in the mountain. Sweet, inscrutable, she evaded reply. He was sorry for her; a lonely life for one young and fair as "Ginny." Yet, deliberately he planned to add to that sorrow by teaching her the lesson of love—to her later desolation.

Her continued companionship gave to him the answer he sought; for again "Ginny" came to his side—yielded even wonderingly to his kiss. He had laughed exultantly as she darted from his embrace; frightened for the time, he thought, amusedly. His amusement did not last. Overwhelmingly came the desire to see the woodland maid again; he had sought her eagerly, but after the caress she made no picture in the vagrant sunshine of the forest path.

So, still each day hopefully at the trysting place, Armsdale made his decision. He would give up "Ginny." When she must come again he would tell her that she might no longer seek him in the forest opening. Inexplicably against the thought came a memory flash of "Ginny's" somber eyes, the glint of gold in their depths that stirred his pulses. Poor little mountain maid, she would grieve for him in her desolation—these silent women were strange. But—the Lorrimers were coming, and with them—Helen Moreland, whose assured place in society, whose confident charm he might still consider worthy to claim his own. The artist arose in sudden eagerness, banishing unhappy thought of his determined task. "Ginny" stood before him. He stared—"Ginny," with an entrancing smile curling her red lips, as she wound the red beads about her fingers.

"The time has come," remarked this new "Ginny," as the walrus said, "to talk of many things. Mrs. Waring, with whom I am staying, tells me that you are to have guests; they may be better informed than you regarding your neighbors. Therefore, I may no longer keep my secret. I am Virginia Doraley, writer of books. Yes," she answered his stare of surprise—"author of 'The book.' Your friend, the physician, was admonished to make no mention of my presence there—or of my engagement to him. I came, you see, solely for work and reflection."

Armsdale caught the glint of gold in her backward glance—then [illegible] alone.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON III

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Banks are defined as "institutions chartered to receive deposits and make loans." What is a bank deposit? What is a bank loan?

J. H. Puelicher

BANK DEPOSIT = money or checks left with a bank to be kept safe from thieves, fire or other loss; to earn interest, if in a savings account; to be convenient for the future use of the depositor; to be loaned out to earn the expenses of the bank's services, and interest for the depositor when in an interest bearing account.

BANK LOAN = advance of money to help business enterprise so that business may again help the earner and saver by giving employment.

In the Middle Ages safes were very few. Goldsmiths kept their jewelry in strong boxes, and also accepted for safekeeping, for a fee, money packed and marked with the owner's name. In these days money saved lay idle; today it is put to work by banks for the benefit of the depositor and the community.

FARMER-BANKER MEETING NOTES

A recent farmer-banker conference, held at Fargo, North Dakota, as one of a series being held under the auspices of the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, to aid in developing permanently better agricultural conditions, was productive of a number of valuable and definite measures for a program of action.

Reduction of wheat acreage: It was recommended that the farmers reduce acreage 30 per cent from that of 1923.

Diversified farming: The conference declared that the ultimate success of agriculture depends upon proper diversification.

Orderly marketing: Financial support was approved to assist the orderly marketing of farm products.

Encourage Homeseekers: Support was pledged to all movements designed to encourage home seekers.

Recommendations for immediate relief: Bankers and business men were urged to assist in providing storage facilities at once to meet the needs of their home communities. The bankers were urged to accept storage certificates for loans on the stored grain and if their reserves prevented them from carrying the storage certificate it was urged that the Intermediate Credit Banks be asked to discount these certificates for the banks.

Resolutions looking toward legislative relief were adopted, and a special committee appointed to follow them up. The resolutions were as follows:

Calling for the establishment of some governmental agency as an emergency measure for orderly marketing and selling separately the exportable wheat surplus;

Protesting against the drawback provision in the Fordney-McCumber law and urging the enactment of that in the Dingley law, the Paine law and the Underwood law;

Opposing the reduction of the tariff on flax seed of flax products or feeder cattle.

MERCHANT CREDIT EXPENSIVE

Investigations indicate that farmers may be materially benefited by demonstrating to them the losses they incur through the use of merchant credit instead of bank credit. In conferences arranged by the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association, it has frequently developed that farmers in many instances are thoughtlessly carrying heavy burdens of mercantile credit.

The cost to farmers of merchant credit often runs as high as 50 per cent annually. The United States Department of Agriculture has made surveys of credit and insurance conditions in North Carolina, in which eight hundred farmers were interviewed, and which showed that 432 were relying on merchant credit. The average cost was 25.6 per cent, figured annually. The average rate paid by white farmers was 21.5 per cent, while that for the colored was 32.2 per cent. This difference is attributed to the smaller average amount of credit used by the colored farmers, the greater risk involved in credit to

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Ludwig Klinge, a single man, Mortgagor, to the Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, dated July 1, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Marshall Minnesota, on the 17th day of November, 1920, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 103 of Mortgages, on page 213.

That on the 25th day of November, 1920, said mortgage was assigned by the said Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, to Albertus Hinrichs, and the Deed of Assignment recorded on July 13 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M. in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, in Book 130 of Mortgages, on page 59 thereof.

That thereafter, to-wit: on the 29th day of June, 1922, the said Albertus Hinrichs assigned said mortgage by assignment in writing dated on that day, and which Assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County Minnesota, on the 13th day of July, 1922 at 8 o'clock A. M. in Book 103 of Mortgages on page 329 thereof.

That such default consists in the nonpayment, when due, of the principal and interest which said mortgage was given to secure; that the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, is the sum of One Thousand Seventy Dollars ($1070.00).

That the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are described as follows: The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Thirteen (13), Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North, of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Marshall County, Minnesota.

That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Marshall County, Minnesota, at the West front door of the Marshall County Court House in the City of Warren in Marshall County, Minnesota, on Monday, the 20th day of October, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage together with the costs of such sale, and Fifty Dollars ($50.00) Attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage.

Labor—that's the Big Cost in Painting

LABOR accounts for about three-quarters of the entire cost of a painting job. Materials cost only about one-quarter—so the possible saving in cost between the best and the cheaper materials is not worth consideration.

And by specifying the best paint, and getting years of extra wear, you save the big labor cost of frequent re-painting. You get the most economical job in the end.

PATTON'S Sun-Proof PAINT

—is longer-lasting because it is richer in linseed oil. It will not peel or blister if applied to surfaces fit for painting. It forms a tough film of protection against time and weather.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative and the Assignee of the Mortgagee hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Frederick M. Olson, a single man, mortgagor, to J. D. Layton, mortgagee, dated May 21st, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, 1923, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 115 of Mortgages on page 193.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said J. D. Layton, Mortgagee, to Clement Kamrowski, by written assignment dated October 23rd, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 25th day of October, 1923, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 115 of Mortgages on page 593.

And whereas, the said Clement Kamrowski, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Fifty-five Hundred ($5500.00) Dollars, with accumulated interest from the 21st day of May, 1923, at the rate of six and one-half per cent per annum; and whereas, the Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Sixteen (16) in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty (40) West, of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota containing One Hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government Survey thereof.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 28th day of October, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and all delinquent taxes if any, on said premises, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars, as the statutory attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Valuable Hints to Patrons
Delivering Cream to our Creamery
Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

On the sand, not a score of feet away, the dying embers of a tiny fire were flickering.

Bunker and Carr had seen the gleam almost as soon as Nellie. Swiftly they dropped their oars into the water, checking the boat's way. "Here they are, all right," remarked Bunker, not without satisfaction.

The skiff grated on the sand and half a dozen dull forms sprang up, dimly visible in the circle of firelight. In a foreign tongue some one spoke what was evidently a challenge.

With a cry, Carr tried to back away. But before he could make a single stroke hands stretched to the gunwale and drew the boat high.

Carr shrugged his shoulders. "We're caught!" he muttered. "Who are they?" he asked Nellie.

Nellie leaned forward and addressed the leader of the party in the foreign tongue he had used. Then, without waiting for a reply, she turned to Carr and Bunker. "They are friends," she said. "Some of the people who live here, I think. Everybody here speaks Danish, you know. We had better get out and I will talk to them." She stood up, took the hand that one of the men extended and jumped lightly ashore.

Carr and Bunker followed.

Beside the fire Nellie halted and turned to a man who seemed to be the leader. "I am Miss Archman," she said, in Danish.

The man saluted formally. For several minutes the two talked. Then Nellie turned to her companions. "I don't understand what he says very well," she explained. "I've tried to tell him about the mutiny, but he doesn't seem to understand me, either. He says that the captain is up the mountain somewhere, but he has just sent a messenger to say that he is on the way back. I asked him about our people, but he says he hasn't seen any of them. I'm not certain that he belongs here. He doesn't know who Overlord Dorth is and—"

"Overlord Dorth!"

"Yes. Dorth rules the island. I haven't had time to tell you of him. I'm afraid these people are intruders. And yet—"

"Didn't Captain Bunker say that a ship was following us?" broke in Carr. "These men look like marines and—"

Nellie caught her breath. "Marines?" she cried. "Oh! They can't be! They can't be—"

She broke off as the men faced round and stood at attention. The flickering flames shone on what were undoubtedly uniforms.

A line of armed sailors was approaching. As Nellie faced about, a man, obviously an officer, strode into the circle of the firelight. When he saw Nellie he saluted. "Good evening, madame," he said in Danish.

"Good evening!" Nellie replied in English. "Do you speak English?"

"I speak it a little." The officer's words were precise, but his accent was good.

"I'm so glad. I speak Danish very badly. I am Miss Archman—"

The man's face changed instantly. He whipped his hand to his cap. "Miss Nellie Archman?" he questioned eagerly.

"Yes, but—"

The officer spun around. "Stand back!" he ordered to the men, who were crowding inward. "Lieutenant, withdraw your men to a respectful distance." He swung round again. "The gracious lady will pardon?" he said. "I did not know. What is the gracious lady's pleasure? I am Captain Strindberg."

The flickering firelight danced on Nellie's bewildered face and in the no less perplexed countenances of Carr and Bunker.

"I am glad to meet you, captain," faltered the girl. "But I don't quite understand what you mean. I—"

"I and my men are at the gracious lady's service. If she will lead us to her father—"

Nellie's face clouded. "I wish I could," she exclaimed. "He must be worried to death."

"He is here? He is well?"

"Oh, yes! He is here—that is, near here; and he is well. But— Oh! I don't know what to say. You are in the service of Overlord Dorth, are you not?"

"Overlord Dorth? D-orth?" Abruptly the officer's face brightened. "Surely, surely, gracious lady. I ask nothing better than to serve him."

"Then—then— You must know about my father—Mr. Archman, you know—and how we came down here, and what—"

"Your father, Mr. Archman! Pardon! The gracious lady has not yet seen Overlord Dorth?"

"Yes, I've seen him, and I am to see him tomorrow. I was to have seen him today to hear something important that he wants to tell me. But he wasn't strong enough."

"He is not ill?"

"I'm afraid he is. Very ill. Did you not know it?"

Captain Strindberg fairly wrung his hands. "Take me to him at once, gracious lady," he begged. "I must see him at once, at once."

"But I cannot take you to him. I don't know the way. Don't you know it? Oh! What does it all mean?"

Carr struck in. He had been listening with growing uneasiness. "It means that Captain Strindberg is a stranger here, Nellie," he declared. "How he got here, I don't know, unless he came on that ship Captain Bunker was so troubled about. Don't tell him anything—"

"Silence!" Strindberg roared the order. "Silence! Who are you?"

The young fellow shrugged his shoulders. "I go by the name of Carr," he answered. "This lady is to be my wife and I advise her—"

"Your wife! You are a fool. This lady is not for such as you. She—"

But Nellie interposed. "Stop, Captain Strindberg," she said, with sudden imperiousness. "Stop! This is a matter with which you have nothing to do." She turned to Carr. "Forgive me, dear," she said. "I don't know who or what Captain Strindberg is, but I have no choice except to trust him. Our ship is in the hands of mutineers; my mother and friends are lost; my father is probably a prisoner; and we ourselves are fugitives. If this gentleman really means harm to a feeble old man like Overlord Dorth—"

"Harm! No!" broke in Strindberg. "I am glad to hear you say it. At any event I cannot stop you. This island is small and you will soon find him no matter what I do or say. Captain Strindberg, I will tell you everything so far as I know it. Then I will ask you to help us."

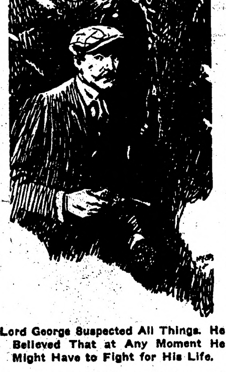
CHAPTER XVI

Until Daylight

Lord George descended into the ravine with extreme caution. He could see the ground where his next footstep was to be planted, but he could see little more; and he could not be sure that the next stone on which he put his weight would not give way beneath him and send him crashing to the unknown depths below. Moreover, he was by no means certain what he would find if he reached the bottom in safety.

The map had come into the possession of the party mysteriously—as mysteriously as the first map had come. Might it not, like that first map, be a forgery, deliberately designed to lead astray, if not to betray to ruin and death, those who trusted it? Certainly it seemed queer that it should be necessary to descend into such a pit in order to reach a road that seemed to lead up the mountain.

Lord George suspected all things. He believed that at any moment he might have to fight for his life; and he moved silently as a shadow, with an automatic pistol clutched in his right hand.



Lord George Suspected All Things. He Believed That at Any Moment He Might Have to Fight for His Life.

At the bottom at last, he found himself standing on a broad, flat rock, in front of which the ground seemed faintly luminous. Hesitantly he stooped and put out his hand and touched water. He had halted on the edge of a stream or inlet—probably the last, as he quickly ascertained that the water was salty. It appeared to be twenty or thirty feet broad.

Hesitatingly he faced seaward—then jumped, as a sparkle of light flashed to his eye. It was the merest flash, gone almost before it was seen, but it was as conclusive as a bonfire. Some human being was at the bottom of the ravine, close at hand. Silently he crept toward the spot.

The way was not long, nor the walking difficult. The path was well trodden and free from obstructions, and he moved along rapidly. Almost instantly he heard voices, one of which at least, though low, was wrung with pain.

"Something's wrong," the speaker wailed. "Something's wrong. She'd have come back else. What shall I do? What shall I do? Nellie! Nellie! Nellie!"

The voice broke; then went on. "Flash your light, Olaf!" it ordered. "Flash your light."

An electric torch flashed, revealing the tossing waters of the bay. Again and again it flashed. Then the voice spoke again, hopelessly. "It's no use, Olaf. Something's gone wrong and I'm helpless. If she's lost the way—But she hasn't lost the way. She'd have called out if she had—if nothing were wrong."

Then another voice spoke. "What can have gone wrong, Mr. Archman? It is your ship and—"

Archman! Lord George started. So it was Bess' father upon whom he had chanced. Well and good! He slipped his pistol into his belt and took a step forward.

"Good evening, Mr. Archman!" he said quietly. "I'm delighted to find you!"

Two suppressed exclamations and a sudden thudding of feet came from in front. Lord George could barely see the men, but he knew that they had faced around. "Don't shoot!" he called laughingly. "I'm alone and I'm a friend. I repeat, Mr. Archman, that I am glad to find you. Your wife and younger daughter are waiting for you only a few yards away. We came down on the El Rio."

"My wife and Bess— Who are you?"

"I'm a Johnny Bull—Lord George Caruthers. Flash your torch on me and satisfy yourself, if you like. Ah! Quite right. You see I'm alone. Now, if you'll allow me, I'll come nearer and explain."

There was a pause; then Archman spoke quietly. "Come nearer if you like. If you are from the El Rio, God knows you are welcome."

Lord George came forward briskly. "I'll cut it short," he said, "for I fancy we're all in a hurry. It's this way." Swiftly he told about the voyage of the El Rio, the shore excursion, and the mutiny he had witnessed from the mountain top.

At this point Archman groaned. "Good Heaven!" he breathed. "Nellie's on board."

"Nellie? Your daughter?"

"Yes! We heard this afternoon that a ship was lying here. Nellie heard it first and left at once, saying she was going on board. I was detained. As soon as I could, I hurried after her, but when I got there she was gone—gone in the only boat—and darkness had shut down. I could see the lights of the ship, but I couldn't make anybody on board hear me, shout as I might. And I had no boat, you know. I sent back for one, but it couldn't be brought until low tide. I am expecting it now; but—but Nellie has been gone for nearly six hours. God! It drives me mad, mad! You—you know who was on the El Rio. Tell me, why should the men mutiny? Captain Bunker is not a hard master—"

"I don't think it was a question of discontent. Things have been happening all the way down." Lord George told of the attempt to signal, the discovery of the destroyer lying in wait, and the passage of the Danish-speaking sailors. Somewhat to his surprise the story seemed to encourage Archman.

"If that is all," he breathed; "if that is all—all will be well. Already they guess that—that—no matter! They will treat Nellie with all respect. Take me to my wife and to Bess." He made a step forward.

Abruptly the third man, who had not yet spoken, broke in. "The moon!" he said. "She come!"

Archman drew a long breath. "Maybe we would better wait," he said. "The moonlight will reach the El Rio in a few minutes. And if the destroyer is near—" He paused impressively.

"Perhaps it will be," Lord George hesitated. "But—hang it all, I hate to croak, you know, but I'm afraid you're in for a fine disappointment. We saw the trouble from the mountain, and the destroyer didn't take any part in it. No boats came or went, and the destroyer didn't follow when the El Rio started in this direction. I'm sorry, but I don't believe it had anything to do with the mutiny. It doesn't look to me like an ordinary mutiny. It looks to me more like what you Americans call a put-up job."

"Then—then—Nellie is lost!"

"Oh, no! The game isn't played out yet. These chaps don't want to run away with the ship, or they'd have gone before now. They're waiting for something, and as they've moored the ship close to here it looks as if they wanted to find you. Anyhow, I'll wager they'll be coming ashore in the morning, and when they do—well, we'll have an innings. And, besides, there's that destroyer. It didn't come here for nothing. I suppose you know why it did come, by the way?"

Archman hesitated. He seemed to be turning the situation over in his mind and trying to resolve whether to explain at all, and, if so, how much.

Again the third man broke in. "Ship!" he said. "See!"

Black against the silver water the masts and funnels of the El Rio protruded themselves. The shadow of the mountain had left them bare and it was retreating slowly downward.

Archman looked at it and nodded slowly. Then he faced toward Lord George. "There is a reason for the destroyer's coming," he said. "But—you will forgive me if I do not speak now. Soon all will be known. Conditions are changing fast. For years the—the—the—he whom I serve has been hiding from those who would find him. But now—I cannot say more. Soon—perhaps tomorrow—all will be made clear. At any rate, Nellie is safe. Come! Let us seek Mrs. Archman. What's that?"

From out on the water had come a sudden uproar—a far off mingling of shouts and cracking of pistols. Lights flared out, moved and vanished and reappeared. The moonlight had swept downward to the deck of the El Rio, but the distance was too great and the bulwarks of the ship too high for it to reveal anything.

Then abruptly something flashed and Lord George uttered an exclamation. "They're swinging out boats!" he cried. "One, two, three of them. They're doing it fast, too. Listen! You can hear them."

A hot temper warps the judgment.

Owatonna—The Owatonna Chamber of Commerce is planning a series of tours to cover all Steele county and portions of surrounding counties to further acquaintanceship and good feeling between business men and residents of the rural districts.

Duluth—Duluth residents gazing skyward one night recently were divided in opinion concerning the intermittent flashing of a light from the south, believed to be that of the Washburn Crosby company's 500,000,000-candlepower searchlight, which was trained on the city by appointment.

St. Paul—The Minnesota Rural Credits bureau, which discontinued receiving applications for loans on farms throughout the state June 8, 1924, is again in a position to receive applications aggregating $4,000,000, it was announced. Bonds totalling $30,000,000 have been disposed of for the purpose of loaning money.

St. Paul—Amended articles of incorporation were filed in the office of Mike Holm, secretary of state, by the Northern States Power company, increasing the capital stock of that company from $75,000,000 to $80,000,000.

Rochester—Just 14 months ago drilling was started on the Rochester experimental oil well. A new spirit of optimism became apparent among the people who are footing the cost, when the drillers reported getting into a white lime cap rock, which they have been expecting to strike for some time.

40,000 OPEN LEGION MEET

Entrance Into National Politics, Issue Before St. Paul Convention This Year

St. Paul, Minn.—Proclaimed by its commander "a proven quantity," the American Legion opened its sixth annual convention here Monday, with proposed changes in policy the most important matters likely to come before it.

National Commander John R. Quinn's address, in which he said the Legion's prestige had been doubled by accomplishments in the past year, and an address by General Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans bureau, were among the first session's activities.

A few hours after the opening of the Legion convention, the 40 and 8 society, the fun organization of the Legion, and the auxiliary, composed of women related closely to Legionnaires, were scheduled to start their conventions in nearby halls.

Meeting in the municipal auditorium, where the five-day convention is being held, delegates heard an address of welcome by city and state representatives, greetings from the auxiliary and the 40 et 8, several reports of committees, and brief addresses by representatives of the G. A. R., and United Confederate veterans.

Beside Commander Quinn and General Hines, speakers also included James K. McClintock of the American Red Cross, who explained the work of that organization in its relation to the American Legion.

Mayor Welcomes Visitors.

Mayor Arthur E. Nelson, himself a Legionnaire, welcoming the convention on behalf of the city, lauded the Legion as being composed of men "who stand for the best in citizenship," and termed the Legion "the most potent organization in America today."

Throughout the night and Monday additional Legionnaires streamed into St. Paul and Minneapolis, and convention heads estimated nearly 40,000 were in the two cities before the first session was called to order.

OCT. 5 IS RED CROSS SUNDAY

Is So Designated by Governor Nestos, Who Urges Observance.

Bismarck, N. D.—Declaring that the organization has rendered great service in the past and should be maintained as an agency of progress and humanity in the future, Governor R. A. Nestos has designated October 5, 1924, as Red Cross Sunday in North Dakota and urges fitting observance of the day.

"Whenever a great catastrophe strikes any portion of the globe, we have added evidence of the efficiency and humanity of our Red Cross organization," says the governor in a proclamation issued Monday. "The world has learned to appreciate the Red Cross both in its war service and in that peace time service which continues throughout the years. While but few are privileged to render personal service in any stricken field, we may all effectively aid and promote the success of this work by our contributions and by our membership. There is ever the urgent call for the unselfish service of the good samaritan."

By way of observance the governor urges that on October 5, all churches, Sunday schools, and public meetings consider the value of mercy and Christian charity in rebuilding and strengthening a stricken community or world, and the importance of maintaining the Red Cross organization.

STORE ROBBERS ARE CAUGHT

Goods Valued at $700 Taken From Christine Store Recovered.

Fargo, N. D.—About 12 hours after yeggs had broken into the building of the Farmers Mercantile company of Christine and had carted away goods valued at more than $700 early Sunday morning, the goods had been recovered in Fargo, and the two alleged robbers were under arrest.

The men, Thomas Cox, 35, alias Pendergast and Harmer, of Greeley, Colo., and Richard Brooks, 19, alias Larson and Rice, of Detroit, Minn., are in the Cass county jail following their arrest by members of the Cass county sheriff's office.

The loot including 17 leather vests, several bolts of silk, about 40 pairs of dress shoes, 4 overcoats, 36 dress shirts, khaki shirts, and miscellaneous jewelry was returned to Richland county Monday morning. The car, believed to be a stolen one, bore Nebraska license plates, which a wire from Lincoln, Neb., declared to belong to a Studebaker auto. Under the seat was a Kansas plate. Five spare tires were tied to the rear of the car.

Helicopter Flight Is Success.

Mt. Bileard, France.—The success achieved by Etienne Oehmichen, the French engineer, in winning the 40,000 franc prize Sunday for weight lifting with his helicopter is but a phase in the experiments he has been making with his type of machine. The helicopter used in the official test lifted 101 pounds to a height of 1 metre in 1 minute and remained in that position for another minute. Later it exceeded this height with a still greater weight

Back Given Out?

Washington

Washington—President Coolidge announced the reappointment of David J. Lewis of Maryland, democratic member of the tariff commission.

Washington—Sied Zerdecheno, who styled himself emir and ruler of Kurdestan, was ordered deported from the United States by Assistant Secretary of Labor White.

Washington—A military engagement is imminent in the vicinity of San Pedro, Sula, Honduras, according to an official dispatch received here. Provisional government troops have seized trains from Puerto Cortez, with the explanation that they required them for troop movements. A revolutionary force of considerable size is reported approaching San Pedro.

Domestic

Little Rock, Ark.—The resolutions committee of the state democratic convention sidetracked the klan question by tabling a resolution condemning the order by name.

Bessemer, Mich.—Himself partially buried by a cavein, with one ankle broken, William Schreiterer succeeded in saving the life of a fellow miner, John Bonovitz.

Richmond, Va.—Governor E. Lee Trinkle was taken to a hospital here suffering from a broken left arm, sustained when he was thrown from a chair aboard the Virginia fish and game department boat Commodore Maury.

Chicago—Chairman Butler of the republican national committee issued a statement declaring that he will not be satisfied unless the republican nominees run an electoral vote of at least 404.

Denver—The will of Harry H. Tammen, one of the owners of the Denver Post, who died last July, has been admitted to probate here. Distribution of his estate, conservatively estimated at $2,000,000 was provided.

Chicago—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, independent candidate for vice-president, announced he will speak in Manhattan, upstate New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Chicago this month if his trial does not interfere.

New York—Gloria Swanson, movie actress, has filed suit in the county clerk's office here through her attorneys to recover $2,383 she claims is due her from J. M. Schenck, moving picture producer, as rebate on the rent of a house she leased from him

Indianapolis—Homes for aged members of the Improved Order of Redmen will be erected in every state in the Union, according to a resolution adopted by the council of the order in session here. The resolution was offered by the New York delegation.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Bobbed hair for sport occasions, with the same hair made elaborate for formal occasions by braids and curls, probably will be next year's style. The convention of the National Hair Dressers' Association, which meets here, will hold a competition to select the new mode.

Boston—The dirigible ZR-3, built in Germany for this government by the Zeppelin Company, will come to this country by the northern Atlantic route this month, it was learned at Charleston navy yard. The tender Patoka, which has been serving the airship Shenandoah with its specially designed mooring mast, was preparing to leave here to meet the dirigible.

Dayton, Ohio—One hundred forty entries so far have been received for the international air races here October 2, 3 and 4, setting a new high mark for the event, it was announced by officials of the races. Last year at St. Louis 125 entries were recorded. September 15 is the deadline for applications for this year's races.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Fire which followed an explosion in the cupola of the Exchange elevator at slip No. 1, and the Erie basin, doomed the structure. Virtually every available piece of fire apparatus in the city and two fireboats were battling the flames in an effort to save surrounding property. Three men caught on the top floor when the explosion occurred, slid 180 feet to safety on a belt in the canal tower.

New York—Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio and former Congressman A. W. Jefferies of Nebraska left for Plymouth, Vt., the birthplace of President Coolidge, where they will inaugurate the Coolidge-Dawes caravan campaign that has for its itinerary 300 cities and towns between the New England village and the Pacific coast. The first rally of the 5,000 mile tour arranged by the Home Town Coolidge Club will be attended mainly by neighbors and boyhood friends of the President.

St. Hyacinthe, Que.—Swarms of bees attacked three horses in harness on a road near here, settled on their bodies and literally stung the animals to death.

New York—Persecution by fellow officers that took the form of "every conceivable indignity" even to the opening of his letters to his wife and the search of his personal effects, was charged by Captain Paxton Hibben in his crossexamination before a board of inquiry examining his fitness to retain his commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps. He attributed this to his friendly attitude toward Russia.

Sports

Minneapolis—Quentin Romero Rojas, Chile, or Martin Burke, New Orleans—the one of these showing the greater speed in affixing his signature and addressing an envelope—will oppose Fred Fulton, the Rochester plasterer, in the main event of the first fight card of the season at the Minneapolis Armory, scheduled for September 26.

Jersey City—Harry Wills, Negro heavyweight of New Orleans overwhelmingly outpointed Luis Firpo in 12 rounds at Boyle's Thirty Acres before 80 thousand spectators. Overcaution cost the New Orleans Negro his chance of victory by the knockout route, while the big South American never had a chance of victory by any route.

Westbury, N. Y.—America began the defense of the International Challenge cup with a smashing, one-sided victory over Great Britain in the first match of the series for this historic emblem of polo supremacy. A colorful crowd of 35,000 that included the Prince of Wales and a host of other notables saw the Yankee riders overwhelm the invaders with a spectacular attack and win by the record-breaking score of 16 to 5.

Foreign

Tokio—Severe rain and wind storms have caused 30 deaths while 312 persons have been seriously injured. Some 3,200 houses were destroyed and 4,600 damaged.

Paris—Saghloul Pasha, premier of Egypt, who is now taking the cure at Vichy, announced that he is going to London at the invitation of Prime Minister MacDonald to discuss Egyptian and Sudan problems.

Manila—Governor General Leonard Wood has announced that he will leave for the United States early in December to testify before congress on Philippine affairs.

Ferrera, Italy—A rare collection of pottery of the second century is reported to have been discovered in the Trebbia valley. Some of the vessels are only one millimeter thick and they are all of coraline rose color and beautifully designed.

Messina, Sicily—A heat wave is sweeping through southern Italy and Sicily. In some places the temperature has soared to 110 degrees in the shade, while a hot wind from the direction of Greece is making the situation worse. Many prostrations have been reported.

Copenhagen—A succession of earthquakes has been shaking Iceland. The south and southwestern districts of the island always have been subject to volcanic disturbances, and old craters have now become active again. The population has fled from the danger zone.

seemed asleep.

Paris—A strange crime was revealed when police arrested Miguel Mattioli, an Italian, and charged him with hypnotizing another man to commit murder. Maffairi, an enemy of Mattioli's, was shot dead by Mattioli's friend, Scetti. Scetti, when arrested, Erivan, Armenia—Efforts are being made by a group of Armenians headed by Leon Pashalian, secretary of the Armenian national committee at Geneva, to interest American capitalists or amusement promoters in a plan to exploit Mount Arrarat, on which Noah's ark is supposed to have grounded when the flood waters began to recede.

Geneva—Countess Gabrielle Szechenyi died in the Basel hospital as the result of a self inflicted pistol wound following a quarrel with Archduke Eugene Hapsburg, commander of the Austrian armies on the Piave. Recently the archduke, who is aged 50, became engaged to a wealthy Basel widow.

All 30 of those arrested were Poles.

Tokio—Patrick Murphy, advance man for Pedro Zanni, the Argentine aviator was informed that a spare plane shipped to the aviator from Kobe to Hano, French Indo-China, where he was forced down, has been delivered to Zanni who is assembling the machine preparatory to resuming the flight.

Tokio—The strong, frank tone of Ambassador M. Hanihara's immigration note to the American government in which the term "grave consequences" was used was due to the insistence of Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, who wanted a note "with teeth," Bishop Charles F. Reifsnider said in an address before the Tokio Rotary Club.

Tokio—The war office has reached a compromise with the cabinet in the recent political row over army expenditures by agreeing to effect cuts of 30,000,000 yen ($15,000,000) in the next budget. In return for this, the politicians are to keep their hands off, permitting the militarists to readjust the army according to their own plans and to reduce the strength of the army by only four divisions.

Vienna—Former Archduchess Marie Valerie, youngest daughter of the late Emperor Francis Joseph, is dead. Her husband and their eight children were at the bedside. When a young woman the archduchess was the censor of plays presented in the Royal theater.

Moscow—The Rosta agency, the soviet official news perveyor, announce that the committee for the independence of Georgia has published a declaration confessing that its attempt to a counter revolution has failed. It urges all its adherents to surrender their arms and declare that the committee has been dissolved.

Narrow Margin Indeed Saved Convicted Man

Sir Frank Lockwood, one of the most brilliant advocates of the English bar, was famed alike for his witticisms and his professional acuteness. Touching a remark as to the extraordinary dullness of certain men who have occupied the judicial bench in England, he used to relate in the following words an instance within his own experience:

A man had stolen a spade, and was tried before a stupid, but well meaning and thoroughly conscientious magistrate. He carefully looked up "Archbald's Criminal Law" to find a precedent on which he could convict and punish the man.

"I can't find anything under the word 'spade'," said he, "although I see that a man was convicted and severely punished for stealing a shovel." Then, looking at the culprit severely over his spectacles, he added: "You have had a very narrow escape, but you may go now."

YOUR DAUGHTER'S HEALTH

Mothers of Ailing Daughters, Attention

How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters by Giving them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands.

When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite and is irregular, her mother should have a care for her physical condition and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

First Bottle Helped Her

Richmond, Indiana.—"I am sending this letter to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did my daughter. She was troubled with nervousness so that she was restless at night, and then she could not sleep and she was afraid of everything. She could not work as she was not strong enough, and she had to quit school at 14 because she was ill so much. The doctor said she had a nervous breakdown and her system was all run down. She had pains in her right side and through her back, and the medicine she took did her no good at all. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's advertisement in our paper, telling all that the Vegetable Compound had done for other women, so I said, 'We will try it out and see what it does.' She had not taken the first bottle before it began to help her, and we will always say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine she ever took."—Mrs. E. DARBY, 911 N. 16th Street, Richmond, Indiana.

An Ohio Mother Reports

Columbus, Ohio. — "When my daughter became 14 years of age she was ailing very much. The doctor gave her medicine, but she was very weak, and he always had to write excuses for her as she could not attend the 'gym' classes, and I often had to keep her home from school. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and run-down condition, so I gave her three doses daily, and also Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. Our friends are surprised to see how fine and tall she is getting and how well she is. I will gladly answer letters and give you a fine recommendation for other mothers." — Mrs. MARIE MIELKE, 814 Ebner Street, Columbus, Ohio.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who have taken this medicine have been helped by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Quaint Bell Superstitions

For many years it was believed that the ringing of bells dispelled thunder. Records of English churchwardens occasionally have reference to this idea. In those of Sandwich, dated 1464, an item is set down for bread and drink supplied to "ryngers in the great thunderyng." Many and various were the ancient offices of bells. According to some monkish couplets the mottoes of a chime, one bell says, "Men's death I tell, by doleful knell"; another, "The winds so fierce I do disperse"; and a third, "Lightning and thunder I break asunder." Rural bell ringers often have a great affection for their bells, and in the superstitious way of their fathers ascribe to each some special virtue.

Telephone for the Deaf

Use of the cheekbone as a conductor to the auditory nerve, coupled with the amplification of speech, has produced a telephone for the deaf. Persons who have not heard for years are said to be able to receive long-distance messages through this apparatus, which is being tested by the department of telephones of the Saskatchewan government.—Popular Science Monthly.

WHOLE FAMILY ENDORSE TANLAC AS BEST TONIC

"Tanlac has been our constant friend for years, and my wife and myself and eight children are all enjoying wonderful health, largely due to this medicine," is the remarkable statement of Harry H. Pistole, 310 Archer St., Waco, Texas.

"In my own case Tanlac has done what seemed to be impossible. When I began taking it my stomach was in such a bad fix that I had to live on a milk and egg diet and I was almost a skeleton. I had been flat on my back in bed and under treatment for 18 months and felt that my time was about up.

"After my case had been given up as hopeless and I thought I was beyond redemption a relative put me on to Tanlac, and the result is, I gained 20 pounds, and enjoy as good health as anybody could wish.

"My wife was all broken down in health. But now she weighs 155 pounds, and is strong and well and I am giving Tanlac credit for it. We give Tanlac to the children to tone them up and make them grow, and nobody ever had a healthier set of children than we have.

"Tanlac is certainly the greatest medicine on earth for anyone whose life is wrecked by bad health. We sure do have a great deal to praise Tanlac for at my house."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

The Essential

Robert was invited over to the neighbor's for dinner. As the maid brought in the fried chicken and all that usually appeals to the three-year-old, Robert continued to gaze furtively toward the kitchen. After the dessert course he voiced his judgment.

"Why?" asked the hostess a bit taken aback.

"Well, I don't see any ice cream."

Gets Rid of Rats

A Detroit merchant has perfected a device which has cleared his store of rats in a very short time, he says. He has a box on the floor, with a door swinging from its upper edge. The door is smeared with cheese, and as the rat pushes on it, it opens and admits him to a small compartment with a hole into a huge tank of water, where he drowns. The trap is very effective, and has to be emptied every day.

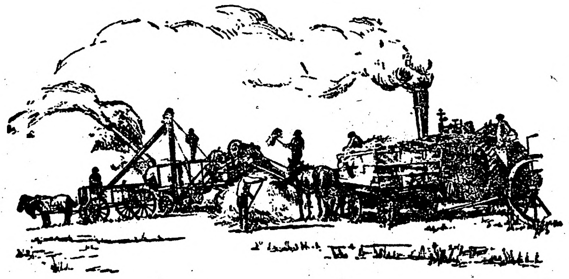
GREAT NORTHERN IS PREPARED



The territory served by the Great Northern Railway harvests its crops and ships to market its heaviest load in the fall season.

This year the Great Northern is prepared to handle a larger traffic than ever before. It has purchased many large, new locomotives of the most modern type; it has purchased and rebuilt thousands of new freight cars; it has built new track and improved old; it is equipped to do the people's work well.

Its Oriental Limited Train and other passenger trains are the acme of perfection in passenger service. The extensive use of oil burning locomotives make the route of the Oriental Limited the longest cinderless mileage of any railroad in the Northwest.

A supply of cars is one of the important elements in the preparation for the heavy freight business. The Great Northern not only owns ample equipment for the crop moving season, but it has these cars on its own lines ready for business and in excellent condition. So prepared the Great Northern is confident that it can give adequate service to the Northwest throughout the busiest season of the year. It appreciates your patronage and asks, in your own and its interest, that you help it to

Load cars to capacity
Load and unload promptly
Load cars properly to avoid loss and damage
Avoid diversion wherever possible.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Ludwig Klinge, a single man, Mortgagor, to the Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, dated July 1, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Marshall, Minnesota, on the 16th day of November, 1920, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 100 of Mortgages, on page 218.

That on the 26th day of November, 1920, said mortgage was assigned by the said Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, to Albertus Hinrichs, and the Deed of Assignment recorded on July 13 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M., in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 59 thereof.

That thereafter, to-wit: on the 29th day of June, 1922, the said Albertus Hinrichs assigned said mortgage by assignment in writing dated on that day, and which Assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 13th day of July, 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 103 of Mortgages, on page 380 thereof.

That such default consists in the non-payment, when due, of the principal and interest which said mortgage was given to secure: that the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, is the sum of One Thousand Seventy Dollars ($1070.00).

That the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are described as follows: The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Thirteen (13), Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North, of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Marshall County, Minnesota.

That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, by the sheriff of Marshall County, Minnesota, at the West front door of the Marshall County Court House in the City of Warren, in Marshall County, Minnesota, on Monday, the 20th day of October, 1924, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, together with the costs of such sale, and Fifty Dollars ($50.00), Attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative and the Assignee of the Mortgagee hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Frederick M. Olson, a single man, mortgagor, to J. D. Layton, mortgagee, dated May 21st, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, 1923, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 115 of Mortgages on page 493,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said J. D. Layton, Mortgagee, to Clement Kamrowski, by written assignment dated October 23rd, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 25th day of October, 1923, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 115 of Mortgages on page 593,

And whereas, the said Clement Kamrowski, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Fifty-five Hundred ($5500.00) Dollars, with accumulated interest from the 21st day of May, 1923, at the rate of six and one-half per cent per annum; and whereas, the Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Sixteen (16) in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty (40) West, of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota containing One Hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government Survey thereof.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 28th day of October, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and all delinquent taxes, if any, on said premises, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars, as the statutory attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

Valuable Hints to Patrons

Delivering Cream to our Creamery

Pasteurization is very important, yet to have it done in an inefficient way is worse than not at all. In view of the fact we ask the cooperation and urge upon all patrons to try and do their share to help us. First— You must try and bring a 1st grade cream and have same delivered in the forenoon if possible. Second— Help us to get our average test 30 per cent or better. Sweet cream can be pasteurized more efficiently than sour, and high testing cream will save you more money for the reason that with a low testing cream it is impossible to churn it without considerable butterfat being drained out with the buttermilk.

Borne across the water came the creak of blocks and the rattle of oars, followed by heavy splashes, as the boats struck the water. Then they shot away from the ship and vanished into the shoreward shadows.

"They've separated," muttered Lord George. "They're going in three different directions. And they're pulling fast. Listen to them. They're— By Jove, Archman. I've guessed it. Somebody's escaped and they're after him. Maybe it's your daughter and Bunker. Bunker has found a way."

The sound of the oars did indeed show that the boats had separated widely. To right and to left the creaking had grown fainter. But directly in front it had grown louder.

Lord George noticed it and jumped. "One of them's coming here!" he cried. "We've got to do something, quick. Hello! What's that?"

From immediately behind a rattle of oars had sounded. Simultaneously Olaf spoke. "Our boat. She come!" he said.

A boat, with a lantern and a reflector at the bow, had shot into sight behind the three men.

Archman sprang toward it with an exclamation. "Just in time!" he cried. "Lord George, call your party down. Don't lose a minute. We must get the women to safety." He turned again to the boat. "Turn around, quick," he ordered. "Come along the bank and wait." Once more he faced toward the slope, up which Lord George was hurrying. "Quick! For heaven's sake, quick!" he called.

But Lord George was already at the top giving the alarm, and the next moment the party came plunging downward.

Lord George himself led the way, guiding Miss Denslow's footsteps and preventing her toppling over every precipitous break in the path. Behind her came Harry Archman, steadying his mother as well as he could on the narrow pathway. The poor lady was only half aroused from sleep and was tottering from weariness, but she did her best, incited by the news that her husband was waiting her and by Lord George's perhaps overoptimistic assertions that her troubles were over.

Behind her came Bess, and the rear was brought up by Collins, who had come up, panting, just in time to join the rest. As he took the first step of the descent, the moon, slipping above the last screening peak, illuminated the mountainside and all of the water except a narrow band close to the shore. In the refulgence the boat from the El Rio stood plainly out. The ravine itself escaped the direct rays, but its details became faintly visible by the reflected light.

At the bottom of the slope, beside the flat rock where Lord George had first halted, lay a broad, shallow boat, beside which Archman stood waiting.

Mrs. Archman tottered into his arms. "Henry! Henry!" she sobbed.

Archman patted her on the back. "That's all right, mother!" he said. "All right! Everything's all right." His breath caught as he remembered Nellie, but he went on bravely. "Get into the boat," he begged. "We've got no time to lose. Quick, quick!"

Lord George glanced about him, taking in details which had before been invisible in the gloom. The ravine was not a real ravine. It was merely a recess or inlet between high, rocky slopes. It ended abruptly half a dozen feet back from where he stood, in a precipitous wall of rock in which gaped the black face of a cave. The rescuing boat had come out of this and was going back into it.

Lord George glanced at his companions. Obviously they were more than the boat would hold. And the mutineers were very near. He spun around.

"Here, boys—whatever your names are—come! We'll hold the entrance." He started toward the sea.

"Wait, wait!" Archman's call was quick. "We'll hold them, but not just here. Come. I will show you!" He pushed the boat off and the two oarsmen, poling with their oars, drove it beneath the black archway of the cavern. Then he turned. "Follow me," he ordered, and stepped into a narrow, almost unnoticeable ledge of rock that ran along the side of the entrance to the cave.

Half out of sight he turned and beckoned. "Come!" he urged; and vanished into the blackness. With a shrug of his shoulders Lord George followed.

A moment later, looking out of the darkness, he saw the mutineers' boat shoot into the mouth of the outlet.

Simultaneously a pistol cracked behind him and one of the rowers jumped convulsively, and then fell sideways into the boat; and the others, without orders, backed water desperately.

Then Archman spoke. "That will hold them for a while," he rasped. "Till daylight, anyway, I think. It is not long till then. When they do come we shall be ready for them."

CHAPTER XVII

The Attack.

The dawn came slowly up behind the mountain. The pallid stars winked out and the streak of placid water reaching from the cave to the bay silvered in the growing light. The bay itself glowed pink and the far islands that lay to the west swam slowly into sight, like a picture on a film in the developing tray.

Inside the cave, Lord George, who with Archman had watched the night away from a broad shelf of rock that faced the entrance across the curving tidal stream, rose and stretched himself. "I'm going to reconnoiter," he said.

Archman nodded invisibly in the darkness. "I was just thinking of going myself," he said. "But perhaps you can do it better. You are younger and more active. But you will be careful. Eight men are none too many to defend even so strong a place as this."

"I'll be careful." Lord George was already sidling along the narrow edge.

In a moment he was at the entrance and was peering cautiously about in the white dawn. Up and down the cut he looked, scanning the sloping sides, which were not nearly so precipitous as they had seemed when he descended them in the gloom of the night. Long he stared, straining his ears the while for any sound that might tell that the mutineers were lurking near, watching a chance to take the defenders by surprise. But neither eyes nor ears gave warning and at last he slipped from the entrance to the rock landing. Still no sign of danger presented itself.

He had two places to investigate—the mouth of the inlet and the crest of the ravine. The attack might come by boat from the one or it might come by land over the other. But Lord George knew that an attack by boat must be slower than one by land, and that if it came the attackers could not cut off his retreat. Besides, from the crest of the ravine, he could reconnoiter both land and sea.

Therefore he turned his face to the slope and began to ascend. He moved swiftly. Swiftness was his best protection, as concealment on the bare rocks was impossible. Up the slope he bounded till almost at the top. Then he stopped and lifted his head cautiously above the edge. Then he started; his eyes expanded; his ready automatic flashed up.

He found himself looking squarely into the muzzle of another pistol, held by a man who, prone upon his stomach, had just crawled to the edge and was looking over. For a moment death for one or both hung in the balance. Then Lord George lowered his pistol. "Don't shoot!" he said. "I'm a friend!" Behind the other he had seen an orderly line of men who were assuredly not mutineers.

As the other hesitated, Lord George stood up, slipping his pistol back into his pocket as he did so. "Who's in command?" he demanded.

An officer came forward promptly and saluted. "Lord George Caruthers?" he questioned. "I am Captain Strindberg, of the Danish navy, commanding a detachment from his majesty's ship Falsberg. I have heard of you from Captain Bunker of the El Rio. I have three of your party with me." He gestured toward Nellie, Carr and Bunker, who were hurrying forward.

Lord George glanced at them, recognizing Bunker and guessing who Nellie was. Then he looked back to Strindberg. "Glad to meet you, captain," he said. "I suppose Captain Bunker has told you everything. Have you seen anything of the mutineers?"

"They have just left the El Rio and are heading this way—three boats of them, about forty men in all. They seem to meditate an attack in force. Mr. Archman and the others are with you?"

"Yes; in a cave in the bottom of the ravine here." Lord George stepped past the officer. "Good morning, Captain Bunker," he said, holding out his hand. "You came in good time. I suppose this is Miss Archman?" He held out his hand to the girl. "Your father is terribly anxious about you," he added.

Nellie nodded. "Poor father," she breathed. "I'm sorry, sorrier than I can say. This is Mr. Carr. Lord George. How is my mother?"

"Mrs. Archman and the rest are well. They are waiting below. I beg your pardon, captain?"

Strindberg was plucking the Englishman by the arm. "The boats approach quickly," he said. "Perhaps you will lead the way down the slope. I want not that your friends should shoot my men, not knowing that they are friends."

"Quite right." Lord George turned toward the ravine. Then he paused. "If I may suggest, captain, we have seven men below in a strong position. Why not keep your force up here till the mutineers attack and then take them in the rear?"

Strindberg drew himself up. "I have arranged that some stay, my lord," he said stiffly. "Be pleased to descend."

With a nod of compliance, Lord George started downward, followed by Nellie and the rest.

Archman was standing in the archway, looking eagerly out. At sight of Nellie he sprang forward with a cry, which the girl echoed gladly. Then he started and thrust her behind him as he saw the sailors descending the slope.

Strindberg stopped and saluted formally. "Captain Strindberg, of the Danish navy, Mr. Archman," he said. "Is his highness here?"

Archman hesitated. "His highness is not far away, captain," he said slowly.

"Good! You will take me to him so soon as I have ended this mutiny? Please lead the way into your cave." The captain spoke authoritatively.

Nellie had already vanished into the archway and Lord George and Carr were following. Archman, with a bow to Strindberg, slipped in and the others came swiftly after.

Obedient to quick orders the half dozen civilian defenders evacuated their post along the shelf of rock that faced the entrance, giving place to the sailors. Nellie had gone farther back to where Archman was waiting. The others at Strindberg's request moved to one side, out of range of possible bullets. "Now we will wait," said the captain. "We prepare our surprise for the mutineers, so!"

The preparations were finished none too soon. As the captain faced the now vivid opening of the arch, the first boat of the mutineers swung in at the mouth of the inlet and came on with a rush. Behind it, an instant later, the others approached. "Halt!" Strindberg's voice trumpeted from the archway.

A chorus of shouts answered. Above them rose Price's voice. "Rush 'em, boys. Rush 'em. Quick! Stroke! Stroke! Stroke!"

Strindberg stepped aside. "Fire!" he ordered calmly; and from the line of Danish marines sped a whirlwind of bullets.

Under it the attackers reeled. Half the men in the first boat fell from their seats. But from the stern sheets a dozen rifles answered, spitting lead into the darkness. Simultaneously, the second boat, veering to the right, sped past.

Again came the calm order "Fire!" and again the sailors' rifles flamed.

The starboard oarsmen in the second boat caught the fire and dropped, their useless oars trailing in the water. The boat, driven by the port oars only, veered across the channel and the third boat crashed into it.

The attackers had had enough. Yells to "back water" rose and the third boat began to slip away. Simultaneously Strindberg's voice rang out. "Surrender!" he called. "Look above you—and look behind."

The mutineers looked. Above them, at the top of the ravine, stood the rest of the Danes, and behind them were two boats filled with sailors in the uniforms of the Danish navy. Strindberg had laid his trap well.

CHAPTER XVIII

The Only Answer.

The fight had come too swiftly to permit much interchange of comment among the reunited civilians. Mrs. Archman and Bess and Miss Denslow had flatly refused to go on to the refuge that Archman had told them was waiting for them and had insisted on staying near their menfolk.

News of Nellie's venture on board the El Rio was kept from them, Archman explaining only that the girl was safe and would be with them soon. The outbreak of the fighting, almost instantly after she did arrive, prevented questions.

Once the battle was over, however, explanations were in order. They were precipitated by Carr, who came toward the group from near the entrance. "It's all over!" he called. "They've surrendered."

"Oh! I'm so glad." Nellie caught her mother by the arm and fairly ran her to the light. "Come to the—er—door, please, mother," she cried, "so that you can see Jim. He's going to be your son-in-law, you know."

"Son-in-law!" the lady gasped. "Why! Why!" She studied Carr's face in the greater light. "Why, he's the carpenter man on the boat!"

Nellie had the grace to blush, but she quickly recovered herself. "Of course, he is," she said. "I didn't know you'd seen him—though I don't know how you could help noticing him. Yes! He's Mr. Carr—James Carr."

The young man grinned. "Not Carr exactly," he explained. "Van Kull, son of your neighbor, Nicholas Van Kull, who made Miss Archman's acquaintance while shipbuilding in his father's repair docks. Father insisted that I should learn to earn my own living; and I guess I have. I was known at the docks as Jim Carr."

Faribault—Concerts by three bands and a street pavement dance under the supervision of Mayor Thomas H. Quinn, are to be features of Faribault's fourth annual "open house party."

Madison—Theodore Christianson, Republican candidate for governor, outlined the Republican party's aims in a keynote speech to 3,500 "home folks," who have known him during most of his lifetime in Lac qui Parle county.

Faribault—Land in many parts of Rice county is now being prepared by farmers for the sowing of winter wheat and rye. Interest in winter wheat has risen to unparalleled heights this fall, because of the large yields.

Redwood Falls—The calf that went from here to the State Fair, is now being made ready to go to Milwaukee. Robert Nolting of Lamberton, county champion, led the county last year, too, but his records and story were incomplete, so he fell down.

New Richland—A pageant exemplifying the development of the dairy industry inaugurated the annual "Dairy day" festival here. Displays of dairy equipment vied with exhibits of high-class milkers and the number of visitors here this year is far in excess of the 1923 attendance.

Thief River Falls—The value of a state fair exhibit was made emphatic when George M. Wilson, in charge of the Pennington county exhibit at St. Paul, was asked for definite information as to the possibility of obtaining several carloads of alfalfa in this immediate vicinity.

Rochester—In a county which jumped in calf club work from 25 members two years ago to 102 calves at this year's county show, Ardina Lanz, 18 year old Dover farm girl, typifies what Olmsted county can do. She led the county with her Holstein calf, and ending by winning The Minneapolis Journal trip to Milwaukee.

Northfield—Although final figures are not yet available, the total enrollment at Carleton College will be approximately 850, an increase of some 40 students over last year.

Faribault—Local authorities are investigating into the need for a municipal incinerator plant for Faribault with the expectations of laying definite recommendations on the matter before the city council.

Austin—A total of $1,450.72 was credited to the high school fund from all school activities for the last school year, and at this time there is a balance of $1,516 in the fund.

OPERATION ADVISED FRIEND SAID "DON'T DO IT!"

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First. Proved Good Advice

Chicago, Illinois.—"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. Believe me, I recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman I know has any kind of female trouble. It has helped me and a lot of my friends."—Mrs. A. McCANDLESS, 1709 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill. MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

Big Happenings of the Week Condensed for the Benefit of Busy Readers.

Washington

Washington—The volume of taxation in America increased $755,000,000 in 1923 over 1922, the report of the National Industrial Conference Board showed.

Washington—Retail food prices in the United States increased approximately two-thirds of one per cent in August, the bureau of labor statistics said.

Washington — President Coolidge sent a message to President Obregon of Mexico in recognition of the Mexican independence day, expressing "fervent wishes for the continued prosperity" of Mexico.

Washington—Richmond, Va., will be the meeting place of the 1925 convention of the National League of Women Voters, April 15 to 20. Its executive committee accepted formal invitations from state and civic officials to meet there, presented by Miss Adele Clark president of the Virginia league.

Washington—An evangelistic campaign to "increase interest in the church and bring about better church attendance by members" will be undertaken this fall with "all North America" as its field. The Federal Council of Churches announced that the campaign would continue until Easter, with Canadian churches invited to participate. Laymen, under direction of their pastors, will do most of the work.

Washington — President Coolidge left his desk for a while to review the long file of Quantico, Va., Marines, returning through here from their annual maneuvers near Frederick, Md. The line of march led thru the White House grounds. Only a few visitors were on the President's engagement as he directed his attention to preparation of addresses and to other government business, with final preparation of the annual budget of most pressing interest.

Domestic

Topeka—A permanent injunction restraining members of the Ku Klux Klan from parading in the masks and regalia of the order in Kansas was issued by Judge M. Bender in Jefferson county District Court.

Austin, Texas—Dr. George C. Butte, republican nominee for governor, announced he would resign as dean of the University of Texas law school in order to make his campaign.

Indianapolis — James C. Shanssey of Indianapolis has been re-elected president of the Journeymen Barbers International Union. All other officers on the administration ticket with Shanssey were also re-elected.

New York — Margaret Harte, 43 years old, a nurse who admitted living on the proceeds of forged checks for 23 years, was sentenced to the state prison for women at Auburn for five years.

New York—Ten thousand Jews, bearing American consular vises and tickets calling for trans-Atlantic transportation are stranded in Cuban, German, English, Dutch and Rumanian ports, a relief committee reported.

Chicago—Miss Madeline M. Bailey of Angola, Ind., an opera singer, sang off her fine in a speeders' court here. After assessing her $34 and costs the magistrate asked her to sing. When she gave several ballads the justice remitted the fine.

Denver, Col.—Incorporation papers for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan must be accepted and filed by the secretary of state under an opinion handed down by Deputy Attorney General Cloud. Secretary of State Milliken had been holding up the papers pending receipt of an opinion from the attorney general on the matter.

Chicago—The American Farm Bureau Federation announced here that E. B. Reid has been named temporary Washington representative of the orgainzation, taking the place of Gray Silver, who resigned to devote all his time to the co-operative grain marketing company, of which he is president.

Topeka, Kans.—Three large bundles of petitions, said to contain the signatures of 7,500 Kansas voters indorsing the nomination of William Allen White, Emporia editor, and Carr W. Taylor of Hutchinson, as independent candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, were delivered to Frank J. Ryan, secretary of state by Mr. White.

Chicago—Willie Dalton, the 16 year-old boy who in 1921 upset the country by walking away from a Chicago bank where he was employed, with bonds valued at $772,000, went home with his mother without fear of being sent to a reformatory. Attorneys for the defense referred to the leniency allowed Nathan F. Leopold and Richard Loeb who killed young Robert Franks.

Chicago—Tull [illegible] the Newton brothers to be charged with complicity in connection with the $2,000,000 Rondout, Ill. mail robbery last June waived examination when arraigned before a United States commissioner here and was held under bonds of $100,000.

Muskegon, Mich.—The steamer Ralph owned by O. W. Blodgett, Duluth, was beached off North Manitou Island, Lake Michigan in a storm and the crew of 15 under Captain William Fisher of Grand Haven, Mich., was rescued with difficulty by North Manitou coast guards, it was learned here

Pittsburgh—The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Cunnen Sturges, well known actress, known as Grace Dewitt, was reported.

Baltimore — The village of Ashland, Baltimore county, was sold at public auction to J. P. Schwartz of Baltimore, for $43,000.

Sports

Minneapolis—The 1924 Gophers assembled on historic Northrop field for their first practice session of the year. More than 35 huskies had checked in with "Oscar," the equipment expert, and more are expected, according to Head Coach "Bill" Spaulding, all of last year's squad, both varsity and freshman, will be on deck.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Jimmie Murphy of Vernon, Calif., favored to win the national racing championship of the American Automobile association for 1924, and veteran of many an automobile speed classic in this country and abroad, met his death on the state fair grounds when the car he was piloting crashed through a wooden fence on a curve during the 138th lap of the 150-mile race.

New York—Heavyweights will be featured frequently at Madison Square Garden this winter if Tex Rickard can employ his persuasive eloquence to good effect on certain managers who are beginning to realize that the days of fabulous purses for ordinary fighters are passing. Rickard will endeavor to talk Eddie Kane and Leo Flynn into matching Tom Gibbons and Jack Renault for a November scuffle.

Los Angeles—Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago White Sox, died here after a long illness. For several months Chance had been recuperating in southern California from a breakdown suffered in Chicago last spring in an attempt to resume active management of the team. He was at his apartment here when another sudden attack caused his removal to the Good Samaritan hospital, where he died within a half hour.

Foreign

Pera, Turkey — Fifty persons were killed in Sofia, Bulgaria, during a reign of terror started by followers of the peasant leader Alexandroff, according to reports received here.

Paris — Mme. Adrienne Bolland, most prominent of French women fliers, finished an 11-day "tourist airplane" competition in a tie with 10 men aviators.

Berlin — Unemployed persons in Germany, including occupied territories, number 1,000,000, of which 50,000 are drawing doles, according to statistics of the minister of labor.

Cologne — The Inter-Allied Rhineland high commission authorized the flight of the ZR-3 over occupied territories in the coming voyage of the Zeppelin from Friedrickshafen to Lakehurst, N. J.

Guayaquil, Ecuador — Because of the crushing defeats suffered by the rebels, it is generally considered here that the revolution against the federal government is at an end.

Tokio—Severe rain and wind storms have caused 30 deaths while 312 persons have been seriously injured. Some 3,200 houses were destroyed and 4,600 damaged.

Tetuan, Morocco—Gradual withdrawal of Spanish forces from advanced positions in Morocco is in accord with a plan which is to fight to the limit until the rebels are beaten, General Primo Rivera said.

Sofia, Bulgaria—The assassination of two Macedonian autonomist leaders, Aleko Vassilef and George Atanchot at Dhumaia, has been reported to the ministry of the interior. Macedonian circles here are much exercised over the report.

Baku, Azerbaijan—Thirty five oil wells belonging to the government have been destroyed by fire, resulting from the short circuiting of electric wires. One of the wells yielded 60,000 gallons daily. The damage is estimated in the millions of rubles.

Chicago—Shortly before Bernard Grant, sentenced to hang on October 17, for murder, was asked to sign a petition to Governor Small pleading for clemency, his attorney, Thomas E. Swanson, received a telegram from Dr. Agnes Lewis of St Cloud, Minn., stating that citizens of St. Cloud would petition the Illinois governor to spare Grant's life.

London—Captain Arthur D Bower, the man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo in 1911 winning more than $1,000,000, was fined 10 shillings in the London police court for drunkenness and £5 for throwing ink on a girl's dress. Captain Bower, who seemed down and out, did not have any money and was taken to a cell to await friends for whom he sent. It is believed Captain Bower's mind is unbalanced.

Paris—The troupe of American cowboys and cowgirls who staged a week's rodeo at Buffalo stadium, Paris, finished with the biggest crowd yet seen there. The French managers now are studying out means for giving the American troupe a barnstorming tour in France in the various larger towns. They have made as much in one week in Paris as they made in two weeks at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley according to figures available.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras—The government announces that its forces have routed the rebels at [illegible], San Isidor and Siguatepeque. It is expected that the main body of the rebels soon will come into contact with the loyal troops and a decisive battle is looked for.

Paris—Etienne Oehmichen, French aviator who already has won two world records for helicopter flights lifted a 200 kilogram cargo one meter and 10 centimeters from the earth here, winning the French government prize of 40,000 francs for a distinctive helicopter achievement.

Built Nest in Railroad Car

When a car from the Pennsylvania coal fields reached Waterloo, N. Y., a robin was noticed hovering about it, and on the bumpers was found her nest with two eggs in it. It is a certainty that her home was established and the eggs laid before coming to Waterloo, but whether the bird rode in the nest or accompanied the train on the wing is not known.

Returned to Native Sod

With shells screaming overhead and the rattle of machine guns in the air, an officer of the Irish guards in the front line trenches near Givenchy in 1915, noticed some pinks growing in the garden of a shell-battered cottage between the lines. That night he succeeded in digging up some of the plants with an entrenching tool. Eventually they reached a garden in Surrey, where they have bloomed and increased. Now plants grown from these war refugees have been taken back to Givenchy by an officer of the Imperial War Graves commission, and their white flowers are to be seen in the Guards' cemetery, and by the Memorial of the West Lancashire territorials.—London Times.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative and the Assignee of the Mortgagee hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was executed by Frederick M. Olson, a single man, mortgagor, to J. D. Layton, mortgagee, dated May 21st, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 4th day of June, 1923, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 115 of Mortgages on page 403;

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said J. D. Layton, Mortgagee, to Clement Kamrowski, by written assignment dated October 23rd, 1923, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 25th day of October, 1923, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 115 of Mortgages on page 503.

And whereas, the said Clement Kamrowski, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained; and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of Fifty-five Hundred ($5500.00) Dollars, with accumulated interest from the 21st day of May, 1923, at the rate of six and one-half per cent per annum; and whereas, the Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Sixteen (16) in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North, of Range Forty (40) West, of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota containing One Hundred sixty (160) acres, more or less, according to the United States Government Survey thereof.

Which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Marshall County, at the front door of the County Court House, in the City of Warren, in said County and State, on the 28th day of October, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the amount then due on said mortgage and interest and all delinquent taxes, if any, on said premises, together with the costs and disbursements of such sale and Seventy-five Dollars, as the statutory attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

CLEMENT KAMROWSKI,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Notice is hereby given, that default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage executed by Ludwig Klinge, a single man, Mortgagor, to the Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, dated July 1, 1920, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Marshall, Minnesota, on the 10th day of November, 1920, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 106 of Mortgages, on page 212.

That on the 26th day of November, 1920, said mortgage was assigned by the said Farm Loan Security Company of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, a Corporation, Mortgagee, to Albertus Hinrichs, and the Deed of Assignment recorded on July 13, 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M., in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 51 thereof.

That thereafter, to-wit: on the 29th day of June, 1922, the said Albertus Hinrichs assigned said mortgage by assignment in writing dated on that day, and which Assignment was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 13th day of July, 1922, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 133 of Mortgages, on page 780 thereof.

That such default consists in the nonpayment, when due, of the principal and interest which said mortgage was given to secure; that the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, is the sum of One Thousand, Seventy Dollars ($1070.00).

That the premises described in and covered by said mortgage are described as follows: The Northwest Quarter (NW¼) of Section Thirteen (13), Township One Hundred Fifty-five (155) North, of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Marshall County, Minnesota.

That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, by the Sheriff of Marshall County, Minnesota, at the West front door of the Marshall County Court House in the City of Warren, in Marshall County, Minnesota, on Monday, the 20th day of October, 1921, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, together with the costs of such sale, and Fifty Dollars ($50.00), Attorney's fees, stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated September 2nd, 1924.

Nearly every year some people are killed by coming in contact with live electric wires. Sometimes the wires break accidently and fall to the ground, but usually these fatalities take place after a storm, when the ground is wet, wires down and everything in the best of condition for conducting the electricity. The only safe way is to never touch a wire that happens to be down, as it may carry a deadly current.

We are changing our press day to Thursday and will not have time to set ANY TYPE on that day, so please bring or send in all copy for news items, church notices, advertising, etc., on or before Tuesday so that we will have plenty of time to set the type before Thursday.

Plow early, and plow deep, is the advice of experts.

H. G. Carter of the state highway department was here Tuesday trying to round up any who have not paid their auto licenses. He says it is cheaper to send the license fee to the secretary of state than to have him catch them and the slackers to pay the fee and fine besides.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage containing a Power of Sale, by reason of which default said Power of Sale has become operative, and the Administrator of the Assignee of the Mortgagee hereinafter named is authorized to declare the whole sum due and he hereby does declare said sum due, which mortgage was duly executed by Engebret S. Moe, a single man, Mortgagor, to D. B. Bakke, Mortgagee, dated April 23rd, 1910, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1910, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 93 of Mortgages, on page 252.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said D. B. Bakke, Mortgagee, to Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, by written assignment, dated May 17th, 1910, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 24th day of May, A. D. 1910, at 10 o'clock A. M., in Book 86 of Mortgages, on page 270,

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Deposit Bank of Winona, Winona, Minnesota, to Bridget Ryan, by written assignment, dated September 13th, A. D. 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Marshall County, Minnesota, on the 17th day of September, A. D. 1924, at 8 o'clock A. M., in Book 110 of Mortgages, on page 324.

And whereas, the said Administrator of the Estate of said Bridget Ryan, the assignee and holder of said mortgage, has duly elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the Power of Sale therein contained, and whereas, there is actually due and claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of Thirty-six Hundred Dollars ($3600.00), with accumulated interest from the 23rd day of April, 1921, at the rate of six per cent per annum; and whereas, the said Power of Sale has become operative and no action or proceedings having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz:

Lots One (1) and Two (2), the Southeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (SE¼-SW¼) and the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Twenty-five (25), the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter (SW¼SE¼) of Section Thirty-three (33), all in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North of Range Forty-two (42) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, and,

The North Half of the Southeast Quarter (N½SE¼) and the North Half of the Southwest Quarter (N½SW¼) of Section Thirty-one (31) in Township One Hundred Fifty-six (156) North of Range Forty-one (41) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, containing a total of Three Hundred Thirty-six and 55-100 (336.55) acres more or less according to the United States Government survey thereof, all in Marshall County and State of Minnesota.
